Dreams Do Not Foretell Future

By Dr. Joseph G. Molner

Dear Dr. Molner: I keep dreaming the same dream over and over again. I dream that my husband goes out and staysstays until all hours drinking. I have two small children and a wonderful husband who has never done this. I usually dream this when I am pregnant. It makes me a great deal. Can you help me? And give me some explanation?
— M. N.

May I guess at something you didn't say — that you are afraid that dreams are portents of the future? Well, they aren't.

Dreams are only the action of the mind at certain stages of sleep, when your thoughts, not consciously directed, skitter from one impression to another.

People dream of things they like, things they fear, often of things which may not seem to be related to anything in particular, but are touched off by something that may have been lurking, in the mind. Dreams are the result of the variety of the machinery running through your mind.

It is understandable enough to a person with four small children would not want her husband to become a boozer fighting night owl. It may be that at some time you wondered what would happen if such a thing occurred in your family. Or perhaps you heard of it happening to some other woman. The thought gave you a chill.

Whatever stirred the thought, it remained about it. And — if I am guessing correctly — you thought about the dream the next day, and wondered whether it was an omen. And you worried enough so the idea became embedded in your mind, and that, in turn caused more of the same dreams — because you were worrying about it!

The notion that dreams foretell the future is rather superstition, and just knowing that fact may be all you need. You have a good, steady husband — you've been married long enough to know what he is really like. So don't let superstition mess up your dreams and worry you.

Dear Dr. Molner: I think you had an article about monotonous that I didn't pay much attention to it at the time, but I've never heard of it. Now my niece has it and has been out of school three weeks. She doesn't feel any other cases in this area. I have a teen-age daughter, so I'm concerned that she may contagious it is. — Mrs. H S.

Even though you passed over the article, you can still send, at any time, for my booklet, "Mononucleosis — What You Should Know." It is: What To Do." Send 25 cents in coin and a self - addressed, stamped envelope to Dr. Molner, in care of this newspaper, for a copy.

"Mono" spreads rather readily among young people, but the exact mode of transmission is considered uncertain. Avoiding close contact when the disease is known to be in a community is probably the best guard. Properly managed, it is not a dangerous disease, and runs its course in due time. But it certainly interrupts a lot of school work.

Dear Dr. Molner: Do a father or mother's blood both go to their baby before it is born? Some say may the fathers. — Mrs. O. M. S.

Neither. The baby's hereditary pattern is its own (except for identical twins) determined by one cell (a blood) from each parent. The two cells unite to form a single cell, which in its chromosomes contains all the "genetic information" which governs the characteristics of the baby as the one cell divides and cells divide again and again until, from that one cell, you have a child.

The growing fetus is nourished by the mother's blood stream, and, the father's blood has no direct contact with the baby at all. However, the baby's blood type will be one determined by a combination of the parents' blood type.

Dr. Molner welcomes all reader mail, but regrets that due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column when ever possible.

Sikes' 66 Captures Citrus Open!

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Dan Sikes needs only a victory in one of the major tournaments to win a ranking among pro golf's top players. But the 1968 Citrus Open champ says his main goal is to win $100,000 a year.

The long-driving veteran is just reaching his peak at the age of 37. He has his sights set this year on claiming a title in one of the prestige tournaments, such as the Masters.

"And if I keep playing like I did last year and I have here, I believe I should be ranked in the top five or six players," he said Sunday.

"But my big goal is to win $100,000 again," added the attorney-golfer from Jacksonville, Fla., after winning $23,000 in the Citrus Open Sunday.

Sikes harvested $111,000 from golf tournaments in 1967 when he won the Jacksonville Open and the Philadelphia Classic.

Sikes shot a 68 in the serious finish for a 72-hole total of 274, one stroke ahead of Tom Weiskopf.

Weiskopf fired a 66 and won $13,800 for his second-place finish at 275. His winnings boosted Weiskopf's official earnings for the year to $60,042.

Jack Nicklaus, never able to curb his wildness with his driver, finished with a 68, good for third place at 276 and $8,625.

George Knudson, 30-year-old Toronto golfer, finished with a 285 and earned $345. Knudson was earlier on the tour won the Phoenix and Tucson opens.

"I kept thinking I should be able to walk home, the way I was playing," Sikes said. "But Weiskopf is a great player and I never could let up."

Sikes, after playing the Pensacola and Jacksonville opens goes to Augusta, Fa., to practise for the Masters.

"The Masters' is built for a few players—and luckily I'm one of them," Sikes said. "You have got to be able to drive the ball a long way and hook it, and that's always been the best part of my game."

Goderich Peewee Tournament

GODERICH, Ont. (CP) — Ken Farrish, captain of the Lucknow C team, scored seven goals to lead his team to two victories Saturday during the second day of play in the Young Canada peewee hockey tournament here.

Lucknow defeated Chesley 4-3 with Farrish getting three of the winning goals then went on to beat Watford 8-3, Farrish accounting for half of his team's goals in that one.

Lucknow was joined by New Hamburg and Lambeth with two wins in as many starts Saturday in C series competition.

Brussels became the first D series entry to win two straight when they downed Zurich 5-0 and Ilderton 2-1.

New Hamburg recorded a 4-2 win over Port Elgin and then got by Harriston 7-3. Lambeth defeated Mitchell 4-1 and then blanked Milverton 4-0.

In other games Saturday, Watford beat Wingham 9-6, Ilderton downed Seaforth 4-3, Milverton shut out Southampton 4-0 and Harriston sidelined Dorchester 4-1.

Goldsworthy Fined $150, Suspended

MONTREAL (CP) — Minnesota forward Bill Goldsworthy received a three-game suspension without salary and an additional $150 fine Saturday for an altercation with National Hockey League linesman John D'Amico.

The altercation occurred in March 13 in the third period of a game with Philadelphia Flyers. The Flyers won the game 4-2.

The suspension and fine, announced by league president Clarence Campbell, follow an investigation which found the Minnesota winger guilty of punching D'Amico when the linesman stepped in to break up an argument.

At the time, referee John Ashley handed Goldsworthy with a game misconduct which carries an automatic $50 fine.

World Circling Non-Stop Yacht Race

LONDON (Reuters) — The Sunday Times is offering a £5,000 (about $13,000) prize for the world's toughest sailing race—a non-stop single-handed trip round the world in the fastest time.

Participants in the race, described by British global navigator Sir Francis Chichester as the "Everest of the sea," must start from Britain port after June 1 and before Oct. 31 this year.

The prize will go to the yachtsman who completed the fastest non-stop circumnavigation without other physical assistance.

Old Times; Yankees Beat The Dodgers

By BOB GREEN
Associated Press Sports Writer

John Blanchard, a spectacular pinch hitter during the New York Yankees' years of greatness, is on his way back to the minors, his comback try a failure.

Tony Conigliaro, also on a comeback try, is on his way back, too—back to a regular spot in the Boston Red Sox outfield.

"Tony's going to be okay," Red Sox manager Dick Williams said Sunday after Conigliaro's 400-foot double had ignited a decisive rally in Boston's 3-2 exhibition baseball victory over World Series rival St. Louis Cardinals at St. Petersburg, Fla.

But for Blanchard, 35 and trying a comeback after two years away, it was a different, sadder story. He was one of 11 players cut by Atlanta Braves at West Palm Beach, Fla. after dropping a 9-3 decision to Washington.

"I tried to make it because I love the game," he said. "I missed it. I wanted to play some more, maybe then catch on as a coach or manager."

In the other Florida games, Cincinnati Reds clipped Baltimore Orioles 7-5 at Miami, Houston Astros edged Minnesota Twins 7-6 at Orlando, the Yankees beat Los Angeles Dodgers 3-1 at Fort Lauderdale, Oakland Athletics nipped New York Mets 3-2 at Bradenton, Pittsburgh Pirates blanked Philadelphia Phillies 5-0 at Fort Myers and Detroit Tigers hammered Chicago White Sox 8-4 at Lakeland.

In Arizona, Cleveland Indians edged California Angels 3-2 and San Francisco Giants defeated Chicago Cubs 4-1.

Conigliaro hit 20 home runs before being sidelined for the last seven weeks of the 1967 season with a fractured cheek bone and double vision after being hit by a pitched ball.

He started Boston's two-run rally against the Cards' Steve Carlton with a double in the ninth inning. Reserve Ken Harrelson followed with a triple and Reico Petrocelli's sacrifice fly won it.

English Soccer Race

Manchester City Defeats United!

LONDON (CP)-Inside forward Niel Young scored two goals Saturday and sent Manchester City to the top of the English League soccer standing over defending champions Manchester United in the developing race for the English crown.

Young's goals helped Manchester City to a 3-1 victory over last place Fulham. That victory came as Manchester United, through to the quarter-finals of the European Cup, slumped to a 2-0 defeat at the hands of Coventry, second last in the English First Division.

Manchester City now leads the First Division standings with a better goal average than Manchester United. Both teams have 43 points.

Leeds United, reigning English League champions, moved into third place with 42 points following a 1-1 draw at Newcastle and Liverpool edged out Burnley 3-2 to take fourth place with 41 points.

Coventry, trying to avoid relegation to the Second Division, scored 2:135,000 in a last-minute spending to prop up the team.

Women's Golf Title to K. Whitworth

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (CP-AP) — Kathy Whitworth shot a 72 Sunday to come out on a narrow win in the Orange Blossom women's open golf championship and take first prize of $1,875.

After missing birdie putts on five of the last six holes, Miss Whitworth found the mark at the 18th green to escape a sudden-death playoff.

Her four s'aight pars and 20-foot birdie putt on the 18th came after Miss Whitworth had two four strokes behind Sandra Haynie and Judy Kimball.

She finished with a 54-hole winning total of 213, one shot both Miss Haynie and Miss Kimball.

Hot Race In A.L. Playoffs
By THE CANADIAN PRESS
The American Hockey League playoff picture is still anybody's guess.
After weekend action, only Baltimore Clippers appear left out. The league's Eastern Division tailenders trail Providence Reds, in the third and last playoff slot, by two points with seven games remaining in their 72-game schedule.
And in the Western Division, only Rochester Americans appear to have an edge, holding down first place by four points over Quebec Aces.
Buffalo Bisons, last in the West, have just two points behind Cleveland Barons, who in turn trail Quebec by only three points. The Bisons, however, have two games in hand.
Baltimore lost two weekend games—6-3 to Rochester Saturday and 10-3 to Springfield Kings Sunday.
Buffalo, meanwhile beat Hershey Bears, leaders in the east, 3-1 Sunday and played a 2-2 tie with Cleveland Saturday.

Portland Ties Twice Ups Lead
By THE CANADIAN PRESS
Portland Buckaroos managed a pair of overtime ties with their two top Western Hockey League rivals during the weekend and added another point to their lead.
A 3-3 tie with San Diego Gulls Sunday night in Portland gave them a five-point spread over second-place Seattle Totems after the Bucks drew 2-2 with the Totems before a record 13,400 fans in Seattle Saturday night.

British Commonwealth Office Put Under Foreign Secretary

LONDON (CP) — The latest upheavals to shake Britain's leadership are widely regarded here as portents of further shifts in the politics of the Commonwealth as well as of Britain. And additional domestic uproar is predicted in view of the world gold crisis, which has produced grim predictions that the budget due for presentation Tuesday will have to be even tougher than previously forecast.

Drowned out by developments surrounding George Brown's Friday night resignation from the cabinet was an announcement that the Commonwealth office would be merged with what had been his department, the foreign office.

One Whitehall observer was quick to see in this an end to "any pretence that Britain is still the hub of the Commonwealth."

Some MPs and Conservative commentators are predicting that the new foreign secretary, 61-year-old Michael Stewart, will retain the post only for the several months needed for completion of the fusion.

Speculation is that the agency may be given a new name—that of department of external affairs, in keeping with similar usage in Canada and other Commonwealth countries.

The late prime minister of Canada, Sir Wilfrid Laurier, helped conceive the idea of a British government department to handle London's relations with the dominions.

Originally part of the old colonial office, the resulting organization gained separate status after 1925 as the dominions office—"the foreign office with a family feeling."

After India and Pakistan won independence, the department name was changed to Commonwealth relations office.

The view is widely expressed too that significant rivalry may be expected for a position still held by the temperamental but talented Brown, that of Labor party deputy leader.

The post gives its holder a solid power base only for the several months needed for completion of the fusion.

Conservative chief Edward Heath, in the meantime, heaped the blame for Britain's economic woes squarely on Wilson.

In doing so, he reflected determination in some Conservative quarters to abandon any bipartisan attitude and launch an all-out offensive designed to discredit the government.

Hellyer Opposes Troop Withdrawal

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP) — Withdrawal of Canadian troops from Europe could create a vacuum resulting in the creation of an independent German nuclear force, Transport Minister Hellyer said Sunday.

Mr. Hellyer, a candidate for the federal Liberal leadership, said that if Canada leaves NATO and withdraws troops from Europe, it might put political pressure on the United States to do the same.

Germany, which armed itself for the Second World War after being defeated in 1918, could then begin a movement which could lead to the establishment of an independent nuclear force.

Mr. Hellyer, touring Northern Ontario during his campaign for the leadership, also visited Timmins, North Bay and Sudbury.

Asked during a news conference if Canada should adopt a tough line in dealing with France and President Charles de Gaulle because of their interest in Quebec, Mr. Hellyer said: "I think we have to show a little patience and I think if we do for a while the problem will disappear."

He said in North Bay Sunday that if he becomes prime minister he will take an inventory of resources in Northern Ontario to determine the potential for the development of industry.

In Port Arthur on Saturday, he said he already has 400 committed votes for the leadership convention in Ottawa April 4-6. He said he has good backing in the West and Quebec but lacks support in the Maritimes.

Two-price Gold Hit By Turner

TORONTO (CP) — Consumer Affairs Minister Turner, a federal Liberal leadership candidate, said Saturday a two-price system for gold would hamper the creation of a new international system of reserves to finance world trade.

Speaking to reporters here, Mr. Turner said he was opposed to the system under which governments would deal between themselves in gold at the price pegged at $35 an ounce, while permitting the metal to find a higher price on a free market in non-governmental deals.

"We must continue to work toward the creation of a new international currency. That currency must be backed by gold. That being the case there should only be one price for gold in order to maintain the international reserve system."

He made the remarks prior to the Ste. Anne nomination announced that a two-price system for gold had been established.

In a keynote campaign tour in the Toronto and Kitchener areas, Mr. Turner also said he would be prepared to discuss a new constitution with Quebec if he received certain assurances first from that province.

In nearby Richmond Hill, he said the federal government must increase its stature among Indians and Eskimos and regain their confidence.

Collegiate Budget Up $60,000

PICTON (Staff) — The 1968 budget for the Prince Edward Collegiate Institute was set here this week at $1,000,150 by members of the board following a long session of checking and rechecking figures. The figure represents a total increase of about $60,000 from the 1967 budget of $926,000.

Unsettled wages for teachers was one of the problems facing the board and according to administrator Ernest Shortt, about two-thirds of the budget is taken up by teachers' salaries. The figure represents total expenditures only and is not the portion which must be raised locally through the county rate. Mr. Shortt said the final figure for the locally-raised portion of the budget should be ready in time for inclusion in the county budget in April.

Speaker Discusses Roses

Speaking to members of the Belleville Horticultural Society in the auditorium of the Tabernacle United Church last week was John Schloen, a director of the Canadian Rose Society and owner of Canada's largest rose nursery in Brooklin, Ontario.

Before getting into the technical aspects of gardening Mr. Schloen emphasized the importance of gardening to both adults and children.

The children, he said, "never forget the experience of growing."

The speaker then went on to discuss temperatures in the soil which have proved to be very important to roots as well as the necessity of bacteria in the soil.

On caring for the flowers Mr. Schloen told the group when they should be watered and before answering questions from the audience he discussed X-ray experimentation with roses and the mutations the treatment produces.

Stan Richards called attention to a model of the proposed Belleville Community Centre and remarked how it could be a great benefit to the city.

Three door prizes, gift certificates for rose bushes, were given at the meeting.

Officers Named for Association

PICTON (Staff) — About 30 interested Wellington citizens attended the first meeting of the newly-formed Wellington District Development Association recently. One of the major problems discussed was a plan associated with harbor development, and some type of foot bridge from Wellington across to the Sandbanks.

Members are trying to arrange an early meeting with A. Douglas Alkenbrack, MP for Prince Edward-Lennox and George Hees, Conservative candidate for the new riding of Prince Edward-Hastings. The meeting was told two governments would be involved in such an undertaking and there would also be a problem of finding solid ground for footings for a bridge in the shifting sands.

Steve Robert Boyce suggested fishermen using the harbor could bring more influence to bear on the federal government to have the channel dredged again and put in proper shape. Another major topic discussed was channel dredging. Apart from allowing more use of the village's new dock and sheltered harbor for pleasure craft, an open channel could mean earlier and more extensive smelt fishing for commercial fishermen using Wellington as a base for operations.

Other suggestions brought up at the meeting were possible use of the area for roller skating during summer months and a 12-acre hunting course.

The meeting passed a formal motion to form the Wellington District Development Association and elected the following officers: president, Keith Barnett; vice-president, Joseph Bowerman; secretary - treasurer, Tim Fielding. Aims, rules and bylaws are to be set up before the next meeting set for the second Wednesday in April.

Tell Children About Money

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

After a party, one of our guests wandered into the kitchen for a drink of water and came across my elder boy washing up the cups and saucers. "I suppose you're getting paid for this?" she asked.

"Heck, no," he said. "I get a good allowance, and I don't need to be paid extra for a little job like this."

She reported this conversation to me, in mingled surprise, admiration, and envy. What many children, including mine," she said, "wouldn't feel they get enough allowance, and would want to be paid for washing dishes after a party."

Actually, my children all get modest allowances, tailored to their ages and special needs. What continually astonishes me is the poor communication between parents and children on the subject of money. It is almost as hedged in by fear, repression and fantasy as the subject of sex is between the generations.

Many children are given no idea of their parents' true economic status, and imagine themselves to be much poorer or much richer than they actually are. Others, and this is even worse, are lied to by stingy parents or tempted to by bluffing ones, so that they become either poor-mouths or show-offs where money is concerned.

Inconsistency of attitude on the part of the parents is perhaps the most harmful influence on the growing child's reaction to money. To be lavishly fated one moment, in one area, and wildly budgeted the next moment, in another area, is to leave the child with no realistic conception of the use of money in family life. It is to make him confused, suspicious, resentful, and mistrustful — and to set up a possibly permanent credibility gap on the subject.

Children, it seems to me, should be told what the family income level is, how it compares to others, how much of it is disposable, and where the bulk of it goes, both for long-term security and for short-term pleasures. It should not be a mystery, it should be discussed, it should not be a matter of parental caprice or edict.

Money is much like water — absolutely essential, but not important in itself. Most adults confuse essential with important, and thus their own attitude toward money is continually vacillating — they are too tight when it is scarce, and too loose when it is abundant. Besides, its symbolic meaning for them is over-loaded with content.

The child takes his emotional cue from these parental attitudes, and money comes to mean too little or too much to him; not merely a thing in itself, but a symbol of love, security, sexuality, power, prestige, or independence. Little wonder families fight about it so much.

Much effort required to achieve goals. Key is to be creative. Make adjustments at home. Where romance is concerned, a quiet talk helps clear the air.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Accent on agreements to build, improve relations, family relationship. Day to seek the solid. Follow dreams that have a chance of turning to realities. Dismiss wishful thinking.

Bobby Kennedy Heir-apparent to Myth Which Refuses to Die

WASHINGTON (Reuters) — Senator Robert F. Kennedy, a man with political magic running in his veins, has his eyes set on the White House as a crusader rallying forth.

He is the help-apparent to a myth that refuses to die—a myth cherished by millions of Americans who discovered a taste for monarchy when the late John F. Kennedy was president and who now dream of "the restoration."

For the 42-year-old Bobby Kennedy, still youthful but with grey flecking his touselled hair, the chance to try for the United States' highest office has come sooner than many expected.

Personal dislike between him and President Johnson, legend in Washington, has not brought on the challenge.

Instead, it stems from the New York senator's deep feeling that the Johnson administration has not been flexible enough in seeking Vietnam peace and that the country is being torn apart by dissension and racial strife.

In March, 1967, Senator Kennedy proposed an unqualified halt in the American bombing of North Vietnam to try to initiate peace talks.

This year, in a widely-acclaimed speech on Feb. 8, he attacked every major facet of the Johnson administration's Vietnam policy and called the president's claims of progress "illusory."

From then on, it seemed only a question of "when will Bobby run?"—whether he would try to unseat the president this year or hold back until 1972.

Bobby Kennedy has been accustomed to walking the corridors of power—as his brother's campaign manager when John Kennedy won the White House in 1960, then as attorney-general and presidential right arm, and as U.S. senator for the last three years.

Though he is more abrasive than his brother Edward, the senior senator from Massachusetts and youngest member of the Kennedy dynasty, he is also more experienced and more aggressive.

Bobby is known on Capitol Hill for his sharpness and his ruthlessness. He views politics as a game for strong men and demonstrates contempt for defeatists.

But he is idolized by millions throughout the country. His influence among the liberal elements has grown and his appeal to the younger voters has risen.

A Roman Catholic and once regarded as conservative in outlook, Senator Kennedy later became the champion of the liberals, many of whom were disillusioned over Vice-President Humphrey's all-out support of President Johnson's Vietnam policy.

He is a staunch supporter of Negro civil rights.

As attorney-general he sent 20,000 federal troops into Oxford, Miss., in 1962 to enforce the enrolment of James Meredith as first Negro student at the university.

He angered many segregationists by prophesying that the U.S. will have its first Negro president by the end of the century.

Senator Kennedy, like his brothers and sisters, is said to have received $1,000,000 from his father on his 21st birthday.

Married with 10 children, he was born in Boston, Nov. 20, 1925.

"We're about to play charades, folks, and I know you wouldn't want to miss it."

LBJ Says U. S. Is Able to Win on Battlefield

WASHINGTON (CP-AP) — President Johnson said Saturday the United States "will win on the battlefield" in Vietnam if North Vietnam refuses to negotiate. And an authoritative source said there will be a "moderate increase" in U.S. troop strength in the war.

The source did not define moderate but ruled out anything along the lines of a 200,000-man buildup. About $10,000 troops now are in South Vietnam with an authorized strength of 525,000 already announced.

Defence department sources also shed no light on the scale of the reinforcement effort. But it was learned that one plan receiving careful consideration calls for sending a "division force" of about 45,000 men and mobilizing of about 30,000 members of the National Guard and reserves as replacements for the combat unit pool kept in the United States.

Johnson reasserted his determination with these words to a group of businessmen:

"I don't want a man here to go home thinking otherwise. We are going to win."

If North Vietnam will come to the negotiating table, he said, "we will meet them anywhere, anytime, in r spirit of generosity."

But if they choose the battlefield "we shall win on the battlefield."

African Guerrillas Killed in Rhodesia

SALISBURY (Reuters) — Nine African nationalist guerrillas and one policeman were killed in violent clashes near the Zambesi River, the Rhodesian government announced today.

The statement said: "There has been an infiltration of terrorists from Zambia, and security forces are now in contact with them."

An undisclosed number of guerrillas were captured and one seriously wounded, the statement said. Two members of the security force were also wounded.

Rhodesian forces also were said to be pursuing the remainder of the infiltrators.

Notices flashes on movie screens in Salisbury Sunday night ordered all soldiers on leave in the breakaway British colony back to their units and military police patrols searched other places of entertainment for off-duty men.

The guerrillas were reported seen crossing Lake Kariba in canoes.

Rhodesian forces are trying to block an influx of terrorists, who have threatened to free condemned Negroes from Rhodesian prisons and avenge the recent hanging of five Negroes.

Rhodesian security forces have been on a general alert for nearly a week as anger mounted in neighboring black African nations over the executions. The government has received 31 Negroes who were to die but sentenced five others Thursday to be hanged for bringing "weapons of war" into Rhodesia.

Informed sources said about 100 guerrillas crossed into Rhodesia from Zambia.

The Rhodesian government for some months had been information that hundreds of terrorists were massing in camps in Zambia, ready to cross into Rhodesia. The Rhodesian government recently introduced legislation making the death sentence mandatory for anyone crossing into Rhodesia with "weapons of war."

The last big infiltration of guerrillas was in August and September last year when more than 30 were killed. Rhodesian security forces lost six men.

There was another smaller incursion in January but most of the guerrillas fled back into Zambia after running into a Rhodesian ambush.

Brandt Accepts Oder-Neisse Line

NUERNBERG (AP) — Foreign Minister Willy Brandt said today that West Germany will should recognize or respect the disputed western frontier of Poland even before unification of Germany and conclusion of a Second World War peace treaty.

"The German people especially desire and need reconciliation with Poland . . . without knowing when their new political unity will be found in a peace treaty," Brandt told the national convention of his Social Democratic party.

"This means the recognition or respecting of the Oder-Neisse line, the frontier between Germany and Poland, until negotiation by peace treaty," he added.

"It means that the present frontiers of Europe may not be changed and that West Germany is prepared to bind itself to such an arrangement."

Brandt said also that it would be in West Germany's own interests to sign the proposed treaty against the spread of atomic weapons.

He told cheering delegates: "We are not receiving them (nuclear weapons). We don't want them. We don't need them."

Snowmobile Races Enjoyed At Carnival

TWEED — The winter's carnival held at Denbigh last Saturday, was deemed decided success, with the afternoon program devoted to snowmobile races which are becoming so popular.

These included a cross-country race, powderpuff race, display race, and speed races for stock snowmobiles and a 250 cc and stock snowmobiles up to 400 cc.

The evening's program featured a supper and an old time square dance.

The weather for the carnival was excellent, with 40-degree temperatures and sunny skies, although the snow was a bit too soft and slushy for good racing conditions.

Officials of the annual event were well pleased with the attendance and said it was superior to a year ago.

Trenton Firm Honored at Convention

TRENTON — A local dry cleaning firm has received an "honorable mention" award at the National Institute of Drycleaning for conducting a community-minded program in conjunction with its business.

Spotless Cleaners Ltd. operated by Gerry Goldberg was one of 21 cleaning firms in Canada and the United States to receive awards at the institute's 58th annual convention held recently in Detroit.

The Trenton firm was given honorable mention for a "Pressure Builders' Award" in recognition of its 1967 offer to clean free of charge flags of any type that were brought in by customers.

Entries were bound and will become a permanent part of the public relations library at the National Institute of Drycleaning in Silver Spring, Maryland.

Traffic Claims 27

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

At least 31 persons died accidentally across Canada during the weekend, 27 in traffic.

A survey by The Canadian Press from 6 p.m. Friday to midnight Sunday, local times, also showed two drownings, one man dead from burns suffered in a fire and one woman dead from carbon monoxide poisoning.

Quebec had the worst toll, with 10 dead in traffic accidents and one man drowned.

Seven died in Ontario, five in traffic accidents, one man when his clothing and wheel chair caught fire and one woman from carbon monoxide poisoning.

Minister Beaten At Dance

TORONTO (CP) — Two youths have been arrested and three others were being sought in connection with the weekend beating of a minister at a teen-age dance.

Rev. Clifford Johnson, 37, of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church in Etobicoke Borough was beaten with a blackjack and a length of pipe wrapped in tape after a group of about 15 youths invaded the church's drop-in centre Friday night. He was not seriously hurt.

Charged with assault were Elton Prince Horner, 17, and Stephen Derrick Blyth, 15, both of Toronto.

Teenagers Die in Plane Crash

RAPID CITY, S.D. (AP) — Nine persons died Sunday when a twin-engine plane landing at Rapid City Municipal Airport crashed, then burned.

There were no survivors.

The plane was returning from a state high school basketball tournament in Sioux Falls, Several of the victims were believed to be Rapid City high school cheerleaders.

The Pennington County sheriff's office confirmed that nine bodies were recovered from the wreckage.

A federal Aviation Administration official identified the pilot as Ivan Landstrom, 56, co-owner of L and L Aviation Inc., the charter flying service which owned the plane.

Landstrom was identified as a veteran of about 22 years flying experience.

Dutch March Endorses U.S.

THE HAGUE (AP) — A big demonstration supporting the United States was held Saturday in The Hague, seat of the Dutch government and Parliament, to counter the many anti-Vietnam demonstrations which have become almost routine.

The marchers, estimated to number 2,500, proceeded peacefully to the U.S. Embassy, where a delegation was received by Ambassador William R. Tyler.

At the embassy, counter-demonstrators did a tr ibated anti - American pamphlets and threw smoke bombs.

DRY SKIN

A sea otter's fur grows so fine and thick that the animal can swim for days without getting its skin wet.

OMSIP Boost Makes It More Costly Than PSI

TORONTO (CP) — Increases in premiums for Ontario Medical Services Insurance Plan, announced in the provincial budget last Tuesday to become effective July 1, will make the government plan more expensive than the doctor-sponsored Physicians Services Inc.

Premiums under the two plans have been roughly similar since OMSIP came into effect June 1, 1966.

OMSIP, which provides service to individual subscribers, has been charging $5 a month for single persons, $10 for couples and $12.50 for families of three or more.

It's premiums after July 1 will be $5.50, $11.80 and $14.75.

PSI, which has not indicated any increase in premiums, charges $3.50 for single persons, $9.45 for couples and $13.25 for families. It is available only to groups.

Ontario Treasurer Charles MacNaughton said in his budget speech the OMSIP increases are necessary because of a higher fee structure for doctors and a drug insurance plan.

Even with tue increases, he said, OMSIP will require a subsidy of $37,000,000, up $12,000,000 from the subsidy paid in the previous fiscal year.

OMSIP's original premiums were based on the cost of paying benefits according to the 1963 fee schedule of the Ontario Medical Association. The benefits were increased when the OMA issued a new fee schedule in April, 1967, but the premiums were not changed.

PSI also pays benefits according to the 1967 fee schedule.

Another OMA schedule is due in April, 1968.

OMSIP pays 90 per cent of the fee established for a treatment under the OMA schedule. PSI pays 100 per cent of the fee.

A spokesman for PSI said one of its advantages is that three quarters of Ontario's physicians have agreed to accept its cheques as payment for final payment for treatment received.

There is no agreement to accept OMSIP's payment of 90 per cent of a bill without making a further charge on the patient, he said.

A spokesman for OMSIP said benefits under the government plan remain more comprehensive than under PSI.

Differences in benefits for medical services provided by the family doctor appear to be minor and vary from item to item.

Both plans cover services of specialists only if the patient has been referred by his own doctor. However, PSI removes this restriction for patients seen by a specialist after going directly into a hospital.

Benefits for psychotherapy under OMSIP are unlimited, while under PSI the subscriber must pay part of the cost of extended treatment. A PSI spokesman said the limitations were imposed on the advice of specialists who recommended that there's responsibility for paying some of the costs should be part of the therapy.

The government plan is unique in Ontario for its subsidy on premiums, based on the subscriber's level of income. Premiums for individuals or families with no taxable income are paid in full, and the government subsidizes premiums by half the premium for single persons with taxable incomes of $500 or less, couples with $1,000 or less and families with $1,300 or less.

FRAUD IN YUKON

VANCOUVER (CP) — The federal unemployment insurance commission reports it loses about one per cent of its payments in the British Columbia-Yukon region because of fraud. In 1967, 129 persons were prosecuted on fraud charges.

Rhodesian Hangman Dismissed

KAROI (AP) — Rhodesia's hangman, Edward Milton, was fired by the Rhodesian government Saturday.

Milton was giving a television interview when he received a telephone call telling him his services were no longer needed. He commented that he thought his dismissal followed adverse reports in the overseas press.

Milton has supervised the hanging of five Africans this month after Prime Minister Ian Smith gave the go-ahead despite reprieves granted three of them by Queen Elizabeth.

By RAY STAPLEY

American Motors' decision to jump in with both feet and enter the sports car field has created quite a stir. Since they kicked off with the introduction of the Javelin last Fall, the enquiries I have received have been many and varied. This sporty effort is definitely aimed at the young wagers who have looped over this stubby rear deck and long flowing styling in the intermediate price bracket. A strange twist is the fact that many interested enquirers who have contacted me are middle aged family men, but unlike the younger set many in this age group were not interested in the powerful V8 optional engines. It was strictly the design that intrigued them, but at the same time they were looking for economy and were quite content to go along with the standard 145 HP six-cylinder engine after I assured them that, for ordinary everyday driving, it would be ample. So, apparently, as well as the swingers, we middle aged "squares", are getting into the act.

American Motors recently placed a top of the line Javelin SST at my disposal for a week. This particular model was loaded with options that would quickly run the pulse of even the most demanding sports car enthusiast — 343 C. I. power plant, four-on-the-floor, wide oval tires, front disc brakes, heavy duty package, standard steering with quick ratio and various other options.

It takes a while to adjust to the fiery acceleration of this high-spirited machine. When pulling away the least bit of excessive pressure on the gas pedal results in screams from the rear tires. All four forward speeds serve a useful purpose and second gear really flattens out the steep hills. The heavy duty package tends to lock those wide ovals to the road when manoeuvering on both paved and gravel roads. My son, Bruce, practically lived in it and on several occasions, much to the delight of fellow students, took it to school where his pals queued up for trial spins. "It's a great car, Dad", said Bruce, I must have gained a dozen phone numbers from the chicks I drove around".

The various combinations of options will please the most critical sports enthusiasts and also the family man who is looking for sporty styling plus ample room for the youngsters in the rear seat.

Since most of my readers live in the city, for ease of handling I would prefer power steering or at least regular standard ratio steering, automatic transmission, and either the smallest V8 or the biggest six cylinder engine. AMC officials tell me that even the six cylinder engine does better than 100.

The basic price is $2,972. F.O.B. factory. Weight 2900 lbs. Width 72", Overall length 189", Wheelbase 108".

AMC showed a good profit for the first quarter of the 1968 model year and it looks like they've struck gold with this new entry which soon will be followed with the introduction of the two-seater AMX.

CITY OF BELLEVILLE — LOCAL IMPROVEMENT NOTICE

TAKE NOTICE THAT:

1. The Council of the Corporation of the City of Belleville intends to construct as a local improvement the following road, and intends to specially assess a part of the cost upon the land abutting the work and the balance against the Corporation at large as follows:

Street	From	To	Estimated Cost	Corporation's Share	Owners' Share	Estimated Cost Per Foot Frontage	Estimated Annual Rate Per Foot Frontage
Tracey	North Front Street	Lemoine Street, a distance of approximately 2,470 lineal feet.	$50,000.00	$6,796.10	$43,203.90	$10.11	$1.44

EXAMPLE: Lot with 50' frontage would be assessed as follows:
50 ft. x $10.11 — $505.50.
If paid over a period of 10 years at 6½% per annum, the cost would be:
50 ft x $1.44 — $72.00.

2. The special assessment is to be paid in 10 equal annual instalments.
3. Application will be made by the Corporation to the Ontario Municipal Board for its approval of the undertaking of the said work, and any owner may, within 21 days after the first publication of this notice, file with the Clerk of the Municipality his objection to the said work being undertaken.
4. The said Board may approve the said work being undertaken, but before doing so may appoint a time and place when any objection to the said work will be considered.

Rhodesia Bombs Guerrilla Forces

Right Wing Leaves

"If McCarthy, Kennedy or Nixon call while I'm out, tell them I'm in!"

SALISBURY (AP) — The extreme right wing of Premier Ian Smith's ruling Rhodesian Front party announced today it was breaking away from the party to set up an opposition Rhodesian National party.

Len Idensohn, one of the Rhodesian Front's six divisional chairmen, resigned from the front and said he would draw up a constitution and principles for the new party, with the aim of ending what he called the "clandestine racial integration" taking place under Smith's regime.

In an interview, Idensohn said he thought he could count on the backing of 75 per cent of present Rhodesian Front members. He attacked both Smith who, he said, was leading "a one-man band," and Local Government Minister Mark Partridge, whom he accused of secretly adopting the policy of former premier Sir Edgar Whitehead, whose United Federal party was committed to racial integration.

The right-wing revolt against Smith's leadership broke out Monday night when Idensohn walked out of a party divisional meeting and announced his intention of resigning.

The revolt followed increasing tension between the party leadership and the extremists who feel that the government should implement stricter segregation policies, adopt a harder attitude towards Zambia in view of terrorist infiltrations and end talks for a settlement with Britain.

Nationalists Cross Zambesi

SALISBURY (CP) — Rhodesia's white - minority government sent jet bombers and fighters into action today against African nationalist guerrillas.

At least 50 guerrillas were reported pinned down near the Zambesi River, 250 miles north of Salisbury. Fourteen were reported killed and several more captured.

Rhodesian security forces said one of their men, a nephew of Defence Secretary E. C. W. Trollip, had been killed.

The guerrillas are believed to have crossed the Zambesi from Zambia last week.

Authorities here gave no details of guerrilla strength, but reliable sources put it at probably 100, and unofficial reports suggested higher figures.

It was the first major strike into Rhodesia by guerrillas since August, 1967. Rhodesian African Nationalist leaders in exile in Zambia have threatened revenge for the recent hangings in Salisbury of five Negroes convicted of murder.

Meanwhile, at the United Nations the Security Council today prepared for a new debate on Rhodesia (1 p.m. EST) as delegates kept close watch on reports of the fighting.

Pound Gains

LONDON (CP) — The pound sterling gained 15 points on the foreign exchange markets today in continued reaction to the weekend Washington agreement for a two-price gold system and in anticipation of a tough British budget.

The rate against the U.S. dollar moved up to $2.4040. Parity is $2.40.

On the London stock market, gold shares, dropped several shillings in early trading.

Ceiling Placed On Income

LONDON (CP) — The Labor government imposed a ceiling on all forms of income for Britons today, instituted "severe increases in taxation" and ordered a reduction in consumption to pull the country out of financial difficulties.

Roy Jenkins, chancellor of the exchequer, put the program before the House of Commons. He did not immediately describe the tax increases in detail.

Jenkins said Britain faces "hard sacrifices" but that U.S. and British belt-tightening campaigns will lead to expansion of world trade which eventually will ease hardships.

In announcing the ceiling on incomes, he said the government will limit maximum annual increases to 3½ per cent. He said this will be enforced at least until the end of 1969.

He also said the government will seek new powers to force deferment of any increase of wages, rents, prices or dividends for 12 months.

He said his aim is a two-per-cent reduction in the consumption of the British people in the fiscal year beginning April 1. The reduction, he said, will operate on the expected rise in consumption of one per cent.

So It's Spring? So What?

For some spring is the time of the blithe bird-song, the budding bush, the . . . oh well. For others it's downright disconcerting, as when the whole neighborhood seems to have dumped the entire spring thaw on a single lawn. This is how it looked outside this North Front Street home yesterday. The flooding was so bad the owners had to call in the city works department.

North Vietnamese Increase Pressure

SAIGON (CP) — North Vietnamese troops Monday stepped up pressure on the network of U.S. forward posts across the northernmost part of South Vietnam, as heavy fighting erupted near Dong Ha and Khe Sanh, American military spokesmen said today.

A spokesman said 12 U.S. marines were killed and 24 wounded in action four miles from Dong Ha, a major logistics base 420 miles northeast of Saigon which supplies outposts in northernmost Quang Tri province.

The battle started when a marine company made contact with a North Vietnamese unit dug into trenches and bunkers, the spokesman said.

At the beleaguered Khe Sanh marine base, North Vietnamese troops hurled themselves at government rangers guarding the camp perimeter.

A U.S. spokesman said the Communists were driven back after about 45 minutes of bloody, hand-to-hand combat along the southwest perimeter. Casualty figures were not available.

Thousands of Indians Killed By Greedy Whites in Brazil

RIO DE JANEIRO (AP) — Thousands of Indians have died throughout Brazil in recent years, many of them victims of white men bent on exploiting them and seizing their lands, a senior interior ministry official said.

"From theft to rape, from land stealing to assassination, from bribery to Middle Ages torture, every crime has been committed," declared Jader Figueiredo, head of an inquiry commission. "One cannot estimate the number of crimes, but of the 80,000 Indians existing in Brazil, thousands have been murdered.

"Slavery among the Indians has become common," he said, charging that in some cases the wives of officials enslaved Indians.

Figueiredo asserted in an interview that in some cases entire tribes had been exterminated by white men who wanted the Indians' land declared without owner so that they could apply for it through the government.

In Bahia state, he added, the Patachos tribe was wiped out with smallpox inoculations. In Mato Grosso, men dropped dynamite from planes to exterminate the Cinf-Larga tribe. Those who tried to flee were machine-gunned from the planes, he added.

South Vietnam Army Will Grow

SAIGON (AP) — The South Vietnamese government will increase its armed forces by 25,000 this year and the United States has agreed to equip them, informed sources said Monday.

The increase would bring the number of military and semi-military forces in South Vietnam to almost 900,000 by the end of the year.

Meanwhile, U.S. officials reported almost 6,000 South Vietnamese civilians have been killed, another 18,500 women and children wounded, and 2,940 kidnapped in Viet Cong incidents this year.

Viet Cong Calls For Revolt

From Agence France-Presse

HANOI (CP) — The Viet Cong high command today called on the population of Saigon to rise up and seize control of the South Vietnamese capital.

An appeal issued by Nguyen Huu Tho, president of the presidium of the National Liberation Front, urged the Saigon population to "rise up ... seize, by, use violence to strike mortal blows to the puppet administrative apparatus, take control of this apparatus and become masters of the city."

The NLF is the political arm of the Viet Cong.

LBJ Calls for Total National Effort

WASHINGTON (CP) — Higher taxes and a slowdown in Great Society efforts appeared certain today after a call by President Johnson Monday for austerity and a "total national effort" to win the Vietnam war.

But observers believed the measures Johnson had in mind were unlikely to include mobilization of large numbers of reservists, controls on wages and prices or other emergency measures such as those taken during the Second World War.

Observers said the president probably was unhappy over the realization that higher taxes and cuts in government spending would be felt chiefly in the big city cbttlcs, where rehabilitation programs would have to be reduced or postponed.

Proposed budget cuts were expected to affect school construction, anti-poverty, health and slum clearance projects, among many others.

The president was reported willing to slash between $3,000,000,000 to $4,000,000,000 in federal spending this year if Congress gave him his requested tax rise.

Administration sources stressed the tax proposal was for a 10-per-cent surcharge, not a 10-per-cent increase in the tax rate. They said the increase would hardly be felt by most Americans.

The combined spending cut-tax increase could be expected to shrink the prospective $20,000,000,000 U.S. budget deficit.

Such a reduction would be counted on to strengthen confidence in the U.S. dollar and therefore bolster the emergency measures agreed on last weekend to check speculation in gold and maintain the present system of exchange between major Western currencies.

Transfers occur frequently after sales and gold is shifted bar by bar from one to another of the 120 compartments held by more than 70 countries. (AP Photo)

Kansas Students Cheer Bobby

MANHATTAN, Kan. (AP) — Senator Robert F. Kennedy told a wildly cheering student audience Monday that President Johnson's Vietnamese war policy is a failure.

And he concluded his first campaign speech for the Democratic presidential nomination by shouting:

"If you will give me your hand I will work for you and we will have a new America."

The students leaped from their seats, swarmed around the New York senator, tore at his sleeves, ruffled his hair and shouted "Bobby," as he made his way out of the fieldhouse where every one of the 14,500 seats had been filled. As he perched atop the seat of an open car to drive away, the screaming students almost pulled Kennedy from the automobile.

In his speech he told hi audience that the Johnson administration has no answer to the Vietnamese problem other than the "ever-expanding use of military force and the lives of our brave soldiers in a conflict where military force has failed to solve anything in the past."

And they cheered as Kennedy added that while American soldiers are dying "thousands of young Vietnamese buy their deferments from military service."

"If the South Vietnamese government feels Khe Sanh is so important, let them put South Vietnamese troops out there and take out the American marines."

Kennedy called for de-escalation of the Vietnamese war and a chance in what he said is President Johnson's pursuit of victory "at the negotiating table if possible, on the battlefield if necessary."

"At a real negotiating table, there can be no victory for either side—only a painful and difficult compromise," Kennedy said. "To seek victory at the conference table is to ensure that you will never reach it. Instead the war will go on, year after terrible year until those who sit in the seats of high policy are men who seek another path. And that must be done this year."

Offer to Rent Marina Facilities To Town Withdrawn by Firm

TRENTON — Despite a handful of recommendations, a local businessman's offer to rent the town badly-needed marina facilities has been withdrawn.

Eben James, President of Trenton Cold Storage Ltd. had proposed renting the town finger-dock mooring space for about 40 boats at $3,000 annually. The marina was to be constructed along the southerly limits of the Cold Storage property, on the west side of the Trent River mouth and facing the Bay of Quinte.

Acceptance of the James proposal had been recommended by the Chamber of Commerce and Councillor Paul Tripp's Industrial and Economic Development Committee. Council last night learned that a Toronto consulting firm also favored renting the docks, pending completion of the town's long-term east-side marina plans.

In a letter addressed to the Chamber of Commerce and tabled at last night's council meeting, Mr. James stated his company's assessment of the situation:

"Since decision on this marina has been deferred four times to date, we feel that there is little hope of bringing the matter to a successful conclusion. It is apparent that our offer will not be accepted by the council unanimously as there are certain members, who feel that this is not in the public interests of the town.

"Therefore, as we do not wish to become involved in controversy in making this offer of a marina at no charge to the corporation, we wish to withdraw the offer."

At an earlier presentation to council, Mr. James said he was seeking unanimous council support, but Councillor Gerald Weaver maintained he would vote against acceptance of the marina offer. Mr. Weaver has based his heated object to the proposal on three main points:

1) his refusal to approve of public contributions to privately-owned land;

2) his assertion that the proposed site would leave mooring pleasure craft "exposed" to the elements;

3) his claim that acceptance of the marina offer would preclude future town construction in the area of any public docking facilities.

Along with Councillors E. M. "Ted" Parker and Duncan McDonald, Mr. Weaver urged deferral of the issue at the March 4 council session until a town-hired consultant could report on the advisability of accepting Mr. James' offer. They suggested an alternate plan — that it might be feasible for the town to extend the existing government wharf and construct finger-docks with public funds.

That report — prepared by the Toronto firm of Johnson, Sustronk, Weisdorf and Associates — was tabled at last night's council meeting, but not read. Each councillor had been given a copy.

(The consulting firm prepared plans for Trenton's proposed east-side marina alongside the Centennial Park, which is not expected to be operation until at least 1972.)

Conceding that the James marina may leave boats in an "exposed" position due to southwesterly winds, the report suggests acceptance of the proposal as an interim measure until town-owned facilities can be undertaken. It also recommends that the number of slips be reduced from 45 to 38, for more adequate accommodation.

Over a five-year period, the report estimates the marina would cost the town about $28,000: $15,000 for rental to Mr. James, $3,500 for power outlets, $5,000 for a floating boom to cut down wave action, $2,500 for perimeter dock lighting, and $2,000 for water outlets.

Moreover the report says federal assistance towards construction of the extensive east-side town marina proposal is "unlikely within the next two years."

"Thus it will be at least three or four years before your proposed marina could be in operation.

"In the meantime the need for mooring facilities is increasing, and therefore the proposal (by Mr. James) is worth your consideration."

There was a demand for an estimated 23 transient boat slips and 50 local craft in 1966, the report says, and by 1976 "the demand might be for 34 transient slips and 80 permanently moored boats."

(At present, the town dock just south of the old town bridge provides docking facilities for visiting mariners. But no more than 15 boats can tie up at the months of the much-travelled Trent Canal system. Thousands of pleasure craft pass by on the Bay of Quinte or through the 240-mile long Trent-Severn waterway each summer, and Chamber of Commerce manager Jack Wilson estimated at one time $100 of local business comes from every transient boat docking at Trenton. Moreover, all last year allocated some $200,000 in the capital budget for the town's share of the proposed east-side marina to fill the need for town docking facilities.)

With the cancellation of Mr. James' offer, it appeared the marina matter was closed, but Councillor Gerald Weaver quickly exhumed it.

Mr. Weaver claimed Mr. James had not complied with two stipulations for which he was deeded a piece of town-owner property in the waterfront area.

According to Councillor Weaver, who said his information was borne out by the engineering records, Mr. James had not fulfilled the requirement in return for being granted title by the town to a 80-foot strip of Albert St. property in 1966.

He produced a copy of recommendations of a 1965 Public Works Committee meeting, accepted at an April 19, 1965, council meeting.

The Cold Storage Company agreed to extend an existing storm sewer in the vicinity out to open water, and construct a retaining wall along the east limit of the Company property to the specifications of the town engineer.

Mr. James has repeatedly said he fulfilled his commitments to the town in return for the deed, but Councillor Weaver maintained last night this was not the case.

"I'd like to know how any citizen can get a deed to town property when not complying with conditions as laid down in town minutes," Mr. Weaver said. "I'd like a report as to why a lease deed was given in March of 1967."

Vehicle Wrecked

MADOC — How do you assess damage to an automobile that age should have consigned as scrap but its proud owner values in thousands.

That was the dilemma baffling provincial police when called to a mishap on Highway 62 east of here.

The car was a 1932 model, reconstructed "a stock car. It was being used along the highway when it broke loose from the truck and caved its front end against a hydro rails.

Because of the car's age, police officially were not to record the extensive damage between $25-50. But, protested owner Paul Morrill, Madoc, the car was worth much more. All of $7,000 in fact.

Biting a ticket with anticipation, one of the YMCA travellers waits for the bus doors to open. This young lady is looking forward to a tour of Casa Loma in Toronto.

Children Off To See Toronto

"I wanna see Casa Loma."

"Me too. I wanna see Maple Leaf Gardens, too."

These were the statements of a happy multitude of children who mounted the steps of three buses early 9:5 morning to embark on a journey to Toronto.

About 140 members and their friends left the Belleville YMCA to participate in a tour of some of the landmarks of Ontario's capital.

The excursion will enable the children to tour Casa Loma, Toronto City Hall, Maple Leaf Gardens and the Toronto Central YMCA.

According to a spokesman for the group, this is not the first of such trips for YMCA members.

The organization usually holds one every year during the Easter holidays, in which the children are now indulging. Some are held during day camps in the summer.

Other journeys have been to Kingston where the children went through Fort Henry and Queens University, and to Trenton on a tour of the Air Force Base.

According to the spokesman the kids enjoy the experience they gain from the tours. All of them enjoy it.

Councillor Weaver Questions Sale of Land to Builders

TRENTON — Is it contrary to the Municipal Act for a municipality to sell land at less than cost?

This was the query raised by Councillor Gerald Weaver at last night's regular meeting when sale of industrially-designated land came up for Russell's consideration.

Council had been asked to approve the sale of two acres of Sidney St. town-owned property to Future Factories Ltd. at $100 an acre, in keeping with town policy for sale of land intended for industrial use.

Local businessman W. Douglas Whitley and Neil Robertson formed the company to promote industry locally, and intend to build their second factory "shell" in the area. Their first undertaking involved the re-locating of part of Belleville's Vagden Mills operations on a Sidney St. site.

A condition of the $100-per acre sale by the town will require a building to be completed on the Creedman-Sidney St. corner within one year.

Councillor Weaver asked if it wasn't true that the town paid $1,000 an acre for a property block in which a number of factories being sold to Future Factories Ltd. was included.

"Yes," was the answer from several sides of the council table.

"It's my opinion that for us to buy land and sell it at less than cost is contrary to the Municipal Act—we're just not empowered to do it," Councillor Weaver maintained.

Mayor James MacDonald countered Mr. Weaver with municipalities are in a competitive market in attracting new industry. The $100-per acre asking price for industrially-designated property had been established in 1965.

"Whether or not this is completely legal . . ."

Councillor Weaver replied he understood that Belleville's Industrial Commission had managed to attract some sites managed to attract some time sell them land at what the city paid for it plus interest.

He added that industries are now reaping the benefits of a number of government-offered incentives which were not in effect when Trenton established its $100-per acre price for industrial land.

Councillor Weaver was the lone opposer of Industrial Committee chairman Paul Tripp's motion to sell the Sidney street land to Future Factories under the prescribed conditions. He also cast the only "nay" against Mr. Tripp's resolution that sewer and water laterals be extended to the property lines from town mains, also council policy in dealing with sites of prospective new industries.

Trenton Council Allows Broadcast of Meetings

TRENTON — Town council has resolved to improve its public relations.

Two resolution motions to that effect were put forward last night by Councillor Gerald Weaver, and were backed by his colleagues with a minimum of discussion . . . or opposition.

Because a number of residents had commented about "a lack of information" on council business," Mr. Weaver proposed that radio station CJBQ be authorized to broadcast local council sessions.

Mr. Weaver maintained came up for discussion, only two councillors commented — Ed Todd asked if the service entailed any cost to the town, and Mayor James MacDonald explained no.

The mayor added: "There'll have to be some changes in the set-up here." He'd heard "some people in Belleville haven't been too happy with the system — I hear council holds a lot of caucus meetings in advance while the formalities of council are carried out in the regular meetings."

Only Councillor E. M. "Ted" Parker voted "nay" to the motion. He said later he could not see "any useful purpose" to be served by the broadcasting of local council sessions.

Radio CJBQ manager Frank Murray said today he welcomed the opportunity to provide the vital service for Trenton.

Some years ago we offered Trenton council that opportunity, but at that time it was turned down. Council felt their procedural by-law was not satisfactorily enforced.

Mr. Murray said the fact that Belleville council's procedural rules were strictly enforced has made for "good broadcasts" in the 12 years-plus the service had been provided.

"We welcome the chance to again discuss the matter with Trenton council. We've found that public opinion is overwhelmingly in favor of broadcasting council meetings," Mr. Murray said.

Councillor Weaver's second "public relations" motion also involved the press. His suggestion that reporters be advised of all council meetings at the same time as councillors was unanimously approved.

His resolution was promoted by lack of publicity that a brief council session last week constituted a "secret meeting," Councillor Weaver said.

Mayor MacDonald explained that the meeting — between council, industrial commissioners, and a Toronto consultant — had not been intended as a regular session of council, but council convened momentarily to pass a necessary motion.

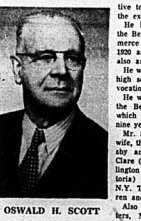
During discussion of Councillor Weaver's resolution, Mayor MacDonald said there was indication the press is seeking coverage of council committee meetings, in addition to regular sessions.

Oswald H. Scott, Former PUC Manager, Dies Suddenly

A resident of Belleville for over half a century and secretary manager of the Belleville Public Utilities for many years, Mr. Oswald Hayward Scott, 261 William Street, died suddenly at his home early this Tuesday morning.

Mr. Scott had been retired from the public utilities since 1961.

A native of Oshawa, he was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Scott and studied civil engineering at McGill University graduating with a bachelor of acieace degree.



Following graduation he served in the Land Office of Smith, Kerry and Chace and then went to Portland, Oregon, where the firm was building a hydraulic powerplant and transmission lines.

Later Mr. Scott went to Boise, Idaho where he was secretary-treasurer at Crane Falls Power and Irrigation Company.

He came to Belleville in 1913 to become manager of the local electricity utility then under the control of the Electric Power Company.

When the utility was purchased by the Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario, Mr. Scott continued as manager and became secretary manager after the municipality purchased the plant in 1929.

In 1937 the gas and water utilities were merged with the electric utility and Mr. Scott was made general manager and secretary, a position which he retained until his retirement.

OSWALD H. SCOTT

Former secretary-manager of the Public Utilities Commission who died suddenly at his home, William St., early Tuesday morning.

Active in electrical organizations, Mr. Scott served on several committees and for many years was a member of the executive of the Association of Municipal Electric Utilities of which he was president for two years. He was made an honorary member of the Association in 1951.

He was also a trustee of the Canadian section, American Waterworks Association for 10 years and was president for one year. In recognition for his service to the Association he was presented with the Fuller Award in 1954.

He was a member of the Ontario Association of Professional Engineers.

But Mr. Scott also found time to devote himself to church and municipal affairs. He was a member of Christ Church and for a number of years acted as Sunday School superintendent. He also served as member of the parish executive committee, as warden, lay representative to the Synod and was on the executive committee.

He has been a member of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce since its inception in 1920 and served as a director also as president.

He was a member of the local high school advisory board on vocational education.

He was a charter member of the Belleville Rotary Club of which he served as president in nine years and also president.

Mr. Scott is survived by his wife, the former Hazel M. Grigsby and two daughters, Mrs. Clare (Margaret) Heim of Burlington and Mrs. Bruce (Victoria) Hamilton of Syracuse, N.Y. There are 11 grandchildren and one great grandchild.

Also surviving are three sisters, Mrs. Madeline Hopkins, Miss Nora Scott, and Mrs. Guy (Margaret) Rutley, all of Toronto, and one brother Charles Bertram Scott also of Toronto.

The funeral will be held Thursday morning from the Finkston and Luscombe Funeral Home to Christ Church for service conducted by Canon R. B. D. Wright. Interment in Union Cemetery, Oshawa.

Life Guard Course

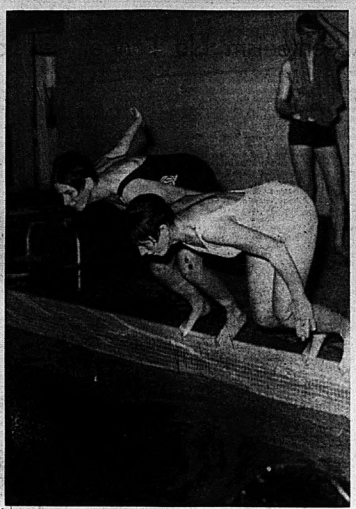
A bunch of teenagers are in deep water again in Belleville.

However, there's nothing to worry about. In fact, some summer more adults can relax because of it all.

It's all part of the Red Cross water safety service for training young lifeguards and swimming instructors.

In all, there are 11 participants in this year's Belleville course, mostly from Napanee, which is pacing a similar program at Trenton.

When it's all over, it means that many more lifeguards for public beaches and swimming pools.



However, the young swimmers don't win their badges easily.

The course runs all week at the Tops Motel pool, with the students signing in at 9 a.m., and clocking out 12 hours later.

Neither is all water work.

The day is divided into three lecture sessions and three pool periods where the techniques of safety are painstakingly taught.

Keeping up the demanding pace are two young Napanee girls — Judy Finlay and Mary Alice Paul — designated as Red Cross instructors.

Double Dip!

Taking the plunge are 16-year-old twins Mary and Pat Barrett, of Napanee. The sisters are in Red Cross class for lifeguards and assistant instructors at Tops Motel. Classes run all week.

Traffic Counts Wanted

Traffic counts supply a wealth of traffic information but specific counts are required for specific needs for information.

This was brought out at city council yesterday following a request for traffic lights for the corner of Bridge Street and Farley Ave. It was suggested that a traffic count be taken at the corner to determine the volume of traffic.

Here Alderman Gerald Joyce said that traffic counts could be of considerable use to commercial enterprises contemplating locating in certain areas.

City Engineer Wilbur Purcell said any counts taken by his department were available at city hall, but he doubted their general use to commercial people.

The reason was that most traffic counts provided general information for a general area but were not limited to be specific enough for commercial use.

Counts taken at one location along the No. 2 Highway route, would be of little use for another point along the same street.

Alderman Joyce said, however, that he was thinking in terms of counts on the main arterial roads leading into the city which he said would be of value to the Industrial Commission.

Welfare Unit Will Remain At City Hall

The new Hastings county welfare unit scheduled to go into operation in May, will remain at city hall until permanent quarters are provided.

The new county unit, which also includes the City of Belleville, will move the city hall quarters now occupied by the Belleville Welfare Department. Rental for the space will be $300 per month, including office equipment.

City Manager J. R. Reynolds said the $300 rental figure was considered reasonable in view of the fact that office equipment was also being provided.

Obituaries

MRS. BERNICE LIDSTER

The funeral for Mrs. Bernice Lidster was held from the John R. Bush Funeral Home on Monday afternoon. Rev. Robert Cunningham conducted the service in the chapel and also the committal rites at Belleville Cemetery.

The bearers were Howard Ketcheson, John Ward, James Fox, Everett Lyons, Horace Casey and Cecil Walker.

MISS ELLA MAY GOWLAND

The funeral for Miss Ella May Rowland was held from the John R. Bush Funeral Home on Monday afternoon. Rev. Gordon Woodcock conducted the services. Interment was in Belleville Cemetery.

The bearers were Freeman Burrows, William Hopping, William Slack, Dr. John Hamilton, Robert Turner and James Fox.

Asphalt Bids

Approve Tenders for Materials

The Combines Investigations Branch in Ottawa, will be asked to look into the tenders of four suppliers of emulsified asphalt who have bid on the city's requirements of this product for the next year.

All four tenders received by the city came in at exactly the same price — 24.3 cents per gallon — and city council is wondering how the similarity of bids came about.

At the same time, however, council awarded the contract for the supply of the product to R. E. Law Crushed Stone Ltd. of Welland. City purchasing agent Gerald Hyde said the Welland firm was chosen because it was located the furthest from the city and therefore was likely to show the least profit.

The city requires approximately 90,000 gallons of emulsified asphalt in a year.

* * *

William Belch and Son of Belleville was awarded the contract for renovation of staff washrooms on the ground floor at city hall. The amount of the contract is $3,176.94.

Sherwin Williams of Canada will supply the city's requirements of blister white traffic paint at $2.53 per gallon.

Trainigle Sand and Gravel Ltd. of Belleville will supply requirements of ⅜ inch chips at $2.30 per ton and Cooney Sand and Gravel the contract for the supply of ¾ inch crushed stone at $1.22 per ton. Cooney will also supply pit run gravel at 80 cents per ton. All contracts provide for two per cent cash discount.

Shell Oil were awarded the contract for gasoline, diesel fuel oil, mineral motor oil and outboard oil. Texaco will supply detergent motor oil, British American Oil gets the contract for anti-freeze and Imperial Oil for varsol.

Request for Traffic Lights Referred to City Engineer

Requests for two more sets of traffic lights, one at the corner of Sidney and Moira streets, and the other at the intersection of Bridge and Farley, were referred to the city council.

Both requests were referred to the city engineer and city traffic departments for consideration and recommendation.

At the same time council gave approval for the hiring of a permanent school crossing guard for duty at Our Lady of Fatima Separate School on Sidney Street.

The crossing guard at the school was requested by the separate school board, because of the rapidly increasing volume of traffic on Sidney Street, together with the fact that a fatality occurred in the area last winter.

For the past number of years the school caretaker has performed guard duties during the noon hour.

Hiring of the school guard was recommended by Chief of Police D. T. Crosbie, following a survey of traffic conditions by police safety officer Robert A. Hall.

Currently there are 34 school traffic guards in the city but this number could possibly be changed after new traffic lights at Catherine and Coleman; Bridge and Church, and Victoria at Farley go into operation. The traffic lights will eliminate the need of guards at these intersections, it is stated.

The request for traffic lights at the corner of Sidney and Moira Streets was made to council by Mrs. Herrington who said that during the rush-hour period children could not get across the street. She said the intersection was very dangerous for children who were on their way to and from school during the rush hour traffic periods at noon and after four.

Alderman Robin Jeffrey asked that consideration be given for installation of lights at the corner of Farley and Bridge Streets.

She said that young drivers were "dragging" in the area and felt that traffic lights were needed. In the meantime more police patrol was suggested.

Alderman Has Vision of Metro City

Quinte Area

Visions of a metro city taking in Belleville and Trenton and the two rural municipalities of Sidney and Thurlow were outlined to city council yesterday by Alderman Arthur Keegan.

And a special committee of the Belleville mayor, along with three aldermen, Arthur Keegan, E. A. Orr and Paul Russell was named to do a bit of spade work to see if the idea can be gotten off the floor.

The duties of the committee will be to talk with area municipal representatives to see if they are willing to discuss mutual problems of the Quinte area.

Included would be such problems as transportation, water and sewerage, industrial locations and residential construction in the rural areas.

Acting Mayor Douglas Boyle asked if Ald. Keegan was aware of the area executive committee formed some years ago under which senior officials from Belleville, Trenton and the counties of Hastings and Prince Edward met to discuss area problems.

Ald. Keegan said, however, that his idea would go much further. At the same time it had nothing to do with regional government. Under his idea all municipalities would have their own governments.

The alderman said he looked forward to the day when industrial development would be sufficient to provide jobs in the Quinte area for young people without them having to leave the area to find employment.

He felt however that many problems called for area consideration.

Ranking high among the problems are transportation, (railways and highways).

He said he was alarmed at the number of grade separations being planned for the immediate Belleville area — several of which he said would make Belleville known as the roller coaster city of Ontario.

Sewage and water problems for the township would also have to be solved.

The alderman noted that the township can qualify for assistance to locate industry but at the same time housing subdivisions are not permitted without water supply and sewage treatment facilities.

"I hope the four areas, Belleville, Trenton, Sidney and Thurlow, with a population of 60,000 can get together to resolve our mutual problems," he said.

"I could be the fore - runner for the establishment of a metro city," said the alderman.

Business Firms

Need for New Road Stressed

The Belleville Suburban and Planning Board will be asked to give consideration to the need of a new roadway to connect the Parker Street area with Sidney Street.

Planners will be asked to do the survey promptly and to report back to city council as soon as possible.

The need for a new connecting road in the above area was stressed by Mr. A. Quickert of Reid's Dairy and Carm Caverley of Carm's Beverages who told council that their cash and carry businesses on Parker Street would be seriously affected by the proposed dead ending of Highland Ave. once the new Dundas Street bridge and roadway project is completed.

Mr. Quickert told council that he was "very much concerned" and was not satisfied with a complete cut-off with no other access.

He asked that a continuation of Parker Street through to Sidney Street be considered by council, and if the proposal was acceptable, when it could be accomplished.

Acting Mayor Douglas Boyle said he was surprised that Mr. Quickert had come to council with the problem at this late date after plans for the Dundas Street project were so far along.

He asked Mr. Quickert if his firm would be prepared to contribute toward the cost of the connecting roadway, which he had proposed. The acting mayor estimated the total cost at around $20,000.

Mr. Caverley said he had never been contacted by the city regarding the Highland Ave. cut-off. If he had noticed publicity in the newspaper regarding the plan he said he had misinterpreted the proposal.

Several aldermen pointed to the long distance between Dundas Street and Bridge Street noting that it was a "very long" block with no cross streets.

Alderman Arthur Keegan said a connecting roadway in the Parker Street area would see considerable use by children going to school.

Proposed Abattoir Causes Problems for Park Dale

The city planning board will be asked to consider the application of a local realtor, Douglas Grant, for re-zoning of the W. V. Mullin property at 480 Sidney Street to allow construction of an abattoir building, but Park Dale area residents are not happy about the idea.

The request for a zoning change has been referred to the planning board for recommendation but Alderman Richard Ellis says council should make up its own mind on the matter.

"Why build a slaughter house in Park Dale?" he asked.

Planning Director Beavis said his department would get information from residents in the Park Dale Ratepayers Association area as to their feeling on the matter.

Alderman Gerald Joyce, as member of the Belleville Industrial Commission, said that although the Commission was anxious to have industry locate here, members were not completely satisfied that the area for which the request for the zoning change was made was a satisfactory location for a meat processing plant.

"Not only do the local citizens have to be considered, but certainly the future of the industrial park may be hampered by this particular operation," he said.

Alderman Joyce said Industrial Commission directors have suggested that Industrial Commissioner Ray Brew is keep in close contact with the firm and give whatever help possible to assist it to locate in an area which would be satisfactory to all concerned.

If there was no other location inside the city limits, Mr. Brown has been instructed to work with officials of neighboring townships.

Fiscal Stability

The seven nations making up the international gold pool based in London seem to have arrived at an eminently sensible arrangement to halt the runaway speculation in the precious metal.

The countries concerned are the United States, Britain, Belgium, Italy, West Germany, The Netherlands and Switzerland, and they have set up a two-price system which will result in an increase in the price of gold to private speculators.

While this should curb reckless trading by private individuals, central bankers from the seven nations agreed to maintain the price of $35 an ounce for transactions involving central banks and international monetary authorities.

The decision was taken at an emergency meeting in Washington of the gold-pool nations. In a statement issued afterwards the representatives said the existing stock of monetary gold is sufficient to carry on the world's business.

We hope this will serve to stabilize what was obviously a perilous situation related to world fiscal policy. The western world cannot afford another calamity such as the great economic depression of nearly 40 years ago.

Water . . . Water

Belleville's drinking water . . . Is it that bad? After all, water is water — essential to the maintenance of good health, but not something one would run a mile for unless lost in the desert or some other remote place.

We drink the stuff and that's that. But now the perennial problem of increasing the supply has come up again. PUC Chairman John Deacon has said, "We have to make up our minds in a very short while in order to provide the volume needed to meet the demand in two or three years.

This means more water being taken from the bay, and probably later from Lake Ontario. Either way the prediction is that the cost will go up and the consumers will pay more.

If the water comes from the lake proper it should be a purer drink than is currently obtained from the bay. However, it would mean more than doubling the cost, from 33 cents per thousand gallons to 75 per 1,000. Even extension of existing facilities and continued use of the bay source would entail an expenditure of $1,600,000.

At least the water is there. Belleville has no problem as to a ready source. How to reconcile the need of increased supplies with the cost of providing it is now the problem. This is a matter of urgency and a decision is expected soon.

Michigan Slayings

The lonely, brooding Upper Peninsula of Michigan was the setting some years ago of a slaying that later became the subject of a best-selling novel, Anatomy of a Murder, by Robert Travers, and subsequently a movie starring James Stewart and Lee Remick.

Exterior shots for the film were taken in the area of Ishpeming and Marquette. Canada featured briefly in the movie with a border scene and a reference to Blind River, Ontario, as the birthplace of one of the central characters of the story.

The slaying involved a tavern owner accused of assaulting the wife of an army officer at a nearby camp. Charged with his murder was the officer. This area of Michigan — but farther west on the Wisconsin border — was the scene at the weekend of another macabre incidence of gunplay.

This time seven people died and two were critically wounded by a man who roamed the community of Ironwood with a high-powered rifle. A widower who worked at a ski lodge, he was said to have been drinking heavily.

Whatever the reasons behind this affair, it is just one more in the series of tragic outbreaks that occur in the United States from time to time. Environment and family circumstances are sure to have some bearing on the causes, as well as alcohol. When a man is alone in the world and there is little to do when the day is over, the temptation to mischief-making can be strong — especially in the countless remote communities of the ever-violent United States.

And a stark thought — the long, hot summer is yet to come.

Ottawa Offbeat

Parliamentary Absenteeism No Longer Fashionable

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA, - You would scarcely ever recognized the House of Commons these last four weeks since the still-staggered Liberals suffered their "accidental" — defeat on Finance Minister Sharp's first income tax bill.

If attendance has not been 100 percent, it has been as close to perfect as it is ever likely to get.

Except for those actually hospitalized or away on the most urgent — nothing far short of emergencies — family or personal business, every MP has been at his bench in the Commons.

Even on Mondays.

Fridays, too.

Even the touring students, who at this time of year stream in and out of the capital on tours as part of their civics courses, have been impressed.

In recent years it got to be a thing — sort of camp — with the kids to laugh it up about the nation's leaders there on the floor of the House, reading newspapers, writing letters, gossiping, doing almost anything but listening to the business at hand.

The biggest yuk of all was those rows of empty desks.

It got to be such a joke the students sometimes took to filling off letters, when they got home, to the MPs individually and collectively — thoughtfully sending copies to the newspapers.

But no more.

The honorable members these days are haunting the House.

They are in for the opening prayers.

They stick for the entertaining political fun and games of the question period when the opposition plays "get the cabinet."

And while, when it simmers down and the debate drones into its drag, they may drift out of the House, they don't go far.

To the lobbies for gab and gin rummy.

To the West and Centre Block offices for work on constituents' correspondence, hand of bridge, a round of 19s, a cat-nap on the couch.

To either of the two cafeterias to plug into the coffee-cup grapevine.

But never — even on quick trips to the shops, banks, investment and brokerage houses on the Mall — far from a phone, that killed Mitchell Sharp and that first income tax bill of his.

The phone and the never-quite-trying compulsion of Conservative Whip Reynolds Rapp.

The division bells were ringing that night for nearly two hours before Sharp, the cabinet and the government itself fell flat on their red faces. And in those two hours Reynolds Rapp was hanging away on the phones. Chasing down Tories, at home, at theatre, out curling, at the bars downtown — anywhere he could find them — even, of all off-the-beaten-path places — the university lecture halls.

That is where he found the two Tory votes that shot down Mitchell Sharp and his tax bill with that 86 to 82 vote.

Qu'Appelle's Alvin Hamilton and Peace River's Gerald Baldwin were on a panel discussion with Toronto's New Dem David Lewis in an out-of-the-way hall at Carleton University when a night patrolman found them with the message from the campus switchboard that Reynolds Rapp needed them — urgently — for a snap vote in the Commons.

They made it. Paul Martin didn't — he was aboard a plane flying back from three Rivers when Liberal Whip Bernie Pilon found him. Only minutes, it turned out, to take to reach Ottawa airport and roar in to Parliament Hill in time for the vote.

Now all Tory members carry a card in their wallet.

It reads: Important; report to Whips' office when you leave The Hill. Phone 992-2545 or 992-2586. Never get out of touch. Reynolds Rapp.

Bernie Pilon has printed up similar orders for the Liberals.

These days if you are an MP you can go anywhere and do anything as long as you are always at your bench in the House when the votes are counted.

How do the whips make such an order stick?

For Reynolds Rapp now it is easy — as easy as it should have been all along for Bernie Pilon.

With an election dead-certain sure in the coming months, both whips have muscle. The MPs cuts the mustard, or he may find the party fresh out of funds when he needs some campaign money. Maybe, if he doesn't watch it, he could even miss out on his nomination. And if the party wins — both whips naturally claim theirs the team of victory — there will be all sorts of goodies, but only for the good guys.

You know, goodies like patronage — jobs, appointments, contracts, junkets, things for you and your constituency. But only if you stay on the ball. So they do. Wouldn't you?

R. bridge about the junction of Front and Dundas Sts. and here it is held at present. When the jam came down some damage was done to stables and sheds in the rear of the Queen's Hotel and the old Victoria Hotel premises. The water is somewhat lower on the west side of the river, forming a miniature Niagara is raging on Front St. from the fire hall to the railway bridge.

Pope Paul's Concern For A Sick World

The Globe and Mail

There was a note of urgency in Pope Paul's encyclical Populorum Progression (The Development of Peoples) last March. It declared that the world was sick and asked for unselfish, non-political action for economic and social justice.

He must speak basic, the Pope wrote, "too many men are suffering.'

The document was well-balanced. It condemned the evils of unrestrained capitalism as well as materialistic and atheistic philosophies. It prescribed more generous aid from developed countries as well as "appropriate information" and "suitable measures" to remedy the problem of excess population.

Last week the Canadian Catholic Conference in Ottawa, distributed a pastoral letter, which will be read in Canada's 62 Roman Catholic dioceses, announcing the formation of the Canadian Catholic Organization for Development and Peace, in an attempt to raise $1-million this month to subsidize social and economic development projects in selected regions of the world.

The letter argued that some government and private aid programs are insufficient and poorly planned, and it also complained about what it regarded as excessive concern with birth control policies. "Filled with anguish by the population explosion," the letter said, "experts are sometimes more preoccupied with a negative policy of limiting births than with a positive program of developing food resources."

Perhaps it will be sufficient some day to rely — as this letter suggests — on the development of food resources to solve the problem; but the rapidly growing gap between the rich and poor, fed and hungry, clothed and have-nots, surely demands effective programs for both short-term and increased food supplies.

Still, the Roman Catholic pledge should be commended for their project, which is to be a lay organization and one not geared to the beliefs or ideologies of recipients. The churches have an important role to play in reminding Canadians of their responsibilities in this field, especially today when there is evidence of a reaction setting in against aid, a reaction often prompted by cynicism.

Canada's foreign aid, more than $300-million this fiscal year and expected to increase by $50-million in the next fiscal year, is generous but inevitably will have to be more. Economist Barbara Ward's recommended accepted target of 1 per cent of Gross National Product is not expected to be reached until 1971.

Most Rev. Howard Clark, Anglican Primate of Canada, has said there is little use hammering away at the Government to give more when it is the taxpayer who ultimately calls the tune on foreign aid. Perhaps at least this month may help to jar a few consciences.

The Intelligencer welcomes letters to the editor. No letter will be published that does not bear the hand-written signature and the address of the sender. For publication purposes, however, a pseudonym or pen-name may be used if the writer so desires.

Oceans Abound in High-Calorie Food

Cornwall Standard - Freeholder

Man is a strange creature. He pollutes the air he breathes, the water he drinks and the soil which gives him food. He bemoans the fact that every night in his world a large portion of his species goes to bed hungry. He puts on great campaigns to help feed them and more often than not fails. Yet at the same time, he has a harvest within his reach, of which he only bothers to reap a small portion of its potential.

There are approximately, 20,000 species of ocean fish, but of these, man hunts only a few dozen. Marine biologists believe that 250 million tons, five times the present world catch, could be landed each year by going after the fish he ignores.

Marine biologists also believe that if he keeps on fishing the way he does and only using a few species, man may have to stop fishing them and start farming them.

Already there are fish or sea farms in existence which corral their charges and control their growth by doling out food and protecting them from larger fish.

No system of agriculture, today, matches the marine farm for producing high-calorie food. One acre of prime farming ground, for example, can supply 15,000 pounds of protein annually. An example of this is Italy's Taranto Bay which produces 108,000 pounds of mussels per acre each year.

Japan leads the world in sea agriculture, producing 12,000 pounds of oysters per acre of water and does it by letting young oysters hang from long ropes, so they can eat the plankton which drifts slowly past.

Japan also harvests two dozen edible types of seaweed.

The west coast of the North American continent is the home of the giant kelp, the fastest growing plant known.

It shoots upwards to lengths of more than 200 feet and contains more minerals and proteins than most plants, yet little or nothing is done to harvest it.

Researchers from the U.S. Bureau of Commercial Fisheries have developed a commercial method for manufacturing fish protein concentrate. By grinding up raw fish, heads, tails, bones and all, they have produced a flour at such a low cost that all nations can afford it.

Less than half a cent's worth of this tasteless mixture, placed in a child's diet can fill his daily minimum of protein needs. This is just one item on which marine scientists have been working, but so far industry has not taken the first tentative step of their efforts and their funds for research, compared with the funds for space projects, is hardly big enough to notice.

As one marine biologist said: "There is no doubt in my mind trips to the moon will one of these days be as routine as a present day trip from New York to Los Angeles. The question is, whether or not the passengers will be flying on empty stomachs."

The answer to this is to be found, not on the land but in the sea.

World Monetary Crisis

The Globe and Mail

Considering the mad rush for gold recently and the fact that banks were locking their doors and stock markets were trembling around the world, the United States action to stem the panic seems less than adequate.

The Federal Reserve Board raised its discount rate from 4.5 to 5 per cent — the highest rate since before the 1929 stock market crash — in what was intended as a deflationary domestic measure and a signal to the world that the United States intended to cut both its budgetary and balance of payments deficit.

But experts consider that a much higher rate—perhaps as high as 5 percent—joined with the 10 percent surcharge on corporate and personal income taxes which the Administration has been trying to drive through Congress, would be necessary to restore world confidence.

A gold standard that works must provide two ingredients: liquidity (that is, enough international monetary reserves to permit world trade to grow), and confidence (that is, a belief among world investors that the reserve currencies other than gold are stable in themselves and properly related to gold). Because these two ingredients are now showing a marked antipathy to each other, we have a gold buying panic.

For a long time not enough gold has been available to finance world trade effects. This led to the use of currencies of powerful world traders (principally the United States and Britain) as international reserve currencies.

This worked fine so long as the world had confidence in currencies. But faith in the pound was undermined by Britain's chronic deficits—and by consistent attacks by France on the pound—to the point where devaluation was forced. The United States still has a handsome merchandise trade surplus bolstered by returns from foreign lending and investment; but this has been only enough home dollars to offset those flowing abroad in military expenditures and investments and private investments.

Today In History

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

March 19, 1968 . . .

French explorer Rene Robert Cavelier, Sieur de LaSalle, first to descend the Mississippi River, was murdered 281 years ago—in 1687. He was killed in Texas by his own men when a mutiny broke out during his attempt to reach the mouth of the river to establish a fort. LaSalle had emigrated to Montreal in 1666 and had become a favorite of Frontenac, governor of French Canada.

1937—The Canadian House of Commons passed a bill banning Canadians fighting in the Spanish civil war.

1945—The United States rejected proposed partition of Palestine.

First World War

Fifty years ago today—in 1918—the German ship Alexander Agassiz was sunk in the Pacific Ocean; British warship and US destroyer Manley collided in European waters; French patrols penetrated nearly three-fifths of a mile into German lines near Reims.

Second World War

Twenty-five years ago today—in 1943 — reinforcements for the Canadian army and air force arrived in Britain; Allied planes destroyed Japanese submarine at Lae, New Guinea; Royal Navy coastal ships shelled Japanese positions in Dobadura area of western Burma; U.S. dive bombers attacked Vila in the central Solomon Islands.

Railroading Still Exciting for Lawyer Who Is CNR Boss

MONTREAL (CP) — Norman John MacMillan, who executes a catchy zest for life, sliced into his succulent steak and spoke of sailing in the Alps, repairing old rocking chairs, tearing up pastureland with a bulldozer.

He reminisced on canoe surveys of remote rivers of Labe Winnipeg as a youth. He smilingly recalled a fling at racetrack work which then seemed "just about the best job a guy could get his hooks on."

He told of a little-known wartime role when as a sort of quiet agent of the federal government he expropriated big chunks of land for the British Commonwealth Air Training Plan. Millions of dollars went through his hands.

But mainly this robust Ontario-born, Manitoba-raised lawyer spoke of being boss of Canadian National Railways, "the world's best railroad." For him, railroading in this computer age is filled with as much romance and excitement as it ever knew in the days of steam locomotives and Casey Jones.

"Railroading remains a consuming way of life . . . a total involvement—it possesses people," said the 59-year-old president and chairman of the publicly-owned system, biggest in the Western world.

Mr. MacMillan, hardly breaking his discussion stride for lunch, talked CN for three hours in his posh 17th-storey executive suite at headquarters here — his first major newspaper interview since becoming president more than a year ago.

He mostly emphasized new things but paused for a nostalgic verbal genuflection to a magnificent steam locomotive model in a place of honor behind his desk. He grinned at a question whether any topics remained untouched.

"A minimum of a dozen," he replied. "I could talk for a month without being able to say I've told you everything I know about CN . . . it embraces almost everything.

"We run railways, we run ships, we run a highway operation comprising mainly trucks but also some buses. We, of course, own stock in Air Canada. We have stores.

"We used to have gold mines and we had oil wells but we got out of that business in the last several years.

"We run a very large hotel chain, and likewise a telecommunications empire. And we have offices scattered over North America, Britain, France, Belgium, Holland, and in Japan and Australia.

"We operate 1,713 miles of railway in the United States and that makes us a large railway there. That is done in the name of the Grand Trunk Western, the Duluth, Winnipeg and Pacific and the Central Vermont Railways, all of which we own."

Formidable, but not intimidating, is the way he describes his job.

"I think anybody who sits in this seat has to approach the job with humility, but he also has to do it with confidence. . . .

"We have to have an understanding of the potential of the railway . . . its ability to respond in the face of adversity. I think we've got the best group of employees there is."

While Mr. MacMillan has travelled far with the CNR, he doesn't give the impression of a gimlet-eyed single-track careerist. His father wanted him to be a doctor and that was the plan until his college days.

More or less by accident, he chose law. And again partly by chance he was catapulted into CN's top legal job at age 36. He said:

He says CN is known better thro ghout the railroad world than in Canada. The same is true of himself. Chairman and president since Jan. 1, 1967, he succeeded Donald Gordon, the flamboyant reformer with whom he worked in tandem for years.

Although nominally head of the law department on Mr. Gordon's arrival in 1950, he was already involved in the overall running of the railway and in 1958 became executive vice-president, a new position.

"We worked as a unit," Mr. MacMillan said of Mr. Gordon and himself. "It was a very good relationship."

He joined CN as a solicitor in 1937 at age 28—just after his marriage to Irish-born Doris Horne—and the salary of $250 monthly looked good to a guy who recently made $75 a month. He now makes $75,000 a year.

Tomorrow: CNR gears itself to meet customer needs.

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP) — Canadian gold mines posted fractional losses in slow mid-morning trading on the Toronto Stock Exchange today.

The gold index slipped 2.12 points or one per cent to 207.28, interrupting a 31-point plunge since Friday's opening. Monday, the average nosedived 16.7 points or about 7.5 per cent—the second largest daily decline in the exchange's history.

Dome Mines slipped ¼ to 61¼ on sales of about 2,500 shares following a 20-minute delay in opening to match buy-and-sell orders.

Kerr Addison was off ¼ to 18¼, Camflo and Dickenson 25 cents each to 5.35 and 4.25 and Aumor 20 cents to 3.55.

Campbell Red Lake, which fell 2¼ Monday, was unchanged at 30.

Industrials, oils and base metals declined.

Inco fell 1¼ to 119¾, Simpsons 1¼ to 30¼, CPR ¾ to 50¾.

Runner-up Yacht Crew

The crew of the "Elektra II" placed second in their class in the recent 30th annual Miami-Nassau Ocean Yacht Race. Crew members are George Cuthbertson of Port Credit, George Hinterhoelter of Niagara-on-the-Lake, Ian Morch of R. R. 1, Belleville, and Gordon Stonehouse of Brampton.

Complaint Found Unjustified

The complaint of a Belleville woman who said she spotted a local parking meter attendant "shooting" by removing time from a meter and issuing a parking ticket to the vehicle involved, has been found unjustified.

The conclusion is that the woman making the complaint did not see the full procedure followed by the enforcement officer.

This is as follows: 1, visually check to determine if a meter is to be in violation; 2, insert a coin in the meter to determine if the officer was operating properly; 3, remove the time obtained by inserting the coin; and 4, place a violation ticket on the vehicle.

"It appears that the complainant witnessed only the last two operations of the procedure and arrived at the conclusion the officer was cheating," read the report of City Clerk Adam Stalker to council.

PM Gives Name to Peace Park

Prime Minister Lester B. Pearson has consented to giving his name to the Art Centre Peace Park at the Madoc-Tweed Art Centre, Trans-Canada Highway No. 7 East of Madoc, Roy Cadwell, Executive Director of the Centre and Chairman of the Canada Peace Park Centennial Committee which administers the peace park, made the announcement as a result of correspondence when it was learned that Mr. Pearson was resigning as the Liberal party leader.

"It is a great honor that Mr. Pearson, a Nobel Peace Prize winner and former President of the General Assembly of the United Nations, is giving his name to the peace park. I do not know of any Canadian who has done so much for peace throughout the world and also in Canada as Mr. Pearson. His name will be remembered as a man of peace."

The renaming ceremonies will take place Sunday, June 30 at 2.00 p.m. at the annual re-dedication of the Peace Park site. A suitable plaque is being inscribed with the wording, "Lester B. Pearson Peace Park." Plans are also under way for the erection of a Peace Gate at the entrance to the park in the form of a great circle representing world unity with stone pillars on either side.

The Peace Park was dedicated as a Centennial project last year. Areas have been set aside for any religious or other organization to erect a shrine or peace monument on the site. The Indo-Japanese Friendship Association, a Buddhist organization, sent two representatives from Japan to the dedication ceremonies and as a result of the 4 Peace Pagoda, the first in the Western World is now being erected there. In the same area an International Peace Column has already been built on which is written in English and Japanese, "May eternal Peace rule throughout the whole world, with peace and friendship between all mankind."

Purchasers Tour Plant

A very informative and enjoyable tour of the plant of Automatic Electric (Canada) Limited started off the March 13th monthly meeting of the Canadian Association of Purchasing Agents, Eastern Ontario District. Host members, Howard Webster and Bert Hewitson, took about twenty-five members on a two-hour tour before adjourning to the comforts of the 401 Inn in Brockville for the dinner meeting. A data-processing talk/demonstration was very capably conducted by three representatives of International Business Machines.

Starting with the history of I.B.M. from 1914 and carrying through to the present, it was shown that I.B.M. has grown with the times in all phases of business habits. The Kingston office of I.B.M. is a typical example, for up until last year the staff of about one-half dozen was handling office supplies and equipment, and now with a data-processing centre here, the staff has increased to over thirty personnel. Many Purchasing Agents present, who are deeply involved in data-processing in their own company operations, were able to "see the light" and understand the problems and possibilities through the use of I.B.M. equipment.

It was the Association"s annual vice-president's night, and Bruce Nickson of H. Corby Distillery Limited very capably took over for president Bill Templeton, who is vacationing in Florida. Thirty-two members and thirteen guests were in attendance representing companies from Trenton to Brockville.

Young Singer Writes Ditty for Benefactor

LONDON (CP) — A girl called Rosie plucked 23-year-old-singer Den Partridge off the streets and may make his fortune.

She's the subject of a ditty, written by Partridge, which took the fancy of a recording manager who heard him singing and playing on a street corner.

Partridge took his one - man band — guitar, mouth organ, drum and cymbals — to a recording studio, cut the disc in a day and now the record has become one of the surprise hits of the year in British pop music charts.

Before his new-found fame and fortune, Den was a busker, one of a colorful bunch of itinerant minstrels who sing and dance their way around London's West End theatre crowds outside box offices.

Partridge had the business down to a fine art and could take as much as $400 a week, depending on weather and the number of popular shows running.

Three collectors milked each queue while Partridge played and sang. A fourth helper moved on to the next pitch to stake his claim before another busker turned up.

The pickings are good, but the overhead is high.

His four helpers split one-third of the week's takings among them and buskers frequently got picked up by the police for breaking city ordinances.

Partridge has been in court more than 30 times, paying fines of several pounds each time.

"It's like income tax in our profession," he said.

But what he had left allowed him to live high on the hog. He rented a comfortable $23 a week terrace house in Putney.

Women's Institutes

WOOLEB W. I.

The March meeting of Wooler W. I. was held at home of Mrs. Henry McColl with president Mrs. Charles Nelson in the chair. There were 23 members ant several visitors in attendance.

Mrs. Nelson reported on the summary day held at Warkworth on "Baking with Yeast." Eight members attended. Conveners of sunshine committee reported a donation to the Cancer Fund in memory of a member Mrs. Dibbits. Auditors were appointed and a nominating committee named.

A freezer forum is to be held in Warkworth April 2. Convener of the program was Mrs. Noble Crosby who gave a reading on Irish paradoxes. Mrs. Alex Bell sang an Irish song. A humorous poem sent by Mrs. P. Gooding from Florida was enjoyed. A seasonal contest was making an Easter hat and some original hats resulted.

Mr. McColl judged the hats and chose an Easter Bunny creation made and modelled by Mrs. C. Nelson. An interesting contest tested the reading ability of members.

Two beautifully decorated cakes with the St. Patrick's theme were displayed and served with the lunch.

Mrs. E. Brooks, Mrs. T. Leavitt and Mrs. A. Gunter were lunch hostesses.

Club Conducts Survey

OTTAWA (CP) — The attitudes of society and business-men are a major reason why more Canadian women are not working in managerial occupations, a survey conducted by the Business and Professional Women's Club shows.

Results of the 209 written statements collected last fall in Edmonton at the club's seminar on working women were published in The Business and Professional Woman.

The survey showed that 40 per cent of the reasons given for lack of advancement to the managerial level involved attitudes of society and businessmen.

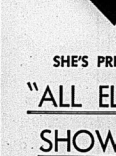
Responsibilities of family and home accounted for 17 per cent and lack of education, training and guidance for 10 per cent.

Dr. Geraldine Farmer, associate professor of secondary education at the University of Alberta, says in her report of the survey that it was limited in scope and the group canvassed was not representative of Canadian women in business.

However, it does offer some reasons for the small participation of women in managerial occupations, she said, and suggests ideas and problem areas needing further examination and research.

Fashion Model Is Chronic Violator

CHICAGO AP — The slender fashion model plucked the parking ticket from the windshield of her Cadillac and tossed it on the front seat.



Ho hum. It was the 65th time she had done it.

And then she became a member of the 10 most wanted - chronic traffic violators.

Chicago has borrowed a technique from the FBI to help crack down on chronic traffic violators who ignore their fines. A list of the "10 most wanted parking violators" is compiled and made public with arrest warrants issued.

Any patrolman would have coveted an assignment to track down the shapely model scofflaw but it was a computer that got the goods on her and 150 other drivers who failed to pay for multiple parking violations in 1966.

The 5-odd, 23, slipped 65 tickets under the visor, in the glove compartment or into the gutter in 1966. For that, Judge Raymond Berg slipped her a fine of $975

Church Group Hears Talk on Guyana

Guyana came alive Monday evening for members of the Presbyterian Women of St. Columba Presbyterian Church. Mrs. Wellwood Adam of Wooler, guest speaker, told of her many visits to this country and of her interest in the people.

A taste of some of her favorite Guyanese food and recent newspapers helped set the scene for pictures of the country and its people.

Mrs. J. Allan told of the work of the missionary team of the Presbyterian Church in Canada in Guyana. Now assisting the people are Rev. David Murphy as director of the Christian Stewardship program, Rev. C. A. Dunn is carrying out a special assignment in Young People's work. The Women's Missionary Society have three women workers. Miss Alhalea Read and Miss Margaret Ramsay assist in leadership training work with women. St. Columba House, the lay training centre of the Guyana Presbyterian Church has as its associate director Miss Merle McGowan.

Great changes came to Guyana in 1966 as it became an independent nation. New and greater responsibilities have had to be accepted by all the people. Improvements are slow, but sure.

Mr. Ben Singh of Guyana, now studying in Canada, was a guest. After telling the story of the legend of the Holy Grail, the cup from which Christ and His Disciples drank wine at the Last Supper, Miss Marie Brain and Master Jim Allan sang an appropriate duet.

Mrs. R. Brain, Mrs. R. Blatchford, Mrs. J. Allan, Mrs. R. Bartlett, Mrs. B. Hackett and Mrs. B. Cook led in worship and were responsible for the program of the evening.

In the absence of the president, Mrs. S. W. Gentle was in the chair.

An affiliation service of the Women's Missionary Society family, Children of the Church, Explorers, Canadian Girls in Training and the Presbyterian Women will be held on Sunday, March 31st. Miss Mary Whale, executive director for overseas missions will be the guest speaker.

The next meeting on Monday, April 22nd, will be in the form of a mystery tour.

Montreal Chef Conducts Classes for Housewives

MONTREAL (CP) — When Monsieur Brunet performs, the chatter from his 30 or more pupils, most of them housewives and talented cooks, ceases.

Henri Xavier Barnard has been inspiring Montreal housewives and cooking enthusiasts for the last few years with a series of classes at his Institut d'Art Culinaire in downtown Montreal.

The only courses provide the interested homemaker with some of the most delicious French and Canadian recipes, but the chef teaches them how to pour wine from a bottle when adding it to a savory dish.

"Corner — like this," he says, placing a thumb over the mouth of the bottle and allowing just enough of the golden or red liquid to sprinkle his turkey or tourtiere.

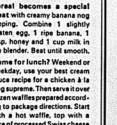
Working deftly, he picks up a handful of salt or flour and sprinkles it lightly between fingertips, never letting a bit —"always a little"—pass through his fingers while he snaps his wrist as though he were flipping a yo-yo.

"All these are as important as selecting the proper and fine cuts of meat, fresh vegetables and following instructions for the correct amount of ingredients," says the expert who, while in London, prepared tempting dishes for the Duke of Windsor.

When it comes to chopping, merely wedging a knife along the food to be carved just isn't done.

Taking three garlic buds, Monsieur Barnard lined them up on a wooden board. He picked up a huge meat chopper, turned it on its side and proceeded to splat-splat-splat, flattening the three tiny buds. Scooping the remains into a pile he then chopped furiously, reducing them almost to a powder.

"Now they are ready to be added to whatever it is you are making," he said.



On this occasion, the chef was preparing a complete dinner which featured a meat pie, with pork, veal and wild rabbit laced with a half cup of dry Chablis or Burgundy.

Leap Year Decree

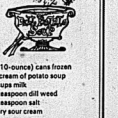
Dairy foods go with good living

Milk adds extra appeal to every meal at which you serve it. Whether you strive for variety in the family's menu you'll find milk, lends its basic goodness to main dishes, toppings, snacks or desserts quickly and economically. And happily it's nutritionally just as important as the milk the family drinks; you can count it in the daily score.



Cereal becomes a special treat with creamy banana nog topping. Combine 1 slightly beaten egg, 1 ripe banana, 1 tbsp. honey and 1 cup milk in the blender. Beat until smooth.

Home for lunch? Weekend or weekday, use your best cream sauce recipe for a chicken à la king supreme. Then serve it over frozen waffles prepared according to package directions. Start with a hot waffle, top with a slice of processed Swiss cheese and cover with the chicken" mixture. Serve 'with crisp relishes and glasses of milk.

Peanut-flavored hot chocolate makes a hit with the "little ones." Take ¼ cup cream-style peanut butter, beat in ¼ cup chocolate syrup and a pinch of salt. Stir in 4 cups hot milk, pour into mugs, top with whipped cream and serve with cookies.

Here's a recipe you can serve either hot or cold.

2 (10-ounce) cans frozen cream of potato soup
3 cups milk
¼ teaspoon dill weed
¼ teaspoon salt
dairy sour cream

In saucepan combine soup, milk, dill and salt. Warm over medium heat, stirring occasionally, to serving temperature. Pour into serving dishes and garnish with sour cream. (Note: to serve cold, heat as above, beat well then chill.)

Reader Sends Poem Appropriate for Winter Season

Dear Doris: In a recent column of your's a reader asked for the text of a poem which began. . . 'Along the line of smoky hills. . .'

By this time you have probably received lots of answers to this request, but in case no one has come up with the full text I am sending it along. It was written by Canadian poet William Wilfred Campbell and published in 1920.

I am surprised that someone should recall an Indian Summer poem in the depth of winter! Campbell has a much more appropriate one for this time of year, called Midwinter Night's Dream, which runs as follows:

The snows outside are white and white,
The gusty flue shouts through the night
And by the lonely chimney light
I sit and dream of summer.
M.W.

Dear M. W.: As I sit at my typewriter on a cold February day, I couldn't agree more with those four lines.

I now have a file two inches thick containing nothing but copies of "Indian Summer" sent in from readers across Canada. Dear readers, you are wonderful!

Dear Doris: Is it correct to "adopt" minutes of a previous meeting? I was taught to approve or confirm (if no corrections or admissions), by the chairman and sign.

To "adopt" meant as a report; a meeting accepts the responsibility of carrying out the contents.

Also is re M.P. or M.P.P. addressed (in mail) as Honorable?- Or only if a cabinet minister? — Perplexed.

Dear Perplexed: You "approve" minutes; you "adopt" reports. That is, you either adopt or amend reports, or refer them back for further consideration.

All members of the privy council and all cabinet members are addressed as Honorable. Other members of either parliament are addressed as "Mister" or "Esquire".

Dear Doris: Would like you to mention in your column if sniffing of nail polish remover is harmful to young people. — Thank You.

Dear T. Y.: The solvents — glue, nail polish remover and other hydro - carbons — are toxic. Authorities tell us it is probable that the repeated inhalation of hydro-carbons is symptomatic of social and emotional disorders; and that a person can develop tolerance and a psychic dependence on them.

In other words, unsatisfied people may sniff nail nolish remover for kicks, with never a thought to what they may be doing to their systems.

The research about how much dosage, how often, causes how much damage, is unfinished; but serious damage is done, and that's for sure.

Ann Landers

Professional Help Seems to No Avail

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am writing to comment on the letter from the girl who wrote to say she was a Lesbian. You will probably receive a great many responses to that letter because there are many more Lesbians around than most people suspect.

You are right when you say we are a lonely lot. We are all of that. And then there is the ever-present fear that we will be found out. No one would ever guess about me, however. I am not the least bit masculine in appearance or behavior. I look extremely feminine and I dream of wearing the currently fashionable pants-suits or a fedora hat.

My main purpose in writing is to tell you that your suggestion "seek professional help" won't work. I sought professional help and I also prayed fervently. I begged God to remove this burden from my shoulders. But it is now five years later and I am still a Lesbian.

I grew up in a home where my father made passes at me and my mother knew it and remained silent. If someone had recognized my problem early, perhaps I could have been helped, but now — at age 28. So, please, Ann, tell it like it is. — TARSUS.

DEAR TARSUS: When homosexuals write to me they write for a reason — usually because they are lonely, frightened and ashamed. I always suggest professional help, although I am well aware that the chances for a "cure" are slim, indeed. I suggest professional help because therapy can give these tortured people some insight into their problem and hopefully, with understanding can come a measure of self-acceptance and peace of mind.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a mother-in-law who minds my own business and enjoys a good relationship with my son's wife. But something is bothering me and I need your advice.

My son and his wife have been married nine years. They have three beautiful little girls. My son is crazy over the girls but I know that, secretely, every man wants a son. Last night at a party, the women were discussing their families. I heard my daughter-in-law say, "Three is enough for me. I'm through."

I said nothing, of course, but when I got home, her statement bothered me terribly. As an older woman I know more about life than she does. I had three children and it seemed like more than enough at the time, but now I deeply regret not having had more. Yes, it would have meant more work, but it would have been well worth it.

I so want to share my experience and knowledge with my daughter-in-law. I'm positive if she has another child or two she will never regret it. What do you say? — REGRETS.

DEAR RE: Take another look at the first sentence in your letter. If you want the like part of your statement to hold true — stick to the policy expressed in the first part.

Lobster Newburg Expensive Gourmet

By MARY MOORE

Lobster Newburg is gourmet and extravagant. It was for a birthday party. The guest of honor had been given the choice of being taken out or to stay at home for a lobster feed. She chose to stay at home and I cooked the Lobster Newburg. Restaurant cost versus homemade was reduced by two-thirds. A big gap.

Dinner Menu

Braised Short Ribs of Beef with Vegetables; Buttered Noodles; Chef's Salad; Butterscotch Pudding; Coffee.

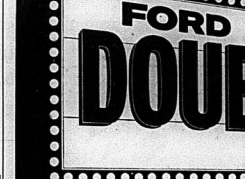
LOBSTER NEWBURG (serves 4 gourmets)

two 14-oz cans fresh frozen Nova Scotia lobster meat
3 tablespoons butter
3 tablespoons flour
½ teaspoon dry mustard
1 cup milk
½ cup 10 percent cream
2 egg yolks
3 tablespoons light sherry

Thaw the cans of lobster meat in the storage part of refrigerator. At mealtime open cans and tip into saucepan including brine on lobster, cover and bring to boiling, then simmer about 10 minutes to cook lobster.



To make Newburg Sauce, heat milk and cream together. Melt butter, blend in flour and mustard, then stir in hot milk and cream until thick. In small bowl beat egg yolks and stir in a little of the hot sauce and return to saucepan and stir over low heat for one minute. Remove from heat. Stir in sherry.

Drain lobster from cooked lobster and add lobster to Newburg Sauce and reheat but do not boil. We served ours with crusty French bread.

Variations: 1) Serve on fluffy boiled rice. 2) Serve on hot buttered toast points. 3) If desired to extend add ½-pound sliced mushrooms sauted in a little butter. 4) If you want to extend this dish to serve six make a larger amount of sauce with 4 tablespoons butter, 4 tablespoons flour, 1 teaspoon mustard, 1½ cups milk, ½ cup cream, 2 egg yolks and ¼ cup sherry, and add one or two 5-oz. cans drained shrimp. Thus you will have Seafood Newburg. Lobster or Seafood Newburg is excellent for serving in chafing dish.

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Father: "Where is my new hammer? That's the third hammer you've carried outdoors and lost. Why can't you leave my tools alone?"

Son: "You told me I could use them."

Children need to learn that privileges bring responsibilities — and borrowed property of others must always be returned or replaced.

Father: "I think you should buy a new hammer to replace the one you left outdoors. You should put the tools back as soon as you're through with them."

Different Approach

VANCOUVER (CP) — Eleven experimental Parent Teacher Association groups in Vancouver have reported an upswing in interest since they introduced informal, short business meetings and concentrated on updated programs. A questionnaire has revealed parents' interests lie in home and school discipline, introduction of sex education in elementary schools and music in school.

Top District Archers Hold Shoot

"All-A-Quiver"

Mayor H. J. McFarland of Picton was literally "all-a-quiver" when he visited the Quinte Archery Club's indoor tournament Sunday. Mrs. Leola Doxtator explains the finer points of the bow to the mayor.

PICTON (Staff) — Picton's "Quinte Archery Club" hosted its first Eastern Zone annual indoor tournament Sunday at the Royal Hotel. About 50 top flight archers gathered for the event and a highlight of the day was an official welcome by Mayor H. J. McFarland. Greetings were also expressed by Reeve Bernard Hepburn who represented County Council. Mayor McFarland was presented with an honorary membership in the club as was Mr. Hepburn.

The club have one of the finest indoor ranges in the area using the basement of the Royal Hotel. The Quinte Club recently won honors in an international tournament held in Kingston. Clubs represented in Picton yesterday were from Toronto, Lindsay, Belleville Napanee, CFB Petawawa, Cornwall and Ottawa. Registration opened in the lobby of the hotel at nine and the shooting began at 10.30 and continued until 5.30. A refreshment stand was kept open for the contestants.

Winners in the top four classes were as follows: free styles — Men's Master Class won by Mike Green (Ottawa Bowmen Club); Free styles Women's Master Class, Leola Doxtator (Belleville Archery Club); Instinctive men's expert class — won by Angus Bruce of the Circle Archery Club, Kingston; Instinctive women class, women, Margaret York of Quinte Club, Picton.

President of the Quinte Archery Club, Brian York, said that "the event exceeded even his expectations, that all of the guests seemed happy with the local facilities and in all it was a good shoot."

The Ontario Indoor Championships, sponsored by the Ontario Archery Association, will be hosted by the Belleville Archery Club this coming Sunday.

Posters on new community concert season are scanned by organization workers with acting mayor Doug Boyle. From left, Mrs. D. G. Joss, Dr. J. G. Demeza and Mrs. D. K. Vanderwater. Membership drive for concerts opens in Belleville next week.

1,000 Memberships Is Goal

Organizing culture is a matter of quality.

And the quality is the secret of survival.

At least, that seems the lesson to be learned from Belleville's Community Concert Association.

The organization is now more than 30 years old and just as attractive as ever.

The program being finalized for its next season proves that age has not withered its infinite variety.

Neither has it affected the drive of its executive.

Next week, they're planning a campaign to sell 1,000 memberships for the 1968-69 season. This is about the equivalent of a full house at Belleville Collegiate Institutional home of the concerts since they began in the mid-1930's.

The campaign, working from temporary premises on Front Street, will run five days, selling memberships to adults and students.

As usual there's the single stipulation that no tickets are available for a single concert. Season memberships alone can be purchased.

Even at that, the cost appears to have survived — so far — inflation and devaluation.

The season, as usual, consists of four concerts — a contrast of instrumentalist, vocalist, and ensemble music.

So far, three concerts have been announced: Richard Hayman, and the Manhattan Pops, pianist Lee Luvisi, violinist-pianist Amanda Ambrose.

Hayman has been guest conductor and arranger for a number of orchestras — among them the Boston Pops — since 1954. His concert program here will be devoted to Viennese themes — the music of the Strausses, Lehar, Kalman.

As a pianist, Lee Luvisi has appeared with most of the distinguished orchestras in North America — including the New York Philharmonic and Chicago Symphony. At present he is artist in residence at the University of Louisville.

Amanda Ambrose has made news in just about every phase of entertainment. The versatile singer-pianist made her New York debut last year at Carnegie Hall — and the young crowds wouldn't let her off the stage. Her style is a personal blend of blues, jazz, rock, ballads, gospel.

The fourth and last of the community concerts scheduled for next season in Belleville will be announced later.

Growing Awareness of Need

Public Aparthy Blocks Quinte Area Development

By LENNY WILLIAMSON
(Staff Reporter)

Public apathy has been one of the greatest stumbling blocks to development in the Quinte district.

"But there is a growing awareness of the need to make changes rather than have changes forced upon us," said Belleville planner P. J. Bavelis today.

He was commenting on statements made by out-of-town speakers at a planning seminar in Kingston Saturday.

The speakers said the entire Belleville-Brockville region "doesn't have a chance in the future development of Canada unless there is a confession of individual prejudices, inadequacies, ignorances and weaknesses."

Mr. Bavelis agreed with sociologist Dr. C. T. M. Hadwin of the University of Guelph, who told the 100 representatives of regional planning organizations: "Prejudice remains the biggest stumbling block to regional planning."

The planning director of the Belleville and Suburban Planning Board, which encompasses Belleville and parts of Sidney and Thurlow, told The Intelligencer: "Joint planning areas are only partly successful because of the difficulty of getting municipal representatives to look at the area instead of a their own municipal interests.

"I can't see regional planning being any better as long as this attitude remains," he said.

"This is not only an obstacle to planning, but is one of the reasons we might have regional government imposed upon us.

"The people of the Quinte area should adjust to meet changing society rather than have change forced on us by private enterprise and various levels of government."

The picture is not all dark, according to Mr. Beavis.

"Encouraging breakthroughs in regional co-operation were achieved in building the regional detention centre in Napanee, in forming the joint two-county, town and city co-ordinating committee two years ago and in council's setting-up last night of a committee to consult with other local municipalities on matters of common interest."

He said the co-ordinating committee composed of the four senior administrators of Prince Edward County, Hastings, Trenton and Belleville, has done a good job in promoting discussion and understanding.

One of the planning board's chief functions is stimulating intermunicipal co-operation.

"Results are doubtful sometimes," said the planner.

"The board has no executive function; it can merely make recommendations to municipalities. If these municipalities chose not to co-operate the board is handicapped in its work.'

It will see five years before the Ontario government comes up with a "reasonable solution" to what form regional government should take. The Ontario minister of municipal affairs said in a message read at the Saturday meeting.

"But in his message he also urged local regions such as the Quinte district to try to work out their own forms of regional government before that time," Frank Stokmans, Belleville's assistant planner, reported.

"We must recognize that changes are inevitable, and direct the changes in a way that suits our district," summed up Mr. Bavis.

District in Midst of Change: Beavis

The fear that "all change is dangerous and full of impending doom" must be weeded out if the eastern Ontario region is to grow, regional planning representatives were told in Kingston Saturday.

What are the changes facing Quinte district people within the next few years?

According to P. J. Bavelis, Belleville's planning director, the district is in the midst of these changes already. They are:

Change in the type of housing needed to accommodate a larger number of young families and elderly people.

Change in retailing from the small family business to large chains, with a further change coming up when multi-purpose stores take over retailing.

Change from centralization to diversification of industry. Changes in technology have caused many industries to move from the metropolitan areas. Small towns will have to welcome these industries and accommodate them with housing, services, and transportation.

Change in the rural economy from small to larger operating units and the abandonment of marginally producing land.

Change in the general economy to greater affluence for all and the subsequent demands by the public for more convenience and comfort in its shopping habits, housing and municipal services.

"One of the most unfortunate trends in our area has been the development of the creation of pockets of urban sprawl," Mr. Beavis said.

"These exurban areas are frequently devoid of basic utilities such as water, sewers and transportation and are often inconvenient for the people who live there. In moving over the city line these people fail to find the better living conditions they went looking for."

Modern Approach to Education

Non-graded System May Be Implemented in Central Hastings

By ROGER WORTH
Staff Reporter

Public school officials in central Hastings County are considering implementing one of the more modern approaches to education — the non-graded system where children start school three times a year.

For some time trustees have been considering the problem of providing kindergarten classes for youngsters and the new approach may be the answer.

Kindergarten classes are not available in the area at the present time.

The non-graded system operates like this:

Children are enrolled in the elementary schools on three separate starting dates depending on their birthdate. For some, classes start in September while other groups of children join these youngsters in January and March.

The average grade one age when the child first enters school will be five and one-half.

The teacher does not teach a year long course of subjects. Instead she teaches the first three "units of work a child is expected to master during his years in elementary school.

Unit one is taught to the group who enter school in September. A continuous stream of tests is used to determine how successful a child has been with unit one work.

In January the second group of youngsters arrive at the school and are taught unit two, together with the group who have already completed unit one during the fall term.

Work in each unit is self contained so that work in unit two is not based on subjects taught in unit one.

In March the third group of children arrive and all three groups are taught unit three.

By June a third of the total group will have completed unit three, another third, units two and three and the remainder all three work units.

The following September the child who has mastered all three units moves on to unit four with a new teacher. The rest of the group remains together in unit one until January when the second group moves on to unit five.

In March the third group moves to unit six reuniting the whole class.

The idea is that a child can make what is termed "continuous progress through a school that has discarded grades and replaced them with work units.

So far the non-graded system is operating successfully in several areas including Peterborough County. The program was implemented in three schools in that system.

Rae Linton, County school board superintendent is enthusiastic about the plan and feels the flexibility of the system will do much to help a child through the difficult early years of school.

"The ungraded school, with the use of continuous progress and cross grade grouping, provides special assistance to the child who is either a little fast or a little slow and will not fit into the existing system.

One of the objects of the new plan is to eliminate the problem of children wasting a year in school because they happened to fail exams at the end of June.

Newspapers Instead of Textbooks: Teacher

TORONTO (CP) — If students used a daily newspaper as the only textbook in the classroom, they would get better grades than those who used the standard textbook, an American teacher told Ontario English teachers Monday.

Hope Shackelford of Wichita, Kansas, said textbooks are out of date before they come off the press.

"If you have to 'cover' that textbook,' the best way is to sit on it," she told a seminar of the Ontario Council of Teachers of English.

Newspapers motivate children to learn, she said, because reading a newspaper is an adult activity.

"Teach them sources and concepts, not facts such as the wives of rulers of Europe for the past 100 years."

Mrs. Shackelford teaches English to five classes, including advanced groups, normal achievers and non-readers in Grades 9 to 13, as part of a newspapers-in-the-classroom program in 17,000 schools in the U.S.

With non-readers she begins teaching with the sports pages. Grammar lessons come from the comic strips, more advanced lessons from the front page and editorial pages.

"The newspaper bridges the gap between a classroom and reality," she told a seminar of the Ontario Council of Teachers of English.

The council is one of 35 sections of the Ontario Educational Association annual meeting which begins officially today. About 14,000 educators 10,000 of them teachers, are expected to register for the three-day convention.

The teachers' council is one of 35 sections of the Ontario Educational Association annual meeting which begins officially today.

In the regular system a child with an average mark of less than 50 per cent must repeat the year.

A continuous progress school measures a child's progress in units rather than entire years. This means he may be required to repeat one three month unit rather than a full year.

It also means he remains in the same class with the same friends for a longer period of time, even though he has failed a work unit.

In Peterborough County, plans call for the implementation of the non-graded system up to the present grade six level.

Mr. Linton will explain the success of the non-graded plan in his area to the Hastings number two public school board in Tweed early next month.

Officials are expected to arrive at a decision on the use of the continuous progress plan later this spring. It could be included in courses next fall.

SPORTS SLICES

By Geo. H. Carver
Sports Editor

Offer him a two-dollar bill in change or any other financial doings — and he'll toss it back in your face. He thinks they're hoodoos.

But he'd give half his stipend, perhaps all, if he could lead his favorite hockey team into the Stanley Cup playoffs and toss in the rest for the old mug itself.

He's been cheered and cursed; hoo'd and hullahalloo'd; dubbed a "sergeant-major" and accused of "player persecution."

He's made deals and deals, some popular, others hissed by the faithful.

But even those who dub him the Simon Legree of professional hockey must admit that he emerged as a brilliant Trader Horn in his recent "desperate deal" to strengthen his club in the stretch drive for a Stanley Cup playoff berth.

But even these three doughty Musketeers could not carry the whole load and the Maple Leafs' general manager-coach Punch Imlach stands but a point away from playoff oblivion and the longest summer vacation in years.

Events since the big Toronto-Detroit six-man swap have proven that the Leafs got much the better of the deal from a goal-producing point of view.

The rest of the Leafs didn't catch any of the fire and as one Toronto sports writer puts it, "Punch perhaps made one mistake. He should have thrown in a half dozen Leafs for free and brought up the Tulsa Oilers to finish the season."

Norm Ullman, whose inclusion in the deal surprised a host of hockey fans, found that a change of jersey did not affect his scoring ability.

Normie has racked up four goals and four assists in the five games he has played as a Leaf while Floyd Smith ran wild the other night with a hat trick. Unfortunately an injury will sideline him for the rest of the season.

In the midst of the Toronto and other centres of Leaffan fans uproar, when the much-ballyhoo'd Frank Mahovlich was included in the Detroit deal, Imlach faced his critics with shrugs of the shoulder.

Indignant fans were ready to hang, draw and quarter the man with the naked pate. Mahovlich was the darling of the gods but the same fans proved on more than one occasion that heroes can be boo'd and they made no mistake about it.

It was their right to boo and criticize player, coach manager and even the water boy if they desire. They believe the purchase price of the ticket gives them that right.

But to trade off the superstar, the Big M, the only Leaf who could transfer them into a cheering frenzied clutch — that was taking it too far.

Imlach again shrugged it off. But it was pointed out that Mahovlich was not scoring goals and that is what hockey is all about. Goalies are made of here stuff, too, but kicking out pucks won't win games unless there are a few guys up front who have a yen to put the rubber in the net at the other end of the ice.

Imlach was asked the other day about other deals he made where the departed Leafs scored goals for the new owners.

He said "I'm glad for them, I hope Mahovlich fills the net and the rink for Detroit and the others do well. But don't forget we haven't done badly by those deals. They laughed at me in New York when I made the trade but with them. But we've won two Stanley Cups since then and what have they done. And I'll tell you something else. We'll win two more Stanley Cups before New York does."

There were rumors that Punch was destined for the highways and byways after the "big deal." But his shrewdness proved itself. Ullman, Duff and Henderson came through handsomely, but since the swap there have been no glaring Detroit headlines covering stories of the scoring prowess of the three Leafs that went their way.

Sport Miniatures

NEW YORK (AP) — Jerry Quarry's victory over Thad Spencer in the semi-finals of the heavyweight elimination tournament earned the California boxer the February award in the S. Rae Hickox Pro Athlete-of-the-Year poll. Quarry received 81 first-place votes and 133 points in the voting by a national panel of sports writers and sportscasters, it was announced Monday. Canadian golfer George Knudson was second with 17 firsts and 17 points.

MONTREAL (CP) — Fred Williamson, 29, who earned the nickname The Hammer for his aggressive blocking in the American Football League, signed with Montreal Alouettes of the Canadian Football League. Williamson, a defensive halfback and corner linebacker, has played for Kansas City Chiefs for the last three seasons. He weighs 215 pounds and earned the hammer title for his heavy tackles and the fact he holds a black belt in karate.

Junior Curling

KINGSTON (CP)—Undefeated rinks from Weston, Uxbridge, Oakville and Kitchener entered the semi-finals today in the Ontario junior curling championships.

Barrie Timbers' rink from Uxbridge picked up its second victory in as many outin Monday by defeating Bill Schultz of Thornhill 8-6 in the fourth round of the tournament.

Log-Jam Marks Points Stretch Run

Howe A Threat

MONTREAL (CP) — Stan Mikita, Chicago Black Hawks slick, playmaking centre star, holds a four-point lead in the National Hockey League's individual scoring race. But he's no shoo-in for defence of the championship he won last year with a record-tying 97 points.

He's being hotly pursued by players from Boston, New York and team-mate Bobby Hull, the league's top goal scorer with 44 this season.

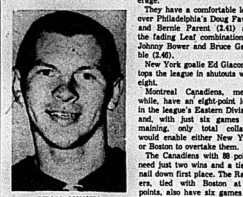
Mikita, with the season in its late stages, has 79 points—including 38 goals—and a three-point edge on centres Phil Esposito of the Bruins and Jean Ratelle of New York. They are closely followed by Hull and Ratelle's right-winger, Rod Gilbert, with 75 points each while the venerable Gordie Howe, in his 22nd season with Detroit, continues to threaten the scoring leaders with 74 points.

Scoring titles are nothing new to Howe, the league's all-time points leader, but if he should put on a late-season scoring spurt that carried him to the points title he could be the first player in 21 years to win the championship while with a last-place club. Max Bentley accomplished the feat with Chicago in 1946-47.

And while these players concentrate on scoring, Montreal goalies Gump Worsley and Todgate Vachon continue to top the league netminders with a sparkling 2.16 goals against average.

They have a comfortable lead over Philadelphia's Doug Favell and Bernie Parent (2.41) and the fading Leaf combination of Johnny Bower and Bruce Gamble (2.46).

New York goalie Ed Giacomin tops the league in shutouts with eight.



Montreal Canadiens, meanwhile, have an eight-point lead in the league's Eastern Division and, with just six games remaining, only total collapse would enable either New York or Boston to overtake them.

The Canadiens with 88 points need just two wins and a tie to nail down first place. The Rangers, tied with Boston at 80 points, also have six games remaining and Boston five.

Chicago is another point back while defending Stanley Cup champion Toronto Maple Leafs are in fifth place, 13 points behind the Hawks and would have to win their seven remaining games, while Chicago was winless, to make the playoffs. Detroit is last with 61 points.

In the Western Division, Philadelphia has 69 points and a three-point lead over Los Angeles. St. Louis and Minnesota complete the playoff picture to date, holding down third place another three points behind Los Angeles. Pittsburgh Penguins, with only a faint hope of overtaking any of the top four clubs in the division, is three with 58 points while Oakland Seals, already eliminated from the playoff picture, trail with 45 points.

Habs' Injury List

Could Be Whole Lot Worse

MONTREAL (CP) — Terry Harper is in Boston's Massachusetts Eye and Ear Infirmary, his eyes swathed in bandages.

Ted Harris is limping with a fractured rib.

But Montreal Canadiens' injury problems are not all bad.

Goalie Rogatien Vachon, clipped on the collarbone in Sunday night's 3-1 loss to the Bruins at Boston, was cleared for play by doctors Monday after x-rays failed to disclose anything other than a severe bruise.

Club spokesmen say he'll be ready to play Wednesday when the Canadiens are host to Toronto at Maple Leafs.

In a telephone interview from his bed in Boston, Harper described his eye injury, incurred during a scramble in front of the Canadiens' net with teammate Claude Provost and rookie Bruin Glen Sather.

"It had to be an accident because they didn't even know I was there," Harper said, when asked if foul play might have been involved.

Harper was admitted for observation after receiving several stitches under the eye. There was some blood around the front chamber of the eye, doctors said.

Harper will be in hospital for at least five days during which he must remain immobile with both eyes covered as a precautionary measure.

Meanwhile Harris' injury was not as serious as feared. He is expected to miss only Wednesday's Leaf game.

The Canadiens' other goalkeeper, Gump Worsley—injured in a collision with team-mate Terry Harper in the Habs' Pittsburgh game last Saturday —made the trip to Boston Sunday and should be able to play if called on against Toronto.

Harper's absence means that rookie Serge Savard will continue to play regularly as he did while replacing Jacques Laperriere who was out with a shoulder injury.

World Skiers

Nancy, Killy Eye Cup

ASPEN, Colo. (AP) — Jean-Claude Killy of France and Nancy Greene of Canada have all but wrapped up World Cup skiing honors for the second straight year.

With two more events in the competition, Killy, the triple gold medallist in last month's Winter Olympics, has a 30-point lead over Dumeng Giovanoli of Switzerland, figures released Monday show.

Miss Greene, who swept the three Alpine events in the International here during the weekend, leads Isabel Mir of France, 176 points to 150.

Remaining tests are the international team races at Rossland, B.C., later this month and the Heavenly Valley, Calif., event next month.

The current standings:

Women: Nancy Greene, Canada, 176; Isabel Mir, France, 150; Francoise Steurer, France, 124; Annie Famose, France, 115; Fernande Bochatay, Switzerland, 113.

Lorentz Leads CP Race

DETROIT (CP) — Jim Lorents of Oklahoma City Blazers collected eight points in four games last week to take over the individual scoring leadership in the Central Professional Hockey League.

Lorentz has 32 goals and 47 assists for 79 points—one more than Ron Ward of Tulsa Oilers.

Ward, a native of Cornwall, Ont., has 30 goals and 48 assists for 78 points. Ken Campbell of Tulsa is third with 31 goals and 45 assists for 76 points.

Russ Gillow of Oklahoma, is top goaltender with a goals-against average of 2.12 per game. He also has eight shutouts.

Imlach Recalls Pappin

TORONTO (CP) — Right winger Jim Pappin Monday was recalled from Rochester Americans of the American Hockey League by Toronto Maple Leafs as an emergency replacement for the injured Floyd Smith.

Pappin will play for the Maple Leafs Wednesday in a National Hockey League game against Montreal Canadiens in Montreal.

Smith injured his knee Sunday night in a game aginst Philadelphia Flyers in Quebec City, and may be lost for the rest of the season.

Pappin, who originally refused to report to Rochester and then changed his mind, had a goal and five assists in five games with the Americans.

Jiminy Cricket Had Short Life In Pro Baseball

LAKELAND, Fla. (AP) — Literally snatched out of Kansas City Athletics system by Detroit Tiger, Jiminy Cricket lasted only 15 days in the major leagues. But veteran pitcher Hank Aguirre will never forget him.

"I think of him often," recalls Aguirre, a veteran of 13 years in the American League. "Especially when I'm in the whirlpool."

The cricket was the protege of former Tiger pitcher Frank Lary. It was 1964 and the Tigers were in fourth place, not going much of anywhere.

"Frank saw this cricket hopping in front of the dugout in Kansas City," said Aguirre. "He caught it and fooled around with it the rest of the game. He brought it back to Detroit on the plane."

Dubbed "Jiminy" by Lary, the insect became a pet of the Detroit players, happily chirping in the club house from inside a small plastic box Lary converted into a home.

"He'd take it to his apartment in Detroit, feed it and put it to bed in the closet," recalls Aguirre. "Frank made a tape recording of the crickets chirping and on days when he couldn't get the cricket to sing, he'd play that tape and Jiminy would really warble."

Players kept up a constant chatter of small talk with the cricket and a place was reserved on the bench for the insect to watch games.

But one day, Lary and pitcher Phil Regan, now with Los Angeles Dodgers, got into an argument at Tiger Stadium in Detroit.

"You're nuts!" Regan finally yelled at Lary. "I don't want to talk about it any more. And what's more, I wish you'd quit bringing that crazy beetle to the park."

With that, Regan picked up the plastic box and hurled it against the club house wall. The box popped open and Jiminy fell to the floor, injuring a leg.

Stricken with instant remorse, Regan picked up the cricket and placed it in the whirlpool bath, a tub of swirling water used to ease the pain of injured limbs and assorted aches.

"Jiminy drowned, said Aguirre, "and Regan was charged with murder. We held a trial.'

Catcher Bill Freehan was named prosecutor. George Thomas, now with Boston Red Sox, handled the defense, and former team trainer Jack Homel, now retired, served as judge.

"Homel acquitted Regan," said Aguirre, "but the ruled death was caused by accidental drowning while undergoing therapy."

A funeral followed. The players slowly filing through the tunnel to the dugout in Tiger Stadium.

The cricket was buried in a hole at the head of the dugout steps.

Goderich Peewee Tournament

GODERICH, Ont. (CP) — Danny Duncan and Paul Johnson scored two goals each as Goderich defeated Ingersoll 4-1 in the B series of the annual Young Canada Week peewee hockey tournament Monday.

A total of 87 teams are competing in the eight-day tournament.

In another B series game, Petrolia blanked Clinton 5-0 with Ron Hunter scoring two goals.

In D series games, Grand Bend edged Ripley 3-2, Sheddon defeated Alwood 6-1, Blyth whipped Aida Craig 10-1 and Belmont swamped Monkton 11-1.

Belmont also handed Blyth a 7-1 defeat. In the same series Lucan scored a 13-1 victory over Kurtsville, Grand Bend edged Ripley 3-2 and Copetown beat Sarnia Indian Reserve 7-1.

Orioles Get Air Scare; Lose To Chisox

By RON RAPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer

If a bad spring means a good season, Baltimore Orioles have the American League pennant wrapped up.

The Orioles haven't been tearing the Grapefruit League apart early in the baseball exhibition season, but at least they haven't been afraid to get up in the morning. Until today.

Monday, the club made a routine flight from Miami to Sarasota, Fla., for a game with Chicago White Sox. At least it was a routine as a flight can be after the pilot announces that an engine has been shut off.

Conversation was at an understandable minimum until the plane landed and, of course, the Orioles proceeded to get beaten by the White Sox 5-1. Their record now is 3-5.

In other games, Pittsburgh Pirates beat Detroit Tigers 7-2, Cincinnati Reds took New York Mets 5-2, Houston Astros beat Oakland Athletics 6-4 in 11 innings, St. Louis Cardinals overcame Philadelphia Phillies 8-7 and New York Yankees lost 5-3 to Mexico City Reds in Mexico.

Pete Ward hit a three-run homer for the White Sox and Francisco Carlos shut out the Orioles for five innings. Which is the kind of a day the Birds had.

Matty Alou drove in three runs with singles for the Pirates, raising his spring training batting average to .400 and his RBI total to 11. Bob Veale worked five innings of three hit ball for the Bucs.

Hal MacRae had a two-run homer for the Reds. But second baseman Tommy Helms, spiked by Ron Swoboda in the fourth inning, may be lost for a week. The Mets now have lost six in a row.

Doug Rader's double with two out in the 11th drove in Houston's winning runs. The Astros collected 15 hits off four Oakland pitchers.

Philadelphia took a seven-run lead over St. Louis, but the Cards scored four in the eighth and six unearned runs in the ninth to win.

The Yanks got a pair of homers—from Andy Kosco and Frank Fernandez—and seven innings of eight-hit pitching from Jim Bouton, but errors and timely Mexico City hitting proved their downfall.

Glasgow Celtics Plan Tour

GLASGOW (AP) — Glasgow Celtic soccer team plans to tour Canada, the United States and Mexico this May—and hopes it will help history to repeat itself.

Last time the famed Glasgow team toured across the Atlantic it returned home to win every trophy in Scottish soccer and become the first British team to capture the European Cup of Champions.

This year's tour is scheduled to last 11 days and will include games in Toronto, New York and Acapulco, Mexico. Celtic officials said they do not yet know which teams they will meet.

Says Aussie Will Turn Tennis Pro

ATLANTA, Fa. (AP) — Roy Emerson, top-ranked tennis star from Australia, will turn professional within the next two weeks says the Atlantic Constitution.

The newspaper said today it had learned Emerson has made a commitment to play as a professional with Hollywood, Fla., tournament during the Easter weekend.

The 30-year-old Davis Cup star, ranked with Spain's Manuel Santana as the world's No. 1 tennis player, will join a group which includes former Aussie stars Ken Rosewall nd Rod Laver along with Pancho Gonzales.

Emerson would be the third Australian to turn professional in recent months. John Newcombe and Tony Roche recently joined another touring pro group.

Legion Hosts St. Patrick's Tournament

Darts and cribbage tournaments helped members of the Legion and visiting clubs celebrate St. Patrick's Day this past weekend.

An inter-club darts tournament with teams from the Duke of Edinburgh Branch of the Army, Navy, Airforce Veterans Association, Canadian Guards from Camp Picton and Branch 99, Canadian Legion was held here at the Royal Canadian Legion Hall.

Forty-four single entries competed with Ray Marsh, of Branch 99, winning the trophy donated by the branch sports committee. An Irish Stew supper, served by the Ladies' Auxiliary, completed the day.

Meanwhile, the Marmora Branch of the Royal Canadian Legion played host to a cribbage tournament, with two Belleville Branch teams taking part and finishing in first and second positions.

Belleville's second team scored 3,245 points with the Tweed Branch team coming third with 3,138.

Western Junior League

Commissioner Boucher Suspended!

REGINA (CP) — Hockey has been Frank Boucher's first love for 47 years. Now it appears his love has rejected him.

The former National Hockey League star and coach was relieved of his duties as commissioner of the year-old Western Canada Junior Hockey League at league board of governors meeting here Monday.

The suspension followed a weekend of controversy over a playoff game between two teams in the 11-member league. One team refused to play a deciding quarter-final game and Boucher awarded the series to the other team.

As it turned out, that was only the beginning.

The refusal by Brandon Wheat Kings followed an order by Boucher for a change of venue from Brandon to Winnipeg. He said incidents involving fans and players at three previous series games in Brandon could recur and injuries result.

Brandon objected, appealed to league president W. D. (Bill) Hunter of Edmonton, and failed to appear for the game Saturday in Winnipeg. The other team, Moose Jaw Canucks, dressed and skated briefly around Winnipeg arena. Boucher awarded them the series.

The controversy mushroomed for 67-year-old Boucher, who is a decade as top playmaker for New York Rangers, was seven-time winner of the NHL's Lady Byng trophy—awarded to players voted the best sportsmen and gentlemen.

Brandon coach Glen Lawson sidestepped Boucher and petitioned league president Hunter, who called the governors meeting to discuss the hassle.

Boucher meanwhile, ordered Moose Jaw to appear in Estevan, Sask., Sunday for the first game of a semi-final series with Estevan Bruins.

Hunter, however, told coach Scotty Munro of the Bruins the team was not to meet Moose Jaw until he heard from Moose Jaw dispute was settled.

"As far as I'm concerned," Boucher said Monday, "my decision is in line with the constitution of the league and no appeal to my decision will be heard" a playoff problem can be allowed.

"I am following the constitution and the contract to the letter and I have no intention of moving an inch."

Estevan did not appear for the game. Boucher awarded it to Moose Jaw, giving them a one-game advantage in the best-of-seven semi-finals.

OBA Convention

Bain Returns To Chair

"I can't remember attending a better convention anywhere, at any time."

With that remark, Jack Carson, long - time "Mr. Baseball" of Eastern Ontario baseball, summed up the annual Ontario Baseball Association convention held in Chatham this past weekend.

A record 281 delegates registered and, according to Carson, "everything ran as smooth as silk from start to finish".

George Bain, of Hamilton, was returned by acclamation for a second term as president.

Jim Inglis, Guelph, is 1st vice - president, Joe Zimmer, Chatham, 2nd vice - president and Johnny Leask, Simcoe, 3rd vice - president.

The four executive members elected were Arnold Wade, Reid Buck, Wilf Rodgers and Lyn Andrews. A rare six - way tie existed in the voting for the final spot, forcing another vote to settle the office.

One change in the constitution which affects all sections of the province states that clubs involved in playoff series "must lose a rain for the site of the deciding game."

No Dates, No Play!

COCOA, Fla. (AP) — Playboy pitcher Bo Belinsky has left Houston Astros' spring training site and club officials indicate the left-hander will not have a job if and when he returns.

Belinsky left after Astros general manager H. B. Richardson denied him permission to stay out late Saturday night, on a date with Joe Gillum, reserve Playboy Magazine's Playmate of the Year.

"He came down with his bags," said one of the night clerks, "threw his key on the desks and walked out. He didn't say a word."

Richardson said "if he comes back, he won't have a job on the Houston ball club."

Belinsky was not on the Astros' 40-man roster and was given little chance of making the team. He was optioned to the Astros' Oklahoma City farm club in the Pacific Coast League after a 3-9 season with Houston in 1967.

Halt to Bombing in Vietnam 'First Priority' States Martin

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada continues to believe that a halt to the United States bombing of North Vietnam "is a first priority," External Affairs Minister told the Commons Monday.

But he agreed that the recent Communist ground offensive made a U.S. peace move less likely because it would appear to be yielding to military pressure. Similarly, it was impossible to expect Hanoi to appear to be responding to a military buildup.

Mr. Martin outlined Canada's position on the Vietnam war as the House debated supplementary spending estimates for his department. They later were approved.

He said he instructed Ormond Dier, senior Canadian officer on the International Control Commission, to visit Hanoi with " a suggestion that the ICC might act as "a restraining influence" in the demilitarized zone if negotiations took place.

In addition to both defence and criticism of the U.S. position in Vietnam, the wide-ranging debate rambled over the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, the North American Air Defence agreement, external aid, civil wars in Africa and the refusal of U.S. State Secretary Dean Rusk to allow the extradition of former waterfront boss Hal Banks to face perjury charges in Canada.

Opposition Leader Stanfield opened the debate with an appeal for foreign aid programs that would encourage capital investment needed to stimulate economic growth.

Robert Prittie (NDP — Burnaby-Richmond) urged that family planning assistance be included in the external aid program.

Andrew Brewin (NDP—Toronto-Greenwood) challenged the government to justify an annual expenditure of $140,000,000 defence against manned bombers which was referred to in a 1964 white paper on defence as "a diminishing threat."

He said the government has intended to renew the NORAD treaty without consulting Parliament.

Ed Schreyer (NDP—Spring field) turned the attack to the NATO treaty with the suggestion that after 20 years it "is time for a critical revaluation and review."

He said France had disengaged from the military aspects of the alliance and now was in a position to capitalize on trade opportunities in East Europe.

Not once in 20 years has any move been made to start talks with the Warsaw Pact nations of East Europe, he said.

Robert Thompson (SC—Red Deer) said other Asian countries recognize that Chinese aggression not U.S. imperialism, is the danger in Asia. In his travels through Asia last year he had found no leader who believed the problem would be solved by the U.S. pulling out of Vietnam.

John R. Matheson (L—Leeds) praised President Johnson as a "great" man and recalled that he had taken an unpopular stand against U.S. isolationism in the early days of the Second World War.

Terry Nugent (PC — Edmonton-Strathcona) countered that the best friends of communism are those "who get up and mouth anti-Communist diatribes."

Howard Johnston (SC—Okanagan-Revelstoke) said Canada's support of African nationalism was a misguided policy. He called for recognition of the Ian Smith government of Rhodesia in place of the policy of sanctions.

The Gabon affair "underlines that our entire policy in Africa has gained us not a single friend when we needed one."

Canada recently suspended diplomatic relations with the tiny African country of Gabon on the grounds that country slighted Ottawa by inviting a Quebec representative to an educational conference.

Gilles Gregoire (Lod—Lapointe) said Gabon had been correct to invite a Quebec representative to the conference. He said there is no federal education department to which an invitation could be sent.

H. W. Herridge (NDP—Kootenay West) brought the debate back to North American ties with questions about the U.S. refusal to extradite labor boss Hal Banks, "that criminal, that gangster, that fugitive, from justice."

He congratulated Mr. Martin for protesting the U.S. move which he called "an insult to this country."

THE PICK OF Punch

"At last — an end to religious persecution! Now where are those rotten heathen Indians?"

No Pension for Landreville

OTTAWA (CP) — The government has no immediate plans to pay a pension to Leo Landreville, who resigned last June 7 as a judge of the Ontario Supreme Court a few hours before Parliament was to begin a move to impeach him.

Justice Minister Trudeau told the Commons Monday that "the cabinet has decided against taking the steps necessary at this time" to authorize a pension for Mr. Landreville.

Rockefeller Said Intending to Run

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Times says that Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York will announce Thursday he will seek the Republican nomination for the president and that he will enter the Oregon primary May 28.

The Times gives no source for its story. Reached in Washington, the governor's press secretary, Leslie Slote, said: "I know nothing about it."

Earlier in the day, Slote had told reporters here that Rockefeller would have an announcement Thursday or Friday, but did not say whether the governor would give the "go" signal or continue his 18-months-long refusal to seek the nomination.

Weir Thinks Medicare Is Unconstitutional

WINNIPEG (CP) — Manitoba Premier Walter Weir said Monday he believes financing arrangements for the federal medical care insurance plan in provinces not participating are unconstitutional.

He said in the legislature further study is necessary before deciding whether it should be tested in the courts. Later he said Manitoba is marking time until after the April Liberal leadership convention when Mr. Weir said he hopes the federal bill will be altered.

Rent Review Board Urged for Ontario

TORONTO (CP)—The Ontario government was asked in the legislature Monday night to establish a review board to investigate high rents imposed by some apartment owners.

Margaret Renwick, New Democratic Party member for Scarborough Centre, said in her maiden speech that unjustified increases in rents are forcing thousands of Ontario families to seek public housing.

Miss Renwick suggested the Ontario Housing Corp. establish an open housing registry through which public housing would be allocated on a basis of need.

Stanley Randall, economics and development minister, said if the corporation takes over administration of public housing in Toronto the majority of tenants will pay less rent.

The minister said that if Toronto accepts a takeover proposal made by the government last week, a "small number" of tenants may have to pay higher rents but the majority will pay less.

Scouting activities

6th BELLEVILLE (TABERNACLE)

Park "A" under Cubmaster (Akela), Mrs. K. Hine held a "Going Away" party at their regular meeting on Wednesday evening for Asst. Cubmaster Alex. Savage, who has been temporarily transferred to Germany by the Air Command.

The party was a real "fun fair" with different "side shows" around the hall, which included the games bean bags, bowling alley, darts, walking the plank, hoopla and peanut scramble as well as a host of other "attractions". A bag of popcorn was the prize in all the events, with a glass of "Jungle Juice" (orange) as the main beverage of the evening.

Several contests were held and the "baby show" prize went to Cub Tim O'Harra for the best puppet made and entered. Another contest was the "fancy hat" and the prize was given to Sixer Randy Farrar for making the most attractive hat.

A special presentation of a leather "woggle" was given to Asst. Cubmaster — Savage was made by Sixer Randy Farrar. This was purchased by money saved and donated by the Cubs themselves. A very successful evening was concluded with the usual closing ceremonies and the happy band returned home tired but enthusiastic.

Two Gold Swimmers' badges were awarded to Queens Scout David Lott and Scout Don Grant, while A.S.M. Ralph Spencer also succeeded in passing the requirements for This badge requires the highest skills in swimming and the many strokes and other swimming requirements.

17th BELLEVILLE EASTMINSTER

Over 200 Scout fathers and sons took part in the annual father and son banquet at Eastminster Church Hall recently. A delicious dinner was served by the Ladies Auxiliary under the direction of Mrs. Marg Dack, Mrs. Marjorie Montgomery and Mrs. June Woolley, assisted by mothers of the boys.

Organized by the group committee, under chairman Hugh Beach, an interesting program of informative and entertaining nature was carried out.

The speaker Lynn Bottoms, ex former Canadian Football league player, and now a high school teacher, was introduced by Jack Sisson. Mr. Bottoms maintained the interest of the fathers and boys throughout his address, as he discussed father - son relationships and gave the boys some thoughtful advice on "finding themselves." The speaker was thanked for his most interesting remarks by Mr. Bob Buckley.

Mr. Lewis Andrews, President of the Belleville District Council, spoke briefly and brought greetings from the Council, while Asst. District Commissioner brought to the gathering the goodwill and offer of cooperation from the district staff.

In recognition of his many "Good Turns" to the Group and Scouting, a small token of appreciation was given to Chairman Hugh Beach.

Special guests present included Messrs. K. Huntley, A. Ketcheson, W. P. Hanley, Rev. A. McDowell and Lewis Anthe Gold Swimmers' badge.

BIG BUSINESS

More than 600 firms in Britain manufacture electrical machinery—including several with more than 7,500 employees.

SEEK BRITISH RECRUITS

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) — The Niagara Falls police commission will seek police recruits in the United Kingdom this year because of a shortage of area candidates. The proposal was made after 10 British police officers attending the recent World Congress of Police Officers sent in job applications.

World Safe From Depression if We Don't Panic Says Pearson

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Pearson said Monday night the world is safe from another depression as long as individuals do not frighten themselves into it and nations do not revert to protectionist policies.

He said consumers must act carefully but normally in the wake of difficulties in the international monetary system.

He hoped for a return to widespread confidence in international monetary arrangements with the adoption of a two-tier system for the price of gold and with progress in developing a form of international money to supplement gold in payments among nations.

Mr. Pearson was interviewed on the CTV television program Canada: 101.

He was asked by interviewer Tom Gould whether France could be blamed for the run on gold that has shaken the monetary system. The prime minister said he does not place all the blame on France but it was "very unfortunate to say the least that France is not co-operating with other governments."

He described the Vietnam war as the centre of anxiety all the world's current political and economic problems.

He said he saw no role for himself after his retirement in bringing peace to Vietnam, although he would do anything he could.

P. Juneau Broadcast Chairman

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Pearson announced Monday the appointment of Pierre Juneau as chairman of the Board of Broadcast Governors.

Mr. Juneau, 45, succeeds Andrew Stewart whose resignation as chief of the regulatory agency became effective Monday.

The new BBG chairman will become chairman of the Canadian radio-television commission provided for this year in the government's broadcasting bill. He has been BBG vice-chairman.

Born in Montreal, Mr. Juneau is a graduate of the University of Montreal and is board chairman of the International Film Festival.

New Aspirant to Leadership

John Kroeker, 38, displays literature he plans to distribute outlining his platform for the Liberal party leadership. Mr. Kroeker, fired as a senior actuary by the federal government for opposing the national pension plan, announced his candidacy for the Liberal leadership at an Ottawa news conference. (CP Photo)

Benson Joins Marchand To Run Trudeau Drive

OTTAWA (CP) — Manpower Minister Marchand claimed Monday that Pierre Elliott Trudeau will get the support of 75 to 80 per cent of Quebec's 627 delegates for the Liberal leadership.

Mr. Marchand stuck by his prediction under skeptical questioning by reporters at a press conference called to announce that he and Treasury Board President Benson will be co-chairmen of the Trudeau campaign.

"I know Quebec delegates and I know how they are going to vote," said the manpower minister.

The 80 per cent would not materialize on the first ballot at the convention April 6. But supporters of other delegates who could not possibly win would go over to the Justice minister in later ballots.

Mr. Benson said Mr. Trudeau will head the first ballot.

Mr. Trudeau used the occasion to say that he pays rent for the private aircraft he is using for campaign trips. A number of other campaigning ministers have run into criticism inside and outside the Commons for their use of aircraft supplied by large companies.

Small Firms Criticized

TORONTO (CP) — Clifford Pilkey (NDP — Oshawa) told the legislature Monday that Economics and Development Minister Stanley Randall says things "which are not exactly true."

Speaking during the throne speech debate, Mr. Pilkey said the minister had conceded that the province has made great strides in providing new jobs and had cited 13,000 manufacturing firms of which 8,000 employed 14 or fewer persons.

The NDP member said Labor Minister Dalton Bales in a recent speech to the Ontario Federation of Labor had said one of Ontario's problems is the inefficiency of small firms.

"But Mr. Randall takes bows for bringing in these small firms," Mr. Pilkey said.

Quoting figures to support a contention that small firms generally pay low wages, the NDP member said: "This is not the kind of employment that is needed in the province of Ontario."

During his speech he also criticized government and industrial leaders for opposing wage parity for auto workers in Canada and the United States.

Kingston Group Attacks Tax on Little Guy's Luxuries

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — About 300 copies of 5 petitions condemning Ontario's 1968 budget have been circulated by a seven-member committee of Kingston residents, a spokesman for the group said Monday.

Frederick Faulkner, secretary of the committee which opposes the budget's tax increases, said copies were sent to Ottawa, Smith's Falls, Brockville, Oakville, Hamilton and Toronto at the request of interested groups.

The committee hopes to get at least 90 per cent of the Kingston area population of 100,000-90,000 to sign the petition. Mr. Faulkner said it will be presented to Premier John Robarts.

The committee was formed last week by 75 Kingston and district residents who oppose increased taxes on such "little-guy luxuries" as cigarettes, gasoline and hunting, fishing and recreational facilities.

Mr. Faulkner said he will not "wait in line for an audience with the premier, but will demand to se. him" when he presents the petition.

Marmora

MARMORA — St. Paul's Anglican Church was host for the World's Day of Prayer, with six congregations represented. Mrs. Harry Neal was organist. Leaders were Mrs. Borden Bell, Mrs. Leith Stetson, Mrs. Allan Wells, Mrs. P. G. O'Neill, Mrs. A. M. Jones, Mrs. Everett Barrons, Mrs. Murray Walker, Mrs. Keith Woodcock, Mrs. W. A. McMillan gave the message and Mrs. Albert Burridge and Mrs. Norman Kilsgrove were in charge of the collection.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Hannah, Willowdale, spent the week with Mrs. Wallace McInroy and Mrs. Gordon Belleau with Mrs. Bateman and family, Foxboro.

Frank Grant, formerly of Marmora, has returned to his home in Cardiff following a surgery at Peterborough Civic Hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Eady attended the wedding of his sister Dorothy in Toronto, Saturday.

Mrs. Jean Spry of Sunnybrook Hospital spent the week-end with her mother, Mrs. W. McLaren.

Tweed

TWEED — Quilting bees are popular in Denbigh, the Women's Institute held one at Marguerite Peixoto's and the Lutheran Church Women held one at Mrs. Arnold Kelley's recently.

Mr. Vernon Gutz, who was well-known in Denbigh and the northern part of Lennox and Addington district, passed away recently at Palmer's Rapids, where he made his home.

Mrs. Golda Farmer and son Terry also Russell Joyce of Henderson, left today, March 15th for Ocala Forest and Sportsmen's Show at Cleveland, Ohio, U.S.A.

Mrs. Robert Veley of Henderson is a patient in the Kingston General Hospital.

Mrs. Randall Hallockville of Flinton, is spending a few weeks at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Floyd Lucas, of Actinolite.

Mrs. George England of Hungerford was also recently in the St. Paul's Anglican Guild monthly meeting with a good attendance. Lunch was served by Mrs. England, assisted by Mrs. Donald Steele, all of Ardoch.

Mrs. Archie Sinclair Jr., Tweed, has left for a two weeks' holiday in Florida, and is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Carmon Aiton, of Tweed. Mr. Sinclair will join her later.

Mr. Reginald Sinclair of Peterborough, and Mr. Keith Deeks, of Pembroke, have returned from a two weeks' trip to Florida.

Mr. and Mrs. John Taylor of Kingston, have purchased the farm of Mr. Thomas Gaffney and son Gerald, of nearby Stucco, and the new people will take possession on April 30th.

Misses Ana and Laura Thompson of Tweed, visited recently with their brother, Mr. Earl Thompson and Mrs. Thompson of Dundas.

Mr. Alfred Tuttle, MPP for the new riding of Hastings, was elected chairman of the Legislature's Agriculture Committee on Natural Resources and Tourism. At the same time, Mr. James Auld, also MPP from Fort William was elected vice-chairman.

Birthday greetings are extended this week to Mr. John Goulah Jr., Tweed, but he really resides just at the village limits to the east of the village, and is celebrated his 35th birthday Sunday, March 17th. Mr. Goulah is in good health and walks in to Tweed daily.

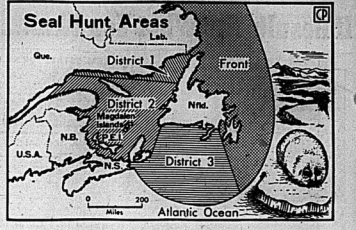
Library Circulation Increases

Books lent to adults by the Public Library showed a marked increase during January and February over the number lent in the same period last year.

The total circulation for boys and girls was somewhat lower, Miss Olive Delaney, chief librarian, said in her first report this year.



The public libraries in two schools, Harry J. Clarke and Sir Winston Churchill, were withdrawn. The Public School Board now has enough books to run its own libraries in these schools.

Juniors from the School for Retarded Children visited the library in January and the seniors visited in February. Junior grades from Queen Mary School and one class from Avondale School attended a general introduction session and received instruction in use of the library catalogue and encyclopedias.

A small collection of books was placed in Sir Mackenzie Bowell School in January.

The annual meeting of the Film Federation of Eastern Ontario will be held in Belleville on May 31 and June 1.

The Great Books Discussion group, which meets on the second and fourth Tuesday of each month, continues to flourish.

Time of the Hunt

The annual seal hunt in the Gulf of St. Lawrence and the Atlantic Ocean begins March 18 when hunters start the harvest of seal pup pelts. In the three districts of the Gulf area, the season lasts from March 18 to April 25. However, in District 2, the season ends when the quota of 50,000 seals under one year of age is reached. The season on the Front area runs from March 22 to April 25. The seal pups are the main targets of the hunters, since their pelts bring higher prices than those of full grown seals. The pups are killed with either a club or a rifle. (CP Newsmap)

Hospital Equipment From Canada

Napanee Farmer Wins Trip

NAPANEE — Wayne Parks of R. 3, Napanee, is one of four young Ontario farmers selected to spend over two months overseas this summer. Each county was privileged to submit the name of one applicant and each applicant was interviewed by a committee representing the Department of Food and Agriculture, which sponsors the trip annually for Junior Farmers.

The four successful young people were Claire Barr of Perth County, Hilda Langstaff of Kent and Reginald Wylie of Prescott, in addition to Wayne Parks.

The young people will board a plane May 10 in Toronto, to fly to London. They will be back in Canada July 27, returning by ship. Meanwhile they will have spent four weeks in England, two in Ireland, and four in Scotland. They will stay in farm homes, and will be treated as members of the family.

Mr. Parks took up 4-H club work at eight years of age, remaining with it for 12 years, and completing 18 projects. He held all the offices in the Lennox and Addington 4-H Club, and has since held all offices in the Junior Farmers of that county, where he is now the provincial director.

Wayne, who is 23, is a partner with his father, Rockwell Parks, in Parkstown, a farm in the Hawley district, which now carries 80 head of purebred Holsteins. He is an associate director of the fair board, and secretary of the county Holstein Club. He is a member of Grace United Church, and of its choir, and teaches a class of boys in its church school. He was superintendent of the Sunday School in the Hawley Church until it was closed last June.

Parkshaven came first in the Lennox and Addington Farm Homestead Improvement contest last year, and fourth in the provincial contest.

Announcement of the awards was made following the banquet Saturday evening, the final event of the Junior Farmers' Annual Conference in Guelph.

George Christopher, President of the Duke of Edinburgh Unit 201, was a delegate to the last quarterly meeting of the Army, Navy and Airforce Provincial Command. Amongst the many interesting things that happened was the presenting to all units who participated in Warriors Day Parade with a certificate in recognition of the Army, Navy and Airforce Association winning the smartest marching unit in the parade. The President called Comrade T. DesCote forward as being one of the most faithful attendants over the years of Warriors Day Parades. Comrade Tommy remarked, he appreciated the honor but only accepted it on behalf of all members of the unit and that he would have it suitably framed so it could be hung up in the club. This award is presented annually by the CNE Warriors Day Committee but this being Centennial year 1967 makes the organization very proud to have won it in this special year.

Sick chairman reports the following comrades are in hospital: Belleville, H. Boyle, 216; F. Butler, 220; J. Somark, 115; T. Colden, 220 and S. Cherry, at home. All have been visited and looked after.

Sport chairman reports another good crowd of 50 players were on hand for the regular Saturday afternoon dart doubles, the following members were winners and runners ups. 1st round winners C. Lloyd and D. Herrington, runners up H. Northey and B. Ford, 2nd round winners H. Northey and D. Fleming and G. Christopher and D. Burns.

President H. Northey of Belleville Shuffleboard League reports that Duke Edinburgh Unit 201 were winners of the League Trophy. The four leading teams will play off and the winner will play off with the winner of the Trenton Shuffleboard League for the district championship. Results will be announced after the tournaments are over.

The usual good crowd was on hand to enjoy the usual Friday night evening. Saturday evening the biggest crowd of the season was on hand to thoroughly enjoy the gala St. Patrick dance. Plenty of Irish tunes to enliven the evening were played by Smilty's Orchestra and a number of lucky couples won the door and spot prizes.

Interesting flashback to 1960 was the presenting of the Order of Merit to Comrade W. J. Ford at Dominion Convection held in Quebec for his outstanding services to the organization. This was a great honor to the Duke of Edinburgh Unit, 201 members as well as Comrade Ford. Only one Medal of Merit can be awarded in any one year.

Tendonitis May Be Cured by Heat

By Dr. Joseph G. Molner

Dear Dr. Molner: Little seems to be known about tendonitis, but it certainly is painful and I understand similar to arthritis except that the trouble is in the tendons instead of the bones.

I am suffering severely, and my doctor has advised ultrasound treatments and hot packs (and cortisone, of which I am afraid.)

What causes this trouble? Would any specific diet help? — D. B. W.

Other than the pain, tendonitis and arthritis have nothing in common. Tendonitis is inflammation of the sheath through which a tendon runs.

The usual cause is injury— a blow to the area, or excessive stretching or twisting of the tendon involved. The actual injury may, however, precede the tendonitis, and that may be aggravated by calcium laid down in the injured area as part of the healing process. That is, calcium may or may not be deposited in amount or location sufficient to cause pain.

The discomfort may subside with adequate rest and heat treatments — ultrasound is used to get the heat effectively deep into the tissues. Once controlled, the tendonitis may very well not recur unless excessive stress again is applied to the tendon.

Your doctor is quite right in suggesting steroid (cortisone) injections, and you should not fear them. For one thing, the cortisone or a derivative is injected into the immediate area. For another, a series of such injections is quite a different matter from taking steroids continuously over a long period — that is the situation in which one must, after a time, begin to guard against side effects, and I presume that is what is worrying you.

The injections are most useful in treating tendonitis.

Finally, although this may not apply to you, in some cases which do not respond to the usual treatments, surgical removal of the calcified area of tendon sheath may be necessary.

Dear Dr. Molner: Would you comment on purulent meningitis and aseptic meningitis? I recently lost a son, 27, from purulent meningitis, but about five years ago a younger son had the aseptic type and recovered. Why would two from one family have this disease? — D. W.

Meningitis is inflammation of the meninges, or covering of spinal cord and brain, but different germs can be responsible. The infection may be purulent (pus-producing) or aseptic, meaning non-pus producing. In general the latter is from a virus or an unidentified germ. Either type is dangerous; why two in one family should happen to be attacked in the same part of the body but by different types of germs is unanswerable. Just tragic coincidence, I presume.

* * *

Dear Dr. Molner: Someone asked if you could get trichinosis from beef. You said something about the beef being affected by it if the meat was ground after pork, or cut with the same knife as pork. I neglected to clip the article. Could you straighten me out? — R. E.

It's quite simple. Trichinosis is the result of swallowing the eggs of a very tiny worm. The eggs are so tiny you don't see them. They may, however, be in the meat of any animal which in turn is a meat-eater. Pigs eat meat, so they may harbor the trichina worm and eggs.

Thorough cooking kills the eggs. But suppose some eggs from the raw pork get onto a knife, grinder, cutting board, or whatever, or on your fingers. They may be transferred to some food which will not be cooked before eating.

So wash your hands thoroughly, and also any utensils you have used, after handling raw pork. Plenty of pork, of course, does not have the eggs but some does, so play safe.

Archbishop Adducted in Guatemala

GUATEMALA CITY (AP) — The Guatemalan government suspended constitutional guarantees for 30 days Monday night in the wake of the kidnapping of the Roman Catholic Archbishop of Guatemala Saturday.

The state of siege declared Monday night also puts the police under army control and allows the president to militarize other public services.

The government declared that the kidnapping of Archbishop Mario Casariego is "an offence to the people and a challenge to the government." It blamed the kidnapping on "subversive elements" guilty of "persistent attacks against social institutions," meaning pro-Castro guerrillas.

A local newspaper published what it said were letters which said the 58-year-old prelate is all right but because of his high blood pressure expects the visit of a doctor and neds medicine. The letters also asked for cloth-ing.

They gave no clue to the reason for the kidnapping or conditions for the archbishop's release.

Announce New Healing Substance... Shrinks Piles, Checks Itch

Exclusive healing substance proven to shrink hemorrhoids...and repair damaged tissue.

A renowned research institute has found a unique healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids painlessly. It relieves itching and discomfort in minutes and speeds up healing of the injured, inflamed tissues.

One hemorrhoidal case history after another reported "very striking improvement." Pain was promptly and gently relieved . . . actual reduction or retraction (shrinkage) took place.

Among these case histories were a variety of hemorrhoidal conditions. Relief even occurred in cases of long standing, and most important of all, results were so thorough that this improvement was maintained over a period of many months.

This was accomplished with a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne) which quickly helps heal injured cells and stimulates growth of new tissue. Bio-Dyne is offered in ointment and suppository form called Preparation H.

In addition to actually shrinking hemorrhoids, Preparation H lubricates and makes elimination less painful. It helps prevent infection which is a principal cause of hemorrhoids.

Just ask your druggist for Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H Ointment (with a special applicator).

Satisfaction or your money refunded.

Britons End Spending Spree, Get Braced for Harsh Budget

LONDON (Reuters) — Britons today wound up a huge spending spree and braced for a budget expected to be one of the harshest in this century.

New income taxes and increased duties on luxury items were generally predicted, with liquor, cigarettes and gasoline regarded as almost certain targets.

British liquor stores have pushed sales for weeks with large "Buy now, drink later" and "Beat the budget" signs, and stores and business likely to be hit by net taxes reported large turnover.

Roy Jenkins, chancellor of the exchequer, was expected to present this afternoon a budget aimed at holding down wages and consumption in Britain in order to divert resources into exports.

The attack on domestic consumption was expected as a follow-up to the devaluation of the British pound last Nov. 18, which was accompanied by cuts in government spending on defence and social services.

It will be Jenkins's first budget since taking over the treasury department in December, and was generally regarded as the most important since the Labor party came to power in October, 1964.

The most controversial item was expected to be an outline of plans for legislation to curb wage increases, almost certain to bring on a direct clash between the government and the labor unions—the ruling party's traditional sources of support.

The government's Prices and Incomes Board Monday recommended price increases in key public services—gas, telephone and postal delivery.

Prime Minister Wilson's cabinet gave final approval to the financial blueprint Monday, and families called on the Queen at Buckingham Palace to give her the traditional advance look at the document.

The chief aim of the budget Jenkins has been working on for weeks is to permit British exports to take advantage of the competitive edge in prices provided by devaluation and get Britain's foreign trade balance out of the red. That can be done only by curtailing imports which are not essential to export industries.

The government has already announced a number of military cuts and other economies designed to reduce its spending by $2,400,000,000 by 1970.

The new budget is designed to complete that economic program by taking from the British people an estimated $1,200,000,000 in purchasing power during the fiscal year beginning April 1.

Britain's foreign payments have been in the red since 1962. Last year the deficit was a massive £340,000,000, or $1,404,000,000 at the post-devaluation exchange rate.

PM Denies ETV Policy Flouts Quebec's Rights

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Pearson has rejected the provincial government claim that federal policy on educational television is an infringement of provincial jurisdiction.

In a letter to Premier Daniel Johnson, made public Monday, Mr. Pearson also appealed to Mr. Johnson to work with federal officials to resolve ETV problems that "I view as needless controversy."

Mr. Pearson sent the letter March 8 in reply to a Feb. 16 telegram from Mr. Johnson.

The Johnson telegram was a formal protest against Ottawa's plans for federal legislation on educational broadcasting, which is currently being studied by the Commons broadcasting committee.

It proposes that the federal government provide funds to set up educational TV stations. These facilities would be turned over to the provinces, which would be responsible for the program.

Mr. Johnson made three points in his Feb. 16 protest.

He said education is a clear responsibility of the provinces. noted that TV is a field where the French culture and the interests of Quebec are deeply involved, and claimed that federal jurisdiction in broadcasting rests solely on a decision by the federal Privy Council in 1932 and thus has no real constitutional backing.

Mr. Pearson agreed with the first point but rejected Mr. Johnson's views on the other two.

. . . The federal government is very conscious of the fact that broadcasting and television have a significant impact on the development of French culture in Canada as, indeed, on culture in general," Mr. Pearson wrote.

"It does not follow, however, that the federal government has neither the authority nor the competence to take action in the field of broadcasting and cultural matters distinct from educational action, any more than that culture in these terms can be the exclusive prerogative of a provincial government."

Mr. Pearson backed his argument at the Union Nationale premier by citing the findings of a Quebec royal commission on constitutional issues set up under the late premier Maurice Duplessis, a founder of the Union Nationale.

Mr. Pearson said the commission, which reported in the mid-1950s, made "a clear distinction between education and culture" and recognized "the right and duty of the federal government to serve culture."

Both federal and provincial levels of government have roles to play here, Mr. Pearson added.

Half U.S. Teens Quit School

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Facts About Feelings:

Far more people are fired from jobs because of interpersonal difficulties than because of technical incompetence.

In the decade between 1960 and 1970, fewer than half our youth will have completed high school; of this enormous dropout group, only a small percentage will have left because of intellectual deficiencies — the vast majority drop out because of emotional instability.

Contrary to belief, higher economic status does not help solve personal problems; Of the 20,000 suicides a year in the U.S., far more are committed by educated middle — and upper-class persons than by the lowest economic groups.

What makes the whole field of the emotions so much harder to control in our lives than to grasp from a textbook is the basic postulate that it is impossible to understand others unless we understand ourselves, and we cannot understand ourselves unless we understand others.

Perhaps as much as 90 per cent of what we call "lack of physical energy" is really lack of "psychological energy" — in that no physical, organic cause can be found for lack of energy in most cases.

While envy is always directed at the object — that is the other man's job, wealth, wife, or looks — jealousy is always directed at the subject, and is an expression of a sense of inferiority and inadequacy; thus, while envy is more widespread, more crimes of passion are committed out of jealousy, because it is a crippling blow to one's ego-ideal.

Most of us think of "freedom" as the freedom to do something — but nearly everyone possesses such freedom; a much rarer and harder "freedom" in the emotional area is the freedom to cease certain actions; the alcoholic cannot cease drinking, the libertine cannot cease chasing, the acquisitive cannot cease amassing, the punisher cannot cease chastising, but go to their deaths paralyzed by the insatiable.

There are, in isolation, virtually no "normal" or "neurotic" impulses, feelings or acts; there are only impulses, feelings and acts that are inappropriate in a given context or situation — and we are still far from agreeing on what is "appropriate" in many cases. (It is well to remember that "normal" makes a better adjective than a noun.)

Whether children think well of themselves — perhaps the most important ingredient for later success — has little to do with looks, size, social position or income level, and almost wholly upon early concern and communication and respect from the parents.

University Course Fits Pupils To Return to Public Schools

BURNABY, B.C. CP — A special centre, opened last fall by Simon Fraser University to help disturbed children and/or train teachers to work with them, has graduated its first four pupils.

The centre, started in rented premises on a shoestring budget, already has 25 children — and a waiting list of 160.

The four, ranging in age from six to 12 years, are back in regular classes of public school systems after four months of special instruction at the centre. Director Ken Pugsley says the school in this Vancouver area community concentrates on helping seriously disturbed children who have been rejected by conventional schools. And there are far too many of them, he believes.

"Here we have kids who have been kicked out of school after two days," he says. "I know of one child who has been in 12 schools in six years. I know of 119 children who are at home now, rather than in school, and they should be with us — but we have a waiting list of 160."

Mr. Pugsley, who taught in the neighboring North Vancouver school system, is bitter about many provincial and local school authorities. The trouble, he believes, they reject youngsters who need help most.

Many schools have special classes, but these tend to be a "dumping ground."

"Some do have trained people teaching them. But most have far too many children in each class anyway — 30 or more to each teacher. Our maximum is four to one."

This is one factor that makes the SFU centre different from other special schools. Another is Mr. Pugsley's unshakable faith that no child should be abandoned.

"Every child can grow. We are hoping for 60-per-cent success in rehabilitating our children — that may not sound high but it is 60 per cent more than at present."

So far the school has worked on a minimal budget — $22,000 for six months, which included $7,000 for operating school buses alone. The centre has submitted a on-year budget of $123,000 but Mr. Pugsley fears that this will be cut back, allowing the centre to subsist but not grow.

"Yet every child we salvage and rehabilitate saves the state $150,000 for lifetime care," he says. The university pays 50 per cent of costs; private donations make up the balance.

While the school is helping disturbed children, it is also giving student teachers at Simon Fraser University an opportunity to work with upset youngsters.

Mr. Pugsley says his aim is simple — not a super - school where backward children can be isolated from the rest of society, but rather a place where future teachers may learn how to recognize and help the special problems of disturbed children, so that they may themselves eventually set up special facilities for such children through out British Columbia.

Sydney Omarr's Astrological Forecasts

By SYDNEY OMARR

For March 20

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): You get backing from authorities. Emphasis on working toward long - range goal. Some who are clingy will suddenly appear radical. They want changes at quick, furious pace. Stand pat.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Do your best — accent quality. One with experience enters the scene. He will charm you as those who merely brag, who flash and then splutter. Be confident and steady.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Opposition not as strong as you imagine. Don't let understated reasons for delay, possible setback. Be analytical. Listen to one who returns from sales trip, short journey.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Changes at home could lead to talk about change of residence. Some who are close to you are not satisfied with status quo. Today you go the truth in frank uncompromising manner.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): To get at truth, take off your rose-colored glasses. Member of opposite sex emphasizes glamor — but this could be misleading. Your budget is wrecked if you are foolish.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Day when you must review responsibilities, plans, goals. You get to know where you are going and why. Key is to accept situation in realistic manner. Older individual helps cause.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Finish project. Extend sphere of influence. You may find it necessary to embark upon short journey. Do so — but stick to business. Message becomes crystal clear by tonight.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Money comes your way through intensified effort. Basic views Today you get the truth in frank or unsympathetic manner. One who works for or with you acts in eccentric manner.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Cycle high. You are able to see people, accomplish things. Key is degree of confidence. You make circumstances turn in your favor. Specifically, you learn where you stand with loved one.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Stay put if possible. Means make no surprise moves. Offer may be forthcoming. Your strength lies in ability to be patient. Be versatile but overcome tendency to be restless.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Hold back on expenditures. Review program. You can advance — but you must have solid base upon which to build. Depend upon yourself, not on friends. Means be self-reliant.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Your ambitions come face-to-face with cost, expense. If flexible you get what you want — but without suffering in financial area. Message becomes clear before day is finished.

If today is your birthday . . . you tend to be subject to moods — but on constructive level you are creative, artistic. Musical ability or appreciation stands out. And this year you could make family very proud.

General Tendencies: Cycle high for Sagittarius, Capricorn, Aquarius. This is day of vernal equinox — a new beginning for many. Special word to Leo: Do not be deceived by outer cover. Look within.

Viet Cong Units Fade Into Jungle Hideouts

Johnson Echoes Plea by FDR

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson has evoked Franklin D. Roosevelt's pre-Second World War call for containment of aggression in a new plea for homefront support of his Vietnam policies.

Johnson said Tuesday President Roosevelt urged the nations of the world in 1937 to "quarantine the aggressor," but it took a world war to make men understand the message.

"Let this generation learn from the mistakes of the past," said Johnson. "Let us recognize that there is no resigning from world responsibility. There is no easy road to freedom, and order."

He drew cheers and prolonged applause—along with shouted pledges of support—from representatives of non-government groups attending a foreign policy seminar at the state department.

Punctuating the president's pledge to pursue his Vietnam policy "as long as aggression threatens" were reports from congressional sources that Johnson's decision to commit an additional 35,000 U.S. troops to the war zone is virtually final.

The Pentagon meanwhile called for the drafting of 44,000 men in May—making it the third straight month that the draft has topped the 40,000-man mark.

It appeared to bear out reports that, in this election year, Johnson will cloak himself in everything in the role of a commander-in-chief burdened by war.

The president did not mention Senator Robert F. Kennedy of New York or Senator Eugene J. McCarthy of Minnesota, both candidates for the Democratic presidential nomination on platforms of opposition to his Vietnam policies.

But in sharp contrast to their calls for de-escalation, Johnson said of the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong:

"Let no American mistake the enemy's major offensive now. It is aimed squarely at the citizens of America. It is an assault designed to crack America's will."

African Invaders Advance

SALISBURY (Reuters) — About 50 African nationalist guerrillas were reported today to have fought their way 45 miles from the Zambian border toward the Rhodesian capital of Salisbury.

Reliable sources said the guerrillas—harassed by Rhodesian troops, jet fighters and helicopters—were advancing slowly through thick thornbush country 170 miles north of the capital.

Government spokesmen refused to say exactly where the fighting was, but a reliable source discounted reports that some guerrillas were within 85 miles of Salisbury.

Rhodesian forces claimed to have killed 14 of the nationalists and captured others. They said two government soldiers were killed.

The sources said the guerrillas were well armed with modern Communist-made weapons.

Nationalist leaders in Zambia have declared that the raid is a vengeance attack for the execution of five convicted Negro killers in Salisbury this month—the first executions since the breakaway British colony declared its independence in November, 1965.

Firemen Watch As House Burns

HIGH RIDGE, Mo. (AP) — The High Ridge volunteer fire department had a rush Tuesday on $7 fire protection tags. More than 100 were sold.

The fire department answered a call Monday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Akers in a subdivision near High Ridge. Then the firemen watched as the $18,000 home burned to the ground because the owner had not purchased the $7 tag.

"We made certain there were no persons in the house," said chief engineer Ed Hill. "If there had been someone inside we would have saved his life."

"But we need those tag fees to pay for our equipment and meet other expenses," Hill said. "It was no secret that we would let a house burn — we've done it before."

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — The raped, slashed body of an attractive Canadian waitress was found Tuesday lying on the blood-soaked stairway of a fashionable rented home. Detectives said 29-year-old Francoise Guimond of Quebec City had been sexually assaulted.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Some 6,500 U.S. copper strikers approved a contract with one company, Phelps Dodge Corp., Tuesday and prospects brightened in White House talks involving three other major strikebound firms.

Gold Price Slips On Free Market

PARIS (AP) — Gold prices slipped again today on the Paris free market and trading was well off from Tuesday.

The 2.2-pound ingot dipped to 6,600 francs ($1,200), compared with 6,715 francs ($1,234) Tuesday. It had risen to 7,000 francs last Friday, the height of the rush.

Ten tons of ingots were traded today, compared with 20 Tuesday.

Fine gold sold today for the equivalent of $37.93 an ounce, compared with $39.04 Tuesday.

Threat to Saigon Eased by Retreat

SAIGON (AP) — About 13,000 hard-core Viet Cong have faded into their jungle hideaways near the Cambodian border, easing the threat of a second invasion of Saigon, senior American officials said today.

The five Viet Cong regiments, bloodied in the Communist lunar new year offensive that turned Saigon into a battlefield, escaped the biggest southern allied offensive of the war launched 10 days ago, the officials said.

A U.S. spokesman said the Viet Cong withdrawal explains the spotty contact which the force of 50,000 U.S. and South Vietnamese troops have made in Operation Quyet Thang—Resolve to Win—now under way in five provinces north, west and south of Saigon.

Although the danger of another major infiltration invasion of Saigon has presumably lessened, it has not passed, U.S. officials said, because the Viet Cong regiments are still 30 to 50 miles north and northwest of the city.

The Southern allied sweep force reported only one ground action Tuesday. About 400 South Vietnamese rangers routed a band of guerrillas camped five miles south of the capital and said they killed 21 in a five-hour battle.

In the 10 days that Operation Quyet Thang has been under way, the American and South Vietnamese troops have reported killing 905 guerrillas in sporadic fighting and detaining 204 suspects. The southern allies are believed to have encountered local-force guerrilla units or rear-guard elements of the main force that fled from the action.

The allies say their casualties so far are 34 Americans and 46 South Vietnamese killed and 308 Americans and 129 South Vietnamese wounded.

Viet Cong terrorists meanwhile renewed their attacks in Saigon and killed four civilians

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: A cold air mass has moved into northern sections of the province, resulting in snow falls of four to six inches. The colder air will move into eastern Ontario today. No significant precipitation is expected from this weather pattern, but a storm development in the south western United States could bring rain or wet snow to the lower Lakes region Thursday.

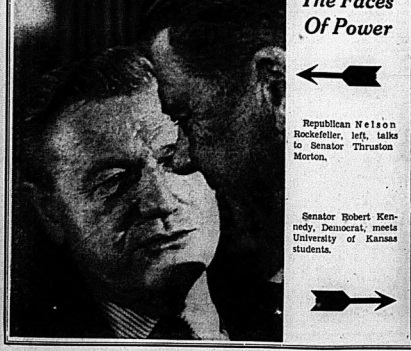
A U.S. B-52 bombers struck four times Tuesday night and today at North Vietnamese positions around Khe Sanh.

In other strikes, the B-52s attacked suspected troops concentrations and infiltration routes north of Pleiku in the central Highlands and 34 miles northwest of Saigon.

Biafra Port Encircled

LAGOS, Nigeria (AP) — Federal troops have encircled the strategic Niger River port of Onitsha—the second largest city in secessionist Biafra—and have launched a sea invasion to clear the shipping channel to Calabar, reliable sources reported today.



Federal forces were racing against the approach of the rainy season and the March 31, target for the end of the Nigerian civil war, set 10 weeks ago by Maj.-Gen. Yakubu Gowon, head of the federal military regime.

The Vatican and the World Council of Churches today issued the first joint political appeal they have ever made, in a call for peace in Nigeria.

The Nigerian military high command refused to confirm a report that Onitsha, which the federal army has been trying to take since October, already had fallen in fierce fighting.

Soldiers were reported to have bypassed the heavily fortified ferry port of Oron, 12 miles farther north and are believed to be making for Uyo, 26 miles northwest of their landing point.

The Many Faces Of Capital Hill

Dairying Is His Business

OTTAWA (Special) — Parliamentarians are much in the news these days as election talk in Ottawa keeps the House of Commons at "action stations".

However, the almost absolute assurance of a follow-up election after the Liberals' national leadership convention in April hasn't made the daily chores of members of parliament any easier.

"What it has meant," said Hastings South MP Lee Grills, is that members have got to keep in touch with the party whip at all times."

For the "friendly milkman" from Quinte this has been no chore. Grills possesses one of the better attendance records in the House, aided by the close proximity of his riding to Ottawa.

Members of Parliament have more to do than just attend sessions of the House. Under the present system, much of the preliminary skirmishing is done in committee — either an all-party committee or the numerous committees of estimates each has set up to deal with every aspect of party policy.

"We spend almost as much time in committee work as we do in the House," said Mr. Grills. "This is especially true if one of the House standing committees is in session."

Fortunately for Mr. Grills, the House committee on agriculture is not holding formal meetings at this time.

However, this does not mean agricultural problems are pushed into the background. Mr. Grills, because of his long association with the dairy industry and farming in general, has been assigned the role as the Conservatives' critic on the dairy industry.

"This is an area where we are ready to show a great concern," said Mr. Grills. "The government eliminated the subsidy on hogs and now is suggesting the subsidy be removed on top-quality cheese.

"We are arguing this is a mistake. Cheese is the leveling factor in the dairy industry. It is impossible to maintain a perfect balance between supply and demand in the milk industry.

"Cheese is the only dairy product which can be held definitely so it must remain as the balancing product.

"It takes three years for a farmer to rear a dairy calf and during this time the industry can't be kept in balance.

"Cheese is the only answer and to remove the subsidy is to destroy the incentive in the industry."

In the course of a day Hastings South MP Lee Grills meets dozens of people. He prides himself on being on a first name basis with most of them. For the day in the life of an MP see the first page, second section.

Gomulka Lifts Blame From Jews

WARSAW (AP) — Communist party chief Wladyslaw Gomulka told the Polish people Tuesday night that the party's anti-Zionist campaign has been "wrongly understood."

He neither blamed nor absolved Jews for the student demonstrations and rioting sweeping through Poland since March 8. Gomulka's biggest domestic crisis since he came to power in 1956.

Making his first public comment on the uproar touched off by the closing of a 19th century anti-Russian play, the party first secretary deserted the usual party-line casting Jews as the main troublemakers.

Instead he focused blame on several writers and professors who have already been attacked by the press. One, Catholic liberal writer Stefan Kisielewski, was beaten up last week.

Gomulka, whose wife is a Jew, renewed an offer made during the Arab-Israel war last June of passports for any Jews wanting to emigrate to Israel. Poland has about 30,000 Jews left from a pre-war Jewish population of 3,500,000.

Church Freedom Sought By Czech Catholics

PRAGUE (Reuters) — Czechoslovak Roman Catholics, joining in the present wave of free speech, have called for full church freedom and the reinstatement of priests removed from office under the previous regime.

One meeting called for the restoration of full privileges for bishops and priests, the Czechoslovak news agency Ceteka reported.

Sales Manager Says Strike Cannot Be Lengthy One

TWEED — A company official at strikebound Sawyer Stoll today warned the company could not survive a lengthy workers' walkout.

Sales manager Steve Lett said the plant would have to close if the strike for higher pay by 30 workers lasted beyond two weeks.

"This is very definite — we shouldn't be closed now," said Mr. Lett.

The strikers — members of the International Woodworkers of America, local 2336 — walked out Monday morning after conciliation had failed to resolve deadlocked negotiations.

Local 2336 president Gerard Latendre said the union is seeking an 80-cent hourly increase. He claimed wages were presently scaled from $1.35 — $1.50 for non-skilled workers to $1.50 — $1.70 for semi-skilled.

Mr. Lett said the average wage at Sawyer Stoll was $1.65 — $1.75 — the highest rates paid by 90 other similar industries in Ontario.

Sawyer Stoll manufactures wood pallets for the Toronto-Hamilton market.

"It's operation," said Mr. Stoll, "is a big contributor to this village's economy in wages and purchases.

"This plant here feeds something like $200,000 a year into the community," he estimated.

The strikers have been picketing the plant since early Monday.

Mr. Latendre said picketa already had "chased off" one trucker, who attempted to enter the plant earlier this week.

He claimed a second truck driver, who turned up at the plant with an OPP cruiser nearby today, was "talked out" of any action by picketers.

The company, which has been operating here since 1959, employs about 50 people.

It always pays to stay on the right (or starboard) side of a naval petty officer as these three Sea Cadets from the band of RCSCC Quinte of Belleville found out when they visited HMCS Cataraqui in Kingston. Petty Officer D. C. Folger of Kingston casts a critical eye over Sea Cadets Peter Rissi, Robert Cook, and Ken Smith, all of Belleville. Forty-one members of the RCSCC Quinte visited the Kingston naval reserve establishment this week.

Will Reconvene Hearing Into Union Charges

TRENTON — The Ontario Labor Relations Board will reconvene a hearing tomorrow into charges that six employees of Fabricon Ltd., were illegally discharged.

The hearing convened for one day Jan. 26 at which time the charges were aired by United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers of Canada.

The union alleges that the employees — including a woman — were fired for joining the UE.

Since the adjournment the company has permitted three of the workers to return to their jobs pending settlement of the dispute.

One worker previously had reurned to his job and the remaining two have elected to seek employment elsewhere.

Quinte Area Sea Cadets Visit Kingston

"Anchors Aweigh!" was the order of the day for forty cadets of RCSCC Quinte, the local Sea Cadet Corps last Monday evening. After all the band equipment and able - bodied sea cadets had been neatly stowed away on board, the service bus sailed down 401 for Kingston. Upon reaching HMCS Cataraqui, all Belleville hands disembarked for an evening on the naval reserve "ship" in the area.

Quinte had been invited by Lieutenant Commander N. T. O'Brien, Commanding Officer of HMCS Cataraqui, to pay a formal visit to his ship and observe seamen in action. Quinte cadets, however, were not in Kingston just as idle spectators. The Belleville Sea Cadet Corps maintains the only naval - type brass band between Toronto and Ottawa, and these young musicians were destined to take an active part in the evening's ceremonial proceedings.

After all hand's had fallen in and the band played for Colors, the Ship's Company of HMCS Cataraqui turned to at a normal eight's drill and training. Quinte cadets were divided into two groups, and while the band played marches for a class of New Entry Seamen and Wrens receiving foot drill instruction, the remainder of the Quinte Cadets proceeded on a guided tour through the "Ship". During the second period the band took the guided tour while the other cadets were given the opportunity to practise their rifle drill under the capable instruction of Cataraqui's Gunnery Instructor.

The last period of the evening was something special for all concerned. The entire Ship's Company of HMCS Cataraqui was formed up on the main drill deck and several rehearsals of a march past for Cataraqui's annual inspection of April 8th were carefully carried out. The evening closed with ceremonial divisions at which Quinte played the appropriate inspection music and closed with the music used at a Naval Sunset Ceremony.

At the conclusion of the night's drill, LCDR O'Brien made several favorable comments on the dress and deportment of all Quinte Cadets and highly praised the band for their musical contributions. At this time the band was formed in review and take part in Cataraqui's annual inspection as the duty band for the same. Quinte and it was hoped as well that the local musicians would be available for several other naval events scheduled for the Kingston area this spring.

Belleville and District Obituaries and Funerals

THOMAS HENRY COLDEN

Ill only for a week, Thomas Henry Colden, 182½ Front Street, died Wednesday morning in Belleville General Hospital. He was in his 57th year.

Son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Luther Colden, he was born in Belleville and had lived all his life in the city. He was a life employee at Stewart-Warner and at the time of his death was sales co-ordinator for the plant's Bassick Division.

A veteran of World War 2 Mr. Colden served with the Canadian Army Pay Corps and was a member of the Duke of Edinburgh's Unit, No. 201 of the Army, Navy and Air Force Veterans. He was a member of Tabernacle United Church.

He is survived by his wife, the former Irene Deacon, three daughters, Mrs. Fred (Carol) Jones, Mrs. Don (Yvette) Wood and Miss Meribeth Colden, all of Belleville.

Also there are three grandchildren, a sister, Mrs. Harry (Elizabeth) Firth of Belleville. Two brothers Ted and Arthur and a sister Mrs. Hannah May Jensen, predeceased him.

The funeral will be held Friday afternoon from the John R. Bush Funeral Home with service conducted by Rev. William E. McDowell of Trenton. Interment Belleville Cemetery.

JESSIE MABEL POTTS

The funeral of Jessie Mabel Potts, 76 Marmora Street, Trenton, was held yesterday at the Weaver Funeral Home.

Mrs. Potts died March 16, in her 81st year and had been in failing health for the past six months.

Born in Trenton, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Poole, she had lived in Smithfield for many years before returning to Trenton 12 years ago.

A member of Smithfield United Church, she was active in all its groups. She was a past president of its United Church Women organization, and past president of York Road Women's Institute.

She is survived by a sister Mrs. Nellie May, of Trenton, and a brother: Mr. Harry Poole of Chatham.

Also surviving are six nephews and two nieces: William Mayber, Llewyn Mich, Gerhard and George Poole, both of Trenton; Donald Poole, Chatham; Harold Poole, Bell Rivers, Ont.; Donald Poole, Arizona; Mrs. Daniel McGinnes, Detroit; Mrs. Earl (Betty) Blackburn, Detroit, Mich.

She was predeceased by two brothers, George and William Poole.

The service was conducted by Rev. William E. McDowell and interment was in Greenwood Cemetery.

Bearers were Leonard Poole, George Poole, William Mayber, Donald Poole, Daniel McGinnes, Wayne Simmons.

MRS. SYLVIA (KATE) O'NEAL

The funeral of Mrs. Sylvia (Kate) O'Neal, was held Tuesday afternoon from the John R. Bush Funeral Home where service in the chapel was conducted by Rev. John Hobbs of Canniton. Interment was in Elmwood Cemetery.

The bearers were Jack Thomas, George Thomas, Ted Burling, Morley Bleeckman, Joe McDonald and Clarence Hearnes.

JERMYN PALMER (Bayside)

Funeral services for Jermyn Palmer, Bayside, a life-resident of the Quinte area, were held Monday.

In his 78th year, Mr. Palmer had been in failing health some time.

Born in Sidney township, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. James Palmer, he was one of the few old-time blacksmiths still living in the district. He also had worked for many years at the Point Anne plant of Canada Cement.

A member of White's United Church at Bayside, he was active on his official board and is a steward.

Mr. Palmer is survived by his wife, the former Jessie Rebecca Nichols, a son, James, of R.R. 2, Trenton, and three daughters: Mrs. Noel (Rebecca) Pennycook, Unionville, Ont.; Mrs. Edouard (Mary Elinor) Bartlett and Mrs. Carlyle (Ruth) McKay, both of Kingston.

Also surviving are 14 grandchildren.

Service at the Weaver Funeral Home was conducted by Rev. Lloyd Bunting, of White's Church, while interment was in the church cemetery.

Bearers were Carlyle McKay, Edouard Bartlett, Allyn Finkle, Clare Finkle, Leslie Finkle and Cecil Ellis.

IN MEMORIAM

BLAKELY — In loving remembrance of our dear father and husband who left us Arthur, who passed away March 20, 1965.
Now God has called you home,
We love a heart beside dear,
Fond memories linger every day,
Remembrance keeps him near.
Sadly missed and remembered by wife Muriel, daughter Doreen and son-in-law Clare, son Ronald and daughter-in-law Barbara.

REID — In loving memory of Annie Reid, March 20th, 1949.
Sleep on dear mother and rest,
Until God calls Hello Bill.
Nicholson, January 16th, 1967.
Dear mother you all broken hearted,
Years may make the wound less sore,
But it cannot fill the longing,
For the loved one gone before.
Who shall say the grief is lessened,
Though a while may hide the tears,
Memory keeps the wounds still open,
Despite the passing of the years.
Sadly remembered by Mr. Wesley, Violet, Florgalia, Marion and Mervin.

WRIGHT — In loving memory of a dear husband and father Murray Wright, who passed away March 20, 1965.
Without farewell, he fell asleep,
With only memories for us to keep.
Like falling leaves the years slip by,
But loving memories never die.
Sadly missed and remembered by wife Mary, daughter and son Connie and Steven.

WRIGHT — In loving memory of a dear brother and uncle, Murray who passed away March 20, 1965.
The angels came and beckoned,
And he passed away unaware,
He gently entered home,
Always in our thoughts and sadly missed by Ruby, Claude and David.

WRIGHT — In loving memory of a dear husband and father Murray who passed away March 20, 1965.
It only takes a little space,
To write how much we miss you,
But it will take the rest of our lives,
To forget the day we lost you.
Sadly missed by Harold, Cora and Bonnie.

WRIGHT — In loving memory of our dear Daddy who passed away, Allan, Dec. 31, 1935. Charles, Dec. 6, 1911, Murray, Mar. 20, 1965.
A page in the book of memory,
Silently turns today,
We remember them in silence,
And make no outward show,
But what a month to lose them,
Within a single year,
Keeping them in loving keeping,
Is the only comfort we have,
Then dear Saviour let us have them,
And love them as we did before.
Gradually missed and dearly remembered by Mom and Dad,

Flag Pole Acrobatics at City Hall

The Nation's Maple Leaf Flag is again flying alone on an uncluttered flag pole atop city hall — thanks to the volunteer effort on the part of two city works employees, who yesterday demonstrated acrobatic ability in removing the tattered emblem which three months ago caught itself on the flag pole guy wires. Rodney Green and Bob Dafoe waited for a combination of no wind and warm weather and sequence pictures show Mr. Green shinnying up the flag pole to remove the tattered emblem which refused to blow away.

Transit Commission Deficit Slightly Lower Than Expected

The Belleville Transit Commission didn't show any profit last year but it did the next best thing — its deficit was lower than was expected.

The Transit Commission financial statement reproduced in the city manager's annual report shows that revenue for the year was $196,022 as compared with expenditures of $223,844, resulting in a deficit of $45,504. At the beginning of the year the city budgeted for a deficit of $49,846.

The deficit for 1966 was $46,718.

A breakdown of the Commission financial statement shows bus fares returned a revenue of $134,743 — only about $250 less than was expected.

On the other side of the sheet wages and salaries cost $131,004; gasoline, oil and grease $21,169; parts and repairs $8,906 and rent, $5,500.

Operating deficit for the year totalled $27,821. Debenture debt charges with interest cost $17,683, bringing the total deficit to $45,504.

For the next five years an amount of $22,000 has been provided in the city's capital works budget for the purchase of new buses. The new buses are to replace existing equipment.

Audited Financial Report Likely to Show Big Surplus

The city of Belleville is in the "big business" category and last year had a turnover of more than $6 million.

Still unaudited financial statements for 1967 show the city had a revenue of $6,293,-386 with expenditures of $5,-143,650.

That is the city's financial picture for last year as shown by City Manager J. R. Reynolds in his annual report to council this week.

When the report was received by council, Acting Mayor Douglas Boyle observed that despite heavy expenditures it appeared that the city had a surplus of more than $100,000. This figure was not confirmed by the city manager.

Mr. Reynolds said that final figures in both revenue and expenditures are still subject to change due to some grant amounts not being known and also to the fact that certain expenditure accounts are still to be processed.

He said the auditor's report was not due until the last of March.

And as is the case with private business the city has a few bills receivable in the form of uncollected taxes.

According to the city manager's report uncollected taxes as of December 31, 1967 stood at $664,131.21, an increase of $39,629 over the amount outstanding one year ago.

However, when considering the increase in the tax levy in 1967 over 1966, the city manager quoted the treasury department as saying there had been a substantial improvement in the tax collection percentage.

The 1967 tax levy was $4,-414,918 as compared with $3,-972,602 or an increase of approximately 11 per cent. This compared with an increase of 5.7 per cent in uncollected taxes at the end of last year. Last year an amount of $17,-295 was "written off."

In addition to the $4,414,918 in tax revenue, the city last year received $464,918 in provincial government and other grants and subsidies.

Dominion grants and subsidies amounted to $89,216; and provincial government direct relief subsidies $151,046.

Recoverable debt charges totalled $612,948 sale of city land returned $25,642 to city hall coffers and sewage rate revenue amounted to $173,-313.

Issuance of marriage licences (291) returned $2,920; dog licences and pound fees, $4,438, and miscellaneous permits and other fees $10,611.

General government cost the city $358,372; the fire department $391,222; police department $386,485; traffic and light $154,547; law enforcement and other protection $118,251; social welfare $335,-018; public works $230,720; education, $1,608,508 recreation and community services $353,723 and debt charges and special items $1,-482,563. Total expenditures as noted earlier amounted to $5,-143,650.

Industry Gets $500,000 'Forgivable Loan'

A ker contributor to Belleville's latest industrial package, is formally delivering the goods.

The Ontario government today officially announced its $500,000 loan to Allied Chemical for construction of its plant in the city.

The loan — forgivable after six years if certain stipulations are met — is granted under the province's Equalization of Industrial Opportunity plan.

Ontario government assistance was one of the key reasons cited by Allied officials for selection of Belleville as an operations centre.

The loan will help offset immediate location costs estimated at a total $2,167,000.

This includes $365,000 construction costs and $1,702,000 for machinery.

The plant, located on 20 acres in Belleville's northeast industrial zone, will be highly-automated and initially employ about 40.

It will manufacture Capran, a new - type nylon film used for food packaging.

It will provide home production of a product, hitherto imported. Annual sales in Canada have been estimated at $2,000,000.

City industrial commissioner Ray Brown today said Allied was arranging to tender a construction contract and was currently interviewing contractors.

"It's our hope they can get underway sometime next month," said Mr. Brown.

Allied's decision to locate in Belleville was announced Feb. 28. Today's announcement was made by Economics and Development Minister Stanley Randall.

OMB Reserves Decision

AMELIASBURG — The Ontario Municipal Board has reserved decision on an application by R. S. Hiscock to change the status of the former Church farm property known as Smoke's Point to summer cottage use from agricultural.

The hearing conducted in the township hall here last week was presided over by W. H. Thompson, QC, with the OMB. Mr. Thompson said at the conclusion of the hearing he favored re-zoning in this particular case and would recommend adoption of the proposal to the other two board members because objections by Miss Gladys Church of Detroit and Cecil Cronkwright, a next door neighbor of Mr. Hiscock were of a personal nature rather than related directly to the application and its intention.

Re-zoning in this instance affects approximately 250 acres in lots 112, 113 and 114 in the second concession fronting on Weller's Bay on the extreme south west boundary of the township.

Since acquiring the farmland from the Church estate Mr. Hiscock has spent a considerable amount on a permanent road system, landscaping and a substantial winterized home and boathouse for living with his family on the premises.

Provincial Police Sergeant Moved

NAPANEE — Sgt. G. L. Langton, head of the Ontario Provincial Police detachment here for the past two years, has been transferred to Bancroft. He will leave April 1.

Sgt. H. L. Adams of the Bancroft detachment will be assigned to the Napanee OPP office on the same date.

Sodden Skies Greet Spring

Yes, it's the first day of Spring—but be patient!

Spring officially arrived at 8:22 a.m.—well in time for an unwelcome change in the weather.

Sodden skies dripped rain as the new season arrived—breaking the bout of balmy springlike weather which hit the Quinte district Sunday.

And the weatherman predicts more of the same tomorrow.

In fact, Spring may not have a chance to prove itself until Friday when the outlook appears brighter.

Temperatures also are expected to turn cooler—today's high of 45 dropping to 35 tomorrow. The overnight low is predicted at 28.

Across Canada, the 30-day national forecast predicts above normal temperatures in the Great Lakes areas, the Prairies and the southern Pacific coast.

The Maritimes will have below-normal temperatures and the rest of the country normal temperatures.

In Ontario today, cloud and rainshowers were forecast.

An hour before the official start, it was raining throughout southern Ontario, in above normal temperatures.

The Trudeau Realism

Justice Minister Pierre Trudeau is a realist. As one of the leading contenders for the Liberal leadership he has been more and more in the public eye and this quality of realism comes through.

Perhaps it is his Gallic background, but with this trait there go the gestures — a shrug of the shoulder, the raised eyebrow, and the slow smile that denote an amused tolerance and acceptance of facts that cannot be altered.

Not that Vietnam, for instance, is amusing. But the qualities of understanding and tolerance of the United States' position there are evident just the same. And these are qualities lacking in many people today — lacking in the scruffy and vocal demonstrators outside the U.S. embassy in London last Sunday, lacking in those politicians who never let pass an opportunity of roasting United States policy in Vietnam.

What then is Mr. Trudeau's attitude? For one thing, he can get to the core of a problem and understand the other fellow's point of view. In Vancouver he told anti-Vietnam war demonstrators, "You're just being morally comfortable."

At a press conference later he said, "The U.S. inherited a situation they didn't create and let themselves be drawn into the kind of war they never contemplated.

"It's a terrible lesson to them. But this being said, I don't intend to preach moralities to them and this is what I was saying to the demonstrators.

"It's one thing to be opposed to it. It's another to find a solution to it."

And of course he is right. One wonders for instance how Senator Robert Kennedy would end the war? Was his late brother, the president, not committed to the same unrelenting course as the present administration, in the task of halting the spread of communism? Didn't he say so in clear, unequivocal terms in his inaugural address? Or Richard Nixon — would he fare any better?

Whatever else may be said of Lyndon Johnson, he has made it clear that the United States is not going to desert its allies or absolve itself of its committments in Vietnam. If a fresh approach to both the military and political problems there is necessary that is one thing. But back out — to President Johnson that would be unthinkable.

And all Mr. Trudeau and other men of tolerance are saying is, "How would you deal with such a situation?"

Family Difficulties

Financial trouble is often cited as one of the reasons behind divorce. However, if family dissension leading to divorce is one sequel to monetary difficulties, serious mental breakdown can be another.

The Ontario Health Examiner, in a feature on this subject, tells the story of a 40-year-old mother of four children trying to bring up her family alone because her husband is a patient in the Kingston psychiatric hospital.

The woman says her husband suffers from "cost-of-living" disease. Money worries are the reason he is sick. They built their own home but they don't feel they can afford to live in it.

"Taxes are so high you don't feel as if you can live in your own house anymore," she was quoted as saying.

How many more people are there facing such difficulties these days? The cost of living gets higher and higher. To build a home is prohibitive for many.

For instance, increasing interest rates of late have forced at least 77 families to withdraw from the Ontario government's Home Ownership Made Easy (HOME) plan. They relinquished lots they had reserved in the 600-lot Bramalea development because they could not afford NHA interest rates that rose to more than 8 per cent from 7¼.

Wasn't it Thoreau who said, "Most men lead lives of quiet desperation?" Today more than ever the pressures of materialism lend themselves to the kind of problems outlined above.

Branch Library

Belleville's capital works outlay for the next five years presents a utilitarian image, with the emphasis on local improvements — road improvements, sewers, utilities and the like.

But capital works include other facets of community affairs. There is the city's cultural life to be considered, and it is satisfying to note that a new library is planned in the West End.

This is still years away — as indicated by a sum of $100,000 set aside for 1972 — but no less welcome for all that.

No community can afford to ignore the cultural interests of its citizens. The prospect of another branch library is a recognition of this fact.

Mother of Four

Husband in Hospital—So Wife Carries on Alone

Peterborough Examiner

Martha is a 40-year-old housewife with four children.

Her concern is the same as any average housewife in Peterborough — trying to bring her children up to live responsible and useful lives.

She isn't an average housewife because she is trying to do it alone, for Martha is an average single-parent bringing up her family because she is a part-time wife. Her husband is a patient in the Kingston Psychiatric Hospital.

He has been in and out seven times, so sometimes she has him to help her, other times she has to manage alone.

And besides battling to feed, clothe and train her children alone, she has to battle public ice about mental illness, in her children, in people she meets in the city and in her husband himself.

She says he suffers from "cost-of-living" disease. Money worries are the reason he is sick. They built their own home but they don't feel they can afford to live in it.

"Taxes are so high you don't feel as if you can live in your own house anymore," she says.

Her husband's job has been waiting for him every time he has come home from the hospital. A certain amount of money comes in from an insurance policy whenever he is a patient so buying food for her children hasn't been as desperate over the years as it could be.

For other wives the situation does get desperate because Public Trustees take over any mental patient's affairs and a freeze is put on transactions. There is a logical reason given for this; a mental patient may try to give away his property and money and public trustees protect his interests.

Wives can get money by applying to the trustees but much red tape is involved.

If you sincerely believe your husband will be home next week, the red tape doesn't seem worth the effort, but next week is always a few months away.

By the time the women realize their husbands will be in the hospital longer than first expected, bills can seem unbelievably high.

"When you are on your own, you do without luxuries. You find it surprising what you can do without," says Martha.

The other times her husband was away, she left household repairs for him to do when he got home. This time she decided to do them.

"You keep waiting for him to come home and do them. Then you become self-sufficient and try to do everything yourself," she says.

The third step is letting people help you, and she has reached that point now.

She has gotten rid of the chip-on-the-shoulder feeling that she has to do it all herself.

Friends have come in and helped her to paint the house, recover kitchen chairs, do heavy cleaning and anything else she is willing to let them. She didn't realize before that people would be "so marvellous when you let them," she says.

Her problem isn't only with him; it is with the children, too. The younger children miss him and make a big fuss over him when he comes home. The oldest one, 14, thinks his father is "putting it on." Since there is no pain and it isn't a physical thing he doesn't believe his father is ill.

The public is beginning to understand he suffers from an illness just like any other illness because her children aren't being teased any more and her neighbors have been kind.

But the husband doesn't realize the social stigma has lifted.

Every time he gets back to work he stops taking the pills that help him because they slow him down. He is afraid of losing his job because he can't work very fast on the medicine so he stops taking them and ends up back in the hospital.

"He knows people never really forget. If he let you," she said bitterly.

"The hardest thing they have to live down when they get back to work is the "bughouse" people," she said. These are people who unknowingly refer to "bughouses" and "crazy people" around him.

"It's harder on the wives than on the patients," she says.

Education . . . Recreation

City Needs and the Taxpayer

Editor,
The Intelligencer,

It was my belief that the last city election had promoted into city council people who had made promise of an Arena complex at the earliest moment for its taxpayers. This surely must have been wrong or our candidates must have had a big change of heart at the date is now 1970 at earliest.

Another surprising thing is how easy money is promoted for plans such as Loyalist College without proper competition for a tender. Now my relationship is such that I am left free to question the wisdom of such approval of temporary quarters at a cost of $706,000. It would be nice to know all the costs involved for this temporary college and services, against complete costs of the arena complex.

At this time may we understand that the idea is not to condemn Loyalist College but to promote recreation and the desires of the people as costs go up. Education and recreation have never been in the same financial supported bracket.

We have come now to the category of costs so let's look at them from a practical side so the people can have their desires when they want them. No doubt the Public Works have their work cut out for them but would it be a practical thing to look at rock excavation or services to a public building as a normal thing for this department. Also perhaps the size of sanitary and storm sewers should be checked to make sure they are not over adequate.

It's about time the people of the community had a little more explanation of responsibility handed to them.

The exhibition buildings condemned and torn down in the Fairgrounds certainly haven't added to good judgment, for now these exhibition buildings are short until at least 1970. In doing this it has left no choice for any other location because of added financial responsibility.

Just what plans the arena complex is interfering with is hard to explain, for it has been of knowledge that the foundation for expansion has been set for many years to come

If my projects to be slowed down should it be something the council wants, the municipal board wants or that which the people want?

Now let us imagine the interest rate, would it not be the same for one thing as it is for another?

Is the centralizing of education so important that it has to be earlier and involve a costly temporary structive. Perhaps education can afford this with provincial and federal assistance while recreation does not apparently deserve too much assistance.

It is hoped that this has given something to be thought over by all our people of authority. Just let us not waste the architect's fees and further inflate the costs.

I have been privileged with a glance at the floor plans and do find the arena complex considerable, desirable, adequate and something for the people of Belleville to be proud of. Let us have a civic pride. It's not all loss but you never have anything for free.

WILLIAM R. CHAPMAN

Senator Eugene McCarthy

Editor,
The Intelligencer,

We Canadians are often heard to complain of the lack of knowledge displayed by citizens of the United States about Canada and Canadian affairs. We do this perhaps out of an innate desire to be recognized but I suspect also there may be some smug satisfaction present, arising out of our considered superior knowledge of the United States and U.S. affairs.

Our position with respect to the latter conjecture has been compromised to a great extent however, by the rather surprising and startling faux pas in your lead editorial of March 15, "U.S. Primary".

Surely the McCarthy you refer to in your editorial as feared and hated, and the man responsible for the "witch-hunting" campaign against communists in the United States is Senator Joseph R. McCarthy and not as you state, Senator Eugene Mc Carthy who did so surprisingly well in the recent New Hampshire presidential primary, Senator Eugene Mc Carthy is democratic Senator from Minnesota, Senator Joseph R. McCarthy is dead.

R. G. MOORMAN.
(Editor's Note: Mr. Moorman of course is correct. The error was a slip of the pen as it were. That it has been noted, with some relish, by Mr. Moorman and others, would seem to indicate at least that our editorials are being read.)

Fifty Per Cent of Food Business Conducted Through Supermarkets

Montreal Gazette

If older Canadians sometimes think the pace of change is becoming a little breathless, they are quite justified.

A retail sales official pointed out recently that supermarkets, which were rare 20 years ago, now account for almost 50 per cent of the food business. Suburban shopping centres began to appear only in the early fifties.

About half the items on sale in a department store today, said J. C. Barrow, of Simpsons-Sears, weren't even invented until after the Second World War.

Mr. Barrow declared these winds of change will grow to "the proportions" within the next dozen years and business must be ready to take the full advantage of them.

He predicted a population increase of 25 per cent, a work force increase of 50 per cent. Sixty per cent of Canadians will be living in cities of more than 100,000 and a third of the nation will be living in Vancouver, Toronto and Montreal.

He sees whole new communities laid out in orderly patterns, with residential, industrial and park areas grouped around community centres.

The ret.-ler's view is a particular one, concerned with numbers of customers, average incomes, marketing methods and outlets. To give the full picture it must be magnified several times, to take in the thrift and giant changes taking place in education, transport and communications, medicine, computers, to name a few important fields.

In all these fields, the prophet must add the powerful unknown — new methods, new materials, new machines that are sure to be invented. How many, a generation ago, could imagine the changes wrought by the transistor?

Man's greatest need will be his ability to adapt.

Banks Dodges Extradition

Peterborough Examiner

Harold Chamberlain Banks, the brawling, bullying, cheating labor racketeer, is laughing today. With some high - level help he has succeeded in dodging the extradition proceedings that would have brought him back to Canada to face a five-year prison term. He has proved (or thinks he has proved) that the combined efforts of the Canadian and Ontario governments are no match for the evasive skills of a U.S. crime leader with pull.

"Canada," he vowed when he was arrested in New York last November, "will never get me." And it looks as though this waterfront thug, who has made a successful career out of thumbing his nose at the laws of whatever land he happens to find himself, will be proven right.

Today he drinks champagne in his New York apartment (he has enough to draw his $20,000 yearly salary from the Seafarers' International Union even while in prison) and tells funny stories about Canada.

In their futile efforts to make Banks pay for doing the job in Canada for which he was hired, the Canadian and Ontario governments have paid out several hundred thousand dollars in legal fees. Whether or not Mr. Rusk's decision was dictated by the fact that this is an election year and the Democratic Party needs all the labor party support it can get (Banks is still vice-president of the ILU in Brooklyn), the fact remains that our most earnest attempts to nail this hoodlum have come to naught.

Hot Rodding A Valuable Outlet For Club Members

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

In the past few days in the newspaper, on the radio, hot rodding has been given a bad name.

This undeserved use of the name of our sport does a great deal of harm to our efforts to get racing off the streets and onto authorized and supervised drag-race strips.

Since 1956 we have had a hot rod club in this city. In that time we have built several race cars, trophies and have persuaded a good number of young people that there are many advantages in not using the public streets for racing.

In the past few years we find it very discouraging when our good name is applied to all types of irresponsible, immature dangerous drivers.

We would welcome any person from the Belleville area or any other responsible groups or organizations, to one of our meetings, to see the type of people involved in hot rodding and discover the aims of our club.

Today in History

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

March 20, 1968 . . .

Jacie Tom's Cabin, by Harriet Beecher Stowe, was first published in book form, 116 years ago today—in 1852. It had earlier been serialized in a magazine. The novel sold 500,000 copies in the U.S. and was translated into 22 foreign languages. It fanned the flames of anti-slavery feeling in the U.S. and was even more important in diminishing foreign support for the Confederacy.

1838 — Flooding in New Brunswick caused an estimated $3,000,000 damage.

First World War

Fifty years ago today—in 1918—Prime Minister Robert Borden introduced a bill to enfranchise all women except those married to enemy aliens.

Anglers to be Taxed

Windsor Star

Chalk up a victory for that last of the rugged individualists, the fisherman.

The Ontario Government has decided to postpone for a whole year the imposition of the $3 fishing licence on Ontario residents. More, the licence will be required only by residents over 19, not 17 as originally proposed.

The sad facts still remain that on Sept. 1, 1969, any Ontario resident over 19 who wants to drop a line in Ontario waters will have to pay $3 for the privilege, and carry with him the evidence that he has paid. But at least the government has granted a year more of freedom.

It is difficult to say how much the postponement has been influenced by the outcry against the licence proposal when it was first made, but it is a belated concession that has been given. When the fee was first rumored, it was said to be planned for all residents. Then the under-seventeens were spared. Now the age limit has been advanced to 19, and the effective date postponed a year. Probably during that year the government will add a further sop by exempting senior citizens.

The licence fee, the first resident fishing licence in the province s history, is still on the way. It will be only $3. But well before it goes into effect the hunter's licence has been increased from its present $1 to $5 effective next September. If one licence fee can be increased to five times what it was, why not another?

System Geared to Customer Needs

CNR Now Keenly Competitive in Transportation Field

MONTREAL (CP) — Canadian National Railways, purged of operating creeds from a monopolistic past, now is a keenly competitive many-purpose tool looking forward all types of transportation, says the boss.

N. J. MacMillan, chairman and president, envisages a day when this vast railroad company will have a "pipeline adjunct" and grain, iron ore, coal and other basic commodities will be moved that way.

Change was the keynote of an interview in which Mr. MacMillan, 58, stressed the significance of one basic, blindingly simple reform: The system has been geared to the needs of customers and markets.

CN is scheduled to be the first railway to put turbo-trains, powered by adapted aircraft engines, into revenue operation this coming summer, cutting one hour off the Toronto-Montreal run and making it four hours.

Mr. MacMillan believes, however, the turbo is a "transitional step" from diesel and diesel-electric locomotives to some other form of power—"a whole bunch of them are under examination."

"The future probably lies in some means or some adaptation of the air-cushion approach," as demonstrated by hovercraft, probably utilizing a rail or low wall along which air jets could guide a train without friction. Mr. MacMillan has a representative in Britain keeping abreast of developments in this field.

Glancing toward his office wall map of the system, Mr. MacMillan reported that 100,000 pieces of rolling stock—many of them designed specially for the job in hand—are unloaded daily on CN which has 24,145 route miles and 32,590 track miles. It has built 1,500 miles of branch lines since the Second World War. Biggest corporate employer in Canada, it has some 80,000 workers compared with a high of 131,300 in 1952.

"On this property we want to make sure people remember we are in the freight business," said Mr. MacMillan. "We have about eight times as much business on the freight side as the passenger side, but the passenger business intrigues the general public because it is the showcase. But we are the largest freight carriers and propose to remain so."

A new "broad-gauge" approach was being spearheaded by a marketing agency while, in addition, operating personnel were also being inculcated with an understanding of marketing.

CN is participating in programs to solve pipeline problems and "when they are solved we're going to build them because we should move into any facet of transportation that affects our marketing opportunities."

"If we don't, then we would reach the point where we have a great big railway, the largest in the Western world, and no business left on it."

Besides research into its own equipment and other problems, CN undertakes "customer research," said Mr. MacMillan.

"What we do is to go into an industrial plant and determine what their basic problems are. Then we use our knowledge to show them a much better way to attain their objectives.

"We do this as a matter of service but we don't do it because we are philanthropic. We do it to keep our own business viable."

A scientific research department, meanwhile, tests everything from paint to steel rail, pinpointing deficiencies that can be remedied. Such researchers also evolved, for example, a scale that weighs a freight car in motion—thus a string of cars can be weighed as they pass.

Railwaymen come in a "continuing flow" to study CN from such countries as Britain, France, Germany, Switzerland, Belgium, The Netherlands and from African countries.

"We've had people from everywhere in Australia, we have the Japanese here most of the time. We have them from Taiwan, Russia and the United States.

"I think you would find we are very well known in the railroad world—better known that way than in Canada—as being a very farsighted company.

New countries come to study maintenance procedures. The more established railways—British, French, German, Swiss—study corporate planning, cybernetics, integrated data processing. The Russians are interested in winter operations.

On the general evolution of railroading, Mr. MacMillan said in answer to a question that former president Donald Gordon and himself were the first non-operating men to run CN.

"The problem on this railway is that the railways, certainly of North America and my guess is the world, used to dominate all activities. This perhaps was one of the first significant steps in the evolutionary process from an operating officer-dominated railway to a customer-oriented railway. And it probably had its beginning here on our property."

Tomorrow: CNR goes after passenger business.

Council Allows College to Erect Signs

Belleville city council doesn't want to get into the sign business.

This was made quite evident Monday when council members backed away from a proposal that the city erect signs at the four highway entrances to the city advertising the centennial year of the Ontario Business College.

Council declined to erect the signs at city expense, but will permit the business college to put up the signs at its expense, subject to police department approval.

Suggested wording on the signs is "The Home of Ontario Business College—Founded 1868.

Badly in need of repair the township's narrow road in the first concession received the careful inspection in annual tour of township roads.

Road Needs Repair

AMELIASBURG — The last remaining piece of narrow cement road built between Carrying Place and Rossmore three decades ago is the worse for wear but not for long if council can find the necessary appropriation.

Yesterday Department of Highways Engineer, N. Zebruck from Port Hope with Ameliasburg council toured township roads and paid particular attention to the stretch from Bryant's sideroad around Onderdonk's hill. As a result this piece will be either patched up, re-surfaced or both as the engineer is expected to recommend in a written report to council in the coming week.

Constructed while the George S. Henry government was in power at Queen's Park in the early 1930s the 10-foot wide bayshore route was often referred to as a prize political plum awarded residents of the north part of traditionally Conservative Prince Edward County for their loyalty to the party.

Speed Limit Changes

Changes in the speed limit on different sections of No. 14 Highway between Belleville and Marmora have been approved. It has been announced by Clarke T. Rollins, M.P.P. for Hastings.

From Belleville to Foxboro the limit has been increased from 50 to 60 miles per hour and from Foxboro to Stirling from 50 to 55.

At the same time lower speed limits have been approved for certain built-up areas.

In the north limit of Belleville the limit has been decreased from 30 to 40 and between Stirling and Springbrook the 60 mph zone has been shortened to permit a 40-mile zone at the north limit of Stirling.

Strikers, Company to Meet

TRENTON—A provincial conciliation officer will convene talks in Toronto tomorrow in an attempt to settle a month-old all-woman strike.

Representatives of the International Union of Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers will meet with Essex Electronics management in Department of Labor offices.

The 30 - member all - woman IUE local 529 began its strike against the Water street plant, Feb. 14, backing demands for an increase in their $1.18-$1.50 hourly pay scale.

W. J. McGuire, chief Ontario conciliation officer, will be chairman of the contract negotiations.

Mr. McGuire also convened company - union talks which broke down a week before the strike.

McCarthy Will Back Kennedy if He Is Unable to Win Himself

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senator Eugene J. McCarthy says he would back Senator Robert F. Kennedy for the Democratic presidential nomination if he became convinced he can't win it himself.

But McCarthy insisted Tuesday there are no arrangements, no conspiracy between Kennedy and himself—And continued to toss sharp barbs at Kennedy's sudden entry into the presidential race.

The comments came during a question-and-answer session at Howard University.

A student asked the Minnesota Democrat if he would throw his support to Kennedy if convinced on the first ballot at the Democratic national convention he could not win himself.

"Under those circumstances"—faced with choosing between Kennedy and President Johnson, McCarthy replied, he would "have to support Kennedy whose position on Vietnam has been the same as mine along the way."

At the Democratic convention in Chicago next August, it will take 1,312 votes to win the nomination.

McCarthy continued his attacks on the Johnson administration's Vietnam and domestic policies in a speech at the predominantly-Negro university.

McCarthy said the United States should back a coalition government in Vietnam to end the war, and the U.S. should announce its intention to withdraw if the Saigon government didn't accept that plan.

Turner Would Televise House

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Consumer Affairs Minister Turner suggested Tuesday that CBC channels should be set aside for regular televising of the Commons.

It was one of several reforms suggested by Mr. Turner, a federal Liberal leadership candidate.

He unveiled the proposed reforms in a speech to the Chamber of Commerce at Repentigny, Que.

Another candidate, Eric Kierans, speaking in Halifax, urged Canadians to invest in Canada to insure the country's continued expansion.

He told a news conference that U.S. investment in Canada will be curbed because of that nation's financial commitments in Vietnam, nuclear supremacy and the space programs.

Mr. Turner urged three major points in his suggested reforms of parliamentary procedure:

—An analysis of procedures to eliminate useless debates and overcome slowness of government decisions.

—An increase in authority for the government party whip, who should be a cabinet minister responsible for government business.

—Redefinition of the role of MPs, many of whom felt that they had become "simple voting machines or information agencies for the voters of their constituencies."

THE LITTLE WOMAN

"I'm positive it was either the man in the center there or the one on the extreme right end."

Cowan Remains On Committees

OTTAWA (CP) — Ralph Cowan is no longer welcome in the Liberal caucus but remains a member of five parliamentary committees.

After an hour of opposition ridicule in the Commons Tuesday, the government put off until another day its efforts to oust the member for York-Humber from his committee jobs.

There was no indication when it would try again.

Parties nominate their own members on standing Commons committees and replacing them, although it requires formal Commons approval, is normally routine.

But when it came to replacing Mr. Cowan, Gilles Gregoire (Ind-Lapointe) forced a debate.

Mr. Gregoire defended Mr. Cowan as an MP who votes according to his conscience.

He said the situation in the Liberal party was characterized by Justice Minister Trudeau in the April, 1963, issue of the Montreal periodical Cite Libre.

Mr. Trudeau, then in private life, had described the Liberals as "a flock of sheep" with "anti-democratic reflexes."

The Liberal caucus decided last Friday no longer to invite Mr. Cowan to caucus meetings following his vote against the government on second reading of a bill to levy a three per cent surtax on personal and corporation income taxes.

Mr. Cowan, speaking for only a moment in Tuesday's debate on his status on committees, said he thought he had earned a permanent spot on at least one committee, the joint Senate-Commons committee on the parliamentary restaurant.

He said that when the committee was afraid to try collecting outstanding accounts of $1,800 in 1953, he had done so. The collection included "over $900 from a Liberal cabinet minister and $1,100 from the chairman of the Liberal caucus."

Czech Fugitive Knows Secrets

PRAGUE (AP) — A Czechoslovak staff officer said today that Gen. Jan Sejna, who fled to the United States last month, possessed extensive knowledge of military installations in Czechoslovakia. He challenged the defence minister to tell the nation about it.

This first admission of military repercussions of the Sejna scandal came from Reserve Col. Lubos Kohout as the army's chief political officer was in Moscow for talks with top Soviet military leaders.

PICTURE BOOKS FOR YOUNGER CHILDREN

The Seashore Story — by Taro Yashima.

An old tale of a Japanese fisherman who went away on a turtle's back and lived for a long, long time in a beautiful palace under the sea. Because it was so comfortable he forgot about his loved ones, and when he returned they were all gone. He learned too late that a dream world cuts one off from reality. The beautiful, muted, softly blurred illustrations create a setting of tranquility and wonder.

Birds — by Brian Wildsmith.

Ameliaranne and the Green Umbrella — by Constance Heward.

This is a fifty-year-old picture story of a poor, fatherless family of six children and their mother. The other main characters are the kindly squire and his mean sister. It tells how the eldest girl brings home the goodies from the squire's party which the others could not attend because they were ill.

The Walk The Mouse Girls Took — by Karla Kuskin.

Here is a delightful story of two little mice who went for a walk with their mother. The detailed illustrations give an amazing amount of information about nature.

The Fox, the Horse, and the Lion — by Paul Galdone.

A little known tale of the Brothers Grimm has been adapted by the illustrator. It concerns an old horse who has to prove his worth to his master by bringing home a lion. This is done with the help of a wily fox who chooses an obligingly stupid lion. Mr. Galdone's drawings are, as always, beguiling and amusing.

The Mother Goose Treasury, by Raymond Briggs.

A very comprehensive collection with gay and colorful pictures.

Three Gold Pieces, by Alikl.

This Greek folk tale retold and interestingly illustrated by Alikl shows that wisdom is of more value than money but may indeed bring material comfort by its practice.

Two Guppies, A Turtle, And Aunt Edna, by Lois Wyse.

Robbie had problems — he couldn't tell his guppies apart, his turtle kept running away, and then there was Aunt Edna !

The Four Clever Brothers, by the Brothers Grimm.

Here is another fairy story by the Brothers Grimm, this one illustrated by Felix Hoffman. The pictures are beautifully detailed and appropriate yet modern. The four brothers leave their poor home, choose four different vocations at which they become so proficient that their rewards bring health and happiness to themselves and their father.

To Market! To Market!, illustrated by Peter Spier.

One of a new series of picture books. The Mother Goose Library, which also includes London Bridge Is Falling Down. The illustrations have great warmth and tremendous detail.

Bears Are Sleeping, by Yulya.

Beautiful soft colors illustrate this sleepy little lullaby book. While it may be enjoyed for words and pictures wards bring wealth and happalone, music is also included.

British Housewife Will Feel New Tax Squeeze

LONDON CP — British women will be squeezed painfully hard in the sharp bearhug of the 1968 budget.

Mini-skirted dollies and middle-aged matrons alike will find themselves special targets as Treasury Chief Roy Jenkins' sweeping sales tax increases take lumps out of their purses. They are also likely to get fewer gifts from their menfolk.

Jenkins' new luxury-goods classification, imposing a hefty 50-per-cent sales tax, seems aimed almost entirely at the British bird.

Makeup, for instance, now is classed as a luxury item and will cost nearly half as much again in sales tax. The former tax level was 27½ per cent.

Makeup costs have already risen steeply since sterling devaluation 18 November, because much of it comes from U.S. parent companies.

The session at the hairdressers will cost more. Not only are hairdressing goods classified as luxury items, but a 50-per-cent increase in the payroll tax will hit service industries hard.

Razors, shaving cream and such male equipment get a lower sales tax, though aftershave and all the bygoning array of male cosmetics now will bear the luxury tag.

Pity the poor girl who may never get that Canadian mink coat now. Men may not be so eager to shell out for gold bracelets or Paris perfumes either. Furs, jewelry and perfume inevitably come under the tough new luxury tax.

As for home cooking, the housewife is likely to be hard hit of the belt-tightening with Jenkins' budget. While husband grumbles at a 25-cent rise on his 26-ounce bottle of whiskey, he may well insist his wife make do with that rickety old stove and erratic refrigerator for another year. Domestic appliances are slapped with a 33 1-3-per-cent sales tax, an increase of nearly six percentage points over previous rates.

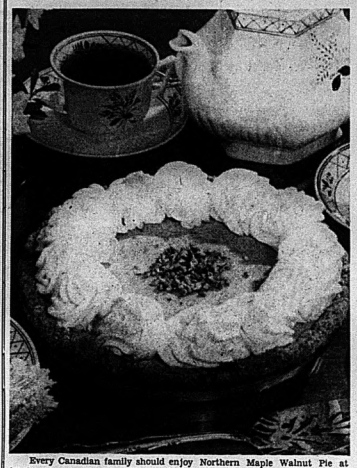
Church Groups

ST. MARGARET'S A.C.W.

The W. A. branch of St. Margaret's Anglican Church Women, was held recently in the church hall.

The devotional from the "Living Message" was read responsively. Reports and correspondence were read. The president Mrs. M. Collyer reported on the World's Day of Prayer, which was held in St. Margaret's this year. She said collection was $117.46 after expenses, and had been sent to headquarters in Toronto.

The W. A. annual meeting will be held in Christ Church, May 7 and 8. Members were reminded to bring in their thankoffering boxes to the April meeting.



The meeting adjourned and closed with prayer.

Banker Will Address Women's Club

Mr. R. H. J. Iles, manager of the Divisional Securities Department of the Bank of Montreal, Toronto, will be the guest speaker at the University Women's Club of Belleville and district at the Public Library. His topic will be personal finance including some aspects of stocks, bonds and taxes.

Mr. Iles was educated in England and apart from four years spent in the Royal Navy during World War II has spent his career in banking. He was in general banking before joining the Westminster Bank Limited in England in 1940 and left to join the Bank of Montreal in 1957.

Mr. Iles has served in New York, Vancouver and head office, Montreal and was appointed chief trader at Securities Department, Ontario Division in 1963 and manager in 1965.

Every Canadian family should enjoy Northern Maple Walnut Pie at least once per year, Mary Moore gives method and alternative topping of meringue or whipped cream. It is an easy pie to make and because of its richness serves 8.

Maple Walnut Pie Topped with Meringue

By MARY MOORE

Talk about Southern Pecan Pie! Wait until you taste Northern Maple Walnut.

This is for sweet - toothed dessert lovers and is easy. It has a meringue topping but for those who do not care for such a sweet dessert the meringue topping may be substituted with unsweetened whipped cream. That is how I liked it.

NORTHERN MAPLE WALNUT PIE

Pastry:

1 cup stirred but not sifted all-purpose flour
one-third cup shortening
1½ tablespoons butter
½ teaspoon salt
1½ tablespoons cold water

Filling:

1 cup genuine maple syrup
¼ cup cold water
6 tablespoons flour
2 eggs — yolks and whites separated
2 tablespoons butter
½ cup to 1 cup chopped walnuts
shake of salt
¼ cup sugar (optional — see below)

To make Pastry cut shortening and butter into flour and salt with pastry blender until size of peas. With fork toss mixture as you drizzle in cold water. Pack into a ball between palms. Roll out on lightly floured board to fit 9" pie plate. Line pie plate, flute edge, prick with fork at 1½" intervals and bake at 450 deg. Fahr. 10 minutes or until delicately tinged with gold.

WEDNESDAY

Dinner Menu

Fried Chicken (see Mon.); Cream Gravy (see Mon.); Glazed Carrots (see Mon.); Fresh Frozen Green Peas; Iceberg Lettuce Wedges with Roquefort Dressing; Orange Tapioca; Tea.

To make Filling heat maple syrup to boiling in heavy saucepan. Mix flour and water to smooth paste and stir in until thick. Spoon some over slightly beaten yolks and stir and return to saucepan and stir to blend over heat for one minute. Remove from heat and stir in butter and walnuts. Pour into baked pie shell. If you are making meringue beat the 2 egg whites with salt and ¼ cup sugar until stiff. Spoon onto filling, sealing to edges and bake at 350 deg. Fahr. 10 minutes or until tips of meringue are gold-tinged.

If you substitute whipped cream for meringue be sure filling is well chilled and add unsweetened whipped cream just before serving.

A white elephant auction concluded the evening.

Ann Landers

Father Lets Child Puff on His Cigars

DEAR ANN LANDERS: When I tell you my problem, please don't say, "Your husband is crazy." I know he is crazy. What I need to know is what to do about it.

About three weeks ago, Vernon (that's my crazy husband) gave our five-year-old boy a puff of his cigar. The boy didn't choke like I though he would. He seemed to like it. So Vernon gave him another puff. Now, whenever Vernon lights up a cigar Junior asks for a puff and Vernon gives it to him.

ANN LANDERS

Last night we had company and Vernon lit a cigar for himself and then, so help me, he lit one for Junior and handed it to him. The guests thought it was the most hilarious thing they had ever seen. One of the guests saw my look of horror and said, "Don't worry about it, cigars are a lot better for kids than cigarettes." I found little consolation in this remark.

Please tell me what to do about this appalling situation. — H.F.Y.

DEAR H.F.Y.: A father who would entertain his friends with a parlor trick of this kind is pathetic. No five-year-old kid should be given puffs from a cigar. Ask your doctor to telephone crazy Vernon or drop him a note in the mail. It's apparent that your husband pays no attention to you whatever, and Junior needs someone to speak on his behalf.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I have epilepsy. I live in Ohio. I carry on a correspondence with two friends in Pennsylvania who are epileptics also. The experiences we have shared because of our illness is heart-breaking. It is hard to believe that people can be so mean and ignorant.

My epilepsy has been controlled through medication for the last three years. I have not had a single seizure in all that time. My friends have had almost as good results as I have. We are worried about what will become of us when we graduate from high school in two years. There are so many places that will not hire epileptics. They have the mistaken idea that we are mentally ill and therefore we would be poor job risks.

Will you please say something in your column to educate the public? A great many people would appreciate it. — A FRIEND.

DEAR FRIEND: Epilepsy is no longer the mystery it once was. While the cause of epilepsy is still unknown, about one person in every 200 in the United States has it. There is evidence, however, that a brain injury, whether caused by infection, accident or birth defect preceded the illness.

Epileptics have the right to be hired on the basis of their ability. Most epilepsy can be controlled by drugs today and there is no reason for an epileptic to be turned down for the job — except of course ignorance, and education is the cure for that. —

* * *

DEAR ANN: My husband and I were divorced four years ago. Our daughter was 18. It was a messy divorce, court fights, dirty linen laundered in public and I very nearly had a nervous breakdown.

Now my daughter wants her father to walk her down the aisle and give her in marriage next June. I say this is like slapping my face in public. What do you say? — OMEGA.

DEAR O.: I say it's her wedding. Her day. Her father. She should decide.

Women to Sit on CBC Boards

OTTAWA CP — Women will be well represented on the new CBC and Canadian Radio-Television Commission boards soon to be announced, Prime Minister Pearson promised Tuesday.

Flanked by several of his cabinet ministers, Mr. Pearson discussed a potpourri of resolutions presented to the government by the Canadian Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs.

"When the new CBC and CRTC boards come out in a day or two, you'll find a higher percentage of women than ever before," the prime minister said.

All the credit for more women on the boards went to State Secretary Judy LaMarsh.

The federation in its brief had complained that few women were appointed deputy ministers and assistant deputy ministers in the federal civil service.

Mr. Pearson told the delegation a far-reaching examination of the whole tax structure has been going on for some time and changes will be made.

The federation had asked for an increase in the basic federal income tax exemptions for single persons maintaining a dwelling.

Mr. Pearson said the $500 exemption would cost the federal and provincial governments $400,000,000 a year. "At this point $400,000,000 seems an awful lot of money," he said.

A resolution urging that all eligible voters in hospital at election time be given the opportunity to vote would be studied. Attention would also be given proposed pension and Estate Tax Act changes.

The prime minister said care had to be taken to avoid duplication of work in studies on women in the labor force.

The federation urged in its brief that the Economic Council of Canada make a study of the social, business and industrial attitudes affecting women's motivation in education and employment.

It also asked the government to devise a correctional plan for women in federal prisons based on a study of their needs.

The study and plan should precede decisions about the site, design, program and staff for any new federal institution for women.

Solicitor - General Pennell said such a study is being done. He hoped a plan for a new institution would be presented this week.

"You Don't Pay Extra For Quality — Because Quality Pays For Itself"

Parents Laugh and Refuse to Explain

Dear Dorja: Whenever I ask my parents anything concerning sex, they make a loud and rude laugh and say, "You're still wet behind the ears and you don't need to know."

I am nearly 14. Once I got a book from the library but my parents took it away before I even had a chance to see it. I haven't been allowed to the library since. — Depending on You.

Dear Depending: Not only rude but irresponsible and not even bright.

It takes an intelligent and enquiring girl to make up for such shortsighted parents. They no doubt tell themselves your ignorance will protect you; and they are embarrassed. One mother I know waited until the eve of her girl's wedding before opening the subject, which was far too late. Her daughter no longer wanted to discuss it.

Growing up in a two-sex society without knowing the Facts of Life is like going into battle without any ammunition. Show them this column — if they can read.

• • •

Dear Doris: Your column re what bride's parents pay for certainly caused a sore spot in our home. Not all can afford to keep up with the Jones's. Parents cannot always pay the out - of - reach prices. We have two girls married and were happy with gowns made at home and shopped as best we could for nice place for reception. They even paid us board from their salaries.

Now comes our oldest (24) who wants all the very best and says she wants no part of own made, nor a cheap place of reception. Her fiance is a big headache, says parents owe it to their kids to give the best.

Well I just needed an extra headache. All we've had since they read that column is, "Good old Doris, she's on our side!" She has warned us she won't pay board for the 16 months prior to her wedding, but will live at home, as she must buy many things. She earns $400 a month. — Troubled.

Dear Troubled: Who is running this show? Since you provide the wedding, you most certainly have the say about how it is done. Length of guest list, place of reception, amount to be afforded for gown — these are yours to decide, not hers, who presumes to hold back board money to provide for future years. You do her no favor to allow her to impose. What do her sisters think of her?

• • •

Confidential to In Love: Sorry, but your letter is so vague it reminds me of one a youthful reader sent me once — "just for kicks". Better prove you mean it by sending me name and address, and some reasons why you think you are ready for marriage, or I won't be able to answer you.

And tell me: Do you ever answer a letter which isn't signed?

• • •

To Depressed: Just pretend he doesn't exist. He wants to rile you. Name callers reveal what they themselves deserve to be called. If it keeps up ask your teacher for help in dealing with him.

• • •

2ND BAYSIDE BROWNIES

WHITE'S DISTRICT —The 2nd Bayside Brownie Pack ecrolled Tweenie Patay Finkle at a special ceremony Tuesday at Quinte View School.

Tawny Owl Elaine Consul was also enrolled.

Brownie Ann Burnett was presented with her collector's badge.

Receiving their first year service stars were Barbara Consul, Linda Starowhite, Beth Dunning, Mae Cutting, Barbara Watson, Evan Jolliefle and Gwen Dewar.

Receiving their second year stars were Carolyn Miller, Jo-Ann Pelletier, Brenda Dunning, Ann Burnett, Theresa Finkle, Brenda Dewar, Gloria Benjamin and Lynn Mathews.

Golden Hand badges were given to Brenda Dunning, Carolyn Millar and Jo-Ann Pelletier.

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Betty: "Benny tore all the heads off my paper dolls. That's why I hit him."

Mother: "Shame on you, being so mean to your little brother."

Even a loving big sister can't put up with some of the things a 2-year-old can do. Protect her possessions while little brother is learning about the rights of others.

Mother: "We'll lock your door while you're at school so Benny won't get into your things. He's too little to know how to play with them right."

Aquarium Club Holds Second Meet

The second meeting of the Aquarium Club was held last Wednesday evening at the Knights of Columbus Hall with about 40 members and guests present.

Mrs. Wessels, the president, opened the meeting and expressed thanks to those members who had donated door prizes.

The junior fish contest was judged by Dave Reichert and winners were. Barry Spring for his Marble Mollie; Lynda Wylie for her White Cloud Mountain; Bill Tracy for his Upside Down Catfish, and awards of merit to Brenda Nickle, Belden Clark, Barbara Wylie and Bill Kerr.

The highlight of the evening was a talk on how to make aquariums beautiful by Mr. Benn, president of the Canadian Association of Aquarium Clubs, Port Hope. He also showed some colorful slides dealing with the subject, which the members thoroughly enjoyed.

At this meeting two more officers were elected with Ken Carter, program chairman and John Yanks, show chairman.

Refreshments were served and a social hour was enjoyed by all.

WON BACKING

CORVALLIS, Ore. (AP) — The Oregon rain beetle has won the backing of the head of the Oregon State University entomology department as the top candidate for the official state insect. Paul Richter had been campaigning for the snake fly. But he switched his allegiance to the rain beetle, "because of its adaptation to the Oregon climate."

Questions and Answers On Highway Travel

Ontario Motor League
Eastern Ontario Club

QUESTION: For a trip to Myrtle Beach, South Carolina next month, we would like to take a fast route down, by-passing major cities, and an alternate route back. We would also like to know of some of the interesting attractions there. We are particularly fond of golf. — R. H., Belleville.

ANSWER: A fast route down is by No. 81 from the Ivy Lea Bridge to Scranton, Pa., the N.E. Extension of the Pennsylvania Turnpike to Allentown, Pa., No. 22 to Harrisburg, Pa., by-passing Harrisburg on No. 83 to Baltimore, by-passing Baltimore on No. 695 to 301. Follow 301 and 95 to Rocky Mount, N. C., and Latta, S. C. From there, it's No. 501 to Myrtle Beach.

A suggested alternate route home is to take No. 17 north to Windsor, N. C., then No 13 through Norfolk, Va., the Chesapeake Bay Bridge-Tunnel and on to Wilmington, Del. then No. 202 and the N. E. Extension of the Penn. Turnpike to Scranton, Pa., and No. 81 to the Bridge.

Myrtle Beach is on the Atlantic Ocean and has one of the finest sandy beaches on the coast. It is about 1,000 miles from Belleville, which can be driven in two days. This makes it an ideal place for people on short vacations who want to get some sun in a hurry. The average daytime temperature in April is around 65 to 68 degrees, cooler in the evenings. Ocean temperatures are around 65 degrees.

All down the length of the 50-mile stretch of the South Carolina coast, known as the Grand Strand, there are lush golf courses, and Myrtle Beach has five of the top-flight courses right in this area. The Strand is a pine-forested beachland flanked by the Intercoastal Waterway and the Atlantic Ocean, offering six championship links and three nine-hole courses. Green fees run from $4.40 to $6.60, with many motels and hotels offering guest cards to customers.

Along the Strand there are about 180 motels, 200 restaurants and many apartments and cottages. Motel prices range from $16 to $25, double.

Brookgreen Gardens (free admission) offers acres of beautiful grounds with outstanding statuary and flowers of almost every variety. Plantation homes are open for tours, and the Myrtle Beach Air Force Base, home for jet fighters, offers tours. There are twelve fishing piers reaching far out into the Atlantic. Boats are available and also cruises for deep sea fishing. There are also amusement parks, seaside pavilions with dancing, games, boardwalks, famed restaurants, movie theatres, skating, bowling and weekly stock-car racing.

"MAN AND HIS WORLD": In Montreal, from May 17 to October 14, "Man and His World" will show displays in all of the former Expo 67 pavilions, except for three: the Soviet Union, Czechoslovakia and Yugoslavia. The U.S. Pavilion will be transformed into a semi-exotic park and aviary, and will henceforth be known as "Biosphere".

Gold Expansion Depends on Market Price: Robarts

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario legislature was told Tuesday that higher gold prices on the free market would result in a reduction or the disappearance of federal subsidies to provincial gold mines.

Replying to Opposition Leader Robert Nixon, Premier Roberts said all Ontario gold mines, except Campbell Red Lake, receive federal assistance varying from $2.89 to $10.27 an ounce of gold produced.

Gold mines are not likely to expand production unless there is a "clear trend" toward higher prices for gold on the free market, he said.

Mr. Roberts said the effect of the two-price system on the Ontario gold-mining industry will depend entirely on the free market price, which recently has fluctuated from $40 to $44 an ounce.

"Most Ontario gold mines were selling gold for a price consisting of the fixed price of $38.05 an ounce plus the federal government mining assistance aid received," the premier said.

"With the exception of Campbell Red Lake, not a single gold mine in the province obtained a price lower than $40.32 an ounce."

Leonard Reilly (PC—Toronto Eglinton) told the legislature during the throne speech debate that those interested in providing medical services for Ontario's needy should study the results of medical-care plans elsewhere.

"It is my belief that a compulsory government medical scheme would not only cost more money to our taxpayers, but would also deprive them of the prompt and careful services they require," he said.

In other legislature business:

—John Yaremko, Ontario social and family services minister, announced implementation of legislation and regulations under which the government will spend an extra $833,000 in the current fiscal year on programs to rehabilitate the disabled.

—Attorney - General Arthur Wishart said the government spent nearly $22,000 in its unsuccessful attempts to have Hal Banks, former Canadian head of the Seafarers' International Union, extradited from the United States.

—Fred Young (NDP — Toronto Yorkview) asked the government to ban cigarette advertising and launch a campaign to convince the province's youth that non-smoking is "the 'in' thing—respectable, smart and groovy."

He told the link between cigarette-smoking and cancer has been proven, but cigarette sales are continuing to rise because of the tobacco industry's advertising campaign.

Tobacco and Gasoline Taxes Climb in PEI

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP) — Prince Edward Islanders started paying more today for tobacco, gasoline and diesel fuel following Tuesday's tabling in the legislature of the 1968-69 provincial budget.

Provincial Treasurer T. Earle Hickey's budget also broadened the sales tax base effective April 1 to include items previously tax exempt.

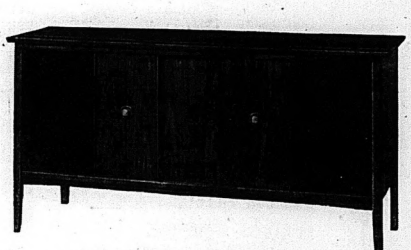
Mr. Hickey said the provincial sales tax will remain at five per cent, but broadening the tax base will bring in revenues equal to raising the tax to seven per cent.

The treasurer budgetted for a deficit of $1,014,941 in the fiscal year ending March 31, 1969, on record revenues of $54,043,843 and expenditures of 555,058,786.

The tobacco tax was increased to 2-5 of a cent from 1-5 of a cent per cigarette and similar increases will be made in taxes on other forms of tobacco.

Fuel taxes on gasoline and diesel oil were increased three cents a gallon, raising total federal and provincial taxes on a gallon of gas to 21 cents. The increase will not apply to gasoline used in farm machinery and fishing operations.

Mr. Hickey said the new tax measures will bring an estimated additional $1,600,000 into the provincial treasury.



Alban Farmer (PC—Queens 5th), finance minister in the PC administration which governed the province from 1959 to 1966, said the increases would cost an average family of five $80 annually.

"There is not one indication of anything in the budget to stimulate industry in this province," he said.

Mr. Hickey told the house that the government's total gross debt as of March 31, 1967, was $84,370,470.

Blame Discount Food Prices On Us.... (PLEASE)

HAVE YOU NOTICED the trend towards discount food prices? Well, Food City is happy to take the blame. Our policy of lower shelf prices on all of our 6,000 items --- Monday through Saturday, week in, week out --- instead of just a few week-end specials, started the whole thing. But although others try to imitate Food City, no one offers you savings of up to 15% on QUALITY FOODS every week.

EVERYDAY LOW PRICE

These items remain at the same low price week in, week out — no ups and downs — this is our "everyday low price".

The Early Bird

The habits of a lifetime are hard to break and for Lee Grills it means being early to work. An eight o'clock start is not unusual for Hastings' "friendly milkman."

A Time for Reflection

It's a seven-minute trip in the tunnel connecting the two parliamentary blocks. For Hastings South MP Lee Grills it affords him an opportunity to plan his day's work.

Mail Boxes Are Never Empty

As A Member of Parliament You Can Be

- Lonely in A Crowd
- On Call 24 Hours A Day
- Father Confessor for Your Constituents

As Well As • Consultant • Expediter • Critic • Adviser

Knowing People on Capital Hill Eases Role of MP

OTTAWA (Special) — A few years ago an Ottawa reporter wrote "Lee Grills is acquainted with more members and is known by more people in the building than any other member."

It's a statement that the "friendly milkman" from Hastings South likes to recall when the workload of a member of parliament is brought up for discussion.

"It didn't happen by accident," said Mr. Grills when discussing the matter in his centre block office on the fifth floor.

"I decided when I came to Ottawa that I should approach this job the same way as I have lived my life—and that's to get to know as many people as I can."

It's obvious the 10-year veteran of parliamentary skirmishes has made his point.

When he walks through the impressive doors of the centre block he is greeted by House security officers, elevator operators, messengers and members of the maintenance staff which keep the huge building as clean as Mr. Grills' dairy back in Belleville.

In the Parliamentary restaurant it's a chorus of "Hello, Mr. Grills" as he goes to his seat. Without asking, a cheese tray appears on the table every day, a tip off on the fact Mr. Grills is on familiar ground as the dairy industry critic for the Progressive Conservative Party.

Along the halls of the House of Commons, it's a peek into members' offices to say a cheery hello. A nod and a greeting to fellow members harrying to appointments and the occasional halt for a brief chat to clarify some point of discussion.

"But this business of knowing the people who work here is not just a way to spend a pleasant day," says Mr. Grills.

"One of the things you find out very quickly is that a major percentage of your time is taken up with trying to solve the problems of your constituents.

"And how can you quarrel with that, after all, that is why you are here.

"So, if I am on a first name basis with many of the people around here, then I can perhaps solve the problems I'm faced with a little quicker than might otherwise be the case."

For any member of parliament who is attending to the problems of his riding, these requests can be numerous.

In the past few months, a partial list of requests or delegations arriving at Mr. Grills' office included:

* A request from a university political science student for information on integration
* Dozens of requests to expedite passport applications.
* Help in solving problems attendant with old age pensions and supplementary incomes.
* Assistance in having a trade mark registered.
* Organizing a visit to the House for Tweed Reeve Barbara Allen and her all-women council of 1967.
* Greeting a bus load of women from Trenton and aiding them on their visit to Ottawa.
* Processing requests for jobs or assistance in locating employment.
* Meeting representatives from labor and industry to discuss their problems.
* Organizing Ottawa visits for Hastings area school children so that the youngsters may see Parliament, the Mint, Government House and the experimental farm grounds.
* Aiding a deep fried chicken distributor to solve his packaging problem after discussion with the department of agriculture.

"It's all part of being a member," said Mr. Grills. "I'm here to do what I can for my constituents. We've got to keep a balance between the work in the House on Federal problems and this other aspect of our job.

"It can mean tough days and long hours. But, I guess I wouldn't be here if I didn't enjoy it."

Wake Up Is Early

OTTAWA (Special) — The House of Commons sits twice a day as a rule, with afternoon and evening sessions.

But for MPs, it's not a question of late arising. A typical day in the life of Hastings South MP Lee Grills goes like this:

7.15 Wake up call at the Lord Elgin Hotel, Lee Grills' home away from home during his nearly 10 years as an MP.
8.00 Four-block walk to the Hill.
8.15 Breakfast in the Parliamentary cafeteria.
8.00 Pickup mail at Parliamentary post office and run over mail with secretary.
10.00 Party caucus or committee meetings.
11.00 Whole party talk sessions.
12.30 Lunch in Parliamentary restaurant or cafeteria in the centre block.
1.30 Pick up mail and return to office.
2.30 House opens.
6.00 Private members hour.
7.00 Dinner hour.
8.00 House resumes.
10.00 House adjourns formal session, grievance period starts with three members allowed seven minutes to express grievances and a representative of the minister three minutes to answer.
10.30 Final bell. Pick up mail.
11.00 Watch news on television in hotel room.
11.30 Bed.

Robert Stanfield Welcomes Chats With Back-benchers

Two Points of View

Grenville - Dundas MP Jean Wadds and Hastings' Lee Grills continue discussion of party policy as they leave caucus session in House committee room.

Ottawa Environment Differs From Riding

OTTAWA (Special) — "The political tension is here all the time," said Hastings South MP Lee Grills as he chatted about life on Parliament Hill.

"Once you get involved, you find it's almost a world of its own. You have to guard against that thinking, for frequently you find out it isn't the same as that of the people back home."

As he sat in the parliamentary restaurant, a glance around the quiet and dignified eating place bore out this remark. Senators and members chatted over lunch. More intimate groups selected dining room alcoves for a combination of both business and dining.

At one end of the room were two private dining rooms, reserved for use when policy decisions must be made between sessions of the House.

"Being caught up in House business doesn't end when you leave Parliament Hill," said Mr. Grills. "Every weekend when I'm home I get at least a half dozen telephone calls a day."

Despite the almost day in, day out involvement in federal affairs, Mr. Grills said there is still room for a little humor in the capital.

"For weeks we kidded Des Code (MP, Lanark) about the fishing in his Rideau Lake area riding. "Then one day we showed up for lunch and a 14-pound trout was put on the table.

"Des had caught the fish in Rideau Lake and had the restaurant staff cook it.

"It was great, and gave him the last laugh."

Some 2,400 fans tensed in their seats in Memorial Arena that night back in 1952.

They anticipated another of the roister-ous bodaciously battles that always marked a senior "A" hockey clash between the Belleville McFarlands and the Whitby Dunlops.

The Dunlops, it will be recalled, were the 1952 world amateur champions knock-ing off Russia 3-1 in Oslo, Norway in an his-toric third-period comeback.

Nor were other teams in the league of that era any pushovers. What fan of that day will forget the powerful Dutchmen of Klich-ener who had failed in their last attempt for world glory in Cortina, Italy?

A full-throated roar shook the steel gird-ers of the pension-ready Old Lady of Market Square as the Macs and Dunlops took the ice.

Wren Blair, the embullient manager-coach of the Dunlops was in his rarest form. In the dressing room Long John Henderson, the O'Connors, the Etchers, Attersleys, big Gus Gagnon and others of this powerful Whitby team listened.

I could stick my head in the dressing room door and was greeted with a double-barrelled Blairian blast.

"Get out, get out," he roared. "Go back to your Macs and tell 'em we'll send 'em home with their tails dragging."

Over in the Macs dressing room the team that was to go on to world honors sat quietly, listening to the final words of Coach The Hildebrand.

Minnie Menard, a fifty-goal scorer the previous season, looked up and smiled. "Let's win it for Greg," he shouted, and the team echoed the shout.

This Friday night, some ten years later, a number of the players who were at each other's throats that night will again cross hockey swords and spears, but the points will be tipped and the enmities of former hockey battles forgotten.

They will be here to extend the helping hand of friendship to one of their kind who met with physical misfortune while playing the game they love.

Members of the McFarlands, the Dun-lops will join forces with those of the 1967-68 Mo-Hawks in an all-out gesture to help bring financial aid to Menard, one of the most cel-ebrated high-scoring players to wear a Belle-ville Jersey.

They are bound by the common bond of camaraderie and sympathy characteristic of athletes in any phase of sport that immediat-ely flashes to the surface when a fellow ath-lete is stricken with a serious injury, es-pecially the kind that leaves a permanent disability.

Minnie Menard loved hockey. So much so I imagine he made his first rush from the cradle with a pablum spoon in one hand and a hockey stick in the other. It was nat-ural for he comes from a family that lives and breathes the game.

Perhaps Minnie was not destined to be-come a Hull or a Howe. Perhaps the charm-ed circle of the paid professional ranks was just beyond his reach. But it can never be said that he did not give his all to the clubs he played for.

The Menard idea of playing was not the "Let George Do It" type. He never shirked on a stint. The shortest distance between him and a goal was a straight line from him to the net. He developed one of the hardest, most accurate shots in senior ranks.

Nor did he "hog" the points glory. If a team-mate was in a more favorable position to score, the Menard pass went to him.

Minnie had some years left in the sport and hockey is going to miss him as much as he will miss it. I doubt if he will ever lose entire connection with it.

The Minnie Menard Fund committee says the tickets are selling well and indica-tions point to a full house on Friday night.

Incidentally, a tip to potential purchas-ers. No seats in Memorial Arena are reserv-ed for this game, it is a case of first-come-first-served.

Sport Miniatures

OTTAWA (CP) — Assistant director Tom Bedicki of the amateur sports directorate said Tuesday no grants for amateur boxers will be included in the list put out by the federal health department agency. He said a study of boxing, ordered by the fitness council last year, still is under way and a report is not expected until June. Grants were cut off in 1967 after the council received a medical report indicating boxing is a dangerous sport.

ST. PAUL (AP)—Three members of the Canadian Nationals hockey team have agreed to join Minnesota North Stars of the National Hockey League, it was announced here Tuesday. Wren Blair, North Stars' general manager, said Monday negotiations were com-pleted with goalie Ken Broderick, defencemean Barry MacKenzie and right winger Marshall Johnston. All three are school teachers at Winnipeg.

NEW YORK (CP) — A new group, made of nine men, is acquiring 80 per cent ownership of Pittsburgh Penguins, Clarence Campbell, National Hockey League president, confirmed Tuesday.

Vancouver Out

Seals' Franchise To Stay In US

Wait For Expansion

NEW YORK (CP) — National Hockey League governors threw cold water Tuesday on a propos-al not yet presented to them for-mally-that of the ailing Oakland franchise being moved to Van-couver.

They said that while Vancou-ver would be a prime location for an NHL team, they would prefer the Oakland franchise re-main in Oakland.

Undismayed, the president of Labatt Breweries of Canada Ltd., N. E. Hardy, said later Tuesday that an application for Transfer of the Oakland fran-chise to Vancouver would be made "at a mutually convenient time."

An announcement in Vancou-ver last Thursday said Labatt Breweries is prepared to pur-chase a controlling interest in the Seals on condition the club moved to Vancouver.

NHL owners meeting here

CLARENCE CAMPBELL

Tuesday prepared a written statement which said:

—No application had been re-ceived for transfer of the Oak-land franchise to Vancouver;

—The board "reaffirmed its position that the NHL franchise will remain in the San Francis-co-Oakland area."

—The board still believes Vancouver, one of the origi-nal but unsuccessful applicants for an expansion franchise, "will be considered as a prime location for any further NHL expansion at such time as it may occur."

NHL president Clarence Campbell said the major obsta-cles to the proposed franchise shift are the NHL-recognized territorial rights of the Western Hockey League and the WHL Vancouver Canucks.

"I have received an official telegram from the Vancouver WHL club," said Campbell, "advising that it had not taken part in the Oakland-Labatt ne-gotiations, that it was its inten-tion to honor its commitments to the WHL and that it was its desire to acquire an NHL fran-chise for Vancouver."

Other owners confirmed that the written statement represent-ed the consensus of their views. The affirmations came from Stafford Smythe of Toronto, Bruce Norris of Detroit, Weston Adams of Boston, Edward Sni-der of Philadelphia and David Molson of Montreal.

Frank Tatum, San Francisco lawyer who represented Oak-land at Tuesday's meeting in the absence of Owner Barney Ger-big, held a news conference of his own. He said the governors had issued their statement on the basis of information they had before it—"which was noth-ing."

Tatum remained optimistic that an application for transfer of the franchise to Vancouver would be made.

Meanwhile, he said, the La-batt firm had promised to ad-vance the funds—estimated at close to $700,000-needed to clear Oakland's indebtedness to the NHL by a May 15 deadline.

Campbell agreed with Tatum that the board's statement did not rule out an application ei-ther for a change of ownership or of site.

Campbell listed two conditions to be fulfilled for the transfer of the Oakland franchise to Van-couver:

1. At least nine of the 12 league governors would have to approve.

2. The league would have to be satisfied that the Vancouver WHL franchise owner concurred in the transfer and "had satis-fied its partners in the WHL in respect to its own defection from the WHL."

Campbell said the "regional approach" for putting an NHL team in Vancouver would be through a further expansion.

Umpires Put on Style

BOSTON (AP) — That man you'll see standing be-hind home plate during the American League baseball season in blue blazer and gray slacks belongs in the ball park.

He's the umpire.

American League head-quarters announced Tues-day the first change in um-piring attire in more than 30 years.

Cal Hubbard, the league's supervisor of umpires, said he has been in the business since 1936 and can't recall any similar changes.

The new style debuts April 8 in the season opener at Washington between the Senators and Minnesota Twins.

Goderich Peewee Tournament

GODERICH, Ont. (CP) — Oakridge Aces of London, Ont., won two games by shutouts Tuesday in the A series of the Young Canada Week peewee hockey tournament.

Oakridge, playing in the divi-sion for communities with a population of between 5,000 and 25,000, defeated Waterloo 5-0 and Galt 3-0. The wins put Oak-ridge into the division semi-final Friday.

In another A series game, Galt won over Owen Sound by outshooting the team 20-13. The teams tied 2-2 so shots on goal were decisive.

In the B series, St. Mary's blanked Elmira 3-0 and Tillson-burg got three goals from Ron Jones as it defeated Hanover 8-1.

In the C series, Bolton defeat-ed Durham 4-2.

Wimbledon Tennis

Woman Champion Blasts Purses!

NEW YORK (AP) — Billie Jean King said today Wimble-don missed the boat by not set-ting a richer purse for its first open tennis championship this year.

"It's ridiculous," the world's top woman player added. "The men's winner will get just over $4,000 and the women's winner around $1,800.

"Compared with what golfers and other sports people play for, that is chicken-feed.

"I am really disappointed. Here Wimbledon had a chance to strike a strong blow for big-time-tennis. Every big sport these days is judged by the amount of money involved.

"Wimbledon traditionally has been regarded as the world's No. 1 tournament, and it sets up a cheap purse like this. I think they really blew it."

In New York to receive the Babe Zaharias Trophy as the Top Woman Athlete of 1967, she is expected to turn professional after playing in the U.S. Lawn Tennis Association international indoor tournament at Madison Square Garden next week.

She will join the pro troupe of George MacCall, former U.S. Davis Cup captain, along with three other women players, probably Ann Haydon Jones of England, Maria Bueno of Brazil and Rosemary Casals of San Francisco.

The pro cast, which also in-cludes such male stars as Rod Laver, Pancho Gonzales and Ken Rosewall, will open at Los Angeles April 7.

At Season's End

Hewitt; No More Nights!

TORONTO (CP) — Foster Hewitt, Canada's voice of hock-ey for 43 years, said Tuesday he plans to stop broadcasting Sun-day night road games of To-ronto Maple Leafs at the conclu-sion of this National Hockey

FOSTER HEWITT

League season.

An earlier report Tuesday said Hewitt, 63, planned to re-tire from broadcasting at the end of the season.

"I think that was a bit prema-ture," said Hewitt, who has been broadcasting hockey for 45 years. "I definitely plan to con-tinue broadcasting the Leafs home games Wednesday and Saturday but those Sunday night road games are out.

"It's just too tough. I plan to remain in broadcasting and I will do the Leaf games at home. If I decided to retire com-pletely, I would have to tell my sponsors first anyway."

In an interview, Hewitt said he always planned to give up broadcasting of Leafs away-from-home games when it be-came a chore.

"The travelling each week has become tiring and I don't enjoy it anymore. However, I am not going to lose interest in hockey."

Hewitt started broadcasting in 1923 and his opening of "Hello Canada and hockey fans in the United States" has kept millions of fans glued to their radios since his first Hockey Night in Canada broadcast in 1932.

Novices Win Openers!

Belleville Food City novices defeated Oakridge Acres in the first round of the Bramp-ton Novice Tournament yes-terday.

The Food City youngsters came from behind a 4-2 defi-cit in the first game of the two - games goals-to-count series to emerge with a 4-4 tie.

They hit their stride in the second game turning back Oakridge with a 6-0 shutout.

They met the strong Wind-sor Riverside team this morn-ing and play the second game this evening at six o'clock.

Food City rallied strongly in the third period of the first game. They took over the play and scored the two goals necessary for the tie.

Eric Powell with two, Bobby Crawford and Ross McLeod were the goalgetters. Mike Crawford, Mike Meeker, R. Chapman and Peter Costes drew assists.

Their goalie, Bruce Hamil-ton, played brilliantly in the first round of the Bramp-ton Novice Tournament yes-terday.

Mike Crawford and Mike Meeker each scored twice while Andy Lapinette and Eric Powell also counting.

Ross McLeod came up with three assists, Eddie Grills, Tony Meagher, Larry Waite and Bobby and Mike Crawford getting singles.

Clippers Shade Aces 3-2

BALTIMORE (AP) — Balti-more Clippers kept their Ameri-can Hockey League playoff hopes alive by edging Quebec Aces 3-2 Tuesday night.

The victory moved the fourth-place Clippers to within five points of Providence in the battle for the third and final playoff spot in the Eastern Divi-sion.

Baltimore was never headed after first-period goals by Tom McCarthy and Sandy McGregor. Jimmy Bartlett scored the win-ning goal in the second period. Rookie Serge Bernier tallied twice for Quebec.

Everyone knows who drinks Seagram's Mellow 83

Country bumpkins, that's who.

It's funny what you hear about Seagram's Mellow 83. Like, it's the whisky for old fogeys. Or, only country bumpkins drink 83. We know different. All kinds of people are drinking 83 these days—and for the best of all reasons. They like the mellow, mellow way it tastes. Who are these individuals? Well, they weren't born in 1885. And they certainly weren't born yesterday.

Tigers Claw Red Sox Pitchers 13-3; Cards Scuttle Pirates

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Few major league ball players consider a nightmarish slump a beneficial turning point in their careers, but first baseman George Scott of Boston Red Sox is an exception.

"That bad second half two years ago really woke me up," the big slugger said between swings at the pitching machine the other day. "I realize I had to work harder."

Scott jumped from Pittsfield of the Eastern League to the Red Sox in 1966, stunned the baseball world with tremendous slugging and earned the starting job for the American League in the all-star game.

However, he was on the skids even before taking the field against the National League all-stars. The pitchers had caught up with him and he finished the year with a .245 average and 27 homers.

Scott set a Boston record by striking out 152 times as a rookie. Most of the strikeouts came in the second half of the campaign as he went fishing for outside pitches.

"I knew I had to do something to keep my job," Scott recalled.

In an exhibition game Tuesday, the Red Sox were pounded by Detroit Tigers 13-3. Scott getting one hit in his one time at bat.

In other games, New York Mets beat Philadelphia Phillies 4-2, Chicago White Sox took Minnesota Twins 5-4, Houston Astros blanked Los Angeles Dodgers 1-0, Washington Senators crushed Atlanta Braves 7-1, St. Louis Cardinals destroyed Pittsburgh Pirates 11-1 and Chicago Cubs beat San Francisco Giants 5-4.

Also, Baltimore Orioles stomped Cincinnati Reds 8-2, Cleveland Indians took California Angels 4-1 and New York Yankees beat Mexico City Tigers 8-6.

Jim Northrup had a home run and a triple and Mickey Stanley had a three-run homer to lead the Tigers. J. C. Martin drove in two runs for the Mets and Bob Hendley pitched three scoreless innings against the Phillies.

Buddy Bradford's two-run double was too for the White Sox and three Houston pitchers—Wade Blasingame, Tom Dukes and Danny Coombs—limited the Dodgers to three hits.

Fred Valentine had a three-run homer and a pair of doubles and Mike Epstein had a two-run homer for the Senators. Curt Flood had two triples, Tim McCarver three hits, and Ed Spezio a two-run homer for the Cardinals.

Bill Schlesinger scored the tie-breaking run in the ninth to win for the Cubs. Jack Hiatt homered for the Giants. Boog Powell hit a three-run homer and Curt Blefary a one-run shot for the Orioles.

Stan Williams and Steve Bailey stopped the Angels on two hits for the Indians. Bill Robinson homered, doubled, singled and drove in five runs for the Yankees.

Critics Gobble Crow After Western Division's Performance

By GRAHAM COX
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Expansionism 1967-68, a crucial trial period for six new National Hockey League clubs, concluded during the weekend.

And despite fears of a theatrical farce, the NHL's expanded Western Division did themselves proud.

Although the six established Eastern clubs won 86 of the scheduled 144 interlocking games, the rookie franchises justified their elevation to hockey's major circuit by grabbing one of every three points resulting from games between the Eastern and Western division clubs.

The early doubters have been eating crow most of the current season. After all, they deduced when expansion was proposed in 1966, how could clubs from the NHL boondocks hope to contend with outstanding teams established during 50 years prior to expansion.

But newcomers in Los Angeles, Oakland, St. Louis, Philadelphia, Minneapolis and Pittsburgh weren't stood to play dead.

They've provided highly-entertaining hockey for fans throughout the 12-team circuit and perhaps now they'll get a chance to prove it—when East meets West in the Stanley Cup final.

There are still 10 days remaining in the season but Eastern and Western division teams finish the schedule in their respective divisions.

The only financial trouble spot has been Oakland. There has been talk of shifting the Seals and last week a tentative deal with Labatt Breweries of Canada Ltd. was negotiated, coolin-gest on the franchise moving to Vancouver.

The other five, after slow starts, have built a solid nucleus of fans and created an interesting race for playoff positions that may not be decided until the 74 - game schedule ends March 31.

New York Rangers gained the most from the interlocking schedule, winning 17 and tying three of their 24 interlocking games while Montreal Canadiens won 16 and tied three and Chicago Black Hawks took 15 and tied five.

Even Detroit Red Wings, last in the East came out ahead of their interlocking schedule with 14 wins and three ties. Toronto Maple Leafs were the only established Eastern club to show a debit record—winning 10 and tying three of 24 games.

Los Angeles Kings scored in the Western Division standings, and won 10 interlocking games and tied two. The division leaders, Philadelphia Flyers, picked up eight wins and a tie for 17 points, while Minnesota North Stars rated second in interlocking games to Los Angeles with 18 points on seven winds and four ties.

St. Louis Blues, stood next in points on five wins and six ties. Pittsburgh Penguins had six wins and three ties and Oakland trailed with four wins and two ties.

Playoff positions now are the big question mark, especially in the West where five teams remain in the running.

With seven games remaining, fifth-place Pittsburgh trails Minnesota and St. Louis by only seven points.

At the top, only three points separate leading Philadelphia from Los Angeles with the Kings just three points head of Minnesota and St. Louis.

In the East, Detroit has already been eliminated and Toronto, defending champions, need only one more loss in their remaining seven games to miss the playoffs for the first time in 10 seasons.

Montreal Canadiens top the Eastern Division standings by eight points with six games left. New York and Boston Bruins are tied in second, one point ahead of Chicago.

Most clubs are in action tonight, only Boston and Detroit sitting out. Toronto is at Montreal, New York at Chicago, Philadelphia is at Oakland, St. Louis is in Pittsburgh and Minnesota is at Los Angeles.

Thursday the Leafs are in Detroit and Chicago is in Boston while Friday's schedule has St. Louis in Los Angeles.

Quinte Hockey

Stinsons Stop Stars

Stinson's constructed a "lead to last" — and needed it — as the Quinte Hockey League championship series opened last night.

The Construction crew topped Aluminum Stars 5-3 after taking a 3-0 lead in the first half of the contest.

Second game in the 4-of-7 set is scheduled for tomorrow (Thursday) night at eight o'clock.

Jim McGuire, LeRoy McBrien and Bill Genereaux built Stinson's early lead but it took second tallies from the sticks of McBrien and Genereaux to hold the Stars off later. Rick Denardi, Pete Mitchell, John McKibbon and McGuire picked up an assist each.

Ron Pointer's pair of goals led Aluminum Stars' comeback bid after Ron Post had cut the margin by one. Brian Musgrave drew two helpers. Fred Polenkow, Bob Chapman and Al Rutan getting loners.

The losers took the lion's share of the penalties, including a misconduct to Ron Pointer plus a bench minor and a game misconduct to coach Paul Zakos.

Yankee Skip Eyes Title!

MONTREAL (CP) — Bud Somerville of Superior, Wis., has a trick knee that has been bothering him for several days but says "I'll never notice it when the game starts."

The game starts at 2 p.m. EST today with Somerville's U.S. champions against Norway in the opening round of the international curling champion ships.

Somerville, along with Chuck Hay of Scotland and Ron North cott of Calgary, will be bidding to come the second skip to win two titles during the nine-year history of the tournament.

Ernie Richardson of Regina is the only skip to win more than one. He did it on four occasions.

"It's an old injury," Somerville said Tuesday. "I saw a physiotherapist and I've been staying away from the practice sessions for the last few days."

Somerville won the champion ship in 1965 but lost in the U.S. during the next two years.

Somerville says his rink has rated at least 60 games as a unit.

"That's more than we ever did before and each of us has curled a lot of games on other rinks."

The U.S. skip is a serious 31-year-old commercial printer who loves to curl and hates to lose.

"We always go into competi tions to win. What's the use of playing a game if you don't?"

But he realizes that Canadian curlers, especially those from Western Canada, have a distinct advantage.

"They curl most of the winter every day in competition. . . We have to take our vacations to compete."

Somerville goes against Northcott, who won the title for Canada in 1966, in the second round of the championship at 8 p.m. EST tonight.

Hay takes his Scottish rink from Perth against the West German rink, skipped by Werner Fischer-Weppler, at 2 p.m. while Canada plays Switzerland and Sweden meets France.

Legion Curling

Ontario, Alberta Tops

MOOSE JAW, Sask. (CP) — A previously winless B.C. foursome skipped by Roy Henderson of North Vancouver scored an eight-end 7-6 win over Roger Argue of Roleau, Sask., Tuesday to leave only Alberta and Ontario undefeated after the third round of the Canadian Legion curling championship.

The Henderson rink, that lost Monday to New Brunswick and Alberta, built up a 5-1 lead after five ends but was forced into the extra frame when Henderson's attempted take-out failed in the 12th end and allowed Argue to steal one.

Ontario, skipped by Rudy Steski of North Bay, seeded two in the 10th and two more in the final end for a 9-8 win over Pr. Bob McIntosh of Fredericton.

Hugh Brown of Calgary posted an easy 11-4 win over Doug McGowan of Montague, P.E.I., for his third consecutive win. Quebec, skipped by Jack Little of Quebec City, got its first win with a 14-7 decision over Wally Knock of Lunenburg, N.S.

Manitoba is the defending champion and split two games during the first day.

AL Scoring

Three-Way Battle

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — With two weeks left in the American Hockey League season, the scoring race is a tight three-way battle.

Statistics released Tuesday showed Andre Lacroix of Quebec Aces leading with 87 points and Bob Barlow of Rochester Americans tied with Simon Nolet of Quebec for second place with 84 points each.

Lacroix likely will lose out since he is now with Philadelphia Flyers in the National League.

Not out of the race are Quebec's Jean Guy Gendron with 79 points in fourth place and Mike Nykoluk of Hershey Bears in fifth with 78 points.

The leaders:

	G	A	Pts.
Lacroix, Que	41	46	87
Barlow, Roch	39	45	84
Nolet, Que	36	48	84
Gendron, Que	28	51	79

Junior 'A' Playoffs

Black Hawks Hang On

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

ST. CATHARINES Black Hawks, faced with elimination in their Ontario Hockey Association Junior A playoff series, had a frightening countdown with the clock Tuesday night until Maurice L'Abbe pulled the trigger.

L'Abbe scored his second goal of the game with only 39 seconds remaining to give the Black Hawks a 6-4 tie with Montreal Junior Canadiens and keep their hopes alive.

A win by Montreal would have given the Canadiens the best-of-seven quarter-final series in straight games. They now lead the round 3-0 with one game tied and the fifth game scheduled for Montreal Thursday.

In other quarter-final playoff games, Kitchener Rangers defeated Toronto Marlboros 3-2 to take a 2-1 lead in games in their series, and Hamilton Red Wings edged London Nationals 3-2 to take a 3-1 lead in that round.

On Thursday, Kitchener plays in Toronto and London is at Hamilton. The fourth series, which Niagara Falls Flyers lead 2-1 over Peterborough Petes, resumes in Niagara Falls Friday.

Defeat Kings 3-1

Marlies Grab 3-2 Edge

TORONTO (CP) — Two goals by Grant Moore paced Toronto Marlboros to a 3-1 win over Collingwood Kings Tuesday and a 3-2 edge in the Ontario Hockey Association Senior best-of-seven semi-finals.

Earl Balfour scored the other Toronto goal on a power play.

Bud Horne was the lone Collingwood marksman.

Kings opened scoring midway through the first period, but Toronto bounced back with two goals 16 seconds apart in the final minutes of the period.

After a scoreless second period, Moore fired his second goal of the game at 3:45 of the third.

Collingwood outshot Toronto 36-28.

Montreal Archery Meet

Carol Wins Tournament

Carol Armstrong, Belleville Archery Club and Don Jackson of Lindsay, Canada's national champions, took another step toward international titles over the weekend.

They passed up the Bay of Quinte Archery Meet to compete in the Montreal Medalion Tournament—and emerged with flying colors.

They swept the tournament titles in their respective divisions from a field of 102 archers from Montreal, Quebec and the Eastern seaboard of the United States.

Jackson had scores of 283 and 298 to head the men's division by a 30-points margin.

Mrs. Armstrong scored 274 and 275 in her shoots, leading a strong feminine field by 30 points.

They attended the Montreal meet to prepare for the Ben Pearson Open Tournament slated for Detroit.

The Pearson Open is expected to attract some 15,000 archers from all parts of Canada and the United States.

With their national titles already in their hands Mrs. Armstrong and Jackson are anxious to find out how they stack up against the best international bowmen and bowwomen.

Minor Hockey

The opening round of the BMHA novice playoff tournament was played last night.

Hornets defeated Wings 6-3 and Leafs downed Dukes 5-2.

In another game, Americans scored three goals against the Bruins but it was not determined how many the Bruins scored - or even who won the game. The sheet listing Dukes' scorers was also missing.

Paul Murray and Bobby Thompson scored two goals each with Mike Ferris and Jeff Hale adding the others for Hornets. Martin, Kincaid and Glover repied for Wings.

John McCauley had two Americans' goals and Glenn Pearson noticed the other one against the Bruins.

In the Leafs' win, Gord Male and Belanger had two goals each and Spurgeon also scored.

Today Britons Tighten Their Belts for Two Years' 'Hard Slog'

LONDON (Reuters) — Britons today tightened their belts to face a lower standard of living.

The 1968 budget presented to Parliament by the Labor government Tuesday hit the country with a record £923,000,000 ($2,409,800,000) in higher taxes and was coupled with a plan to legally limit wage and dividend increases.

Roy Jenkins, chancellor of the exchequer, forecast two years of "hard slog" and sacrifice in a harsh drive against consumer spending but said the grim measures would end a long period of growing British debt abroad and loss of business to foreign competition.

The tax increase—averaging an extra £16 ($31.60) for every man, woman and child in the country—was three times as much as any previous peacetime budget and more severe than any in wartime.

Jenkins spared almost no one with new taxes on consumer durables, wine and liquor, gasoline, tobacco and gambling.

Political observers said the budget, coupled with the aftermath of the devaluation of the pound Nov. 18, would increase the cost of living by about five per cent by the end of the year.

Jenkins set a 3½-per-cent limit on increases in wages for the working man and dividends to stockholders, along with government powers to delay pay and price increases for up to a year.

Labor union leaders, traditional supporters of the ruling Labor party, exploded in anger at the severity of the pay laws, but British bankers felt the budget would work.

British newspapers greeted the budget with comments ranging from "necessary" to "suicidal."

The Financial Times said that a "soft" budget "would almost certainly have precipitated another run on the pound and led to international monetary upheaval."

The Times headlined its editorial "nasty but necessary."

The Guardian said the budget followed the prescription of bankers, and if it did not please the international financiers nothing ever would.

The Communist Morning Star said Jenkins asked the British people to make sacrifices for the sake of bankers and big business.

Comment from many world capitals today said the budget would be enough to meet the demands of Britain's foreign creditors.

French Foreign Minister Maurice Couve de Murville described the budget as "draconian" and said "no one wishes more than France to see it end in restoration of the economic, financial and monetary situation in Great Britain."

Swiss banking circles welcomed the budget as evidence that Britain was determined to start paying its way.

But the Soviet news agency Tass said the British working man was being made to pay for American bombing and colonial wars.

Hugh Scanlon, president of the Amalgamated Engineering Union, said the budget and related measures "amount to a declaration of war on the unions and their members."

Body Right One Says Wishart

TORONTO (CP) — Attorney-General Arthur Wishart was not moved Tuesday by word that Mrs. Harold E. Rider of Toronto feels a body shown in photographs supplied by the attorney-general was not her husband's.

Dr. Morton Shulman (NDP—Toronto High Park) asked in the legislature whether Mr. Wishart planned further investigation "in light of the fact that Mrs. Rider has examined the photographs supplied by the attorney-general and has said to me that they are not of her husband."

Mr. Wishart, who gave the photographs to Dr. Shulman March 13, said the pictures taken of the body would not serve a useful purpose and means of identification because of deterioration of the body.

He said the body had been identified "beyond all question."

Dr. Shulman asked whether examination of the teeth wouldn't remove any doubt.

"There is no doubt about the man found dead in the hotel room," Mr. Wishart replied. "That was Rider."

Dr. Shulman has maintained that discrepancies in an autopsy report indicate that either the body found in Rider's hotel room last September belonged to someone else or two bodies had been switched at the Toronto morgue.

The attorney-general also replied to a series of questions from Dr. Shulman concerning the death of an Orangeville man in a car accident a year ago.

Dr. Shulman asked whether there was an explanation for the fact that Roland Eyes, who died March 21, 1967, was listed in a post-mortem report as having upper natural teeth "while in actuality he had false teeth."

Mr. Wishart replied that the report had been in error on this point. In response to other questions the minister said the car had been too badly smashed for a mechanical fault to be found, but that it had apparently struck a bridge abutment after going out of control in a snowstorm.

He said there would be no point in holding an inquest since there were no witnesses to the accident.

Strictly Personal

Desire to Know Is Vital

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

In his new book, "The Most Probable World," Stuart Chase explains in some detail the computer system recently installed in the bank he uses. He also mentions that the bank's two best programmers for the computer come from Yale: one majored in physics, the other in English literature.

When Chase asked what the two Yale graduates had in common that made them so good, he was told in one word: "logic." Not the subject they specialized in, mind you, but the general ability to think.

I have found the same thing to be true closer to home. My eldest daughter is on her first job out of college as a "systems engineer" for IBM. This puzzled me, since she had been a Romance language major for four years at Stanford, and also during a year's graduate work.

"How did they feel you were qualified for the job?" I asked her, and she replied, "It was mostly a test I took in logic. I had to know some math, of course, but understanding how to reason clearly was the main qualification."

There has been a great deification of technical training in the U.S. the last few years, but I am convinced it is a popular error to believe that what our society and our economy most need are technicians and specialists. For one thing, technical knowledge in itself becomes obsolete within 10 years or less.

The "knowledge explosion" is so vast in our time that a man who specialized in physics, or even in astronomy, a decade ago, would find himself hopelessly behind things if he stopped studying for one year. Whole new areas in these subjects have opened up — areas not even imagined when the previous generation was still in college.

Our real need today is for young people who have been inspired with an appetite for knowledge and provided with a technique for acquiring, ordering and using such knowledge. As Chase goes on to say, there are seven attributes in this process. They are: "A desire to know, an impulse in question, the search for data, the demand for verification, respect for logic, awareness of premises, and evaluation of consequences."

These are the qualities most required in the modern world, and they can be elicited from a course in physics or English literature or Romance languages just as much as from a course in computers — maybe more so. For a purely technical course provides only one answer for every question, and does not necessarily prepare the mind to cope with new questions, as a more general education can do.

Paradoxically, the computerized society does not call for more standardization or conformity, but for more creativity, more imagination, more broad thinking — if we are to become its master, not its slave.

Brown Says Government 'Hates Ordinary Man'

TORONTO (CP) — A psychological analysis presented in the Ontario legislature Tuesday suggested that members of the Conservative government hate the ordinary man and love big corporations.

The analysis was provided by John Brow (NDP—Toronto Beaches-Woodbine), making his maiden speech in the legislature.

Mr. Brown suggested the Conservatives are "hung up" by repressed aggression against the common man.

Thus, the Conservatives "hate ordinary people because they have soaked them . . . and love the corporations. . . ."

They have "wined and dined" the corporations and are "bound to their misdeeds to ordinary human beings."

The social worker and former director of the Warrendale Centre for Disturbed Children said he once considered Premier Robarts to be a giant, but later realized this was true only in relation to the dwarfs in the cabinet.

Mr. Brown was fired two years ago by the Warrendale board of directors after 13 years as director. He went on to establish Brown Camps Ltd., a similar treatment centre, after a bitter fight with the health department.

Extradition Bid Cost $21,908

TORONTO (CP) — Attorney-General Arthur Wishart said Tuesday the provincial government spent nearly $22,000 in its unsuccessful attempts to have Hal Banks extradited from the United States.

Replying in the legislature to Leonard Braithwaite (L—Etobicoke), Mr. Wishart said bills received so far in connection with the attempted extradition total $21,908.85.

Banks, wanted in Ontario to face perjury charges, was ordered extradited following a hearing before the extradition officer of New York state but the decision was over-ruled last week following the intervention of U.S. State Secretary Dean Rusk.

Banks is former Canadian head of the Seafarers' International Union.

Legion Will Sponsor Vimy Day Banquet

The annual Vimy Day banquet will again take place at the Legion Hall on Tuesday evening April 9th marking the 51st anniversary of the First World War battle.

The Ladies' Auxiliary for the Branch will cater to the gathering with a turkey dinner and all the trimmings.

It is indicated that many veterans from Belleville and district will be present for this event.

A fine program has been arranged and the Legion has secured a outstanding speaker in the person of Capt. Allan D. Piper, General Manager of The War Amputations of Canada Key Tag Service, Toronto. Allan is an amputation case himself and lost both hands blown off during the second World War.

There will be some colored slides taken at Vimy Memorial Service at Vimy, France, April 9th, 1967. Comrade Earl Fleming of the Belleville Branch was one of the representatives from Belleville who attended this Centennial Service and will show the slides that he secured while on the trip.

Veterans are requested to secure their tickets early as the space is limited.

Comrade Everett H. Liddle is chairman for the banquet, George Carbery, co-chairman and Don Ridley, entertainment chairman.

TV IN CLASSROOMS

HONG KONG (AP) — The Hong Kong government will put educational television into 4,000 classrooms by the end of next year. The project will cost more than a $1,000,000 and is expected to reach more than 160,000, or 16 per cent, of the colony's students by the end of 1968, an education department spokesman said.

Cigarette Advertising Ban Sought

TORONTO (CP) — The provincial government was asked Tuesday night to ban cigarettes advertising and launch a campaign to convince the province's youth that non-smoking is "the 'in' thing—respectable smart and groovy."

Fred Young (NDP—Toronto Yorkview) told the legislature the link between cigarette smoking and cancer has been proven, but cigarette sales are continuing to rise thanks to the tobacco industry's advertising campaign.

"The government might as well recognize that the group over 25 are hopeless. . . . People already hooked on the habit can't be expected to kick it."

"However, it should adopt the attitude that young people, particularly those just beginning the habit, will if given sufficient motivation kick it."

Rules Won't Bring Excellence Says New Broadcasting Head

OTTAWA (CP) — The man picked to head Canada's new and more powerful broadcasting regulatory authority feels the rules should not be used to stifle creativity.

Pierre Juneau, 45-year-old Montrealer, says the authority's aim should be to bring better broadcasting to Canada "by promoting the good things that are already there."

"Rules will not produce quality, will not produce excellence," the former National Film Board executive said in an interview Tuesday after moving into his new office as chairman of the Board of Broadcast Governors.

"They will not produce vitality or initiative.

"We must find positive ways to help and encourage initiative and vitality."

Mr. Juneau, vice-chairman of the BBG since 1966, was moved to the chairmanship Monday on the retirement of former chairman Andrew Stewart.

He is to head the Canadian Radio-Television Commission, the more powerful authority that is to succeed the BBG, when the new Broadcasting Act recently passed by Parliament goes into effect, probably in a matter of weeks.

While stating that there are "a great deal of good things on Canadian TV," Mr. Juneau makes it clear that the regulatory agency is going to do its best to foster more of them.

Most High-earning Stars Are Investing in Real Estate

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Recently Rock Hudson paid $476,000 for a 158-acre sugar beet farm he had never seen. Why? Because like most high-earning stars he needed a tax umbrella.

Hudson's property is in the little farming community of Peris in nearby Riverside County, and it's possible that he may never see it. The acreage was leased back to its previous owners, Bonnie and Clyde Smith.

Such deals are common with the big movie and television stars. A good portion of Dean Martin's $5,000,000 annual earnings is pumped into real estate. Bob Hope has become one of the biggest land owners in Southern California.

The land-hungry stars are acting under the direction of their business advisers, who know that high salaries must be invested in special ways to avoid paying a huge percentage to the government in taxes. Some of the advisers favor cattle ranches or working farms, some recommend oil ventures. Such investments offer generous deductions on the income-tax forms.

The purchase of land appears the most popular with the Hollywood investors. Psychologically it appeals to the acting breed, who are subject to the nomadic life; they seem to enjoy ownership of the good earth. The financial aspects are sound.

Beverly Hills realtor Mike Silverman, 48, whose office handled the Rock Hudson deal, explains:

"A movie star has a difficult financial problem: he can earn big money, but very often that happens only for a brief period of years. He never knows how long the career is going to last; meanwhile he is earning very taxable income.

"Real estate offers an excellent chance for saving tax dollars. If the conditions are right, the purchaser can lay out most of his purchase price in interest that is prepaid for the following five years. All of that interest is tax deductible.

"Thus he is using 'soft' dollars—money that would go to taxes if not invested—to buy property. The investment of 'hard' dollars—capital savings —can be quite small. A $500,000 purchase might involve no more than $10,000 to $20,000 in 'hard' dollars."

Interest on mortgages and other loans are deductible expenses along with real estate taxes.

Silverman cautioned that the conditions have to be right for such an investment: the seller must have owned the land for a period of time; the property should offer a chance for development or other increase in value. After the five-year period, the owner must begin payments on the principal, and that involves taxable "hard" dollars.

Silverman employs 20 salespeople to help him find properties for his clients, about 75 per cent of whom are connected with the entertainment industry. He did $15,000,000 in sales last year and expects a 20 per cent improvement this year.

Inspector To Review Situation

NAPANEE — A decision on licensing a new nursing home in the town was postponed by council Monday night until an inspector from Toronto reviews the situation.

At present, Mayor Lorne A. Smart said, the town's two nursing homes have only six or seven Napanee residents among the more than 50 patients.

Napanee council pays the home operators for the cost of maintaining the patients, then charges the municipalities who have residents living in the homes, he said.

Reeve Glenn C. Harrington remarked that the situation placed Napanee in the position of running a collection agency for the other municipalities.

Criticism of reports that the nursing homes are overcrowded prompted council members to suggest the matter be dealt with with an inspector, announced by Fire Chief F. W. Patton, arrives in town.

An agreement between Napanee town council and a Toronto engineering firm to establish an official plan for the town was approved. At a special session, council agreed to the terms of the contract at a cost of $5,500.

MORPHINE MISSING

Fascinating Aspects of English Language Are Well Handled

NEW YORK (AP)—An hour is a short time in which to do much with a subject as large as the English language, but the CBS production Strange Case of the English Language Tuesday night handled some of the more fascinating aspects well indeed.

The program didn't tackle basic grammar but took a witty and literate look at some of the more complicated twists and turns. The result was a most entertaining hour.

The program resorted to the film libraries for material to brighten up what was essentially a talk show. It showed Adlai Stevenson and Dwight D. Eisenhower using a lot of words to say little. It showed the styles of Winston Churchill and Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Narrator Harry Reasoner recalled a series of "fashionable" words and phrases "that came suddenly, were overused for a brief period and then disappeared." Among them were diplotomy, empathy, charisma and mystique.

Mario Pei, an authority on languages, called English "very practical, very flexible, extremely mobile, concrete," and said that its worst shortcoming is "the tremendous spread between the pronunciation and the spelling." He added, too, that television, radio and motion pictures are in the process of obliterating local dialects.

NBC's Telephone Hour, for so many years a musical landmark in television, will disappear as a regularly scheduled series next season. The program, while generally excellent, has pulled low rating.

Recommended tonight: The Avengers, ABC, 7:30-8:30 EST, introducing Linda Thorsen of Toronto who replaces Diana Rigg as the female half of the team of agents; Bob Hope Show, NBC, 9-10, with Anne Bancroft, Jill St. John and Arnold Palmer; Jack Benny Special, NBC, 10-11, with Lucille Ball, Johnny Carson and Paul Revere and the Raiders.

To Your Good Health

No Reason to Fear Unwanted Growth

By Dr. Joseph G. Molner

Dear Dr. Molner: I am 18 and a girl. My doctor says I should take thyroid and says my blood pressure is low. I do not have any outward impression of having an underactive thyroid such as being overweight, but I do not have much pep.

I understand that the thyroid greatly controls growth and wonder whether the medication he is giving me will cause me to grow. I am quite tall enough. — Miss A. F.

Because of the interaction of the various endocrine glands, extremely low thyroid activity can interfere with growth, although it is the pituitary, rather than the thyroid, which directly concerns growth.

It does not follow, however, that if a glandular deficiency retards growth, that over-activity will make a person grow taller than normal.

Besides that, at 18 your growth has been achieved, your bones have hardened into their finished length, and you need have no fear of suddenly starting to grow some more. You won't. There are other signs and symptoms of thyroid deficiency besides overweight and fatigue.

Dear Dr. Molner: What do you think of cod liver oil for arthritis? Taken with aspirin, would it have any bad effects? — Mrs. A. M. K.

Cod liver oil will not help a person with arthritis — unless he isn't getting enough Vitamin D, in which case he needs the vitamin, arthritis or no arthritis. More important, all of the medical experts on arthritis say the same thing.

I don't suppose it will do harm, either.

Whether aspirin is taken also is beside the point.

* * *

Dear Dr. Molner: You had a letter from a man who said he wore a hearing aid for 13 years and now having an operation he now has 90 to 95 per cent of his hearing. Please give me the doctor's name and address. — S. J. H.

It was a woman, Mrs. R. G., not a man, but that makes no difference. I can't name the doctor for you because, first, she didn't tell me that. Second, and more important, the operation, stapedectomy, is a delicate one and should be done by a specialist.

* * *

Dear Dr. Molner: Please write about sleeping habits. I say I need a good, night's sleep to do a good day's work, but the man in my life likes to stay up looking at TV until all hours even though he knows I am 45, and has noticed that I have become more nervous, and after these fights I have become so wound up that then I can't sleep or relax, and besides I don't think TV is that good to feel so tired the next day at work. I will be glad to hear from your answer in the paper. — R. E. D.

Everybody needs a good night's sleep to do a good job the next day, but some people require more sleep than others.

So quit fighting about it. Go to bed when you are ready, and let your man stay up with TV. When he gets tired enough he will go to bed earlier.

Subway-riding Can Be Fun in Paris

PARIS (AP) — At its best, subway-riding in Paris can be a pleasant affair. It's not always at its best, and they're working on that.

There are still mobs in rush hour, some stations are dark and dreary, and a lot of newfangled stock shows badly its half-century of service. But the managers of the government-run Metro are pressing at improvements, and raising fares to pay for them.

Today, on an ideal trip, a Parisian can descend a wide stairway with pink granite walls, trade into a light, airy ticket room line, watch stuffed animals displays of modern furniture and Oriental carpets. His ticket may be either second class or first class—the latter less crowded.

The tunnel decor is new enamelled aluminum panelling in say prairie green, autumn leaf yellow, Metro blue. Commuter sees clean, up-to-date advertising posters and perhaps museum pieces in glass cases.

He may even bathe his eyes with paintings by Gaga. Dufy and other masters reproduced in brilliant back-lighted displays of scattered glass.

A small box on the ceiling diffuses an aroma of pines—yes, a pine scent. Then a warm breeze wafts cool, filtered air over him.

In rubber-tired silence, the two-tone blue and pastel yellow train arrives and stops with a faint moan of the brakes.

There's a rubber-cushioned passenger strides aboard an escalator which delivers him all the way to the street, relaxed and ready to face his job or his wife.

Well, perhaps.

These features exist on segments of the vast Paris system, but few riders encounter all on the same trip. The performers and air conditioners, for example, are experimental only in a few stations. The majority of the system is still frequently stuffy and rattle-bang.

Three of the 14 main lines have been placed on pneumatic tires.

All this costs money, of course. Fares recently shot up, for example, to 18 from 11 cents a ride.

But station beautification, processing at about 20 a year, helps pay for itself, officials to pay for space.

The prettier the stations, the more advertisers are willing

New Home Recipe Reducing Plan

It's simple how quickly one may lose pounds of unsightly fat right in your own home! Just do this home recipe yourself. It's easy, no trouble at all and costs little. Just go to your drug store and ask for four ounces of Naran Concentrate. Pour this into a pint bottle and add enough fresh grapefruit juice to fill the bottle. Take two tablespoonfuls a day as needed and follow the Naran Plan.

If your first purchase does not show you a simple easy way to lose bulky fat and help regain slender more graceful curves; if eight pounds and inches of excess fat don't disappear from neck, chin, arms, abdomen, hips, calves and ankles just return the empty bottle for your money back. Follow this easy way and you'll be among the many who have tried this plan and help bring back slender curves and graceful slenderness. Note how quickly you disappear—how much better you feel. More alive, youthful in appearing and active.

Msgr. Sullivan Special Speaker at Men's Club

Rt. Rev. J. P. Sullivan addressed the regular monthly supper meeting of the Tabernacle United Church AOTS Men's Club, recently.

Msgr. Sullivan very briefly cited the ecumenical movement in the Christian church and went on saying that perhaps Christ's prayer that all christians will be united will be answered by the year 2000. He noted that we have already reached some milestones, namely the "anchor" bible and a common Hymnary. He stated that all clergy now have the same theology professors, and it is difficult to see how the denominations will survive separately, if after these clergymen go out into the field. He indicated that with the trend towards being the property of the christian church, churches will be forced to unite to survive rising costs, as well.

His theme was: "Does Man Need God"?

Everyone knew and accepted God in early times. Man had not made the startling technological advances known today, and the faith of the father was a passed on to the sons. It was felt that God, in addition to being the Spiritual Father, was necessary to help smooth life's way.

Modern times are different. Man has learned to think for himself and while he cannot yet control the elements, he can forecast their actions, and prepare himself for them. We cannot yet make rain, but we have irrigation, and almost miraculous results are becoming routine in the field of surgery and medicine. So God's role in solving human problems is rapidly diminishing.

So, the man need God? Man has proven that he can live fairly securely without Him, particularly in prosperous times. Sometimes, when things are going badly, if we are sick or distressed, we turn to Him as our human problem solver, but by and large we don't need Him.

It is this concept of God that supports the atheist in his argument that there really isn't any God at all. Such people have their need for an explanation for the existence of things through science.

Msgr. Sullivan was thanked by President A. C. Walker, who then chaired the brief business meeting.

The Club membership resolved to sponsor a team in the Belleville Minor Softball Association this year, with Ted Sprackett appointed as manager committee to handle details. Club members will be launching a sales campaign right away to sell tulip bulbs. Proceeds will be used to pay for the trimmings missionaries to be sent overseas on the "Crossroads Africa" program. The target is $36,000.

ORDERED TO PAY

TROIS - RIVIERES, Que. (CP) — Superior Court has ordered Jean-Louis Pelletier to pay $489 to cover damages caused by two dogs to a flock of geese being raised by Gaston Dupont of nearby Nicolet. The dogs killed six birds and destroyed eggs in 45 hatching nests. Owner of the second dog was not identified.

New Brunswick Gives Priority To Education, Growth, Welfare

FREDERICTON (CP) — Finance Minister L. G. DesBrisay, in tabling his New Brunswick budget Tuesday, said new taxes and other revenue-producing measures would add $3,500,000 to the provincial coffers during the fiscal year 1968-69.

The bulk of this windfall, he said, would come from increasing to 19 cents from 18 the province's gasoline tax, extending the province's six-per-cent sales tax on hotel and motel bills and taxing long-distance telephone calls and telephone rates which had hitherto been exempt.

It was time to aim government spending at priorities, the minister said, and announced a record budget with expenditures of $322,000,000—three per cent higher than 1967-68.

Revenues would fall short of expenditures at $309,000,000, leaving a deficit of $13,000,000 and increasing the net debt by March 31, 1969, to $245,000,000.

Expenditures for 1967-68 were $314,000,000 and revenues were $294,000,000.

Mr. DesBrisay also proposed abolishment of the five-per-cent discount for early payment of real property and business taxes and an annual $2 increase for the two-year driver's license fees.

Nearly all the government's department administration costs were slashed.

The highway program this year would get little more than half of the 1967-68's $52,000,000 for capital projects.

Mr. DesBrisay fixed his priorities on education, economic growth and social services, major offspring of the Program of Equal Opportunity.

Effective Jan. 1, 1967, it gave the province control of all major services and by absorbing municipalities' debts involving the services it increased the province's net debt by $67,000,000.

Education would take the big gest chunk of expenditures with $84,000,000, an increase of $5,500,000 not including "generous aid" to universities.

The task of economic growth, covering a multitude of fields, required "policies which will produce a rapidly growing number of productive employment opportunities." Natural resources, unlike most other departments had a budget increase of 40 per cent—lo more than $10,000,000.

Expenditures in the department of health and welfare would reach $72,300,000, five per cent higher than in 1967-68.

Provincial taxes would bring in the biggest single revenue—$112,698,100—with federal contributions second at more than $79,000,000.

Mr. DesBrisay also forecast the government would provide full collective bargaining rights for the province's 20,000 civil servants, including members of hospital and school boards.

Bilingual Schools Back Plan

OTTAWA (CP) — Delegates to the annual meeting of the Ontario Association of Bilingual School Association Tuesday approved in principle Premier Robarts' plan to combine Ontario's 1,446 school boards into 100 "boards of education."

The group, which started its three-day convention Monday, is the first of several French-language associations involved in Ontario education to meet here during French Week.

Tuesday's resolution suggests that the regrouping of school boards be made on a geographical basis rather than according to property evaluation as announced, to give French-Canadians better representation on the new school boards.

Order of merit awards were made Tuesda: to six leading association men.bers: Guy Raymond, Sudbury; Henry Mathta, North Bay; Gerard Colin, Toronto; Noel Berthiaume, Hawkesbury; Arthur Desjardins, Kapuskasing; and Arthur Maisonneuve, Plantagenet.

IT WAS A BLAST

The largest blast in the history of underground mining was fired in the area of Sudbury, Ont., when 464 tons of powder were used to shatter a cubic area the size of a football field into 5,000,000 tons of loose rock and ore.

Sydney Omarr's Astrological Forecasts

By SYDNEY OMARR

For March 21st

ARIES (March 21—April 19): You are able to shine through a special occasion. Fine for being with those who have power, authority. State your case. Be diplomatic but firm. Stand tall. Adhere to principles.

TAURUS (April 20—May 20): Areas previously obscure could be illuminated. Don't be afraid to seek the truth. Covering up the facts creates delay, stimulity. Fine evening for attending theater.

GEMINI (May 21—June 20): Friend may want you to be flashy, direct, even arrogant. This could cost money and prestige. Best today to heed your own counsel. Be diplomatic. Family member is wise.

CANCER (June 21—July 22): Gain business co-operation of mate, partner. Be specific. If you vacillate, others tend to become confused. Serve your own best interests by stating case with clarity.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): If you attend to chores early, you can enjoy evening hours. There are certain responsibilities which can no longer be put aside. Face issues squarely. Applies especially to work and health.

VIRGO (Aug. 23—Sept. 22): Welcome chance for new experiences, adventure. Be creative. Express yourself to fullest extent. Bright note appears in connection with finances. You could get refund or be paid a debt.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Attend to property interests. Keep up with values. Improve conditions of possessions. Day to dig in and accomplish basic tasks. You may not have time later to achieve goals. Get going.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Check mail, messages, calls be aware of late developments Communication from relative could be meaningful. Don't try too much at once. Pace yourself. Then you emerge a winner

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Decision due regarding funds — be conservative. Means don't overextend yourself. Some luxury items merely desired rather than fulfill need. Choose wisely — and choose quality.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan 19): Tendency is to be eccentric in sense that you want greater freedom. This is fine if your methods are not wild. Means draw line between freedom and license. Message clear by tonight.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): First reports today are subject to change. Realize this. Respond accordingly. Honor could be bestowed on one relative. Day is one of communication, movement and decision.

PISCES (Feb. 19—March 20): Money can come your way if you follow through on tip, advice from friend. Home improvement, adjustment appears high on agenda. Day when you add to possessions. Be moderate, sensible.

If today is your birthday you have delightful sense of humor but tend to scatter your forces. Concentrate on finishing one project at a time. Applies especially during upcoming months. Social life intensifies.

General Tendencies: Cycle high for Capricorn, Aquarius. Special word to Virgo: romantic interests demand attention.

Walter Pitman Calls School Principals 'Bunch of WASPS'

TORONTO (CP) — Walter Pitman, New Democratic Party member of the Ontario legislature for Peterborough and a former high school history teacher, Tuesday criticized Ontario high school principals.

Mr. Pitman described the principals as "just a bunch of WASPs," who view outsiders as "the unwashed" and talk to them "in a way that runs all the way from arrogance to condescension."

Mr. Pitman made his remarks at a meeting of the Ontario Secondary School Headmasters' Council, one group in many participating in the Ontario Educational Association's meeting.

He said that 82 per cent of Ontario's 580 high school principals are white Anglo-Saxon Protestants and have a tremendous communication problem because of the increasing size of Ontario's non-WASP population.

Mr. Pitman said the principals should be involving students and parents in deciding curriculum.

Because most of today's principals were in the non-protesting middle class during their teacher-training days, they find it difficult to understand why students protest, he said.

At another meeting, the director of education for the Alcoholism and Drug Addiction Research Foundation advised teachers to let young persons make up their own minds about drugs and alcohol.

Robert Robinson told the health and physical education teachers' section of the meeting that teachers should avoid laying down the law to young persons about drugs and alcohol.

He said that teachers should be concerned with providing students with facts and teaching how to assess them.

A report prepared for the Canadian Teachers' Federation says it will cost $2,000,000,000 over five or six years to correct inadequate teacher education in Canada.

Dr. John MacDonald, head of the faculty of education at Sir George Williams University in Montreal, said the cost would probably anger taxpayers, but the federal government can afford the needed facilities to improve teachers' education.

Mr. MacDonald said his report shows that poorly-trained teachers entering the school system today have little understanding of progressive education methods.

Teacher Robert Nielsen, 30, won an award for outlining how he used the Beatles' Sgt. Pepper's Lonely Hearts Club Band album to capture the interest of his students.

Mr. Nielsen won the Ontario Education Association-Globe and Mail award of merit for his description of how he introduced the album at Sir Sanford Fleming Community College at Peterborough to gain rapport with his class.

Grace MacInnis And Starr Clash Over Drug Prices

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons ground through more debate on supplementary spending estimates Tuesday but an impasse on a drug prices bill remained.

Consumer Affairs Minister Turner assured the House that a bill designed to lower drug prices has ample safety measures.

The assurances came after a brisk exchange between Grace MacInnis (NDP—Vancouver-Kingsway) and Michael Starr (PC—Ontario) over the bill, which bogged down Feb. 14 in committee debate.

Mrs. MacInnis said Mr. Turner's bill is "a definite attempt to bring down the price of prescription drugs" and added that the Commons should not recess until it is passed.

"There is one federal party in this country that does not want this done," she said, looking at the Conservatives on her right.

"She's talking about us," said Mr. Starr, the Conservative House leader, and rose to accuse the NDP of trying to blackmail his party into passing the bill.

The blackmail would entail the NDP threat to keep the Commons in session until its deals with the drug bill. Plans have been to recess until April 23 this week.

Mr. Turner said that since Feb. 14, officials of the health and welfare, consumer affairs, justice, and industry departments have reviewed proposed changes, including some from Conservatives.

Since Feb. 14, as a result of Conservative suggestions, "additional clarifications" had been made "that in our opinion ensure the safety of the bill."

Opposition deadlock, however, forced the government to give up an attempt to get supplementary spending estimates for Mr. Turner's department through the House and it went on to estimates of the defence production department.

Defence Production Minister Drury told the House that the cost of four new destroyers will be about $60,000,000 higher than the original of $142,000,000 given by former defence minister Hellyer.

Michael Forrestall (PC—Halifax) mentioned $20,000,000 per vessel during a discussion of cost control, but Mr. Drury said the completion cost for each would be "a lot closer to $50,-000,000."

The minister said contract awards for the destroyers are to be announced next month.

Report Cards Assailed

TORONTO (CP) — Report cards and marks are useless and a relic of the past, an English educationist said Tuesday.

Dr. Mary Waddington, senior lecturer at the Institute of Education of the University of London, told the Ontario Principals Association that an A proves to a child that success comes easily.

"An E labels a child as dull," she said. "An E we were not already dealing with more troubles than he can bear, we make him give up hope. . . . The child decides he cannot succeed and learns not to try."

Dr. Waddington recommended instead two interviews a year with parents, one in the autumn when the parent explains his child to the teacher and one in the spring for the teacher to discuss the child, followed by a written analysis.

To mark a child in reading is unfair and humiliating, she said, because his reading ability depends on his width of experience, his intelligence and the wealth of his family.

School Boards Will Limit Pay Increases to Three Per Cent

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario boards of education have decided on an unofficial salary scale for teachers and are sticking to their offer of a three-per-cent raise this year, it was reported Wednesday.

Jean Watson, secretary of the Ontario School Trustees' and Municipal Councillors' Association, a section of the Ontario Education Association meeting here this week, said during a panel discussion that the recommended three-per-cent increase was sent to school trustees across the province earlier this year.

Edith Butler, assistant executive secretary of the Federation of Women Teachers' Association of Ontario, said teachers are greatly concerned about the arbitrary three-per-cent figure.

"Teachers are meeting a solid wall in negotiations this year," she said.

"Trustees have a take-it-or-leave-it attitude, and I'm afraid the teachers will leave it if you don't negotiate," she told trustees on the panel.

Robert Brooks, chief negotiator for Toronto's 2,100 secondary school teachers, said there is no doubt there is an unofficial agreement between Metropolitan Toronto's six school boards not to go above the three per cent this year.

W. G. McMillen, assistant secretary of the Ontario Public School Men Teachers' Federation, said his group is opposed to the three-per-cent offer.

"We had this offer last year," he said. "The trustees got together and agreed on a common pattern of negotiations. We don't want a provincial salary scale."

Israel Invades Jordan To Fight Guerrillas

One Dead Viet Cong Wins 3-day Holiday

BEN CAT (Reuters) — One dead Viet Cong is worth three days sunbathing at the seashore for some American soldiers hunting the guerrillas around the South Vietnamese capital of Saigon, U.S. infantrymen here say.

They said soldiers who kill one or more Viet Cong in Operation Will to Win are rewarded with three days off if they killed any Viet Cong.

U.S. spokesmen said more than 500 guerrillas were killed so far in the operation, now in its second week.

"Whatever happened to what ship we lost?"

U. S. Losses Now Exceed 20,000 Men

SAIGON (CP) — More than 20,000 American troops now have been killed in Vietnam, a U.S. spokesman announced today.

The latest weekly casualty figures brought the number of men killed since January, 1961, to 20,006, he said.

But the number killed in the week ending March 16—328—was the lowest seven-day toll since the Communists launched their lunar new year offensive Jan. 31.

The announcement came shortly after South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu declared in a broadcast that government armed forces would be expanded by 135,000 men to more than 900,000.

Troops Return After Big Raid

BEIRUT, Lebanon (CP) — Israeli troops battered their way across the River Jordan today in an effort to wipe out alleged Arab guerrilla bases and were later reported withdrawing after killing about 100 Arabs they described as saboteurs.

The Israeli army command reported artillery duels across the Suez Canal with Egypt.

An Israeli spokesman said Egyptian big guns opened up on an Israeli patrol at the northern tip of the Great Bitter Lake and Israel answered the fire.

"It was purely symbolic, to show the Jordanians Egypt was backing them up," a Tel Aviv source said.

Jordan's chief of military intelligence estimated up to 15,000 Israeli troops crossed the Jordan River ceasefire line, including three armored brigades and their tanks.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: Cooler temperatures and a series of spring storms moving out of the Texas area pose a threat to weather over Ontario today and Friday. The first will likely give some rain to the lower lakes regions today. The next one could come closer to the lower lakes regions and give rain or wet snow to the southern regions on Friday.

Israeli Premier Levi Eshkol told Parliament 11 Israelis were killed and about 50 wounded. Speaking after studying the operational headquarters for the attack, he said it was launched to forestall "a new wave of terrorism about to be launched against our country."

A Jordanian communique, issued at 2 p.m. (7 a.m. EST) after more than seven hours of fighting, said the Israeli attack was checked and the Israelis, after taking heavy losses in men and equipment, were in retreat toward the River Jordan, pursued by Arab troops.

In Amman, King Hussein called for an urgent Arab Summit and asked for an emergency meeting of the Security Council to discuss the latest Israeli attack.

The first Israeli announcement of the attack said Israeli troops would return to the west bank of the Jordan after completing the operation.

Three Billion Boost Is Likely In War Costs

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressional sources say the administration is expected soon to ask $3,300,000,000 more for the Vietnam war, a request likely to spark another round of war policy debate in Congress.

The sources said Wednesday that about half the still tentative request would be earmarked for sending about 35,000 more U.S. troops to the war zone—a reported manpower move already under sharp congressional attack.

Defence department officials told Congress in January they did not estimate any need for a supplement to defence funds voted last year, barring unforeseen emergencies.

Meanwhile, Chairman J. W. Fulbright, of the Senate foreign relations committee, said reported advance notice from the White House to key Congress members on troop increases "is exactly the sort of thing I've been complaining about."

Reports on Capitol Hill say some Congress members already have been told President Johnson has decided to send 35,000 more men to Vietnam.

Israelis Use Rockets

By COLIN RUDD

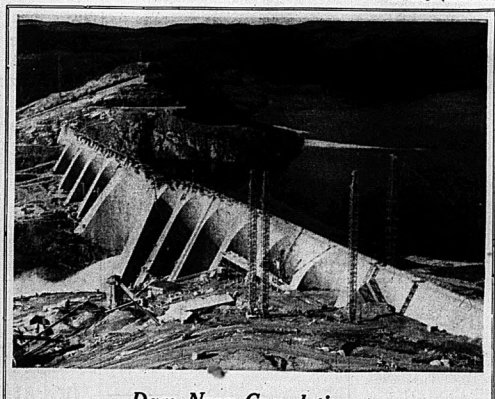
ON THE JORDAN - ISRAEL FRONT (Reuters) — Israeli Mirage jet fighters pounded Jordanian installations with rockets today as part of an attack on a 12-mile front east of the River Jordan.

The Israelis, trying to neutralize bases they claimed are used by Arab commandos, also sent troops across the King Hussein (Allenby) Bridge and the Damiya Bridge, and landed helicopter-borne troops.

The Mirages poured in rocket attacks on the Karameh area near the Damiya Bridge. Two hit the road 50 yards from the cars of a group of reporters, who scrambled in all directions and flopped flat in the dust.

The Israeli jets kept up a continuous shuttle, attacking, then soaring high and back into the border to refuel and rearm.

The largest flight of aircraft this reporter saw at one time was six coming in line and hitting Jordanian defensive positions.



Syrian Troops Placed on Alert

DAMASCUS (Reuters) — Syria today placed its armed forces on full alert and said it was in contact with Egypt, Iraq and Algeria about unified action following the latest flare-up between Israel and Jordan.

An official spokesman said contacts were going on about taking "a unified, effective attitude toward the Zionist aggression on Jordan."

The Syrian government was also in touch with Jordan on the latest developments in the fighting, he said.

It was announced that the country's popular army (militia) units were mobilized.

Compensation Is Urged For Victims of Crimes

OTTAWA (CP) — Victims of all types of crime listed as offences under the Criminal Code should be compensated, a Canadian Corrections Association study group says in a report released today.

The 22-member group, headed by Dean Thomas Feeney of the University of Ottawa law school, began the study early in 1966. The compensation plan, the most comprehensive introduced anywhere, has been sent to the prime minister and provincial premiers.

The experts recommend that each province introduce a publicly-administered system of compensation to cover loss or injury suffered by crime victims or their surviving dependents.

The compensation system also would cover persons who suffer injury or loss while helping to enforce federal or provincial legislation that provides for sanction or punishment, preventing a crime or reducing injury or loss to its victim.

Crime had to be defined for these purposes as any offence involving loss or injury to a person under the Criminal Code of Canada.

Under this definition most motoring offences would be excluded, since these were usually a matter of provincial jurisdiction and were generally covered by insurance and such schemes as unsatisfied funds.

Corporations and business firms generally carried insurance against loss through crime and should, the report said, be excluded from the scheme.

Douglas Says PM Fizzing Out

OTTAWA (CP) — NDP Leader Douglas suggested Wednesday night that Prime Minister Pearson is "sort of fizzing out"

In a television interview on the CBC program Twenty Million Questions, Mr. Douglas said he had hoped Mr. Pearson would end his political life with a little blaze of glory.

"I don't like to see any man who has been prime minister of Canada sort of fizzing out," he said. "I think it's very unfortunate."

Grant Uses LSD Says User

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The pretty blonde wife of actor Cary Grant says he took weekly "trips" on LSD for the last 10 years and tried to persuade her to try the drug.

Dyan Cannon, 30, seeking a divorce from the 64-year-old actor, testified Wednesday that he beat her and had frequent "yelling and screaming fits."

The actr ss returns to court today continuing her effort to prove that Grant is an unfi father for their two-year-old daughter, Jennifer. She is challenging his right to visit his only child.

Miss Cannon, who said she married Grant after knowing him more than five years, said he told her he had used the hallucinatory drug LSD for 10 years. During the six years she knew him, she said, "on those occasions when he took LSD, I was with him."

During his "trips" she said a doctor was present only once. Twice before their marriage, Miss Cannon said she took the drug too but never after they married.

In 1960, a psychotherapist, Dr. Mortimer Hartman, told reporters that Grant had helped in tests involving lysergic acid diethylamide, or LSD.

Grant was quoted as saying: "A lot of scientists on the west coast are grateful to me and a few others who volunteered for the treatments."

Alderman Praises Program

The various phases of the city's recreational program came in for commendation at city council this week.

Alderman Enos David, in commenting on the review of recreational activities contained in the city manager's annual report, said the committee in charge of the recreation program were doing an "excellent job".

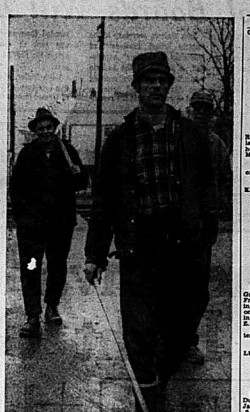
Mr. David said he was happy to see the recreational commission co-operating with schools and churches in the carrying out of their program.

Then, commenting on a statement made last week by Alderman Don Williams that comparatively little had been spent on recreational facilities in the past 20 years, Ald. David said from the completeness of the program it appeared that much more than the $100,000 mentioned had been spent.

Here, Parks board chairman, Ald. Ken Soden interjected to point out that Ald. Williams had been referring to capital expenditures, not the annual cost of the program.

The Recreation Department report noted that the recreation centre on Pinnacle Street was being used to capacity by the various groups and organizations on a regular program basis.

Attendances at some of the events such as Junior Square Dancing and T.O.P.S. is too large for the size of the centre and accommodation is required in other facilities such as the St. Thomas' Church Parish Hall or in the schools.



In fact the T.O.P.S. Club has grown to the extent that two clubs had to be formed, one meeting at the Recreation Centre and the other at the church hall.

The Recreation Committee was one of the city department which underspent last year spent less than its budget.

Budget estimates provided for an expenditure of $67,615, while actual costs amounted to $53,416.

Tweed Supermarket Opens for Business

TWEED — Local, provincial and federal dignitaries were on hand yesterday for the opening of a new grocery store in Tweed.

Present were Lee Grills, MP for Hastings, and Clarke Rollins, MPP for Hastings, as a Red and White Store on the main street received its first customers.

The store is owned by Clarence Woods who started in the grocery business in Tweed in 1960. The store was a direct result of an expanding business.

Mr. Woods bought the property where the new store stands after it was vacated by a fire in 1966. He started to build the new supermarket in Nov. of 1967 and finished in March 4 of this year.

Yesterday, after the opening ceremony, was the first day of bdsiness.

During the opening, Mrs. George Sinclair, one of Tweed's councillors, officiated, representing Reeve Barbara Allen.

Invocation was given by Rev. Howard Kennedy of Tweed.

Mr. Grills, an old neighbor of the new store owner, did the traditional ribbon-cutting for the event.

Two hampers of groceries were presented to Lt. Jessie Nosewortby of the Salvation Army by Mr. Rollins for distribution to two Tweed families.

Also on hand for the ceremony were Reeve R. Clarence Graham of Hungerford Township, Reeve Kenneth Smith of Elzevir Township and Stewart Lessard, the contractor who presented the keys to Mr. Woods.

Mr. Woods briefly thanked all the Tweed citizens for their past patronage and welcomed them all to his new store.

Cheesemakers to Discuss Imitation Dairy Products

The current status of imitation dairy products will be up for discussion by area cheesemakers next week when they convene at the Sun Valley Motor Inn at Belleville for their annual spring conference.

The spring meeting of the Central Ontario Cheesemakers' Association is scheduled for Tuesday, March 28, with afternoon and evening sessions planned.

One of the main speakers will be J. L. Baker, dairy commissioner for the Ontario Department of Agriculture and Food, who will talk on imitation dairy products.

A number of federal and provincial dairy officials are slated to speak to the conference, as well as J. A. Johnston, director of the cheese division of the Ontario Milk Marketing Board at Belleville and J. A. MacMillan, grader in charge at Belleville.

A guest at the conference will be Miss Gail Thompson, dairy princess for Hastings county.

This tiny tot was born with loss of limb, but thanks to Easter Seals and the Ontario Society for Crippled Children, the fitting of an artificial arm has generated new Hope and Opportunity for the future.

Several newly developed treatment techniques employed by the Ontario Society for Crippled Children resulted in the permanent discharge of 968 cases during the past year. And what is more encouraging, these children returned to their rightful place in the community among people who helped.

Today, early diagnosis of a physical condition by special travelling clinic teams can mean the difference between temporary or permanent disability. Age holds no barrier among this younger set when medical specialists prescribe the fitting of more functional artificial limbs on a baby for a first time, or the replacement of near obsolete units on a juvenile. At this point the Society's highly skilled district nurses and therapists begin to mould the new being in preparation for a brighter tomorrow.

The treatment and care factors are naturally important, but equally so is the participation by countless thousands of Ontario residents who donate annually to the Easter Seal Campaign. Without their help no measurement of success would be possible.

Support your local Easter Seal service club in its all out drive for much needed funds by promptly returning the pink envelope with a generous gift.

Farmers Advised to Have Best Cows in Dairy Herd

Quinte district dairy farmers were advised yesterday to increase production per cow as a way to bigger profits rather than try to achieve that end by increasing the number of cows in their dairy herds.

Harold Clapp, Ontario Dairy Cattle Specialist, told approximately 100 farmers attending the annual Hastings county winter dairy day program that increased profits were just as certain through greater production per cow—and much less work was involved.

He admitted that just as much feed would be involved and the cost may not be reduced, but fewer animals would be kept and there would be much less work.

The annual winter dairy day, sponsored by the Dairy Herd Improvement Associations and the Hastings county milk committee, was held at the George Sutherland farm on the third concession of Rawdon township.

Farmers saw Mr. Sutherland's new milking parlor and at noon enjoyed a banquet at the Stirling Oddfellows' Hall where Mr. Clapp was the keynote speaker. Several beak managers from the Hastings county area were guests for the noon banquet.

Bob Cosbey, Dairy Herd Improvement supervisor for Hastings North, was banquet chairman.

IN MEMORIAM

PARKS, William Ellis — Who passed away one year ago today, March 27, 1968.

We think of him in silence,
No eyes can see us weep,
But still within our aching hearts,
His memory we keep.

—Always remembered by Frances, Doug and great grandchildren Dougie and Tracie.

PARKS — In loving memory of a dear father, E. E. Parks who passed away March 31, 1967.

The blow was great, the shock severe,
We little thought his death so near,
Only those that have lost can tell,
The pain we suffer, without a farewell.

—Always remembered by daughter Nina and son-in-law Elwood.

CARDS OF THANKS

I wish to say thanks to my relatives and friends who sent cards and gifts, their calls at the hospital, also a special thanks to my neighbors of the second line of Thurlow, Rev. and Mrs. Spalding and Melrose U.C.W. I would like to extend my thanks to Drs. Wilkinson, Hoskin and Horne, the nurses and staff of 1st floor west for their care, and kindness while I was a patient in hospital for the past weeks. A special thank you to all.

—Claude N. Clarke, R. R. 6, Belleville, Ont.

I would like to express my sincere thanks to the John R. Bush Funeral Home, Rev Gordon Woodcock, relatives, friends and neighbors for their kindness to me during Rowland Thanks for the many beautiful floral tributes, cards, expressions of sympathy and kind deeds during the illness and loss of our loved one. Also many thanks to Dr. Wilkins, Dr. Hoskin and the nursing staff and orderlies of the Belleville General Hospital for their kindness and wonderful service.

—Mrs. Frank Travis.

Sharbot Lake OPP to Have New Office

TWEED — The Provincial Police detachment in Sharbot Lake, is expected to have its own office in about two months time. At present the detachment operates from a cramped office in the back of the village post-office building. The new headquarters will be near the junction of Highways No. 7 and 38.

Work has already commenced on the building which will contain a regular office (police), a lock - up, and an apartment in the rear, where it is expected, a constable will reside.

The construction is being done on a 'lease - back' basis, that means a private contractor puts up the building up to OPP specifications and at his own cost then leases it back to the police.

Andrew Construction of Ottawa, is doing the on - site work on a sub - contract basis.

The first day of spring brought rain to the Quinte area, helping draw the last of winter's frost from the ground. Heavy fog added to the day's dismal outlook, the loneliness of the scene suggested by this empty park bench across the Moira River from a mist-shrouded city hall.

Fog Slows Traffic to Crawl

It was the murkiest and the muddiest.

It was also the messiest first day of Spring the Quinte district has seen for many a year.

For the occasion, Spring sprung a combination of rain and fog on the area.

It rained from early morning, drawing the residue of winter frost above ground, making it muddy underfoot.

Heavy mists descended on the area later in the day forcing motorists to drive with headlights turned on.

On the Bay bridge causeway the fog was so thick traffic moved to a crawl.

Despite the poor driving conditions, however, police patrols through the area reported no road mishaps.

Request Granted

Board Opens Meetings to Press

The Bay of Quinte High School Board voted unanimously last night to admit the press to most regular and committee meetings conducted by the board.

Previously the media attended board meetings but not committee meetings.

The motion to open the meetings came following a lengthy and sometimes heated discussion on the issue.

In a letter from Donald M. Soulier managing editor of The Intelligencer, trustees were asked permission for reporters to attend all board meetings, committee meetings and committee of the whole meetings, with the exception of finance and salary negotiations.

He explained in the letter that committee meetings were covered by the press in various other cities and stated specific examples in Kingston, Peterborough, Kitchener, and St. Catharines.

In the motion to admit the press, trustee Nels McKibbon moved that it be board policy to advise and welcome the press at all committee and regular meetings excepting those involving certain finance matters and salary negotiations.

During the discussion board chairman James Clarke said, "I feel the request is reasonable and there is every reason why board and committee meetings should be fully recorded."

Trustee Bruce Pott thought it might be dangerous to open the committee meetings. "Decisions might be reported that would not be accepted by the board when they came up for final approval."

Elmer Sager claimed the meetings should be open to the press. "The reason for so coming to any conclusion is one of the most important parts of any report."

Trustee Grant Kerr argued that open committee meetings could cause problems for the board.

Trustee Gerald Irvine stated: "I think it's a two-way street. When certain matters come up and we request the information be withheld I think the press should honor the request."

"Other than discussion on personal and certain finance matters such as land acquisition, I think it is most desirable to have the meetings open," trustee Fred Fleming said, "it appears to be a question of technique."

The mover of the motion, Mr. McKibbon said he was disturbed that the letter indicated the board had a "closed door" policy. "I don't think we've ever had a policy to restrain news coverage."

"If there's any fault it lies largely with the newspaper. They never came near the board for years," he claimed.

Following the motion the board moved into committee of the whole to discuss salary negotiations and acquisition of a parcel of land.

Separate Officials Object

An objection to the proposed sale of the Marmora secondary school board has been filed with the department of education.

Separate school officials in Marmora are objecting to the takeover in the basis of the proposed valuation placed on the building and the method of calculation used to determine the selling price.

The Bay of Quinte High School Board agreed at a recent meeting to sell schools in Marmora and Stirling if the public school board in the area was interested.

A Bay of Quinte Board meeting last night an official request to purchase the buildings was received from Hastings County public school area number two. The price would be based on a method of calculation devised by the Department of Education.

The separate board is concerned over the fact that separate supporters have an interest in the secondary schools but would not have once the schools are sold.

In a letter from separate board's secretary treasurer, James Lynch, the board requested the privilege of being advised on committee negotiation on the issue. They also asked that a representative from the separate board be included in any committee set up to negotiate the sale.

The board decided to forward an inventory listing to separate school officials.

Hearing Into Union Charges Called Off

TRENTON — An Ontario Labor Relations Board hearing into charges a local firm practised union discrimination has been called off.

The hearing was originally convened Jan. 26 to investigate charges by the United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers of America that six employees of Fabricon Ltd. were fired in December for joining the union.

Proceedings were to resume this morning, but company and union officials said the hearing has been cancelled because "a solution satisfactory to all parties concerned has been arrived at."

No elaboration was given, but U. E. National Representative Douglas Tyner of Kingston said the agreement was made at a special meeting yesterday between Fabricon and union representatives and the three - member Ontario Relations Board panel.

In citing the newly - established Trenton firm for discrimination before the O.R.L.B., the union sought reinstatement of the six employees with full rights, including payment for lost time due to improper dismissal."

In a surprise move last month, Fabricon officials proposed to the union through the Board, that the aggrieved workers return to their jobs pending settlement of the dispute. (Three workers — William Houghton, John Sauve, and Hubert Syring returned to work Feb. 5; Harold Anderson had previously returned to his Fabricon job; and John Nedham and Mrs. Linda Forbes elected not to return to work, having found employment elsewhere.)

U. E. representative Mr. Tyner said the status of these ex employees would remain unchanged by yesterday's agreement and would not comment on whether union demands for compensation had been met.

Fabricon, a subsidiary of General Wire and Cable of Cobourg, began production last September in the former Downs-Coulter plant on Wragg Street.

Now employing about 60 workers, the plant is still working on a Federal government contract for copper wire processing.

Milk Dealers to Hold Line

Belleville dairies may hold the line on milk prices, despite increases in Toronto.

Two major Toronto dairies — Borden and Silverwood — have announced a price increase of two cents a quart to 23 cents for home deliveries.

The example apparently is not being immediately followed in Belleville, where milk is home-delivered at 22 cents a quart.

Official for Brookside-Price's Dairy said he had heard nothing from the company's Kingston head office about a price increase.

A management spokesman for Reid's Dairy said his company was not contemplating "any price increase at this time — just because they did it in Toronto."

Local operations were distinctly different from metropolitan dairy retailing, he pointed out.

Toronto dairies offer a more diversified range of products.

"Certain of their lines are subsidizing milk sales in Toronto right now," he said.

Gordon Roblin, operator of Roblin's Dairy indicated there would be no immediate increase in local prices.

"I can't see it in the near future," said Mr. Roblin, although "we're going to take a bit of a look at it."

"It's been close going lately," he added.

Traffic Picks Up

Not only has Spring arrived on the calendar, but other signs of this welcome season are unmistakable.

The air is warmer and members of the fair sex are heralding the approach of summer with an eye to the colorful styles this time of year inspire.

Then again ,traffic on Highway 401 at the weekends is picking up. Last Sunday, for instance, there was a noticeable increase in the number of people stopping at a service station and restaurant near Kingston. And with Expo being presented again, albeit in another guise, the number of people and cars between Windsor and Montreal likely will reach record proportions in 1968.

Inevitably, the question of traffic safety arises. The treacherous two-lane stretch between Gananoque and Long Beach, near Brockville, is still there. However, the strain has been taken off it to some extent by the addition of a separate four-lane stretch running as far as the Thousand Island Bridge. In addition there is No. 2 highway via Mallorytown, a useful alternate route.

As ever much depends on the driver. When it comes to accidents it should be remembered they don't just "happen." Rather accidents are "caused."

From the highway standpoint, however, the margin of safety is greater when there are four lanes instead of only two. That is why it is important that the existing four-lanes up to the Thousand Islands Bridge be extended as far as Brockville.

No One Immune

It is not much comfort to be reminded by the All Canada Insurance Federation that even the best drivers have accidents.

The federation provides some startling statistics from surveys conducted from coast-to-coast during the three-year period 1964-66.

Fifty-one out of every 1,000 "best" drivers will have an accident within the next year.

Other facts of the road: Single men under 25 who drive their own cars cause 50 per cent more accidents than married men under 25.

A car driven to work is, on the average, 20 to 30 per cent more likely to cause an accident than one which is not driven to work.

A car driven by a person (or family) who has had an accident in the past year is 30 to 70 per cent more likely to cause an accident than one driven by a person who has not had an accident for three or more years.

A car driven principally by a single man under 25 with no years of accident-free operation, is 3½ times as likely to cause an accident as one driven by a man over 25, without accidents, who doesn't drive to work.

Helping the Hungry

"Freedom from Hunger Sunday." This is the designation given a campaign by the Canadian Catholic Organization for Development and Peace. Associated with the period of Lent, the main emphasis comes this Sunday.

The spirit of Lent of course is any number of light years away from achieving actual freedom from hunger is a melancholy fact of life. Yet this is all the more reason why Canada and other wealthy nations should contribute what they can to those in need in less fortunate lands.

Two out of every three persons, according to the Catholic Organization, suffer from hunger. Every day, 100,000 people die of hunger and its consequences. Sunday marks the first phase of the organization's Share Lent 68 campaign to focus attention on the vital work of alleviating the plight of the hungry around the world.

Funds will be sought throughout the year, but for the campaign beginning Sunday the motto of the moment is, "Do without something in order to provide it to someone else in need."

Stanfield No Orator But He Makes Each Word Count

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — It's so strange as to be almost eerie, the way cool Conservative cat Robert Stanfield has made inroads on Lester Pearson's so - recently roaring cabinet lions.

There they were just about a month ago, snapping and snarling among themselves over who was to be lord of the federal political jungle.

And then suddenly they were sitting, each one quiet as a mouse, not merely tamed but completely cowed.

With a minimum of words — using, really, only two, "pathetic" and "incredible" — Stanfield exerted the force of maximum intimidation.

The "pathetic" he applied to the prime minister, the "incredible" to the finance minister.

And neither Lester Pearson nor Mitchell Sharp has uttered a peep of protest.

They sat as dumbly silent as the rest of the cabinet while the quiet Tory terror told them off, more in sorrow than in anger.

There were no interjections, no fighting back.

Lester Pearson didn't assume the protective stance of statesman, Mitchell Sharp did not posture in his intellectual ivory tower, but Sidney's president 'joker, Joe Greene, didn't crack wise.

None of them said anything.

Except if you count the bleak after-thoughts of the cabinet's pinup boy on External Affairs Minister John Turner who, in dismal mood of resignation, bleakly conceded that all the Liberal leadership candidates, not excluding himself, in reality were running not for the post of prime minister but for the position of opposition leader.

And that's the way it has been ever since the government's "Blue Monday" when Mitchell Sharp forgot that a finance minister above all must be able to count and found his income tax bill on the short end of the vote.

It hasn't been so much what Stanfield has said, for goodness knows, it hasn't been much — but when he has said little as it has been, he did give it devastating impact.

It's rather the way somehow he manages to exude an air of inevitability, the feel of inexorable thrust.

In some mystifying way, difficult if not impossible to explain, he has created an exhilaration among Conservatives, resignation among New Democrats and almost a reconciliation with Liberals to what to all concerned seems to be his very destiny of becoming prime minister.

He appears to instill a belief in Parliament that the very forces of history are impelling him towards power.

There is no Stanfield fire and thunder, no finger - pointing, no honking scorn, no theatricals.

Just a quiet, persuasive conviction.

The prime minister is "pathetic," he says, and the finance minister "incredible," and the very silence of the Commons, especially on the government side of the House, seems to communicate agreement.

The shaken government does not know how to handle him.

At first glance he seems to do all the wrong things.

But then, in almost everybody's surprise, they turn out to be right.

He "pairs" with the prime minister on an important vote, saying it's only the "decent thing to do." And after laughing themselves silly, his critics hear people say it was the "reasonable" thing.

He gives the distraught prime minister 24 hours after the government's defeat on the first tax measure to sort things out. And when everybody quits laughing at this supposed naivety, again it turns out to have been only "reasonable."

He refuses to filibuster the government into almost certain collapse. And when they finish laughing him off as a patsy — yep, that's right, again it was only "reasonable."

So is his objection without blockade of the second tax measure.

He doesn't roar and rant. Every issue isn't a crisis. He doesn't always automatically fight.

But he isn't rigid. Instead he is flexible. And what's more important, he's not "incredible," his devastatingly apt word for Mitchell Sharp. Rather he's entirely convincing.

But why isn't he all those things that Parliament, until his moment came along, expected any self-respecting opposition leader to be?

Because; he men around him will tell you, he's saving his assault forces for the big attack, for the general election which even the prime minister now says will come "soon."

And you know what? Everybody on Parliament Hill, opposition and government forces alike, believes him.

Chancellor's Achievement

Tough Budget in UK But Taxpayer Escapes Lightly

By CARL MOLLINS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Roy Jenkins, rookie chief of the British treasury, appears to have come up with the nearest thing possible to a politician's dream in his severe annual budget.

First indications are that he has appeased the international financiers who were baying for blood by putting the British on a tougher tax rack.

At the same time, his avowed "extremely harsh measures" avoid taxing the average voter more heavily where he reveres it most—in the pay packet.

In devising this balance, the chancellor of the exchequer has shown an awareness that financial and economic manipulation is as much an exercise in public relations as a scientific system.

By talking tough, listing a whole catalogue of tax measures and totting up an impressive total of cash to be extracted from the consumers, Jenkins tends to persuade Britain's creditors and international currency speculators that the country is really trying to live within its means.

The birdshot approach to taxation tends to frighten the voter, but at least he has the comfort of knowing his weekly pay is not to be reduced. In fact, he can evade some of the new taxes simply by refusing to buy heavily-taxed non-essentials.

The public relations aspect of the budget was indicated in a philosophy of taxation expounded by the chancellor.

The widely-held belief that indirect taxes such as sales tax tend to whack the poor while direct income tax weighs more heavily on the rich was rejected as "largely out of date."

The chancellor's argument was based more on the way people seem to feel about the different kinds of tax on the way the taxes actually affect a person's standard of living.

Increased indirect taxes imposed on various goods a l services could effectively reduce a man's purchasing power more than an added extraction of income tax. But the indirect tax is more palatable simply because it is indirect.

By coughing up the government's cut when the money is spent rather than when it is received as pay, the taxpayer has at least the illusion that he retains freedom of choice about how he disposes of his own money.

Jenkins also knocked another common argument that income tax tends to discourage individual incentive to work harder and earn more. There is "more allegation than reality" in the disincentive argument, Jenkins said, but again he bowed to popular feeling.

"The fact that it is so widely believed is of itself significant," he said in rejecting higher rates of income tax.

The regular meeting of the Hospital Auxiliary was held in the Nurses' Residence with the president, Mrs. Gilbert Reed presiding. A gratifying report of the Fashion Show was given the net proceeds being $1,000. Appreciation was expressed to the models, exhibitors, those who donated prizes and all others who contributed to the success of the show. The auxiliary is especially grateful to Mrs. Shapiro of the J. A. McNabb Co. who directed the stage performance.

Formation of a new social club to be active within the H. and P. E. Regimental Association, was completed at a special meeting held in the Armories this week when Lieut. Fred Lazier was named president. The new club will be known as the Ortona Club with all former members of the regiment being invited to join.

Sugar Beet Fails Out West

Windsor Star

The confirmation from Hon. William A. Stewart of the Health of the province's sugar beet industry is a hard blow to Southwestern Ontario farmers. However, it is questionable whether the industry under present economic conditions was worth saving.

According to the statement Mr. Stewart made to the legislature, the sugar beet industry has been kept running through federal government subsidies. From 1958 to 1966 these subsidies total the taxpayers $5,500,000, but this was not enough to keep the industry in good economic health. The subsidy was increased in 1967 to encourage more sugar beet production.

The acreage was increased in 1967. The crop was worth almost $4,000,000, an amount now being lost to the farmers. However, according to Mr. Stewart's statement, slightly more than half of this amount was provided by the taxpayers. The subsidy on the crop amounted to 30 cents of every dollar paid for the beets.

It is unfortunate that hundreds of farmers will be financially hurt by the loss of their sugar beet market and that some means were not evolved for softening the blow. However the survival of the industry is hardly warranted by the high subsidy rate. It was just not economically justifiable.

The closing of the Canada and Dominion Sugar Company refinery which processed the local blow to the industry may well have done the country a service. However there could be a case for some government aid for farmers badly hurt by the death of the industry. The fault cannot entirely be laid on the farmers; government policy which encouraged the expansion of a basically sick industry must share the blame.

President Johnson Comes Back Fighting

By FRANK CORNIER

WASHINGTON (AP)—"Just one final word," said Lyndon B. Johnson, and then he proceeded to deliver more than 1,900 words — words designed not only to defend his policies in Vietnam but to help ensure his political survival.

If anyone ever needed proof the president is a campaign-seasoned fighter, here was vocal evidence that for all the slogan a 1968 hasn't changed from 1964. It's "LBJ all the way."

And, from a look at the weekend headlines, one might even gain the impression that, when political survival is at stake, Johnson is a rugged infighter.

Before the LBJ counter-attack, the headlines reflected a solid week of bad news, from his standpoint: The "moral victory" over Johnson by Minnesota Senator Eugene J. McCarthy in New Hampshire's Democratic primary; the challenge to Johnson's presidency by Senator Robert F. Kennedy of New York, and finally a gold-dollar crisis of dimensions unrivalled in more than 30 years.

One might suspect Johnson would have been dismayed, if not bowed, by all this. Assuredly, he felt the onrush of events. But he came back fighting hard.

The headlines really tell the story of the Johnson counter-attack against the forces arraigned against him.

Saturday, Kennedy was given free television-radio time to announce his candidacy for the presidency. Initially, most observers thought he had the headlines wrapped up for Sunday morning newspapers.

But these seers reckoned without Johnson. Unannounced, he went before an audience of businessmen and voiced a rather determined defence of his embattled Vietnam policy.

That was only the beginning.

Simultaneously, "reliable sources" disclosed that Vietnam troop reinforcements would be moderate compared with the reported request for 206,000 additional men by Gen. William C. Westmoreland, U.S. commander in Vietnam.

What's more, the same sources disclosed that Johnson was secretly collaborating with leaders of Congress to make significant cuts in the federal budget—as the price for the higher taxes the president seeks.

Result: Johnson and the anonymous sources, wrapped into a single news account, captured a headline from Kennedy in many newspapers.

Today in History

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

March 21, 1918 . . .

The bloodless Armistice war ended 729 years ago—in 1839—when a truce was arranged between the British and New Brunswick government and the United States. The boundary between Maine and N.B. was then disputed since 1783 and war seemed imminent when the U.S. forcibly the line it claimed. The compromise of 1842 gave both Britain and U.S. about 5,500 square, miles less than each claimed.

First World War

Fifty years ago today—in 1918—A 50-mile German offensive opened on the Western Front from the River Scarpe to the Oise; enemy troops broke through British defences at several points.

British and French destroyers sunk a German destroyer and two torpedo boats in the North Sea.

Second World War

Twenty-five years ago today—in 1943—Winston Churchill announced the British 8th Army was "on the move" in southern Tunisia but warned it might take two more years to crush Hitler "and his powers of evil into dust, dust and ashes"; he outlined post-war plans for improved social order; the Admiralty announced the loss of the 1,920-ton destroyer, Lightning; Adolf Hitler, in his first address in person since 1942, admitted that Germany has become a war zone.

Immigrants From U. S.

To a sizeable number of Americans Canada is more than just a relatively empty land associated mainly with snow and cold and mounted policemen wearing scarlet jackets.

Yes, many Americans have come to know and like Canada well enough to stay. The way of life and standard of living here are comparable to what they enjoyed at home. At the same time Canada is not plagued with the disadvantages of life in the United States. The trouble over civil rights and crime in the streets come to mind.

These are some of the reasons why 19,038 Americans acquired resident status in Canada in 1967. The previous year 17,514 moved here. Today Americans are one of the main national groups entering Canada as immigrants.

CN Passenger Service "Best in North America"

MONTREAL (CP) — Passenger service is the glittering "Showcase" of Canadian National Railways but still a losing game financially.

CN President Norman J. MacMillan says the service, "the best in North America," boosts the morale of railway workers at the same time as it grabs the imagination of the public.

The forthcoming introduction of turbo-train service between Toronto and Montreal was an example of how the system obtains much free advertising and becomes a sort of public conversation piece because of passenger innovations.

Passenger volume increased 1,505,530 in Centennial Year to 18,348,159 and 1966 represented an increase of $34,000 revenue travellers over 1965.

The increases reflect CN's newly-aggressive pursuit of the passenger business, new equipment and the red, white and blue ticketing formula by which prices are adjusted to peak and low traffic days.

Some airline tricks of the trade have been gaffed by CN which, ironically enough, has a rival in Air Canada, its wholly-owned subsidiary. But Mr. MacMillan, who is a director of Air Canada, sees no conflict in his roles.

"I don't find any inconsistency," he said. "The parties are really complementary. With the advent of jets and larger aircraft, the airline as an agency for transportation of people between cities relatively close together is diminishing and airlines are no longer interested in cities 300 miles apart. It is in this area that we as a railway have the greatest future because we talk of downtown - downtown."

The turbo-trains, powered by adapted aircraft engines, are scheduled to make the Toronto-Montreal run in four hours—compared with the present five—and this compares well with the downtown - to downtown performance of air travellers.

Besides, there will always be a "hard core" of the population staying with the railway for transcontinental travel—such as persons with health problems and parents wishing to show the country to their children.

Mr. MacMillan is pictured in railway circles as a defender of the passenger services when their future was in doubt a few years ago because of their perennial—and continuing—failure to make a profit. Present CN policy is:

"... Elimination of the deficit, not the elimination of the rail passenger business."

Mr. MacMillan's thinking was apparently conditioned by his memories of the 1930s—long before he came to CN—when he and his Winnipeg friends knew there was a Toronto-Montreal train reputed to be the fastest in the British Empire.

CN had on-train hairdressers in those days and pioneered in the use of radio and telephone. Employees then got a sense of well-being from a company trying to find new ways of doing old things, and the same applies today, in the opinion of Mr. MacMillan.

But the service lost money last year although revenue passengers increased 8.9 per cent and passenger-revenue increased 26 per cent.

A five-year plan looking toward the end of the passenger deficit early in the 1970s had been found optimistic "but I still think we can eradicate it or substantially reduce it," said Mr. MacMillan.

The problems involves uneconomic lines that are operated as a public service and the CN chief did not believe the break-even point could be reached within five years.

Last year's revenue increase was accompanied by increases in operating expenses for hiring extra employees and rehabilitating rolling stock because of late delivery of new cars. The full picture was not yet available. The 1966 passenger deficit was $40,000,000 compared with $50,000,000 in 1958 at the start of a period of change.

When will the ever-all deficit disappear?

"I wouldn't like to put a time on it," said Mr. MacMillan. "It's directly related to the prosperity of Canada. CN is a barometer of the Canadian situation."

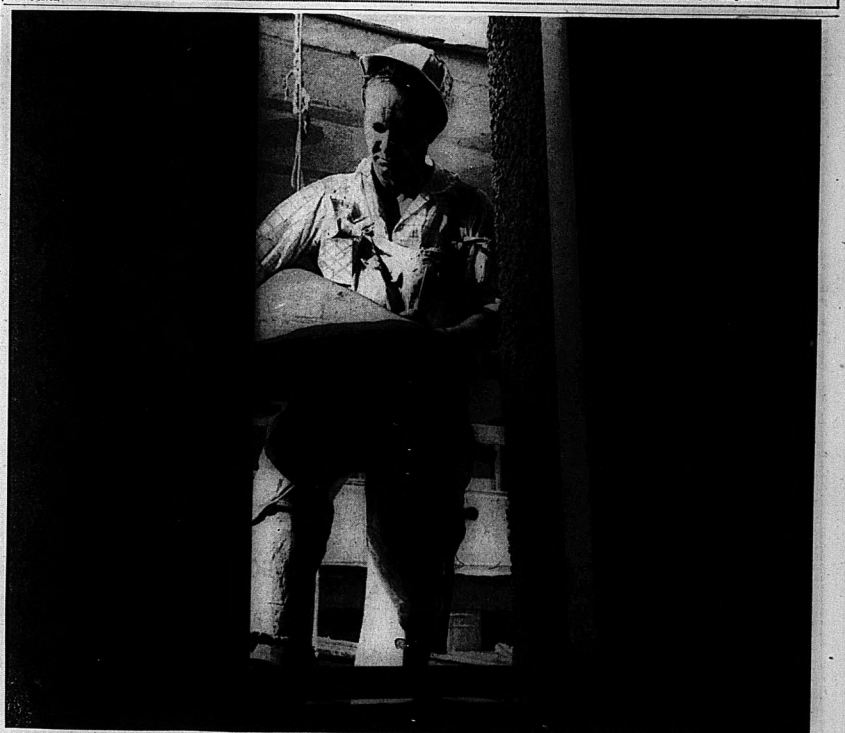
of Karameh, main target of the attack.



The Israelis said it was one of the bases from which guerrillas have harassed Israel in recent weeks.

An early Jordanian military communique said 200 Israelis were killed or wounded, three Israeli Mystere jets downed and 25 tanks and armored cars destroyed in the first hour of fighting—the first in which Israeli forces cross the River Jordan.

A Tel Aviv spokesman denied the Jordanian claim. "Our casualties are surprisingly low for an engagement of this size," he said.

Israeli military sources said about 100 Arab commandos were killed in the fighting, which was continuing in the Karameh area.

A military spokesman said Jordanian ground fire shot down one Israeli aircraft which fell on the Israeli side of the river. The pilot was saved.

(He works hard for his money and wants to know it's working hard for him.)

Dave is a construction superintendent for Grimwood—one of the largest construction companies in British Columbia. Last year, he supervised construction of the extension to B.C.'s Institute of Technology.

Dave believes he owes a great deal to his London Life policies:

"I was 16 when I took out my first policy. Of course, it wasn't for very much. It cost just a few dollars a month. But I thought it was a really good way to save, and the protection it provided would come in useful when I got older.

"Later, when I was settled in the construction business and married, I needed more protection. I wanted to build up a retirement fund, too. I believe in looking after myself."

One of Dave's policies is a $10,000 Jubilee whole life. His monthly premium is $14.12. By age 55 he will have paid in $5,592. Since 1965 he has been leaving his dividends to accumulate. If he continues to accumulate his dividends, the policy will be worth $8,647* in cash at age 55.

"I'm a plain guy and my London Life man tells me in plain words where I stand with my policies and how they'll work for my family. I work hard for my money and I like to know where it goes—and that it's working hard for me."

Dave now owns three separate London Life policies.

"It's always been good to have the collateral these policies provide. When I was building our home and wanted to pick up a bargain in cedar shakes, I took the policies to the bank and got a cash loan there and then!

"I'm going to retire early if I can. I don't want to be swinging a hammer at 65. I'll go fishing and tour around with my wife in our camper after I'm 55—on London Life that is!

"You can't be too young to have life insurance. It's a great investment. That's why I took out a $5,000 Jubilee policy for my young godson. David is just four years old. It'll give him something to lean on when he's grown up and out on his own."

To learn more about how life insurance can protect your family and fit into your investment plans, talk to a London Life representative. And send for your free copy of the handbook "Plain talk about life insurance." Write to Department B, London Life Insurance Company, London, Ontario.

This figure is made up of $4,330 in guaranteed cash value and the balance in accumulated dividends. While dividends are not guaranteed, London Life for years has had one of the most outstanding records of dividend payments in North America.

Back to Femininity Styles Highlight Jaycettes Fashion Preview

Girl watchers can stop asking themselves: "Is it or isn't it?"

Fashion has put the stamp of femininity on spring styles, trademarking the genuine article with ruffles and lace and clouds of curls.

The evidence was presented last night at BCI and VS auditorium when Belleville-Jaycettes gave their first fashion show.

Mrs. D. L. MacKinnon was commentator, and organ music was supplied throughout the show by Scott Bradford. Barber's Flowers provided the flowers.

Mrs. Simone Hart was in charge of the event, assisted by Mrs. Susan Wilson, Mrs. Joan Clinkard, Mrs. Sharon MacLeod, Mrs. Helen Malone, Mrs. Carol Preston, Mrs. Dianne Todargo and Mrs. Wendie Wiebendink.

Artistic Ladies' Wear made the fashion forecast for '68 with the assistance of Jewell Bremmore Salon, O'Connor's Jewel Box, Maher's Shoe Store and the Walter Thornton Modelling Agency.

The changing spectrum of the spring season was reflected in the colors shown. From cool and cloudy navy, grey and muted browns the fashion palette moved into buttercup yellow, melon, turquoise, orange, avocado green and a new hot rose-red appropriately named "tulip".

Flower power is still a force to be reckoned with, from a sharp psychedelic print topping tiny grape-colored pants in a swim suit to the demure English garden print of a tailored blouse complementing a pair of spring green culottes.

Point suits, sheaths, A-line skimmers and shifts are still very much a part of the fashion scene, up-dated for spring with lacy jabots, full bishop sleeves and ruffled cuffs.

Making a come-back are capes, short boxy jackets and dirndl skirts. The "Bonnie look" was shown in a checked suit with gathered skirt cinched at the waist with a shiny belt and topped with a little waist-length box jacket.

Bonnie turned elegant for evening with a black Chantilly lace dirndl skirt worn with a white lace blouse, with a deep shoulder-wide V-neckline and long full sleeves. Neckline and wrists were outlined in deep, full ruffles.

In case all this sweetness becomes too cloying the fashion-conscious women can resort to chain belts, brass buttons, buckle trim and shiny "wet-look" black boots. A dramatic attention getter in last night's show was an orange cape, caught in front with a chain belt, trimmed with brass buttons and worn with matching slims and knee-high black boots.

The trend toward sheer organzas and chiffons was shown best in the bridal wear that climaxed the show. The bride appeared in a white nylon over nylon net Empire waisted gown, with a high ruffled neckline and more ruffles catching the long full sleeves at the wrist.

Her bridesmaid wore white sheer over buttercup yellow taffeta, with a band of white daisies outlining the high waistline and more daisies scattered over the bodice, skirt and bishop sleeves.

Emphasizing the return to style lines of the 1930s were the hair arrangements, with a profusion of curls on top and long falls trailing down the back. Twiggy eye make-up gave a round - eyed, demure look.

The favorite in footwear was the shoe with a shiny "patina finish" fashioned with square toe, chunky heel and sling back. Jewelry is big, bold, either in psychedelic colors or bright gold. Earrings continue to dangle.

Models were provided by the Walter Thornton, Modelling Agency. They were Lynda Young, Pam McFarlane, Debbie Campbell, Lynn Jewell, Mary Andrews, Mrs. Betty Cairns and Mrs. Jo-Ann Hern and Clementine.

Clementine? She is a white poodle with impeccable stage presence — the ultimate in avant-gutrd accessories.

THE TOTAL LOOK — The modern British Miss now chooses her clothes to match her floor covering, like this model who wears a trouser suit of the same psychedelic design as the vinyl flooring. The new flooring was shown at a London trade fair recently. (CP Photo)

If you want corn whiskey with a little rye flavouring ...O.K.
If you want a real Rye Whiskey
Here's Alberta Premium!
Our point is simply this: most so-called "rye" is actually made from corn with a little rye added to give it the rye taste—and that goes for the big "rye" names, too. But a real rye whisky is delightfully different . . . uniquely g-e-n-t-l-e. We believe we're the only distillery in Canada making all-rye whiskies, and we're proud of it. Got an open mind? Surprise yourself with Alberta Premium.

Ann Landers

Pregnancy No Reason For Untidy Dress

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am eight months pregnant and unusually large. The doctor has told me I am not having twins, but it looks like triplets. The most important thing right now is comfort. My husband weighs 200 pounds and his old trousers fit me perfectly. I realize I do not look like a fashion plate but why would anyone inspect me so?

ANN LANDERS

Last week my husband made an uncomplimentary remark about my appearance and specifically mentioned that I look terrible in trousers. I told him they are the most comfortable things around and I am not trying to make the best-dressed list.

Last night he brought his boss home unexpectedly for dinner and there I was in my favorite outfit. He was noticeably upset and let me know he wasn't happy with the way I looked.

After the boss left he yelled in a loud voice about my sloppiness and I am sure the next-door neighbors heard every word. Will you comment please? — ZEPPELIN.

DEAR ZEPP: A husband who brings his boss home unexpectedly (or anyone else for that matter) should not be critical of what he finds. This is an inconsiderate move.

Pregnancy, however, is no excuse to look like a slob. The maternity house dresses and yes, even slacks (if you prefer trousers) are extremely attractive and mighty comfortable. Be good to yourself these last few weeks. When you look better, you'll feel better.

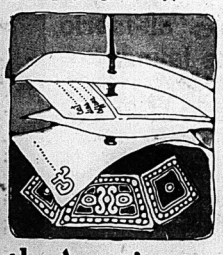
* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: We go with a group (mostly professional people) who are social drinkers. One friend in particular, Veronica, does not drink. Whenever someone offers her a cocktail she says, "Thank you, no. I am an alcoholic and I can't touch a drop of liquor." An announcement of this type invariably produces a dropped jaw and a stunned expression. I'm sure some people think she's nuts.

The other evening I took Veronica aside and told her it wasn't necessary to make a temperance speech, that a simple "No, thank you" would suffice.

She became indignant and declared it was her duty to educate people...to the problem of alcoholism and that she intends to crusade to this end forever. Is she a nut? — JUANITA.

DEAR J.: She may be, but if she is, she's a nut with courage and I admire her for it. Perhaps she tried saying "No, thank you" and after being pestered by well-meaning but ignorant friends to have "just one" she decided to give them the whole load. I say, hooray for Veronica.



* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I have been engaged to Gerald for four and a half years. Whenever I make a date to see the pastor about wedding arrangements Gerald either forgets, has to leave town or he takes so many tranquilizers he falls asleep for two days.

He is a mama's boy and still sits on his mother's lap when she trims his eyebrows with a cuticle scissors. He gives his mama his pay cheque and she gives him an allowance. Incidentally, Gerald is 31 years old. I am sure if I could drag him away from his mother he'd be a great husband. My question is this: How can I get him to marry me? — L.L.L.

DEAR L.L.L.: My question is this: Why in the world do you want him?"

New Fashion Line Is Created for Mature Women

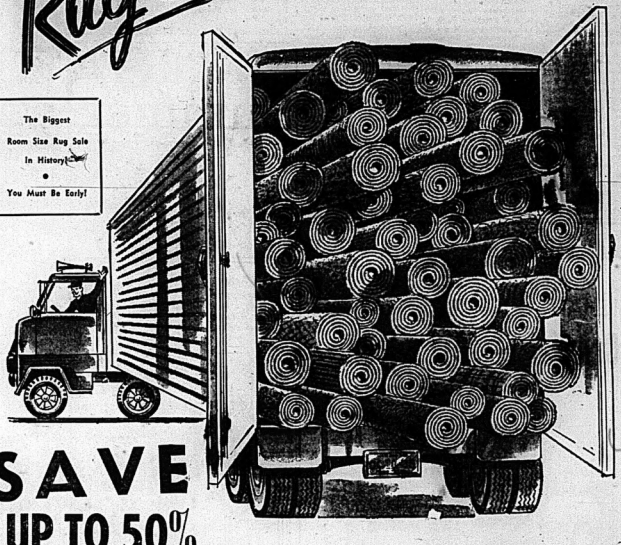
MONTREAL CP — While mature designers are still busy saturating the female fashion market with mod, mini clothes which cater primarily to the very young generation, Stanley Sklar, at 22, has created a new fashion line for the mature woman.

His first collection was previewed Tuesday and revealed a nostalgic return to the more feminine and subtle lines created through the use of chiffon, raw silk, and peu de sole richly enhanced with lavish beading.

Winner of the Du Pont Golden Shears award recently, the young Montrealer's aim is "to give the couturier look and detail at a pret-a-porter price."

The young designer who prefers to be called simply, Sklar, steers away from black and instead softens the female silhouette with gentle tones of ivory, champagne and pearly grey.

His creations show a remarkable amount of detail in seaming, darts, tucks and pleats, yet some observers felt most of the garments lacked the elegance which comes from a flawless fit of garment to model.



In most instances, the models were ultra-slim and this may have accounted for somewhat "too large" appearance of some of the items.

Hemlines reached to mid-knee and slightly longer, reflecting neither the mini- nor maxi trend but returning instead to the look of the early 1900s.

Many of the Sklar dresses featured belted and ribboned details which could be removed to render a simpler line to the dress.

Directions for Chocolate Coated Easter Eggs

By MARY MOORE

QUESTION: Last year you gave chocolate-coated Easter eggs and my mother made them up for my children. But we cannot find that recipe here or low. Do you intend to repeat it this Easter? — Nellie M.

ANSWER: I had not intended to but will.

EASTER EGGS (nine approximately 3" long x 1¾" diameter)

Coating:
6 oz. (6 squares) bitter chocolate
Fondant Centres: (uncooked)
¼ lb. butter (do not substitute)
2 lbs fresh unsifted icing sugar
1 medium-large egg
2 teaspoons vanilla
¼ teaspoon salt

In a narrow deep double-boiler, over simmering (not boiling) water melt the chocolate. (Stir this later on with fork when you are ready to do the dipping.)

Make Centres by beating in a large beater bowl the butter with icing sugar, egg, vanilla and salt until smoothly blended. (Note: Actually what you are making is a glorified hard sauce.) Remove about two-fifth of this mixture to a smaller bowl and color it yellow with ½ teaspoon (30 drops) yellow food coloring. Chill both yellow and white mixtures until hard.

Using your dessertspoon as your measure spoon out a very heaping spoonful of the yellow fondant and form into football-shaped ovals, using your buttered palms and place on buttered cookie sheet. I had nine. Chill until hard. Remove half of white fondant from refrigerator and shape 9 flat ovals, on buttered tile counter or flat plate, large enough to cover bottom halves of the 9 yolks. Place chilled yolks on these flat ovals and draw sides up to cover bottom and sides of yolks. Chill. Now shape remaining white mixture into 9 more flat ovals large enough to cover tops and sides of yolks. With buttered fingertips press top while oval down to meet bottom ovals, completely covering yolks, and smooth the seam. Chill until hard.

To dip in chocolate use two-tined fork pushing tines through one end of egg. Dip into slightly stirred chocolate, slightly tipping double boiler to make chocolate cover egg as you carefully twirl it in chocolate. Let it drip a minute before removing then set the dipped egg again on buttered cookie sheet and using tip of knife to assist you slide from fork. (The fork marks are to be touched up later.) Continue until all chilled eggs are coated. Repair fork marks by dripping liberal spoonful of remaining chocolate over them — using up all chocolate. Chill. Store Easter eggs in refrigerator. These are exceptionally good but you must realize that the filling warms up while you are working it will be sticky. Good luck!

WEDDING

MORRIS — VOSBOURGH

Frankford United Church was the setting on Saturday, March 16 at 12 noon, when Sandra Rose Vosbourgh and Billie Neil Morris were united in marriage by the Rev. John Weese in a double-ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Vosbourgh of Frankford, while the bridegroom is the son of Mr. Sandy Morris of Belleville and the late Mrs. Morris.

Wedding music was rendered by Mrs. Marilyn Sherriff of Dundas, Ontario, who also accompanied the soloist, Mrs. Jane Rathbun of Trenton.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a full-length gown of white peau de soie and chantilly lace featuring an Empire styled bodice and full-length lace sleeves, with a matching train. She wore a four-tiered silk illusion veil and carried a bouquet of white 'mums encircling orchids.

The maid of honor Miss Sharlene Vosbourgh, sister of the bride and bridesmaids Mrs. Sheila Chard, sister of the bride, Miss Nancy Miller of Belleville, Miss Suzanne Vosborough, sister of the bride as junior bridesmaid and flower girl, Miss Sandra Morris, sister of the bridegroom were identically attired. All wore hone colored and moss green silk velvet gowns with green satin bows at backs with matching velvet headdresses. The maid of honor carried a circular bouquet of yellow and white 'mums and the bridesmaids carried circular bouquets of yellow 'mums, while the flower girl carried a bouquet of daisies.

Groomsman was Keith Grills of Frankford, R. R. 3, with ushers Leon Morris of Barrie, brother of the bridegroom and Jim Chard, brother-in-law of the bride.

The reception was held in the Rose Lowery Hall where the bride's mother received the guests wearing a turquoise lace dress over taffeta with matching coat and hat, brown accessories and a corsage of pink carnations.

For the wedding trip to Niagara Falls and the U.S.A. the bride chose a two - piece green wool suit with matching hat and black accessories with a white orchid corsage.

On return Mr. and Mrs. Morris will reside at 3 Finnegan Drive, Frankford.

Two Adjudicators Will Judge Festival Talent

This year for the first time there will be two adjudicators for the Festival of Sacred Praise to be held in St. Paul's United Church, Stirling, May 6 to 8.

Mrs. Patricia Bloomfield Holt, a senior member of the Board of Examiners and the Piano Faculty of the Royal Conservatory of Music will adjudicate piano and organ selections. Mrs. Holt, who is also a popular lecturer, conducts lecture series in the history of music and music appreciation for the Conservatory and for the University of Toronto extension department.

Judging the vocal solos and other vocal renditions will be Miss Jean Marie Scott who graduated from the Royal Conservatory's Artist Diploma Course in 1949. She was immediately invited to join the voice faculty of the Conservatory. Miss Holt is also an experienced recitalist and has toured extensively in Canada. She is also keenly interested in music education for the handicapped and underprivileged children.

Due to the mid-term holiday for schools this year, the entry deadline has been extended to March 30.

Master of Ceremonies Requests Info About Wedding Toasts

Dear Doris: I was asked to be M.C. at a wed'ng. I've been at many weddings which the M.C. handled poorly, and I'd certainly hate to be in such a predicament.

As the table guests are seated the first thing is to welcome them. Next is ask the minister to say grace. During the course of the meal I could tell the odd joke or story.

Then the toasts come about. I was asked to give the toast to the bride which I gladly accepted. The question is, is there any toast given to the parents of the bridegroom and the bride? If so, who gives them? I know the groom thanks the bride's parents for the hand of their daughter. Does he do that right after dinner is over? — Please Elaborate.

Dear Elaborate: You certainly have the general idea.

Toast to bride's parents is proposed by a relative or family friend on bride's side; the one to groom's parents by dinte on groom's side.

The groom gets his turn to talk when he responds to the toast to the bride (or bride and groom); and in the course of it he gives credit and thanks to the bride's parents for their lovely daughter.

The whole program of toasts takes place right after dinner and while guests have their toasting beverage in hand.

Dear Doris: My girl in Grade 10 reads your column and can't understand why so many young girls can't confide in their mother. I have always tried to give them a straight answer. I have always kept their secrets and my promise, although if it was something they asked that I could not be sure about, I'd say, "We'll see later." That kept me in the clear.

She is liked by everyone. She goes to the school dance and as soon as she sees a boy she likes all her friends know and tease her about it. She seems to act different and it kind of scares them away. I think a few pointers on personality might help her out. — Mother of Two.

Dear Mother: That's par for the course. If she wasn't shy with boys, or otherwise upset in these first contacts, I'd say she was slightly abnormal.

Her great luck is to have a mother she fully respects to confide in. Perhaps my 10 cent leaflet "Don't Be Shy" will shed a little light on how to handle things right now. I'm sending it.

Dear Doris: I enjoy Angeline Mary Blanchard's poems and think she should go on with her writing. It fills up one's time wonderfully. She should give some thought to catchy titles, which are one's show window, as far as an editor is concerned.

I thought this limerick of hers quite entertaining; others are more serious.

Affects Both Sexes

Subtle, Yet Noticeable, Change in Clothing Started by Teens

Something is happening here . . . it's happening in the Quinte area. It's also happening throughout Hastings County, the province and on a broader scale it's happening in most of the western and a few of the eastern countries in the world.

What's happening is a subtle yet noticeable change in the clothing habits of not only teenagers but entire populations.

The women and girls are looking girlier in bright colored mini-skirts, long hair and wild accessories. Boys and men are making a switch from Ivy League fashions to clothing which is less conservative.

The switch to mod or psychedelic clothing is something which in whole or in part is encompassing the whole Quinte area.

Look around: There's a high school teacher wearing a seven color sports jacket, a business executive with a turtle neck sweater, or a candidate for the Liberal leadership donning a green leather coat.

From the women's angle a wide variance of clothing appears on the streets. We have the mini-skirt and the mini-mini-skirt, the net and shimmering nylon stockings and almost any sort of beads or earrings can be worn acceptably as an accessory.

One factor that stands out above all others in the trend to a less conservative attitude toward clothing is color. More and more in the classroom and in downtown business offices the wild oranges, yellows greens and blues are a part of the office scene.

The hippie clothing and mod fashions are part of a trend which began several years ago in England with the appearance of rock groups such as the Beatles, Rolling Stones and others who wore unusual clothing.

It spread throughout the United States and is now reaching into Canada.

Youth Parade

But one of the odd things about the teenage fad is that it spread into the next oldest generation and in some cases the next two generations.

What started out as a hippie fashion has turned into an international style change.

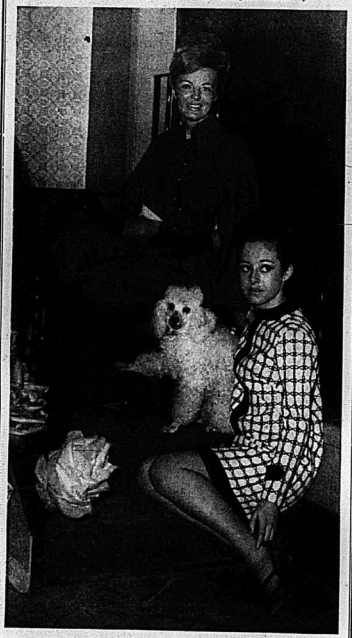
With teenagers the new types of clothing can range from scruffy blue jeans, matching jackets, while shirts, sandals to high priced mod fashions costing as much as conventional clothing.

If you don't believe psychedelic clothing has arrived take a look in the nearest dress shop, men's clothing store or even the Eaton's or Simpson's catalogues.

They're all there. The striped shirts and pants, blouses splotched with garrish colors, small and huge pieces of cloth dotted with what might be termed modern art.

With teenagers the preference in clothing is casual — comfort rather than decorum is the password.

The traditional white shirt that accompanied a suit has now changed to the pastel colored shirt. The standard blue skirt and white blouse for girls has also been pushed out of the fashion picture.



But comfort is not the only criterion for the style changes. Teenagers are aiming for individuality as well. Where the fashion of dress once marked a teenager as part of a group now it is intended to make him or her stand out from the group.

While denim jackets and blue jeans produce a casual look among the city's teens, Quinte youth are far from adopting a hippie style of clothing. But such things as beards, beads and sandals are in scant evidence around the city.

And some of the newest styles of clothing such as the "Nehru" jacket, popularized by such varied personalities as the Beatles and Johnny Carson have not yet hit the smaller centres like Belleville and Trenton.

Hair styles are an integral part of the fashion scene too. Long hair on boys is very much in evidence although it is rarely of the shoulder length variety and seldom accompanied by a beard.

The girls are staying with the long hair as well.

New Trend in Clothing

The fashion scene is changing and clothing worn by models Betty Cairns and Lynn Jewell indicates what the new trend in apparel will be. The girls were models in last night's fashion show at Belleville Collegiate.

Centennial

Enrolment to Expand

By SANDRA KINZEL

THIS YEAR we have over 669 students attending Centennial Secondary School from Belleville and Sidney township.

Next year Loyalist College students will move to their own campus on number two highway. The new building will be about one-third the size of Centennial.

Our own school will also be making changes next year. We will have about 1,200 students including those attending courses this year.

• • •

SOME OF THE newcomers will be from schools in Stirling and Rawdin townships who attended the Stirling school this year. It will be sold to the public school board next fall.

The choice of courses at Centennial will also increase. This year there were two choices in a four year program. Next year we will have a four year arts and science option in addition to the other courses.

• • •

THE SCHOOL'S staff will also be increasing next year.

This year we have 38 teachers. This will jump to about 60 teachers next fall.

Grade 7 Student Will Enter Private School on Scholarship

A grade 7 student at Harry J. Clarke Public School has been awarded a Trinity College scholarship for entrance next year to Boulden House at the Port Hope private school.

The announcement from Angus C. Scott, school headmaster, said that Pieter William Geerkens, son of Mr. and Mrs. P. Frank Geerkens, Edgehill Road, along with two other boys, one from Sarnia and the other from Quebec.

Boys from all across Canada complete for the Trinity College scholarships which have a maximum value of $2,000.

The Harry J. Clarke principal M. M. Hackett said that to his knowledge it was rare for a boy from Grade 7 to win a scholarship to Trinity College.

"I've been dealing with grades 7 and 8 for the past 20 years and I don't remember more than one or two receiving the scholarship he said.

Pieter was in grade 5 last year and this year skipped a class to go into grade 7.

Trade Winds: — Pierre Pilote of the Chicago Black Hawks expects to be placed on the trading block before next season rolls around . . . Gordie Peverzanzi, well-known hockey referee who appeared here many times in the late fifties, is one of the officials who will work the Minnie Menard Night game. Gordy is coming free gratis and "mighty glad to help" . . .

Before the season started Red predicted that his club in L.A. would make the playoffs and the Maple Leafs would be watching from the sidelines.

The gold-encrusted governors of the NHL are too concerned over losing the rich TV market of San Francisco-Oakland which is the fourth largest market in the United States . . . Don't be surprised to see Bill Gadsby or Fern Flaman named coach of the Detroit Red Wings . . . Gordie Howe will be forty on March 31st. And still going strong.

Eddie Redmond, former Peterborough senior hockey coach, will be here for the Menard Night. That recalls the night the Petes were playing the Whitby Dunlops and Big Bus Gagnon and the Petes Wild Bill Mc-Master started a brawl. Wild Bill bit a chunk out of a Gagnon ear, drawing the blood. Coach Eddie admonished his defencemen with "Tsk, Tsk Bill, you know you cannot eat meat on Friday" . . . The trophy is valued at $10,000 and the recipient gets $500 . . . And the Leafs' team manager-coach Sid Abel takes a sly rap at the Leafs Punch Imlach. Said Abel: — "Mahovlich, Ullman and Balinowski are in good condition. They're not in shape either mentally, or physically to play hockey. I was amazed."

Mac Stevens, Dryden club of the International Hockey League who suffered a broken leg last December is up and around and may be back with the team. He had Mac can't make the Menard Night. He'd break the other leg to be here. . .

The annual Shrine Club minor hockey tournament is slated for mid April and it is expected a prominent NHL personality will be here to assist in officiating. Some twelve teams will compete under the auspices of the Belleville Minor Hockey Association. The tickets are 25 cents and remember "a man is never so tall as when he stoops to help a child" . . . The Bill Green Memorial Trophy will be presented to the player judged the "most valuable" to the 1967-68 Belleville Mc-Hawks on Minnie Menard Night. A panel of city sportsmen selected the winner. . .

Goderich Peewee Tournament

GODERICH, Ont. (CP) — Three tie games settled on a shots-on-goal basis highlighted Wednesday's action in the hockey tournament.

Toronto Christie's played a 3-3 tie with St. Catharines and won by outshooting their rivals 25-23 in the AA series.

Kim Crossman, Frank Laciak and Bob Dudley scored for Toronto, Sammy Smith with two and Art Trojan scored for St. Catharines.

Oshawa and Saskatoon played in a 1-1 tie in another AA game. Oshawa was awarded the game on a shots-on-goal tally of 26-12.

Gerry Bone scored for Oshawa and Gerry Achen for Saskatoon.

The third tie was in D series action, when Paisley earned a 3-3 tie with Hensall after scoring three goals in the third period.

Paisley won the game with its 22-16 edge in shots on goal.

Hamilton edged Scarborough Lions 2-1 and Oshawa shut out Peterborough 8-0.

Rangers In Second — Nevin Scores Three

Habs Bunch Hands 'Punch' Crunch!

By GRAHAM COX
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Miracles do cease to happen once in a while—and Wednesday night was one of those times.

Toronto Maple Leafs have taken on an aura of being unbeatable when the chips are down during the 10-year National Hockey League tenure of manager-coach Punch Imlach.

But, while they went out in style, last year's Stanley Cup champions were eliminated from the NHL's Eastern Division playoffs Wednesday, suffering a 3-2 loss to Montreal Canadiens.

It is the first time since Imlach joined the team Leafs have failed to make the playoffs, although they went to the last game of the season to make it. His first year and needed a stirring stretch drive last season to beat out Boston Bruins.

But now it's a case of learning how the other half lives and how only two other teams have felt in modern NHL history.

The big job now facing the Leafs is staying ahead of Detroit Red Wings and out of the Eastern Division cellar.

In other games Wednesday, New York Rangers took Chicago's measure 3-3 while Philadelphia Flyers padded their Western lead with a 5-1 victory over Oakland Seals, Pittsburgh Penguins doubled St. Louis Blues 4-2 and Minnesota North Stars bounced back for a 3-3 tie with Los Angeles Kings.

The Leafs hold a five-point edge over the Red Wings. Each has six games remaining. They meet tonight in Detroit in one of two scheduled games. The other has the Black Hawks at Boston. Chicago trails the Bruins by a point and a win could move them into third place in the East.

Friday St. Louis is at Los Angeles.

"We did the best we could, and it wasn't good enough. That's all there was to it," Imlach said after the game. "I don't know how many games we've lost by one goal margins lately. Too many, I'm afraid."

He also said that the first-period injury to goalie John Bower wasn't as bad as at first feared. Bruce Gamble replaced Bower and gave up all three Montreal goals.

Bower had his left wrist cut by a skate while making a save and sat out the remainder of the game.

Bobby Rousseau scored twice for the Canadiens and Mickey Redmond once while the Leafs, who battled right to the final siren, got goals from Ron Ellis and Tim Horton.

Bob Nevin, with three goals and an assist, set a blistering pace for the Rangers as they climbed into second place in the East past Boston.

Don Marshall and Orland Kurtenbach got the other New York goals while Eric Nesterenko, Doug Mohns and Stan Mikita scored for Chicago.

The goal and an assist for Mikita moved him to a five-point lead in the scoring race ahead of Phil Esposito of Boston and Jean Ratelle of New York. Mikita now has 39 goals and 42 assists for 81 points while Esposito and Ratelle have 76 points each.

Yanks "Nine" Back

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — No. 9 is back in right field for New York Yankees after a year's absence.

If Steve Whitaker wears it as well as Roger Maris once did, the Yankees' number might go up from 9 in the American League baseball standings.

The 23-year-old slugger, who showed flashes of brilliance as a rookie last season, had his contributions obscured by the Yanks' third dismal finish in three years.

Wearing No. 28 in his first year in the majors, Whitaker batted only .243, but hit 13 homers, and had 50 runs batted in. He missed 40 games because of U.S. Army reserve commitments.

This spring he was given No. 9 worn by Maris when the latter drifted 61 homers for the Yanks over a season. No one wore the number last year after Maris was traded to the National League St. Louis Cardinals.

They'll Be Here

Veteran Eddie Marineau, ex-McFarland and current Mo-Hawk, Wayne McConnell and Greg Marchen of the 1968 Mo-Hawks join the gang Friday night for the "Minnie Menard Night" game. There's no odds on the result but it is hoped Minnie will emerge the big winner.

Buffalo Blows Big Chance

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Buffalo Bisons blew a chance to challenge for an American Hockey League playoff berth Wednesday night by losing 3-1 to Providence Reds.

The Reds needed the victory almost as much as the Bisons, since it took them five points ahead of Baltimore Clippers in the Eastern Division race for the third and last playoff berth as the Clippers dropped Hershey Bears 4-2.

A win for the Bisons would have moved them into a tie with Cleveland Barons with a game in hand and three points behind Quebec Aces in the Western race.

But they get another chance Friday when they use up another of their extra games, against the Clippers.

Bob Jones gave the Bisons a 1-0 first period lead, but they couldn't maintain their edge as Bob Leduc tied the score before the period ended and Dave Creighton and Tony Goegan scored in the second and third periods to give Providence the victory.

Menard Ticket Holders!

People with tickets for the Minnie Menard Night game are requested to be in their seats in Memorial Arena BEFORE 8:30 Friday night.

The sale of tickets at the arena box office will not start until 8:30.

This is very important because of the pre-game tickets sale.

Food City Novices Out At Brampton

Food City novices were eliminated in the Brampton tournament losing their second round games 6-2 and 3-1 to Windsor's powerful Riverside team.

The novices move to Welland today where they will bid for the tournament championship being held there.

Mike Meaker and Mike Crawford scored for the Belleville team in the first game, Meaker also getting an assist.

In the second game Bob Crawford got the lone Belleville goal on an assist from Meagher.

Kinsmen Bantams Beaten

GEORGETOWN, Ont. (CP) — Six teams were eliminated from championship play Wednesday in the annual Georgetown International bantam hockey tournament.

Preston, Newmarket, Galt, Chatham, Windsor and North Etobicoke were eliminated when they came out on the short end of two-game total scores.

Single-game scores were: Milton 11-3 Preston 6-1; Hespeler 3-1 Newmarket 1-1; Brampton 4-5 Galt 2-3; Richmond Hill 5-10 Chatham 2-2; Belleville 1-7 Windsor 2-3; Toronto Township 1-3 North Etobicoke 2-1.

The tournament began earlier this week with 45 teams divided into four groups according to population of the communities they represent.

Semi-finals will be played Friday and finals Saturday.

Vancouver Dumps Portland

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Seattle Totems pushed nearer first place and Vancouver Canucks protected their rear in the battle for fourth as both Western Hockey League clubs won Wednesday night.

Seattle trimmed San Diego Gulls 4-1 before 2,477 home fans to close within three points of the lead with seven games remaining.

Vancouver padded its fourth-place margin by dumping the league-leading Portland Buckaroos 4-2 in Portland. It left Vancouver five points up on Phoenix Roadrunners with five games left.

Allan Cup Playoffs In U.S.

VANCOUVER (CP) — For the first time, playoffs leading to the Allan Cup, emblematic of senior amateur hockey supremacy in Canada, will be played in the United States.

The Spokane, Wash., Jets this week won the Western International Hockey League championship by defeating Kimberley, B.C., Dynamiters in five games of a best-of-seven playoff.

Spokane, first-place finishers in the WIHL regular season, opens the Alberta-B.C. best-of-seven series in Drumheller, Alta., Saturday and Sunday.

Remaining games will be played in Spokane. It marks the first Allan Cup elimination games outside Canada. The Canadian Amateur Hockey Association made this possible by revising a rule that required Allan Cup eliminations be played in Canada.

LONDON (CP) — Real Madrid of Spain and Juventus of Italy Wednesday joined Benfica of Portugal and Manchester United of England in the semi-finals of the European Cup—Europe's top club soccer competition.

Real, six times winner of the trophy, lost 2-1 to Sparta Prague in their second leg quarter-final in Prague. Juventus-Vasas, but a 3-0 first-leg victory gave the Spaniards a 4-2 aggregate victory.

Juventus won a 1-0 victory over Eintracht Brunswick of West Germany in their quarter-final playoff in Berne. The teams earlier tied 3-3 after their home-and-away games.

S.V. Hamburg of West Germany reached the semi-finals of the European Cup Winners' Cup when it beat Olympique Lyonnais of France 2-0 in their quarter-final playoff in Hamburg.

A.C. Milan of Italy also qualified for the semi-finals of the European Cup Winners. Cup with a 2-0 victory over Standard Liege of Belgium in Milan.

In the English League, Leeds United took over the leadership of the First Division Wednesday night when they battled to a scoreless tie with Chelsea.

Easy does it.

Maybe for you. Not for us. When it comes to making 5 Star, there's only one way. The difficult way. Which means selecting whiskies from our five distilleries across Canada (only Seagram's has five, by the way). Then blending and re-blending them to get 5 Star's easy taste.

Is it worth it? For you, definitely. And once you start telling your friends about this easy whisky they're missing, it'll be worth it for us too.

By the way, have you seen our elegant new bottle? Easy on the eye.

Mick's Stick Starts To Click; Bo, Jo Start Double Play!

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Bo and Jo are the talk of the baseball world these days but Houston Astros are perfectly happy with Don and Tom, thank you.

While playboy Bo Belinsky and Playboy's Jo Collins were announcing plans to get married, right-handers Don Wilson and Tom Griffin were combining Wednesday to pitch a one-hitter as the Astros edged Detroit Tigers 2-1 in an exhibition baseball game.

Phil Linz and Ed Charles, who aren't even on the roster, sparked New York Mets to a 5-1 triumph over Baltimore Orioles. Oakland's Sal Bando continued his spring slugging, cracking his sixth homer as the Athletics clubbed Cincinnati Reds 6-2.

Mickey Mantle belted homer No. 1, starting New York Yankees to a 9-1 victory over the minor league Mexico City Red Devils in the Mexican capital.

Dick Ellsworth became the first Boston hurler to work seven innings, checking his former Philadelphia Phillie teammates on one run and seven hits in a 6-1 Red Sox victory.

Orlando Cepeda's 10th-inning single scored the winning run as St. Louis Cardinals overcame eight errors and edged Los Angeles Dodgers 9-8. Willie Stargell's sacrifice fly drove in the decisive run as Pittsburgh Pirates shaded Chicago White Sox 2-1.

Three runs in the eighth inning enabled California Angels to overcome Cleveland Indians 9-7 despite five hits by the losers' Max Alvis. Chicago Cubs collected 17 hits and buried San Francisco Giants 10-4.

Atlanta Braves bombed Minnesota's Dave Boswell for eight runs in four innings and nipped the Twins 8-6. Sany Valdespino, sold by the Twins to the Braves last fall, socked a three-run homer.

The only hit allowed by Houston's Wilson-Griffin combine was a homer by Detroit's Al Kaline.

Wilson, who pitched a no-hitter last season, is expected to be one of Houston's pitching mainstays. But Griffin, a 20-year-old rookie, had only a 3-9 record last season with two minor league clubs.

While Griffin was making his pitch for a major league job, Belinsky, who is on the roster of Houston's Oklahoma City farm team, left his baseball future in doubt.

The fun-loving southpaw said he and Miss Collins, a 20-24-38 beauty once labbed as Playboy's Playmate of the Year, would be married in about four months, when her pending divorce becomes final.

Belinsky left the Houston camp earlier in the week after being denied permission to stay out past curfew on a date with Miss Collins.

Minor Hockey

The Belleville Minor Hockey Association's midget and tyke divisions held playoffs last night.

In midget, Elk's Hawks dumped the Wings 4-1, Canadiens nipped Rangers 4-3 in overtime and Bruins dumped Leafs 3-1.

Terry Pope, Jim Drummond, Harold Wilkinson and Ron Mitchell scored for the Hawks and Stan Muldoon got the Wing tally.

John Vance scored three and Brian Clarke one for Canadiens but no score sheet was turned in for Rangers.

Bruin goal - getters were Wayne Farrel, Bob Clark and Ron Richardson. Kerik scored for Leafs.

In the tyke division, Rangers nipped Seals 1-0, Flyers and Canadiens played a scoreless tie, Kings blanked Barons 2-0, Wings shaded Bruins 2-1, Penguins nudged Hawks 3-2 and Mohawks outscored Leafs 6-3.

Dean McAuley was the lone marksman in the Ranger - Seals tilt.

Kings won on goals by W. Deighton and A. Horwood.

Terry Thompson and Robert Chase supplied the Wings' counters with David Archer replying for Bruins.

Penguins' scorers were B. Slavin, D. Shaw and J. Taylor and T. Christopher fired both Hawk's goals.

Mohawks were paced by D. Duffy and R. Richardson, with pairs, E. Marineau and B. Mills. McKinney had two and Strachan one for Leafs.

Queen's University "R.A.F. Trophy" was awarded this year to Ronald J. Walsh of Belleville. Ron, a second year Arts and Science student, received the trophy from head coach Frank Tindall for being the outstanding member of the senior basketball team. Ron was an outstanding hoop star with B.C.I.

Canada Ties Scotland In World Curling

MONTREAL (CP) — Master strategist Ron Northcott is worried about Canada's easy comeback victory over the United States during the first day of the international curling championships Wednesday.

"They curled badly and they won't the next time we meet them," said Northcott, a Calgary skip who won the title in 1966. "I'm sure we'll meet them again before this thing is over and they'll never be that easy. So we'll just have to outcurl them again."

The Canadian rink, down 3-0 after the opening end, reverted to a draw game until they had taken a 4-3 lead after four ends and switched to straight takeouts for a 10-6 victory over the Americans.

The victory was the second straight for Northcott and ties him with Scotland, skipped by Chuck Hay, for the lead in the eight-rink round-robin tournament.

The second- and third-place finishers in the round-robin, which ends Friday, will play a semi-final Friday evening with the winner advancing to the final against the first-place finisher.

Northcott indicated Wednesday night that he expects both his rink and Bud Somerville's U.S. foursome from Milwaukee, Wis., to finish in the top three.

Three rinks were tied with the U.S. for third place with 1-1, won-loss records after Wednesday's opening two rounds.

The others were skipped by Pierre Boan of France, Franz Marti of Switzerland and Roy Bergiof of Sweden.

West Germany, skipped by Werner Flacher-Wappler, and Norway, skipped by Thor Andresen, were both winless after two starts.

Northcott's Canadian champions were drawn against Norway in the third round at 9:30 a.m. EST today while the U.S. met Switzerland, Scotland met France and Germany met Sweden.

Hay and his defending champions crushed the Swedes 13-7 in another second-round game Wednesday, while Switzerland squeezed out an 11-10 victory over Norway and France walloped Germany 12-4.

But the Canada-U.S. game was the most exciting and interesting of the opening two rounds.

"We curled badly-it's no solace but it's an excuse," said Somerville. "It wasn't getting the shots from my front end and if my strategy appeared to be lacking it was because I couldn't get into the right position."

Canada never really gave the Americans a chance to get into position after the opening end. Canada's third, Jim Shields, had the lowest average of shots made by the rink at 71 per cent. But that was better than Somerville whose 69 per cent was the best of the U.S. team.

Northcott went to knockout in the fifth end after taking the lead because "the ice was great for hitting."

The Canadians simply played to allow the Americans a single when Somerville had last shot for the remainder of the game.

Fancy Nancy, Dilly Killy Eye World Cup

SUN VALLEY, Idaho (CP) — Canada's Nancy Greene is a solid favorite to win her events at the international team ski races here this weekend—perhaps repeating her amazing sweep of a week ago at Aspen, Colo.

But the races will be no more than a warmup for her final dash toward her second consecutive World Cup. The events here do not count in the Cup race.

There was an anxious moment—Wednesday when Nancy Heaton the same left ankle she fractured before the Grenoble Winter Olympics last month.

She said she caught a tip of one of her skis on a practice slalom, "but it's okay and isn't bothering me any."

Miss Greene said she would have it taped for this weekend's competition.

Nancy, gold medallist in the Olympic giant slalom and the combined champion at Grenoble, is expected to take part in the slalom, giant slalom and downhill here. She swept all three events at Aspen.

Also here will be Jean Claude Killy, French triple Olympic gold medallist at Grenoble, who will have the opportunity to prove his disappointing showing at Aspen was a mere mischance.

Killy finished among the top three only once at Aspen, in the downhill.

Miss Greene, from Rossland, B.C., and Killy are leading their sections in the race for the World Cup, based on points in International Ski Federation events during the season.

The two remaining events counting toward the World Cup are at Rossland later this month and at Heavenly Valley, Calif., in April.

In the women's World Cup race, Miss Greene lead with 176 points, Isabel Mir of France is second with 136 points, Florence Steurer of France third with 134, France's Annie Famose fourth with 115 and Fernande Bochtay of Switzerland fifth with 113.

Killy is top man with 175 points, followed by Dumeng Giovanoli of Switzerland with 117 and Gerhard Nenning of Austria with 82.

Although both Miss Greene and Killy have commanding leads, both could be overtaken for the Cup. Experts, however, say the chances of that happening are slim.

Under the rules laid down by the ski federation, no skier can get more than 75 points in the slalom and giant slalom events during this whole season.

Miss Greene already has 65 points in the giant slalom and 60 in the slalom.

The World Cup is decided on points from five meets in Europe and four in North America.

NHL Scoring Leaders

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

It's a simple matter of survival—whenever Stan Mikita feels heat he jumps.

That's what the Chicago Black Hawks scoring ace did Wednesday night to pad his scoring lead atop the National Hockey League scoring race.

Although the Hawks lost 5-3 to New York Rangers, Mikita scored a goal and an assist to give him 81 points on 39 goals and 42 assists.

The heat he'd been feeling was from Phil Esposito of Boston Bruins and Jean Ratelle of New York, tied with 76 points. Boston was idle Wednesday and both Ratelle and line-mate Rod Gilbert were held off the score sheet in the Ranger victory.

Gilbert and Bobby Hull of Chicago are tied in fourth place with 75 points, Hull with a league-leading 44 goals to go with his 31 assists, and Gilbert with 29 goals and 46 assists, tops in the league.

Esposito has 32 goals and 44 assists while Ratelle has 31 and 45.

With The Trotters

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Tapdean took the lead at the gate and never looked back in winning the $3,000 feature one-mile trot Wednesday night at Windsor Raceway.

Driven by owner Clarence Lockhart of Collingwood, Ont., Tapdean paid $4.70, $2.80 and $2.50.

Dolly Mohawk won the opening race and combined with second-race winner Lucky Dominion for a tidy double payoff of $216.10.

Noral Chief beat Dr. Masten to the wire in the seventh for a quinella payoff of $52.30.

In the ninth, Jennifer Bird and Midnight Zone finished one-two and the exactor returned was $136.50.

In afternoon racing, Adios La Flame scored a 2½-length victory over Patty G. Grattan in the featured mile pace. The five-year-old mare paid $3.70, $3 and $2.30.

Royal Highlander won the opening race and combined with Springcreek Joe's victory in the second for a daily double of $64.20.

BULLETIN!

Egg Producers of Ontario

Fellow egg producers . . . this will be the first in a series of informative bulletins in which to make clear some FACTS which might have CREATED a PANIC in the egg industry before the April 9 and 10 vote.

TODAY all we hear is CONTROLS, REGULATIONS and MORE CONTROLS. No EGG FARMER really wants CONTROLS.

Our egg industry developed under natural conditions . . . are we sure we want controls NOW; At least we should know and UNDERSTAND fully the exact details which WE VOTE FOR, before we VOTE.

F.A.M.E. looked good on paper and IN THEORY.

Our proposed plan MUST lead to direct selling in the near future . . . we should know the details before we vote . . . for it is difficult to vote out an OPERATING plan and we might be TOO LATE if our present complicated, yet workable, system were disrupted by such a plan.

Protect yourself, DEMAND and get more information before this FINAL VOTE. We would appreciate letters with your views and your support. As we find it difficult to finance sufficient publicity to give the complete facts, we would appreciate donations from EGG PRODUCERS or from any man in FARMING who feels CONTROLS are restrictive and kill individual initiative . . . then we can make these BULLETINS even more informative.

Respectfully - Ont. Egg Producers.

NDP Loses Motion to Force Action on Bill on Drug Prices

OTTAWA (CP) — The Liberal government won two votes in the Commons Wednesday, but made little progress on the supplementary estimates it wants to complete by the end of this week.

The New Democrats, trying to get the Commons to take up a government bill aimed at lowering drug prices before Parliament adjourns for the Liberal leadership convention, forced a formal vote on the issue.

It was won easily by the government, 164 to 23, with the help of the Conservatives, J. A. Mongrain (Ind—Trois-Rivieres), and one New Democrat, H. W. Herridge, member for Kootenay West.

The successful Liberal motion said the Commons should adjourn until April 23 after completing passage of supplementary estimates for the current fiscal year and an interim supply bill.

It left room for other business by saying that "any other measures" could be completed before adjournment.

Stanley Knowles (NDP—Winnipeg North Centre) fought for a specific government promise to take up amendments to patent and trademark law that are designed to achieve lower prices for prescription drugs.

There has obviously been a "terrific lobby" against the bill, he said, and it is "almost certain to die"; unless the Commons acts before adjournment.

Then the House finally passed a Liberal motion to drag Ralph Cowan (L—York-Humber) from five committees. Mr. Cowan himself voted with the government on the motion, approved 146 to 29.

The Liberal caucus decided last Friday not to invite Mr. Cowan to any more caucus meetings, after he had voted against a government measure to impose a three-per-cent surtax on personal and corporation income taxes.

Still unfinished in the Commons are supplementary estimates for the defence production and industry departments, the new consumer and corporate affairs department, and the department of energy, mines and resources.

Supplementary estimates are extra expenditures planned or incurred by a government department during the current fiscal year. The Commons also has to vote interim supply—the money needed to pay the government's bills until the next supply vote after Parliament resumes April 23.

Allan MacEachen, the government House leader, accused the NDP of trying to use "political blackmail" by demanding study of the drug bill in return for help in expediting passage of the supplementary estimates.

NDP Leader Douglas accused the Liberals of putting political considerations ahead of the people's welfare.

A. B. Patterson, the acting Social Credit leader, said he shared the NDP fears that the drug bill will die on the Commons order paper if it is not dealt with promptly.

A remark by Prime Minister Pearson during the question period aroused speculation that April 25 is the date on which he plans to hand his job over to the successor the Liberal party will choose April 6.

When Mr. Douglas asked Mr. Pearson whether a planned prices-wages review board will be in operation before he steps down, the Prime Minister said he hopes for something final "between now and April 25."

Debate on supplementary estimates of the defence production department bogged down in an argument about whether the government had properly disposed of a magnesium stamping and casting plant in the Ottawa valley.

No Official Nominations Yet

OTTAWA (CP) — Nominations for the leadership of the Liberal party will be closed at noon on the opening day of the Liberal convention, Thursday, April 4, organizers reported.

Although at the latest count 15 persons had announced intentions to run for the leadership and thus succeed Prime Minister Pearson, no nominations had been filed at the office of the National Liberal Federation here late Wednesday. The period for receiving them began last Friday.

Voting is scheduled on the final day of the convention, Saturday, April 6, in the new Ottawa Civic Centre.

THE PICK OF Punch

"We know he's working for the CIA, but he's doing a useful job."

Mr. Meltzer on Real Estate

"What's Your Problem ?"

By BERNARD. C. MELTZER

Dear Mr. Meltzer: I bought a lot, but can t use it. The county board of health says the ground is almost all clay, and therefore, I will not be able to install a private sewage disposal system. This means no cesspool, French drains, or any other method of sewage disposal will work.

Id like to get my money back, but the owner refuses. Any suggestion? — Mr. H. N.

ANSWER: Your agreement of sale should have provided a clause of intent to build, with an added statement that the ground had suitable percolation for a private sewage disposal system. Lacking this clause, you are in trouble, unless you can prove the following: 1) the owner knew of your intent to build; and, 2) he also had knowledge of the poor percolation.

If you want to pursue it further, see your attorney. However, my recommendation, based on long experience, would be to sell the lot and next time you buy, make sure it's a suitable piece ofg round. Better yet, have an attorney well versed in real estate law draw an agreement that will protect you.

• • •

Dear Mr. Meltzer: When anyone walks in our house, he really has to step high. Really we're not prevtiating to be drum majorettes, but the corners and ends of our rugs are curled up. It's quite dangerous, especially at night. Please explain the cause of my trouble and how to cure it. — Mrs. S. H.

ANSWER: When a rug is new, in order to make it lay flat, the back is sized (usually with glue or shellac.) With age, wear and tear, and cleaning, the sizing disappears and the corners and ends start to curl.

To resize a rug, stretch it with the reverse side up on the floor and tack the ends so that the rug lays flat. Then brush or spray a thin coat of light shellac or a solution containing one-half pound of glue chips in two quarts of water. Let it dry thoroughly for about 48 hours. Your rugs will once more lay flat.

• • •

Dear Mr. Meltzer: Help! My house is haunted.

Quite often, for no reason at all the television picture shrinks. Also, at times a howling banshee seems to get into the radio. Why? — Mrs. S.

ANSWER: No ghosts — merely inadequate electric wiring. To prove my point c'serve whether the house does not also have the following defects: lights dim or flicker when appliances go on, appliances are slow to start and fuses blow ofues.

• • •

Dear Mr. Meltzer: I have a small bet going. I think I have won, but I need your verification before I collect.

I say that the appliance that uses the most electric current is the electric water heater. Am I right? — Mr. F. C.

ANSWER: I'm afraid you pay. The appliance that uses the most current is usually the electric range — from about 8,000 to 16,000 watts. An electric water heater usually has a current consumption up to about 9,000 watts.

• • •

Mr. Meltzer welcomes your letters and comments. Unfortunately he is unable to enter into personal correspondence with readers, but will attempt to answer as many letters as possible through his column.

Slaves to Time

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Thoughts at Large:

The ill-paid subordinate in a pinched economy is such a slave to money that he can not properly enjoy his time; the well-paid executive in an affluent economy is such a slave to time that he can not properly enjoy his money.

The hardness in the saying "tlie truth shall make ye free" is that we already have to be substantially free in order to want to reach out for the truth.

Some people cannot give up an old enemy until they have found a new one; in this respect, enmity is much like love.

• • •

There is as much, if not more, healing power in a Mozart quartet as in a box of aspirins — but some find it easier to swallow than to listen.

• • •

It is a crude over-simplification to say that an insane person is one who has lost his reason; Chesterton put the matter much more accurately when he observed that "The madman is the man who has lost everything except his reason." (Lunatics are normally much more logical than normal people, once you accept their basic premise.)

• • •

A stupid person is often more clever at concealing his sense of inadequacy than a bright person at concealing his sense of superiority; so, in that important way, which one is more intelligent?

• • •

It is only natural for a loser to explain why he lost; but for a victor to explain why he won is an oblique confession that he doesn't feel he quite deserved to.

• • •

When we speak of a man's "virtue," in the old-fashioned sense, we mean his personal honor; when we speak of a woman's "virtue," in the almost lost sense, we mean her sexual integrity — another demonstration of language as male chauvinism, in that we imagine the most important part of woman is that which she gives to, or withholds from the man.

What the attackers of pickets are too dense to understand was tersely expressed by Paul Valery, when he said: "To hit someone means to adopt his point of view."

A bore is simply someone who is supremely unaware of the stupendous gap between his image of himself and other people's image of him; the essence of the bore is that he is, intrinsically, a stranger to his own personality.

Britain Cuts Bank Rate

LONDON (AP) — The British government today cut the bank rate to 7½ per cent from eight in the wake of Britain's stiff austerity budget.

The move is designed by Prime Minister Wilson's Labor exports and more private investment in new plant and machinery.

The Bank of England rate governs interest rates throughout the nation.

It has stood at eight per cent since Nov. 19, 1967, when it was boosted ½ per cent as one of the measures associated with devaluation of the pound.

The British budget, unveiled Tuesday, imposed tax increases of nearly £1,000,000,000 in a program to cut personal spending and help make devaluation work.

The tough measures had a quick impact in hardening the pound sterling—already firmer following the Washington agreement for a two-price gold system.

Liberals To Meet In Oshawa

Lakefront Liberals from Kingston to Pickering and from Peterborough south will be congregating in Oshawa on Saturday, for the annual meeting of the Central Ontario South Liberal Association. This Association represents the eight Federal and eleven Provincial Ridings in this district. The afternoon meeting will be devoted to the election of officers for the Association, including members of standing committees of the Liberal Party in Ontario, and election of officers for the South Central Women's Liberal Association.

During the dinner recess, it is expected that leadership candidates and their representatives will hold receptions for delegates and alternates to the forthcoming leadership convention to be held in Ottawa commencing April 3. The evening meeting, commencing at 7.30 p.m. is open to the public. The Honorable Paul Martin, one of leading contenders for the leadership, will appear in person with some distinguished supporters and it is understood that all other candidates will be represented mainly by supporting Senators and members of Parliament. However, this is a grass roots meeting and delegates and alternates will be platform guests and be given an opportunity to speak as to the nature and quality of the candidates for national leadership.

Madoc Chamber Lists Officers

MADOC — About 35 businessmen were in attendance at the meeting of Madoc district Chamber of Commerce held in Madoc Hotel, with Larry Stickwood in charge.

Reeve Tom Burnside installed the new officers. They are: president, Frank Downey; secretary, Tom Rose; vice-president, Gordon Pigden; treasurer, Jack Stewart; directors, Pres Nickle, Mel Caverly, Hugh McLeod, Grant Ketcheson, Clayton Smith, Clarence Farrow and Wilfred Mannel.

Reeve Burnside said the village needed more housing to accommodate the increase in the number of secondary school teachers and OPP personnel expected. He said a committee from the Chamber of Commerce was contacting a housing firm with the proposition to build additional houses in the village.

Past president Jim Keller showed slides of his visit to Europe last year.

'Y' Members Enjoy Trip To Toronto

A highlight in the holiday period of some one hundred and forty, eight to fourteen boys and girls from the Belleville Family Y.M.C.A. was a bus trip to Toronto.

The children visited Casa Loma the home of Sir Henry Mill Pellatt. The children were impressed by the size and structure of the castle. They explored every nook and cranny of the vast building as if they were living a fairy tale.

From Casa Loma the children journeyed to Maple Leaf Gardens where they caught some of the thrill and excitement of Canada's national league ice hockey. Children could be seen peering down from the great heights of the grey and blue sections.

The final stop of the trip at Toronto City Hall found the boys and girls enthralled in the atmosphere of big city government as they sat in the city council chambers and their guide explained the surroundings to them. Early evening saw the return to Belleville of three bus loads of weary children.

Lewis Says Robarts' Cabinet Moves to Right

TORONTO (CP) — Stephen Lewis (NDP — Scarborough West) charged the Ontario government with becoming more right-wing than ever as the throne speech debate ended Wednesday in the legislature.

Mr. Lewis also gave a detailed, critical analysis of some members of Premier Robarts' cabinet.

Mr. Lewis said that both the Conservatives and Liberals have become "more right-wing" than ever before, while the NDP has moved more to the left by becoming radical in analysis and aggressive in language.

Mr. Lewis said six new Conservative members in their maiden speeches preached "endless fealty" to the free-enterprise system. He termed such speeches "the last refuge of disintegrating bourbons."

During his criticism of the Robarts cabinet, Mr. Lewis said that Transport Minister Irwin Haskett should be outside the cabinet, called Attorney-General Arthur Wishart a man who viewed the law as an arid set of definitions rather than an instrument for reform, and said Economics and Development Minister Stanley Randall was selling out the province to the United States.

In other legislature business —Premier Robarts said the government is not giving consideration to partial subsidization of hospital insurance premiums for low-income groups. Premiums under the hospital insurance plan are to be increased July 1 to $11 from $6.50 a month for families and to $5.50 from $2.25 for single persons.

—Attorney-General Wishart said his department is studying how to allow Ontario's county courts to hear divorce cases. He said his department feels it has the power to transfer jurisdiction over divorce matters to the county courts from Superior Court judges.

—John Yaremko, social and family services minister, announced cabinet approval of regulations increasing provincial subsidies to private organizations operating homes for retarded children. The government will pay 80 instead of 75 per cent of the cost of day-to-day operations of such homes. Residents of homes will also be permitted to retain pocket allowances of $15 a month.

Trustees' Group Backs County-sized Boards

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario School Trustees and Municipal Councillors' Association Wednesday gave support to an Ontario government plan to reduce to 100 from 1,446 the number of school boards in the province.

The reduction—the 100 new boards will be county-sized — will be completed by Jan. 1, 1969.

The association passed a resolution calling the county "the most satisfactory unit in most instances."

But it said recognition must be made of exceptions where existing county boundaries would not provide adequate education for the community.

A brief will be presented to the Ontario department of education asking that legislation provide for situations where units made up of only part of one county or of parts of more than one county combined would be more suitable.

'Feudal Lease' Turns Out to Be Government's Own

TORONTO (CP) — Several government members in the Ontario legislature fell into a trap set by Vernon Singer (L —Toronto Downsview) Wednesday as he discussed tenant rights.

After stating in the throne speech debate that tenants need a bill of rights to protect them from some landlords, Mr. Singer illustrated his case by quoting from a lease agreement.

"The lessee (tenant) covenants with the lessor (landlord) that the lessee hereby waives and renounces the benefit of any present or future act of the legislature," the deputy Liberal leader read.

Reform Institutions Minister Allan Grossman interjected: "I haven't got a Q.C., but I know that's illegal."

As the 6 p.m. adjournment time approached, Mr. Singer read on:

"The lessor may seize upon and sell all the goods and chattels of the lessee for payment of rent and costs."

Another clause said the landlord or an agent could enter the tenant's unit at "all reasonable times." Mr. Singer suggested that could be construed to mean almost any hour.

Premier Robarts called out that the lease was bad enough without Mr. Singer trying to stretch the meaning of "reasonable time."

Mr. Singer only smiled in agreement and read another clause stating that if the tenant failed to "remedy any default" pointed out to him by the landlord within five days he could be evicted in another five days.

The government members agreed that was a bit much.

Then, as the clock reached 6 p.m., the Liberal member came to the punch line—he had been reading from the standard form of lease used by the Ontario Housing Corp., the government's public housing agency.

As the house rose, Mr. Singer said that after he had attacked the provincial Landlord and Tenant Act as "feudal" last week, an OHC tenant had phoned him to say he had better take a look at the corporation's lease.

Psychiatrist Suggests Conditional Marriage

TORONTO (CP)—Ontario Educational Association meetings here yesterday heard discussions on marital and family life problems.

At a meeting of the Ontario Association of Continuing Education, John Rich, University of Toronto psychiatrist, suggested that marriage should have built-in renewable contract clauses and be structured along the lines of a nun's preparations for her final vows.

Dr. Rich qualified his views on marriage during his speech on man in a changing society by saying it would be essential to make sure that no children were born before the "final vows" were taken.

He said:

"Most of us fall in love many times. The theory is that we marry only once. How can we be sure that we choose the right occasion? There is altogether too much hit-and-miss in the whole situation."

At another session, Dr. Michael Grapko, director of the Institute of Child Study at the University of Toronto, told the Ontario Association for Attendance Counselling that the learning ability of a child is related to his self-esteem.

Time Needed to Find Insulin Dose

By Dr. Joseph G. Molner

Dear Dr. Molner: Recently my seven - year - old daughter was found to be diabetic so I am interested in information about that. I can't understand why her insulin intake has to be increased so often. She was taking 12 cc.'s of Lente U-40 and six or eight of semi-Lente. Now it is up to 26 cc.'s of Lente and 16 of semi-Lente. Now it requires two syringes. I don't see why a more concentrated insulin can't be used so she will need only one syringe. — W. G.

Let me correct you on one point: Insulin is measured in units rather than cc.'s.

As to determining dosage, with children a modest dose usually is given at first until the response is noted. Some may be insulin-sensitive and respond promptly to a small dose. If not, the dose is gradually increased.

The increases you mention may be because a properly effective dosage has not yet been reached. Another possibility is based on the fact that antibodies are known to form in the system, which react against insulin. This requires larger doses until the desired total effect is reached to control the disease.

If you have reached the limit in your syringe using the U-40 strength, I see no reason why you cannot switch to U-80 insulin measured with a syringe marked for that strength.

• • •

Dear Dr. Molner: Please send me your booklet, "Diabetes, the Sneaky Disease," for which I enclose 25 cents and a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

And please tell me what diabetes mellitus means. — Mrs. L. D.

The booklet will explain the disease. The term diabetes comes from the word "syphon," since in the disease there is an abnormally large flow of urine, and mellitus means sweet. Hence, "sugar diabetes."

• • •

Dear Dr. Molner: Recently I read in the paper about a clinic where they can reduce the size of the breast by plastic surgery. My breasts are so heavy that I am extremely uncomfortable. Is this procedure approved by the American Medical Association? — Mrs. R. E.

That's a thoroughly tested and accepted procedure — but I'm a bit concerned about the "clinic" you read about in the paper. I don't know whether it was a legitimate reference to a reputable clinic, or maybe a puff or advertisement for a place that isn't reputable.

To be safe, ask your regular physician to refer you to a reliable plastic surgeon, and to a dependable hospital.

Dear Dr. Molner: I drink a lot of cola, usually about 32 ounces a day. I have been told that people can become addicted to it and get sick when they miss it. I don't believe that. My husband is constantly telling me I'll rot my insides away. Is there anything to all this? — Mrs. D. M.

Well, that's quite an accumulation of mixed-up information! No, the cola drinks won't "rot your insides."

Nor will a person become addicted, but people can and do develop a strong habit — as you evidently have.

Since these drinks contain caffeine, a moderate stimulant, some folks can develop the jitters, just as some develop "coffee nerves." Individuals vary.

If you drink ordinary cola (rather than the low-calorie kind) you are getting quite a lot of sugar every day. The principal risks are, first, that you will gain weight, or second, that amount of sugar will dull your appetite and you will not get enough of some other foods that you need.

I'm no viewer - with - alarm but most folks are best off if they don't get a quart-a-day habit like yours.

Dr. Molner welcomes a 11 reader mail, but regrets that due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column wherever possible.

Actress, Linda Thorsen, Takes Over in Avengers Series

NEW YORK (AP)—On The Avengers series a surprise came in the final moments of the weekly adventure of John Steed and Mrs. Emma Peel, where a Canadian actress is the latest entry.

Through all these seasons of summer replacements, it was understood that the swinging Mrs. Peel was a footloose if not exactly fancy free widow.

Wednesday night, her husband turned up. Instead of being dead in a plane crash, he was lost all these years in the jungle. So Mrs. Peel, a little regretfully, went obediently off to the joys of housewifery—and Miss Diana Rigg who played the part, was on her way back to the stage and movies.

The episode was concerned mostly with shooting people with a drug pellet that produced amnesia and with lots of fights, but it did introduce the new girl in Steed's life. She is a very pretty, wide-eyed brunette, Linda Thorsen of Toronto and plays an agent named Tara King. She demonstrated at the outset that she is almost as good at hand-to-hand fighting as Mrs. Peel.

Fans of the droll series undoubtedly will take the switchover in stride. The show is so markable in the way it makes the most vicious evil-doing and prolonged slugfests mere part of a sprightly little comedy.

OFF THE RECORD — BY ED REED

It May Take Year for U. S. To Recover Pueblo and Crew

WASHINGTON (CP) — North Korea's exercise of "hostage diplomacy" indicates the U.S. is still a considerable distance from recovering the spy ship Pueblo, 82 crew members and the body of the 83rd injured in the Jan. 23 seizure.

It may take a year or more, it is being suggested here.

This assumption is based on the record of two American helicopter pilots captured by North Korea in 1963. Their aircraft was shot down near the demilitarized zone separating the two Koreas.

It took 365 days for the U.S. to get them back and the key point appears to have been an apology tendered by the United Nations command in Korea.

Without referring specifically to that case, North Korean spokesmen have said there exists a "precedent" through which the Pueblo incident could be settled.

The state department also has been studying closely a recent open letter to President Johnson which purports to be from the 82 officers and men—and signed by them.

The letter pleads for their repatriation and lists three conditions:

1. An admission the Pueblo intruded in the 12-mile territorial limit claimed by all Communist countries.

2. A U.S. apology.

3. Assurance U.S. ships will not intrude again.

U.S. anger at the North Korean seizure, running high in government and among the public at the time, seems to have been succeeded by resignation. Any U.S. opportunity to recover the ship and men with military action vanished by the time the Pueblo was boarded, military men say.

U.S.-North Korea talks continue on two levels. The Pueblo is discussed at the military Armistice Commission in Panmunjom where usually-vituperative public exchanges have been going on for 15 years.

Secret, direct discussions are held periodically at a lower level.

U.S. restraint is explained by the fact military action would have risked a second front in Asia—and with a Communist state which has a mutual-defence pact with the Soviet Union.

President Johnson summoned George Ball, former undersecretary of state, back to plot the U.S. approach and cool some of the more feverish calls in Congress for retaliation. The 14,787 air and naval reserves called up are still cooling their heels—perhaps Vietnam-bound.

A complicating factor has been resentment in South Korea about what is regarded as undue U.S. moderation, and resistance against any U.S. apology.

No American apology seems likely for some time. If that finally emerges as the only recourse. The president has been quoted as saying privately: "Don't get your hopes up that I'll have those boys home by Christmas."

Meanwhile, North Korea continues to wring all possible propaganda advantages from the situation—domestically and for U.S. consumption. It has hinted the crew may be published unless an apology is made —and the two American pilots released in 1964 claimed considerable ill-treatment and rough interrogation.

The U.S. insists the Pueblo was seized in international waters and the ship and crew will have to be recovered before it can be ascertained whether territorial waters were entered earlier in the mission.

An admission of intrusion then might be made, it is indicated. A full-blown apology would be another matter.

It is noted that even when the U.S. U-2 spy plane was shot down in the Soviet Union in 1960, then-president Dwight D. Eisenhower made no apology and pilot Francis Gary Powers eventually was recovered in exchange for a master Soviet spy.

No Change in Threat To U.S. Base at Khe Sanh

SAIGON (AP) — The top U.S. military spokesman in Vietnam said today there has been no change in the threat to the Khe Sanh base from North Vietnamese forces besieging it.

"There has been no significant movement either way—pulling out or reinforcing," said Brig.-Gen. Winant Sidle, the U.S. command's chief of information.

He said the command still estimated there are two North Vietnamese divisions menacing Khe Sanh, or between 16,000 and 20,000 men.

Sidle added that the danger to Khe Sanh may be the fact that monsoon weather is begidling to clear, "but that's not the overriding factor." Clearing weather permits greater and more accurate support of the base.

Astrological Forecasts

By SYDNEY OMARR

For March 22nd

ARIES (March 21—April 19): Get started on campaign which leads to greater authority, prestige and reward. You can't wait for others to discern meanings, desires. You must communicate. Get busy.

TAURUS (April 20—May 20): Stress harmony at home. Strengthen family relationships May be necessary for you to be in touch with one at a distance. Fine for planning, writing, setting up communication lines.

GEMINI (May 21—June 20): Be perceptive. Find out how you can achieve the best. Friend who is older is not necessarily wiser. Realize this. Respond accordingly. Money in connection with partnership is spotlighted.

CANCER (June 21—July 22): Study Gemini, message. Take nothing for granted. Be responsible for actions, statements, policies. Mate or partner may feel restricted Loosen reins. Suggest without dictating.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Practical affairs dominate. You may want to forget tasks, take off or blot out responsibilities. But there is a job to be done. Unless you finish it, there is little joy tonight.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): New point of view proves exciting but could cost money. Your personal magnetism attracts opposite sex. Pleasure shown — but there could be trouble if careless. React accordingly.

LIBRA (Sept. 23—Oct. 22): Heed inner voice. Follow through on hunch. Be aware, true to yourself. Learn by teaching — share knowledge. Marriage and home figure prominently. Study contracts, papers, property arrangements.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Work achieved today tends to be superficial. Means you may have to repeat some efforts, expenses. Know this. Don't take yourself too seriously. Change of routine is advisable.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Break through to fresh approach. One who is close to you makes certain demands. Takes extra effort and cash on your part. Realize this and prepare. Then disappointment is avoided.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22—Jan. 19): Take initiative. You have solid backing. Explain yourself to older individual. Many are impressed. Lunar cycle is high. Your judgment, intuition are apt to be correct. You sparkle.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): There is restriction, possible delay. But this is temporary. Don't brood worry. Disappointment is likely to boomerang in your favor. Relative provides what you need, maybe money.

PISCES (Feb. 19—March 20): Hold back on spending until you find what it is you really need. Friends may be overly enthusiastic. Wait until all the facts are tabulated, Base decision on logic, not wishful thinking.

If today is your birthday . . . circumstances early in your life caused you to be independent, unique, an unusual person who creates his or her own style. You are not a follower: you lead. Toward end of this year there is chance for change travel,greater variety.

General tendencies: Cycle high for Capricorn, Aquarius, Pisces. Special word to Libra: you are called upon to fulfill promises, obligations. Be prepared.

Bennett and Hellyer to Meet on Port Issue

VANCOUVER (CP) — A timely stretch of clam flats and adjacent seabed is the prize in a federal-provincial struggle over who is going to build and operate a giant superport in British Columbia.

Settlement of the stalemate, which could begin with a meeting soon involving Premier W. A. C. Bennett and federal Transport Minister Paul Hellyer, likely will affect not only Roberts Bank but future harbor development elsewhere.

Both Ottawa and Victoria have announced separate plans to build the port on the same spot, a silt bed and tidal flat in Georgia Strait about 15 miles south of here and close to the United States border.

The port will handle initially millions of tons of Crowsnest area coal for Japan in a $500,000,000 deal with seven Japanese steel companies.

Although ownership is a key issue in the dispute, the port system itself is in question.

The province claims ports like Roberts Bank need not be entirely under federal jurisdiction, as they now are in Canada.

In the case of Roberts Bank, the provincial government is seeking equal division of authority between Ottawa and Victoria over operation of the port.

By this method, Victoria feels it will have a substantial say in how, when and where development should take place.

In reply, Mr. Hellyer has said there will be "some changes" involving ports to "ensure an appropriate local participation in national activities."

But, he says, Roberts Bank is clearly a federal responsibility and Ottawa will build and operate it. In the meantime, the review involving local participation will proceed.

"They are not Pacific-minded," countered Premier Bennett as he announced proclamation of legislation setting up a rival British Columbia Harbors Board with authority to borrow $25,000,000 to start port development.

While the argument over who owns the land continued, federal dredges and pile drivers appeared off Roberts Bank this month and started preliminary work.

At the same time, Victoria announced it had given its highways minister the go-ahead to start buying up all the land around the Roberts Bank development.

The federal government's plan would result in a 30-year, $50,000,000 development to handle bulk shipments from a half-dozen wharves built on 1,300 acres land reclaimed from the seabed.

But without the 2,630 acres of tidal flats surrounding the area, there would be wharves but no port. The tidal flats are acknowledged provincial territory, and over this land must cross the rail lines, highways and other transportation facilities.

The flats would also be the location of numerous ancillary port operations.

While Ottawa views Roberts Bank as a specialized facility which would complement the nearby port of Vancouver, the provincial government views Roberts Bank in a somewhat different light.

To Victoria, Roberts Bank is part of the vast trading potential of the Pacific rim countries.

The provincial government wants a port which would be able to handle the largest ships, with sufficient docks to berth more than 100 vessels, and able to handle both bulk and containerized cargo.

The port would be ringed with a large industrial park crammed with port-oriented secondary industry.

The B.C. ownership argument —which is documented and prepared for submission to Ottawa —is that Roberts Bank, like a similar nearby piece of land called Sturgeon Bank, is a deposit of river silt which, though under water, still is legally real estate.

Ottawa acknowledged B.C.'s ownership of Sturgeon Bank by a 1924 agreement in which the federal government leased the area from Victoria.

Afro-Asians Want Israel Punished for Big Raid

Israel, Jordan Claim Victory

TEL AVIV (AP) — Israel forces fought their way back home Thursday night, claiming they wiped out four Arab guerrilla bases and killed 150 terrorists in their 15-hour invasion of Jordanian territory on the east side of the River Jordan.

The Israelis said they lost only 30 men. The Jordanians claimed 200 invaders killed and said only 20 Jordanians were dead. The Jordanians also claimed they knocked out most of the Israeli tanks and vehicles which crossed the Jordan.

The United States rebuked both Israel and Jordan. The state department acknowledged that the Israeli invasion was "in response to terrorist attacks" but said it was "damaging to the hope for a settlement."

Pravda, the Soviet Communist party newspaper, warned Israel to expect punishment for the attack on Jordan.

The Israeli government declined to comment.

Informed sources said Israel had ample proof of Arab sabotage activities, and Israel's delegate to the United Nations, Yosef Tekoah, had been instructed to present them.

The Israeli chief of Staff, Maj.-Gen. Haim Bar-Lev, insisted that the lightning invasion was not a reprisal for recent raids by Arab guerrillas but "an attack aimed at destroying" the bases of El Fatah, the terrorist organization which by Israeli estimate has 1,000 members.

Amman radio claimed that the invasion cost Israel dearly. It said the Jordanian forces destroyed 45 Israeli tanks and about 50 other armored vehicles and shot down five Israeli planes. It admitted the loss of 10 tanks and 10 other vehicles.

Israel acknowledged the loss of six armored vehicles and one plane but said the pilot parachuted to safety.

Britain, U.S. Oppose Move for Sanctions

UNITED NATIONS (Reuters) — Afro-Asian members of the Security Council today canvassed for a strong resolution against Israel, but faced objections from veto-holding Western powers.

Although both Britain and the U.S. severely criticized Israel for an attack on Jordan Thursday, they were reported to consider a draft calling for measures against Israel unacceptable.

The Afro-Asians, circulating a draft that condemned Israel for the attack, were understood to have sanctions against Israel in mind with their call for "steps and measures."

Canadian Ambassador George Ignatieff and the Latin American representatives were also said to have termed the Afro-Asian proposal unacceptable.

The Afro-Asian members, spearheaded by Algeria, India and Pakistan, were expected to consult privately on strategy this morning. A council meeting was scheduled for noon EST.

The Afro-Asian proposal contained four major elements.

1. The council should condemn Israel for its "large-scale" military action in flagrant violation of the UN charter and of the ceasefire resolutions.

2. Israel should be warned that acts of military reprisal could not be tolerated.

3. The council should call on Israel to desist from acts or activities in contravention of the ceasefire.

4. Secretary-General U Thant should keep the situation under review and report to the council as appropriate.

U.S. Ambassador Arthur Goldberg said the Israeli action was "out of all proportion to the acts of violence which preceded it."

He said there was no justification for reprisals. Both Israel and Jordan were pledged to observe UN ceasefire resolutions which ended the June Middle East war.

Ignatieff said that above all the council now should seek to strengthen the Middle East peace mission of special representative Gunnar Jarring.

Czech President Forced to Quit

By MARK MEREDITH

PRAGUE (Reuters) — Antonin Novotny, an old-line Stalinist, has resigned as president to clear the last major obstacle from Czechoslovakia's surge toward a more democratic form of communism.

The official news agency Ceteka today announced the presidium of the Communist party accepted Novotny's resignation, offered Thursday on grounds of ill health.

The resignation followed public clamor unprecedented in a Communist country that the president should go.

The Associated Press said that Novotny quit after the Czech party's new leadership received Soviet assurances of non-intervention in their liberalization drive.

Novotny stepped down less than 48 hours after Deputy President Oldrich Cernik returned from Moscow where top Soviet officials, including Premier Alexei Kosygin, told him they would not interfere in Czechoslovak's liberal new course of "Socialist democratization," the AP said.

The 63-year-old Novotny had ruled the country with an iron hand for 15 years.

Reds Try To Disrupt Aid by Air

SAIGON (AP) — Applying a lesson learned at Dien Bien Phu, the North Vietnamese have brought down highly mobile 37-millimetre anti-aircraft guns to attack the aerial supply line to the U.S. marines at Khe Sanh, U.S. military sources said today.

Field reports say seven of the 37-millimetre guns around Khe Sanh are believed to have been destroyed, and no planes have been lost to the new anti-aircraft weapon yet. But the reports say the guns have opened fire on C-130 cargo planes making supply drops and on jet fighter-bombers escorting the cargo carriers.

U.S. sources said the guns have an effective range of 8,000 to 10,000 feet and pack "a lot more punch" than .50-calibre machine-guns.

The machine-guns and other automatic weapons have knocked down three marine jet bombers, two cargo planes and several helicopters.

North Vietnamese forces broke the back of the French resistance at Dien Bien Phu in 1954 after 37-millimetre guns shot down plane after plane trying to parachute supplies to that beleaguered fortress, or bombing in support of the French garrison.

Cured Girl Meets Man Who Cared

OTTAWA (CP) — Eleven-year-old Denise Wiche had her first opportunity Thursday to thank former prime minister Diefenbaker personally for his help in her long battle with a serious illness.

Denise, now sparkling and healthy, and her mother, Mrs. John Wiche, of Keswick, Ont., near Toronto, met Mr. Diefenbaker in his office. They talked for almost an hour before touring the Parliament Buildings with him.

About a year ago, Denise, a Grade 3 student, became ill with what doctors thought was a fatal type of cancer.

Despondent and confined to bed, she wrote to Mr. Diefenbaker telling him of her illness and her wish to become a criminal lawyer like him. Mr. Diefenbaker replied immediately and the correspondence has continued since.

About six months ago doctors in Toronto found that Denise's illness was caused by a small lung tumor that has been cured.

Mr. Diefenbaker then extended an invitation to Denise and her mother to visit him in Ottawa and on Thursday they were able to accept.

He Walks!

Kenneth Davidson, 12-year-old Wolfville, N.S., boy, is walking again as he said he would. When he was taken to hospital in Toronto last November with both legs amputated near the hips following a motorcycle accident, he was determined he would not spend the rest of his life in a wheelchair. He is shown with the artificial legs given to him by the Ontario Crippled Children's Centre. (CP Photo)

Sharp Favors BNA Revision

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Finance Minister Mitchell Sharp, in his first campaign appearance outside Ottawa in a month, told Toronto area delegates to the Liberal leadership convention Thursday that Canadians must be prepared to make changes in their constitution.

Speaking at the last meeting in the St. George series of candidate forums at St. Lawrence Hall, Mr. Sharp said a federal government headed by him would be prepared to look "in principle" at all parts of the constitution in seeking an accommodation between English- and French-speaking Canadians.

Of the other 13 candidates for the leadership of the Liberal party, five were campaigning Thursday.

External Affairs Minister Paul Martin told a news conference in Edmonton that if he becomes prime minister after the leadership convention in Ottawa April 4-6, he will have the government meet from time to time in various parts of the country.

Trade Minister Robert Winters promised in a news conference in St. Catharines, he would reduce the number of government departments and cabinet ministers if he wins the leadership race.

Rockefeller Will Not Seek GOP Nomination

NEW YORK (AP) — Gov. Nelson Rockefeller's decision not to run for the Republican presidential nomination left Richard M. Nixon's political stock skyrocketing today and stirred heavy speculation about the possibility of a movement to draft Rockefeller.

The governor left himself open to such a development.

Nixon said: "I do not believe at this point that a draft is likely unless I make some rather serious mistake."

Rockefeller, in these words, said he is still available as the Republican candidate:

"I have said that I stood ready to answer to any true and meaningful call from the Republican party to serve it and the nation. I still so stand. I would be derelict or uncandid were I to say otherwise.

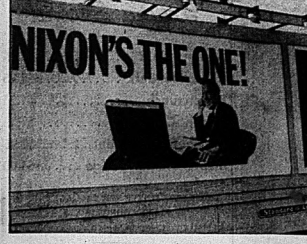
"I expect no such call. And I shall do nothing in the future, by word or deed, to encourage such a call."

The governor also said "personal combat between two presidential aspirants" would have a divisive effect on his party as well as the nation.

McCarthy, Kennedy Cheered, But LBJ's Backer Is Hissed

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Senator Eugene J. McCarthy and Agriculture Secretary Orville Freeman both addressed student audiences in Wisconsin Thursday. McCarthy drew cheers. Freeman, campaigning on behalf of President Johnson, heard hisses.

Freeman cut short a prepared speech on U.S. achievements in food production and distribution when he was unable to make himself heard above the hisses from a University of Wisconsin audience in Madison.



NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Senator Robert F. Kennedy, riding a tide of youthful anti-war sentiment in the first week of his campaign for the Democratic presidential nomination, is escalating his attacks on President Johnson.

Stimulated by another screaming reception, Kennedy charged Thursday night that Johnson is responsible for dividing the U.S.

He laid the responsibility for riots, drop-outs, drugs, and war on Johnson's doorstep and vowed to change the present course if he becomes president.

While an address written for a Vanderbilt University audience said only that "those who make present policy" are "truly dividing the country," the boisterous response from 11,000 predominantly young listeners prompted the New York Democrat to make his point crystal clear.

After a lengthy ovation, Kennedy departed from his text to shout, his hand piercing the air, "they are the ones—the president of this United States —President Johnson—they are the ones who divide us."

The One for What?

Secrecy Terminated

Cadi Says He Protected Child

GUELPH, Ont. (CP) — Magistrate Leclen Kurata said early today his only reason for ordering a reporter from his courtroom Thursday was to protect an accused man's seven-year-old son.

Verne McIlwraith, a reporter for the Guelph Mercury, was ordered from court by Magistrate Kurata during the hearing of an impaired driving charge against James R. Winfield, 44, of Guelph.

It was Winfield's second conviction on the charge and he was given the mandatory 14 days in jail. He had pleaded guilty.

Two other Guelph men, Patrick McCara and Harvey Clinton, 24, whose cases followed Winfield's, also pleaded guilty to traffic offences.

Their names and sentences were released later by Crown Attorney Richard Chaloner.

Magistrate Kurata threatened to impose a 14-day sentence on McIlwraith for contempt of court if Winfield's name or sentence was reported.

The Guelph Mercury did not report the sentence.

"We did not do it because I did not want our reporter going to jail for 14 days," said Managing Editor Joseph Collins.

After finding Winfield guilty, Magistrate Kurata asked him if he had anything to say.

"Mr. Winfield told the magistrate he wanted him to use his influence to get me not to put his name in the paper, naming me by name," Mr. McIlwraith said.

"He said he had children going to school and that other children would ridicule them and that it would be injurious to his family."

In a statement early today, Mr. Kurata said:

"My major concern in excluding the press and Mr. McIlwraith (the only member of the press there) was the fact a seven-year old child, a minor, might be affected by the evidence given by his father, and at no time was there any intention to prevent the press from having the name or sentences of any accused."

The man had pleaded guilty and had been asked if there was anything he had to say on his own behalf, the magistrate said.

"Because I didn't realize or know what would be said by him I adjourned the court and invited Mr. McIlwraith into my chambers and asked him if he would consider withholding anything the accused might have to say . . . in order that his son would not be involved."

"Mr. McIlwraith indicated to me that he would not personally co-operate and he never mentioned the policy of his newspaper. He deferred to what he termed his personal policy and bluntly refused to avoid involving the seven-year old."

Financial Planning

Planning Board Should Decide on Priorities: Kvarda

In the opinion of one of its members, Belleville and Suburban Planning Board should be responsible for deciding on priorities in the city's capital spending.

Zdenek Kvarda said he was concerned by the apparent lack of a program for future capital works.

"If city council is concerned with planning it should have looked first to the planning board only as guardian charged. "A planning board study of the city and surrounding area for the purpose of setting the capital works budget would provide more detail on matters council must consider.

"People look upon the planning board only as guardians of zoning, not as the body which should anticipate and advise on future development."

Because of the vagueness of the planning act in defining the board's responsibility for financial planning, Mr. Kvarda suggested the board "go ahead and take a hand in assisting the city with financial planning and wait to be challenged".

Mr. Kvarda said he feared the Quinte development committee set up at the last meeting of city council would overlap the planning board's area of responsibility.

His motion that "planning board sponsor a series of conferences to bring to the attention of local governments and the general public the continuing problems of planning the future of our communities", failed to find a seconder.

It was withdrawn, with a notice of motion that it would be presented for full discussion at the next board meeting.

Both planning director P. J. Beavis and Ald. E. A. Orr defended the city's 5-year capital works budget.

"It was not a series of random ideas, but a program drawn up with the co-operation of planning board staff," Mr. Beavis said. "A growing awareness on the part of the general public of the need for planning is shown by the support for urban renewal.

"However, I am delighted in finding agreement for the first time with my private opinion that the financial considerations of planning are an important part of the entire planning process."

Ald. Orr told the board the recently set up co-ordinating committee is intended to supplement the board and expand the function of the existing executive committee of Prince Edward County, Hastings, Trenton and Belleville officials.

The construction of six grade separations facing the city is "an indication of how, as a community, we have not met our obligations in the past," the planning director said.

One of these overpasses is now planned in conjunction with the Dundas St. project and the second, over the CN tracks on Sidney St. is budgeted for 1968.

Ald. Orr brought the overpass situation to the attention of the board, remarking that he was "concerned about the city's ability to continue to provide them and the lack of solution to the problem."

Mr. Beavis told the board there are 33 grade crossings in the city. Plans under way for the development of new road patterns in the city will eliminate 20 of these crossings.

"Funds available from the federal government for this purpose for the last 20 years have been used only once," he said. "The city cannot afford to ignore the grade crossing situation any longer."

A Stream Changes into A River

At this time of year even the small streams become rivers. With the spring run off the water in the Moira River has risen to a point where the small stream running through Fry Park on the Cannifton Road has turned into a full fledged river.

Claim Devaluation

Cloverleaf Drive Residents Protest Sale

Cloverleaf Drive residents' fight to prevent devaluation of their houses through the expansion of nearby commercial uses was brought before Belleville and Suburban Planning Board Thursday night.

Alex Fedirka appeared to protest the sale of a lot adjacent to Dod-Kellar Construction to the company for expansion of its business.

Approval of the transfer of the lot to the company had been deferred by Thurlow Council and referred to planning board for recommendations. The construction company now use the lot for overnight storage of its trucks and equipment.

Mr. Fedirka told the board he has lost 25 per cent of the $20,000 value of his property across from the construction company site because of the "unsightly yard littered with mud, debris and machinery, the clouds of dust stirred up by the trucks using the road and the roar of their motors".

"Cloverleaf Dr. has 26 houses valued at an average of $15,000 each," he said. "At the rate of 25 per cent devaluation because of the intrusion of industry, the investment lost is considerable."

P. J. Beavis, planning director, told the board his staff submitted a draft bylaw to Thurlow Council in November 1966, proposing the area be zoned residential. This would make the present industrial and commercial uses legally non-conforming. Planning board has followed a general policy of refusing extentions of non-conforming use.

Reeve Carl Thompson of Thurlow said his council was now in the process of giving clause-by-clause reading to the draft bylaw.

"Residents of the area are opposed to the bylaw," he said. "Three of them have told me they will spend all the money necessary to have it thrown out if it is ever passed. Some Cloverleaf Dr. owners have refused to sign off land for necessary road widening."

Reeve Thompson suggested to Mr. Fedirka that Thurlow Council might be more willing to co-operate with residents if the residents showed a more co-operative attitude to ward Council.

"This undesirable mixture of land use will continue until municipalities and residents themselves come up with solutions," commented Mr. Beavis.

The board decided to defer a recommendation of transfer of the property to the construction company until Thurlow Council has finished reading the draft zoning bylaw.

Vandalism Big Headache

Vandalism on municipally-owned parking lots is a big headache for members of the city parking authority.

The annual report of the authority shows that the replacement value of broken parts last year amounted to $1,185.60.

The great percentage of damage was done by persons breaking the interheads to obtain access to the coin boxes. In some instances meter standards were accidentally broken off through being bumped by autos.

Parking Authority chairman Glencoe E. Thompson said the past winter was the worst he could remember for vandalism.

Ten double and four single meters had castings broken; 30 windows were smashed and two double meters were found in the river, the heads damaged beyond repair.

The city now has a total of 825 parking meters — 467 of them on the streets and the remainder in municipal parking lots.

During the year, there were 21,550 violation tickets handed out while 850 courtesy tickets were issued.

Meter revenue for the year totalled $37,325.77 with another $936 taken in through sale of parking permits.

Will Rebuild 6 Miles of Road

Tenders will be called this spring for the rebuilding of six miles of Hastings County Road No. 9 under the Ontario Department of Highways Development road program.

Clarke T. Rollins, M.P.P. for Hastings said yesterday that the highways department had given favorable consideration to the project and that highways minister Hon. George E. Gomme had signed the designation agreement.

The agreement will be forwarded to the district highway engineer to obtain the signature of county officials.

County Engineer Peter Anderson said the road to be rebuilt extends easterly from No. 62 highway through Ombabton and is partly in Huntingdon and partly in Hungerford township.

Under the provincial development road program, the highways department pays all construction costs with the county purchasing the needed rights-of-way and doing the fencing.

A new business opened today in Belleville. Bonita Beautiful Shoes Ltd. has opened a store at 249 Front Street. Here manager Stan Wrobel looks over some of the footwear available for style conscious ladies.

BIRTHS

VANDRIE — To William and Heather VanDrie (nee Orr) a son, William Jacob on Monday, Mar. 18, 1968 at Belleville General Hospital.

IN MEMORIAM

HENDERSON — In loving memory of a wonderful father and grandfather, Charles Henry, who passed away March 22, 1965.

His memory lingers on and on,
His memory lingers on and on,
His memory lingers on and on,
And I'll never forget him, I know,
Because his memory is graven in stone.
—Lovingly remembered by daughter Eleanor, son-in-law Harry and grandchildren Karen, Carol and Brian.

HENDERSON — In loving memory of a dear husband and dearly father, Charles who passed away March 22, 1965.

God put Your arms around him,
And said, Well done.
Your days of ill be suffered,
And all that was unfair;
Only a cluster of memories,
Spread by a million tears,
Will be laid beside him,
Until we meet you dear.
—Sadly missed by daughter Gloria, son-in-law Fred and grandchildren Diane, Donna and Pat.

HENDERSON — In loving memory of a dear husband and father who passed away March 22, 1965.

His smiling way and pleasant face,
Are a pleasure to recall,
He had a simple word for each,
And died beloved by all.
God took him home, it was best him,
Some day, we know and when,
To clasp his hand in the better land.
Never to part again.
—Lovingly remembered and sadly missed by daughter Pat and son-in-law Jack and grandchildren Cathy, Gary and Susan.

SAMAIN — In loving memory of a dear wife and mother Marie Louise Rhoda, who passed away March 22nd, 1965.

Quietly remembered, throughout the years,
With silent thoughts and unshed tears.
Life goes on, we know that's true,
But the years since we lost you
—Always remembered by husband Joe and daughter Patsy.

SAMAIN — In loving memory of my dear mother and grandmother Marie, who passed away four years ago today.

Always tender, fond and true,
Always in my heart for you.
Sweet memories are all I have,
To cherish in sad hours.
—Sadly missed by daughter Gloria, son-in-law Norman, granddaughter Carol and Mike.

SAMAIN — In loving memory of our dear mother and grandmother who passed away 4 years ago today, March 22, 1964.

Sweet memories are all I have,
With which I'll never part,
God has her in His keeping,
I have her in my heart.
—Lovingly remembered by daughter Patsy, son-in-law Joe and grandchildren.

SAMAIN — In loving memory of our dear mother who passed away four years ago today, March 22nd, 1964.

It's the loving memory we keep
Of one so dear to us.

Storm Sewers Planned

A late April or early May start on the underground sewer work on West Bridge Street and completion of road re-building and paving before winter sets in, is planned by the city engineering department.

Tenders for the storm sewer installation between Coleman Street and the junction of Bridge Street with Highland Ave. have been called and will be opened on April 4.

Included in the same tender call is the installation of storm sewers along James Street and Dundas Street to the Moira River.

City Engineer Wilbur Purcell said today that his department was still working on plan details for the actual road reconstruction. Final plans still have to go to the Ontario Department of Highways for approval.

Question Causes Confusion

To close the now open half of Walter St. or to open the now closed half, that's the question apparently causing confusion in the minds of some of its residents.

Five owners requested city council to close the southern 200 feet of the street. Seven owners later petitioned the city clerk to open the northern part. And two owners signed both petitions.

Belleville and Suburban Planning Board recommended last night that the street remain in its present state.

"This situation is the result of poor land division in the past," planning director P. J. Beavis told the board. "The only hope now is to rearrange property boundaries to achieve best land use."

Workers Vote on Agreement

TRENTON — A general membership meeting at 2.30 p.m. this afternoon was to determine the course of an all - woman strike.

The all - women local 539, International Union of Electrical Radio and Machine Workers met to discuss a memorandum of agreement drafted at a Toronto meeting yesterday.

The talks, convened by Ontario Labor Conciliator W. J. McGuire, involved I.U.E. local and national representatives and officials of Essex Electrolux Ltd.

Local 539 began a strike against the Water Street firm Feb. 14 to back up demands for an increase in their $1.15-$1.30 hourly pay scale.

Scott Funeral

Funeral service for Oswald H. Scott, former manager of Belleville Utilities Commission was held yesterday.

The funeral took place from Pickston and Luscombe Funeral Home to Christ Church where service was conducted by Canon R. B. D. Wright.

Interment was in Union Cemetery, Oshawa, where the committal service was directed by Rev. G. Ongley, St. George's Church, Oshawa.

Attending the funeral were representatives of Ontario Hydro and a large delegation from the Belleville Rotary Club of which Mr. Scott was a charter member.

Bearers were Ernest Burnham, Ross Silver, Charles Miles, William Phillips, Fred Clarke and William Hales.

Family Counselling Service Staff Now in New Quarters

It's a week of constant movement for one of the Quinte area's busiest agencies — the Family and Children's Counselling Service of Hastings County.

The service yesterday began spreading into new quarters on Belleville's Front Street, a location giving one of the oldest social agencies a sparkling, new look.

The move finally fills a long-standing need, symbolized by its vacated West Moira street offices.

The service has grown a long way since its predecessor, the Children's Aid Society prevention work engaging a staff of 34 in offices and the field.

Bruce Kerr.

In those days, the agency was Belleville - oriented. Now it is a complex covering all Hastings.

More than its name has changed. It is now a wholly-rounded social service, much of its energy directed toward staff of 34 in offices and the field.

The new quarters, just north of Victoria Avenue, are not yet fully finished. Fittings and furniture still have to be completely installed. The building's exterior awaits refinishing.

But the FCS is open for business and practising in fresh, comfortable surroundings.

The decor is intentionally bright.

"People don't come in here unless they have a problem," says Mr. Kerr. "We've tried to make things as comfortable as possible so maybe they feel a bit better when they go out than when they came in."

Much of the project planning was confined within the agency.

Mr. Kerr planned and supervised the layout of the new floor administration centre. Social counsellor Jeff McDermott selected the decor.

Inside, premises have been refurbished to house Family Counselling offices. It's business as usual behind wood hoarding where facade awaits finishing.

New Development

265 Acres on Western Outskirts To Be Neighborhood Community

Development of a professionally planned neighborhood community of 265 acres on the western outskirts of Belleville was revealed Thursday night by W. C. Tatham.

Mr. Tatham appeared before Belleville and Suburban Planning Board's regular meeting to announce his company's intention and seek the co-operation of the planning board.

He represented Hallcraft Developments Ltd., which has assembled a parcel of land between Avondale and Avonlough Roads, north of the Trewartha quarries and Hastings Manor. Principals are the Tatham Company, Maurice Rollins and the Jenkins family.

"Developing small subdivisions, as we have in the past, is both inefficient and costly," Mr. Tatham told the board. "We feel we have a social obligation to provide the good environment for living that only a large planned neighborhood can give."

Government requirements that subdivisions be developed only in areas where existing water and sewer facilities are available led to the choice of the site, the developer said. The extension of Bridge St. West to provide access to Loyalist College and to the Hallcraft's property, and Sidney and Belleville have already promised to construct trunk sewers and water mains along this route to service the colleges.

Marshall, Macklin and Monaghan Ltd., consulting town planners, have been hired to lay out a high density residential community containing 1,200 to 1,800 dwellings within ten years. Five or six phases of development are scheduled. Hallcraft intends to sell building lots, and retain control over siting, type and architecture of residential units.

"All services will be underground," Mr. Tatham told the board, "and landscaping will be done at the time of building. Houses will be placed around two eight to ten-acre parks, which will be planned and planted first. About 800 to 1,000 trees will be planted as soon as the planners' final design is approved."

"High density alone will not permit housing to carry itself without assistance from industrial development," Mr. Tatham assured the board. "On the basis of their experience in designing two similar communities, our planners estimate the net gain to each city through their developments was five per cent.

According to Hallcraft's submission to planning board, it hopes to have a preliminary draft plan of the subdivision ready by July 1, 1968 and a final plan by October. Given the full co-operation of the municipalities concerned and the planning board, the company hopes to begin installation of services by April 1969.

"Although problems will arise in servicing this land, I'm glad to see this development," commented Ald. E. A. Orr. "This will open up the entire western end of the city."

Planning board's full co-operation in the venture was promised by chairman G. G. Bussey.

Revenue Department Notes Reassure City Taxpayers

Taxpayers in the Belleville area whose income tax refunds have been delayed by mistakes or missing information are receiving reassuring notes from the department of national revenue.

The letters are being sent out by the department on an experimental basis this year. The Belleville taxation office was selected as the pilot area.

The letter go to those taxpayers whose refund applications have been "snagged". A "snag" occurs when a tax return is removed from the flow of computer processing in Ottawa due to missing or inaccurate information on the form. These returns are sent back to the district office for correction. A snagged tax return often means a delayed refund.

The form letter is sent as soon as the return is received back in the Belleville office. The letter assures the taxpayer that his return has been received, that it is being processed but with a probable delay in his refund.

The department is seeking to head off the hundreds of inquiries they get from persons anxiously awaiting their refund. Taxation officials point out that these inquiries cannot speed up the refunds and often interfere with the processing, thereby causing a further delay.

Last year, as the letter points out, 1,850 man hours were spent handling refund inquiries. "This puts quite a crimp in the productive work schedule of a staff our size," said Belleville taxation director H. E. Garland.

"We appreciate that taxpayers become concerned when their refund is slow coming", said Garland, "and this letter is an attempt on our part to reassure them we are working as quickly as possible to get their refund to them."

The Belleville District Office was selected as the pilot area for the experiment because it has a relatively small taxroll and a representative make-up of taxpayers.

Why are returns "snagged"? "The most frequent cause is the lack of information or supporting evidence for an exemption or deduction claim," said Garland. This information is often available in local taxation files from previous years and the omission is quickly corrected. Sometimes, though, a request for more information must be made to the taxpayer.

Belleville taxation officials hope that taxpayers receiving the letter will be patient and refrain from calling the office. "We certainly don't mind talking to taxpayers", said Garland, "but I'm sure that at this time of year, they would rather we spent the time getting their refunds out." However, at the same time, I don't want to discourage people from calling if they need help in completing their income tax return", he added.

Public Hearing to Consider Re-zoning of Lot

Belleville and Suburban Planning Board will hold a public hearing April 8 to consider rezoning a lot west of Sidney St. and south of 401 highway to permit construction of a slaughter house.

L. Gorgenzi appeared before the board last night to ask for the re-toning. He said his proposed industry required land fully serviced with city sewers and water mains and the industrial commission had told him this property was the only one available in the city.

Present industrial zoning of the area prevents certain industrial uses, including slaughtering.

Re-zoning of a North Front Street property for construction of a shopping centre now depends on the Ontario Department of Highways, planning director P. J. Beavis told the board.

No construction of the 18-acre site north of Elliott Manor and west of the OPP headquarters can take place until the DOH issues building permits for access roads.

But the FCS is open for business and practising in fresh, comfortable surroundings.

The decor is intentionally bright.

"People don't come in here unless they have a problem," says Mr. Kerr. "We've tried to make things as comfortable as possible so maybe they feel a bit better when they go out than when they came in."

Much of the project planning was confined within the agency.

Mr. Kerr planned and supervised the layout of the two-floor administration centre. Social counsellor Jeff McDermott selected the decor.

Inside, premises have been refurbished to house Family Counselling offices. It's business as usual behind wood hoarding where facade awaits finishing.

Workers Vote on Agreement

TRENTON — A general membership meeting at 2.30 p.m. this afternoon was to determine the course of an all - woman strike.

The all - woman local 539, International Union of Electrical Radio and Machine Workers met to discuss a memorandum of agreement drafted at a Toronto meeting yesterday.

The talks, convened by Ontario Labor Conciliator W. J. McGuire, involved I.U.E. local and national representatives and officials of Essex Electronics Ltd.

Local 539 began a strike against the Water Street firm Feb. 14 to back up demands for an increase in their $1.18-$1.50 hourly pay scale.

New Development

265 Acres on Western Outskirts To Be Neighborhood Community

Development of a professionally planned neighborhood community of 265 acres on the western outskirts of Belleville was revealed Thursday night by W. C. Tatham.

Mr. Tatham appeared before Belleville and Suburban Planning Board's regular meeting to announce his company's intention and seek the co-operation of the planning board.

He represented Hallcraft Developments Ltd., which has assembled a parcel of land between Avondale and Annandough Roads, north of the Towers' supermarket and Hastings Manor. Principals are the Tatham Company, Maurice Rollins and the Jenkins family.

"Developing small subdivisions, as we have in the past, is both inefficient and costly," Mr. Tatham told the board. "We feel we have a social obligation to provide the good environment for living that only a large planned neighborhood can give."

Government requirements that subdivisions be developed only in areas where existing water and sewer facilities are available led to the choice of the site, the developer said. The extension of Bridge St. West to provide access to Loyalist College creates a Hallcraft's property, and Sidney and Belleville have already promised to construct trunk sewers and water mains along this route to service the college.

Marshall, Macklin and Monaghan Ltd., consulting town planners, have been hired to lay out a high density residential community containing 1,300 to 1,500 dwellings within ten years. Five or six phases of development are scheduled. Hallcraft intends to sell building lots, and retain control over siting, type and architecture of residential units.

"All services will be underground," Mr. Tatham told the board, "and landscaping will be done at the time of building. Houses will be placed around two eight to ten-acre parks, which will be planned and planted first. About 800 to 1,000 trees will be planted as soon as the planners' final design is approved."

"High density alone will permit housing to carry itself without assistance from industrial development," Mr. Tatham assured the board. "On the basis of their experience in designing two similar communities, our planners estimate the net gain to each city through their developments was five per cent."

According to Hallcraft's submission to planning board, it hopes to have a preliminary draft plan of the subdivision ready by July 1, 1968 and a final plan by October. Given the full co-operation of the municipalities concerned and the planning board, the company hopes to begin installation of services by April 1969.

Although problems will arise in servicing this land, I'm glad to see this development," commented Ald. F. A. Orr. "This will open up the entire western end of the city."

Planning board's full co-operation in the venture was promised by chairman G. G. Bussey.

Revenue Department Notes Reassure City Taxpayers

Taxpayers in the Belleville area whose income tax refunds have been delayed by mistake or missing information are receiving reassuring notes from the department of national revenue.

The letters are being sent out by the department on an experimental basis this year. The Belleville taxation office was selected as the pilot area.

The letter go to those taxpayers whose refund applications have been "snagged". A "snag" occurs when a tax return is removed from the flow of computer processing in Ottawa due to missing or inaccurate information on the form. These returns are sent back to the district office for correction. A snagged tax return often means a delayed refund.

The form letter is sent as soon as the return is received back in the Belleville office. The letter assures the taxpayer that his return has been received, that it is being processed but with a probable delay in his refund.

The department is seeking to head off the hundreds of inquiries they get from persons anxiously awaiting their refund. Taxation officials point out that these inquiries cannot speed up the refunds and often interfere with the processing, thereby causing a further delay.

Last year, as the letter points out, 1,800 man hours were spent handling refund inquiries. "This puts quite a crimp in the productive work schedule of a staff our size," said Belleville taxation director H. E. Garland.

"We appreciate that taxpayers become concerned when their refund is slow coming", said Garland, "and this letter is an attempt on our part to reassure them we are working as quickly as possible to get their refund to them."

The Belleville District Office was selected as the pilot area for the experiment because it has a relatively small taxroll and a representative make-up of taxpayers.

Why are returns 'snagged'? "The most frequent cause is the lack of information or supporting evidence for an exemption or deduction claim", said Garland. This information is often available in local taxation files from previous years and the omission is quickly corrected. Sometimes, though, a request for more information must be made to the taxpayer.

Belleville taxation officials urge taxpayers receiving the letter will be patient and refrain from calling the office. "We certainly don't mind talking to taxpayers", said Garland, "but I'm sure that at this time of year, they would rather we spent the time getting their refunds out. "However, at the same time, I don't want to discourage people from calling if they need help in completing their income tax return", he added.

Public Hearing to Consider Re-zoning of Lot

Belleville and Suburban Planning Board will hold a public hearing April 8 to consider re-zoning a lot west of Sidney St. and south of 401 highway to permit construction of a slaughter house.

L. Gorgerat appeared before the board last night to ask for the re-zoning. He said his proposed industry required land fully serviced with city sewers and water mains and the industrial commission had told him this property was the only one available in the city.

Present industrial zoning of the area prevents certain industrial uses, including slaughtering.

Re-zoning of a North Front St. property for construction of a shopping centre now depends on the Ontario Department of Highways, planning director P. J. Beavis told the board.

No construction of the 18-acre site north of Elliott Motors and west of the OPP headquarters can take place until the DOH issues building permits for access roads.

Council and the Press

It could have been just a coincidence, but Monday night's meeting of Belleville city council was not preceded by a closed caucus meeting as is customary.

Perhaps there was nothing of moment on the agenda that would have warranted a closed session. In any event a survey by this newspaper indicates that city council holds many more closed sessions than its counterparts in other Ontario centres of comparable size. They include Kingston, Peterborough, Brantford, Kitchener and St. Catharines.

The people of Belleville are entitled to know what is going on. They are entitled to know what is being said and what decisions are being taken on their behalf. They are not in a position to know these things unless the Press is represented.

A step in this direction was taken recently when council decided to allow three radio and coverage of a capital works budget meeting usually held in private. Council, however, was by no means unanimous. A motion to bar the press was lost on a split 5-5 vote.

According to Acting Mayor Boyle, budget discussions normally are held in private. In essence this is a negation of the democratic procedure so jealously guarded by our free society. After all, the budget that is being discussed involves the taxpayer. It is his money with which council is entrusted.

Alderman Paul Russell told council he had received complaints about the number of closed sessions held by council.

In Trenton meanwhile council has decided to inform the press of all council meetings. Permission was also granted for radio presentation of the meetings.

Closed meetings except in rare circumstances involving land purchases and personnel, are not in the public interest. Sooner or later it can lead to important matters being thrown under the carpet as it were. The meetings should be open.

Of significance in this regard is the Bay of Quinte high school board's decision to admit the press to most regular and committee meetings conducted by the board. Previously only board meetings had been open.

Hair and All That

Hair styling is big business nowadays. And where the fair sex are concerned they can get away with practically anything provided they look well-groomed.

A man on the other hand — especially a young man or teenager — has only to let his locks grow long and unkempt to incur the distaste and even wrath of everyone from father to principal of the school.

Moreover, this concern about hair seems to be reaching into high places. No pun intended . . . but well, like in parliament . . . all that fuss about Paul Martin's hair style . . . yes the cut of it follows hair can mean the difference between being "in" or "out" in more ways than one these days . . . and like in Vancouver, where Mayor Tom Campbell has switched styles, from the attractive wavy hair look of Warren Beatty, star of the cops-and-robbers movie Bonnie and Clyde.

In still higher places in the circle of the royal family in Britain . . . Princess Margaret's husband, Lord Snowdon, seems to be favoring increasingly way-out styles. Clotheswise in any event, as witness the Mississippi gambler suit he appeared in recently. As for his hair, it gets thicker and the sideburns longer.

Prince Charles, now 19, showed up at a royal command performance recently with a shaggy mane and sideburns and looked very much the Cambridge undergraduate and a chap from Israel called Topol who were similarly endowed.

All looked as if they could do with a good haircut.

Fire Hazard

A recent news photo of two telephone operators jumping from their fifth floor office, with several others to follow, after fire broke out at the seven-storey telephone office building in Pusan, South Korea, contains a lesson in fire security.

Six were killed and 43 others injured after they jumped to the ground.

It may be that in Korea buildings of this kind are not fire-proofed. But even then outbreaks occur. There was one in an office block in Toronto a year or so ago. As we recall there were few if any casualties but the incident did demonstrate the potential hazards of any outbreak in a multi-storey building.

That so many were hurt in addition to the six who died in the South Korean blaze would suggest the fire spread rapidly. Evidently there was no time for firemen to get equipment into place to break the employees' fall.

United States Faces Up to Austerity Program

By ARCH MacKENZIE

WASHINGTON (CP) — President Johnson has called for a "program of national austerity," sounding values here and abroad have been upsetting for months.

"The time has come . . . when your president has come here to ask you people and all the other people of the nation to join in a total national effort to win the war, to win the peace and to complete the job that must be done here at home," he told a farm union meeting in Minneapolis.

He asked for a program of national austerity "to ensure that our economy will prosper and our national fiscal policy will be sound."

This strong presidential plea, if effective, spells the end of the official theory the U.S. is wealthy enough to provide $25,000,000,000 or more annually in guns for Vietnam and still have butter required at home as well.

It follows a weekend decision to establish a two-price system for gold—one for the private trade that would fluctuate with demand and the other maintained by the U.S., Canada and other co-operation nations at $35 an ounce in U.S. funds, as it has been for years.

That decision followed the latest wave of panic buying of gold, latest symptom in global uneasiness about the soundness of the U.S. dollar.

The president has been unable to get a tax increase because congressional leaders insist he must trim his spending plans first. Other governments, have been saying the U.S. and British must put their economic houses in order, sharply narrow the drain of gold and dollars or pounds and thus reassure the world at large they mean business.

Paradoxically the gold rush bringing the international monetary system to its shakiest position since 1929 aroused more public curiosity than concern here. Americans have trouble linking gold and their dollar since they have been unable since 1934 to buy or sell it.

Instead, the president's call for austerity—and with some basis in fact—leaned primarily as a political reaction to the threat for Democratic renomination he faces from Senators Eugene McCarthy of Minnesota and Robert Kennedy of New York.

Both men call the Vietnamese war the main cause of the gold and dollar drain, hence the president's emphasis Monday on continuing the war against what he calls aggression.

The U.S. aim therefore is the same politically and financially for him.

The U.S. will press again for cutting its spending at home and abroad and try again to raise taxes.

A King In Exile

Ottawa Journal

There is a sad, sad end down in the middle of a report from Athens dealing with the latest political developments in Greece. A passing note that King Constantine has been in Rome since Dec. 14. That is not a long period of time as exile often goes. But how quickly the world's attention passed from wondering about the King of Greece.

"I wish I understood what this is all about so I could worry about it intelligently."

UK Ready for Decimals

Cornwall Standard - Freeholder

England, making ready to branch into decimal currency in 1971, has announced the sym bol for the new decimalized penny will be P.

Announcing styles for expressing the new money, the decimal currency board said the double-crossed L for the pound sterling will remain, but the present 'D' for shilling and the D for pence, will go.

All amounts under one new pound will be expressed in pence -P- and there will be 100 P to the pound.

That should make it much easier for United States tourists to master the English system. It has frequently brought loud wails from them in the past.

With England joining the swing to decimalized currency, the lot of the tourist from Canada or the United States traveling in Europe, and the flow of money, should be made much easier and should remove suspicion that they are being cheated or short - changed when making purchases.

Also started for elimination, along with the D for pence will be the florin, two shilling pieces now worth about 2 cents and the half-crowns or two shillings, sixpence, worth about 32 cents. They are coins that have long brought confusion to tourists and visitors from North America. Their passing will cause no regrets from this side of the ocean.

The board also hopes guineas, 21 shillings, worth about $2.70, will no longer be acceptable on cheques.

Britain's move to decimal currency has long been awaited. So has Australia, New Zealand and others in the move to make decimal currency general among the trading nations.

Czechs Want To Be Free

Financial Times, London

Recent events in Czechoslovakia and Poland, says the western edge of the Communist block is in turmoil. What has happened in Czechoslovakia looks little short of revolution. In Poland, the upheaval has so far not gone beyond student demonstrations, but the liberal conditions in Czechoslovakia will provoke awkward comparisons. The great unknown is the attitude of the Russians.

They are much more cautious these days and their physical intervention seems remote, though they will obviously use their diplomatic influence. They might well be prepared to let Czechoslovakia go its own way in internal affairs, with guarantees of its external neutrality like those given by its neighbor Austria. Poland they could not let go, both because it lies across their communications to East Germany and because the loss to Communism of a country so intimately linked to Russian history would shake the Soviet regime itself. But the Poles know that they, too, need the Russians in the last resort as guarantors against Germany.

Inflation Hits Crown Corporation

Montreal Gazette

Polymer Corporation Limited a Crown corporation, states in its annual report that its net income declined from $1.4 million in 1966 to $5.8 million in 1967.

The report gives a number of explanations for this drop. But among other things the president, Mr. E. R. Rowzee, noted that some of the factors are the same as have been common to many industries lately. Inflationary forces resulted in increasing costs of materials and services consumed by industry, and salaries and wages, particularly in Canada, increased faster than corresponding gains in productivity.

It is the same pattern: the attempt of Canadians to get a quart out of pint bottle.

Letter to the Editor

Msgr. Sullivan's Address To United Church Group

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

I fully appreciate the right, indeed the necessity, of your newspaper editing news items and other articles, to tailor them to suit the availability of space. I must, however, protest vehemently when such editing results in a complete distortion of the facts.

Your newspaper on March 20 carried an item on page 2A concerning an address by the Rt. Rev. J. P. Sullivan, made before a gathering of the Tabernacle United Church AOTS Men's Club on the previous evening. The article unfortunately ended at a point approximately two-thirds along in the Monsignor's address, and completely eliminated his arguments for an affirmative answer to the question, "Does Man Need God"?

This abbreviated edition of Msgr. Sullivan's speech leaves the reader with the impression that he is anti-God! Needless to say, nothing could be further from the truth. His true message came through loud and clear, leaving the listener with the conviction that here is a man who, while he knows "how the other half lives" (as witness his comments of some of the arguments used by atheists and other members of the secular society in which we live) also presented an even more convincing argument for an unqualified "Yes", in answer to the question, "Does man need God"?

I cannot remember all of the reasons Msgr. Sullivan advanced for need of God, but a few of them were: God is the source of our maturity, the author of our autonomy. In short, He is the supplier or fountainhead of our ability to make our own way in life. The person who learns to talk to Him in prayer does not pray for earthly benefits, but for guidance and strength to overcome life's problems. God answers by ordering man's thoughts, and a sort of warm understanding develops through prayer. I recall two other points: One, Monsignor made, too. One was that the supernatural is not a mere extension of the natural at a perfect level; the other is that man can live without and refuse salvation, but he needs it to fulfil his divine sonship.

T. L. SPRACKETT

Ontario to Set Up Agency For Educational Television

Montreal Gazette

The Ontario Government has announced it will set up its own provincial educational television agency, which will be responsible for the content of ETV used in that province. For the actual broadcasting of the shows, the agency will accept the use of the ETV system the Federal Government is proposing to set up.

Education Minister William Davis, who announced the plan in the Ontario Legislature, was asked if the system would be similar to that announced recently by Premier Johnson for Quebec. Mr. Davis said it would not be proper for him to comment on Quebec's plans.

The fact is that the general principles are the same. Premier Johnson said that because education is a provincial responsibility, clearly defined as such in the constitution, Quebec should have control of the program content of an educational television system in the province.

As far as any satellite system in the future is concerned, it is understandable that Quebec would wish to share a satellite which would carry programs from France. Ontario would just as understandably be interested in programs from England.

The thing that is most remarkable is the lack of interest ways in which Canadians have reacted to the announcements by Premier Johnson and Mr. Davis. The Quebec demand for control of program content received little publicity in English-Canada. The Quebec demand for control of program content received little publicity in English-Canada. The Quebec demand for control of program content is accepted quietly.

The establishment of Hydro Quebec may have been revolutionary for this province, but United States in the late 1940s. Canadian political groups such as the English-speaking Union have indeed Quebec's attempt to control the French.

"Pot" Can Be Dangerous

Ottawa Journal

Marijuana is considered by most experts to be a mild hallucinogen derived from the Indian hemp plant. It is not commonly supposed, a narcotic in the medical sense. Nor is it said to be habit forming. But in the Canadian Medical Association Journal a special article on illicit use of drugs by Dr. J. Robertson Unwin warns: "the precipitation of schizophrenic reactions in such predisposed personalities."

Young persons bent on experimentation, often lured at the older generation's fears, and dismisses arguments about schizophrenic reactions as a joke. Joke it may be but the law has an even more powerful deterrent for experimenters.

In Canada marijuana comes under the Narcotic Control Act and carries the same penalties as such "hard" narcotics as opium, heroin, cocaine and morphine. Maximum penalty for possession or cultivation is seven years; for trafficking "to manufacture, sell, give, administer, send, transport, deliver, or distribute") the maximum penalty is life imprisonment.

Harsh penalties? Not when young lives are being broken on the narcotic wheel. But marijuana, chemically speaking, is not a narcotic and jurists seem to take this into account. Sentences are often suspended in the case of students and young thrill-seekers. But indications are that taking a "trip" will be more costly. The Crown, citing a British Columbia Court of Appeals judgment, has asked that marijuana offenders be jailed for six months.

No wonder the Soviet Union has held the world chess championship since 1927.

Proposed New Connecting Road Not Entertained by Board

Belleville and Suburban Planning Board Thursday night refused to recommend construction of a new connecting road between Wellington Street and Sidney Street.

The new road was requested by two west hill businesses, Carm's Beverages and Reid's Dairy, who say the Dundas Street project and closure of Highland Ave. will make access to Dundas St. difficult for their trucks.

"Those receiving most benefit from the proposed new road would be businesses now regarded as legally non-conforming to the residential zoning of the area," planning director P. J. Beavis said in his report to the board.

"Development of the road would operate in favor of land uses which the by-law suggests ought to be located elsewhere."

Best location for the proposed road, the planner said, would be on the boundary between Albert College and American Optical properties. Cost would be $15,000, exclusive of property acquisition costs.

"Residents of the area would gain no substantial benefit from the proposed road, nor would Albert College or American Optical. A walkway would be sufficient to provide access to Sir Mackenzie Bowell School for children of the area," Mr. Beavis told the board.

Following completion of the Dundas St. project, Highland Ave, Parker St. and Wellington St. will form a ring road giving area residents access to Bridge St. West.

"After the local travel habits of the residents are adjusted to the new traffic routes, only those people who wish to go west on Dundas St. or south over the Bay Bridge will notice any material difference between their present habits and those imposed by the new construction," the director said.

Planning Board will forward its recommendation against the proposed connecting road to city council.

The funeral of John Francis (Frank) Findall of Smithfield was held Thursday afternoon from the Weaver Funeral Home, Trenton, where service in the chapel was conducted by Rev. C. A. McLaren of Smithfield United Church. Interment was in Greenwood Cemetery.

The bearers were Glen Cole, Fred Dalsard, George Gillings, Douglas Morris, Wilfred Mascin and Norman Findall.

Honorary bearers included Charles Hagmeier, George Whaley, Ernest Ireland, George Mutton, Gladstone Ireland and Gordon Lovett.

Mr. Findall died Tuesday in Trenton Memorial Hospital following a three weeks' illness. He was 84.

Born in Murray township, he was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Edward P. Findall and had spent his life in Smithfield district where he was a farmer for 60 years in the English Settlement area. He was a member of Smithfield United Church and was an elder and member of the official board for many years, and also the recording steward.

He was a former member of the Murray township school board for 30 years. Rev. Orloff R. Findall of Wheatley and George of Frankford. There are 11 grandchildren and 12 great grandchildren. A sister, Mrs. Thomas Peister lives at Trenton. One brother, Ernest Findall pre-deceased him.

Need for Additional Low Rental Housing Apparent

City officials are still waiting the report of a government survey to determine the need of additional low rental housing in the city, but if applications for accommodation are any criterion the need is there.

Acting Mayor Doug Boyle said today that the Ontario Housing Corporation survey report was expected by the end of March.

He said, however, that the number of applications for the low rental single family units and also for the senior citizens' apartments, indicated there was a need in the city.

Mr. William James, Ontario Housing Corporation representative, said there was a waiting list of 120 for the single family units and about 80 for the senior citizens' units on Turnbull Street.

Since the survey there were in the city late last fall the number of applications have increased, it was stated.

The city now has 37 units at the senior citizens apartment block, and 40 single family houses.

Rentals for both the single family units and the senior citizens' apartments are set according to income. Senior citizens apartments range up from $37 per month, while the single family houses range from a low of about $30 to more than $100 per month, depending on the total of the family income.

It takes more than a Russian name to make a great Vodka.

The best vodkas today are made from grain. And there is no grain finer than northern Canadian. (Even the Russians buy it!) That's why ALBERTA VODKA, distilled in the very heart of Canada's grainland, has gained such popularity. You'll find none smoother. None more mixable. None more discreet. ALBERTA VODKA! Bottled full-strength and sealed at the distillery.

Tips Given for Purchasing Wardrobe

By Reba and Bonnie Churchill

Why is it the dress, hat or suit that looked so great in the store suddenly loses its appeal when tried on at home? Probably at the time of purchase you didn't give enough attention to the ABC's of buying. Check-out an ensemble by testing it for action, body-line, and comfort. Don't just pose in front of the mirror, walk around, sit down, raise and lower arms. This is the only way you can be sure dress moves easily, and fits correctly and without unsightly tugging or tightness. Also, as actress Joyce Jillson illustrates, if you're shopping for a hat, don't depend on a hand mirror; get the full-length picture, for it may change your choice.

Follow up your first impression with some fashion investigation. Study the color in different lights to see if it complements hair and skin tone. Note the label to learn if the fabric, like the Acrilan knits shown, are wrinkle-free. Consider the size — Juniors (3 to 15) are for girls with youthful, short-waisted figures; Junior Petites have similar proportions but are shorter in height; while Misses sizes (6 to 20) are average height, but have longer waistlines. Once you find a style that fits, look for the same designer or manufacturer in the future.

Never buy a dress without trying it on. And never be overly influenced by fads. What looks sensational on your girl friend may be a disaster on you. Short skirts and colorful stockings are in style, but only if they flatter your figure. Remember, if you have heavy legs, drop the hemline to where limbs curve in to slimmer proportions. Also bright peek-a-boo hose look best on trim limbs. Finally, try on the shoes you plan to wear with the dress. One inch or more height change can alter the look. You can always have a "with it" appearance, if you adapt the trend to your figure needs, instead of vice versa.

P.S. Our brochure leaflet offers tips on selecting figure-flattering fashions, plus a special bonus chart to help you determine your correct fit. FOR A PERFECT FIT — Before purchasing an ensemble one should give attention to the ABC's for proper fit. Here, Joyce Jillson of TV's Peyton Place illustrates complete apparel by testing for action, body-line and comfort.

Women's PC Association Hears Talk on USSR

The monthly meeting of Belleville Women's Progressive Conservative Association was held Tuesday night at the Kiwanis Centre in the form of a potluck supper.

The meeting was chaired by the president, Mrs. Joyce Rendell, who announced two Conservative activities which will be held within the next few weeks at the next regular meeting of the Women's P.C. Association will be held April 15 in the form of an auction sale, with entertainment by the Belleville Young Ladies Choir. The Conservative Women will hold their annual dessert and bridge May 8 at St. Thomas Church Hall.

Ald. Gerald Joyce, president of the Belleville Men's Association spoke briefly on the activities of the provincial member Dr. R. T. Foster.

The speaker for the evening Nick Mika, was introduced by Mrs. R. T. Potter. Mr. Mika's subject was the Soviet Union. Having lived in Russia for some years, he is a real authority on the way of life and on the government of that country.

In discussing the population, Mr. Mika said there are 242 million people in Russia speaking 200 different languages. He said "like most major powers in the world they keep their military strength a deep dark secret."

Referring to the church before the Russian Revolution, he said "the government supported the church; hence the church advised people to do what the government told them to do".

They could be easily persuaded before the Revolution because 92 per cent of the entire population could neither read nor write and their only news medium was the news-papers. Now there are 350 newspapers, all controlled by the state, and the state dictates what they can print.

He spoke glowingly of Russian music and remarked that the music reflects the feelings of the people, gentle at one moment, and volcanic the next.

In discussing the educational system of the country, the speaker said the public school course took only four years, high school six years and university four years. The government sponsors the entire school program and there are few dropouts in high school. Since the government desires higher learning for its people it discourages dropouts at the high school level. Students who quit school are put to hard labor and in a matter of two or three days are happy to get back to school.

Mathematics has high priority in the educational system, with 2,000 hours being given to the teaching of mathematics in high school and only 250 hours to history and 350 to chemistry.

Mr. Mika noted that before the revolution Russian women did not work outside the home. After the revolution, the women got equal rights with men, including the right to do the work of the men. He said they collect garbage on the city streets, plow the fields, cut the hay, do welding jobs in industry and lay bricks on construction jobs.

Virtually no unemployment exists in Russia, since everyone works for the state. If someone elects not to work he is put in a concentration camp. The young people are told that since the government gives them free education, they must contribute something to the country. It is the normal procedure for each auction sale, with entertainment by the Belleville Young Ladies Choir. The Conservative Women will hold their annual dessert and bridge May 8 at St. Thomas Church Hall.

Woman of the Year To Be Honored at Event

MONTREAL CP — This Sunday, a woman who grew up in a farming community in Western Canada and has since devoted more than 30 years to helping other people, will be invested with the Eleanor Roosevelt Humanitarian Award.

She is Mrs. Samuel Bronfman, whose efforts in community affairs will be officially recognized both through the Roosevelt award and a gala dinner sponsored by the Israel Bond organization.

At the dinner she will be honored by the organization as Woman of the Year.

"I can't tell you how moved I was when I learned such honors were to be bestowed on me," she told a press gathering in her home.

Mrs. Bronfman was born in Flora Coulee, Man., about 60 miles south of Winnipeg.

When she turned 12, she moved to Winnipeg where she was educated and where she met and fell in love with her husband-to-be. Samuel, now president of Distillers Corp.-Seagrams Ltd. and honorary president of the Zionist Organization of Canada.

President of the YWHA, she was instrumental in the amalgamation of the YM and YWHA and was chairman of the fund-raising committee which made that amalgamation possible.

They have been educated along this line and do not know any other way of life.

The speaker said: "You may ask why I speak so highly of their policies and of their education system in the USSR. If it's that good why aren't you there? I'll tell you why. People in Belleville are warm people. Belleville has an excellent future and I am pleased to make my home here. In the USSR you cannot be an individual, you must do as the government tells you. You cannot express yourself, you cannot criticize the government's actions."

The speaker was thanked by the secretary of the Association, Mrs. Jean Ellis, who presented him with an aerial photograph of Belleville.

Before the war she organized Youth Aliyah and is honorary patroness of the Youth Aliyah of Canada.

She also assisted in organizing the women's auxiliary of the Jewish General Hospital, was a member of the organizing committee of the Save the Children Fund Quebec division, and now is vice-president.

Other organizations which receive her support include Hadassah-WIZO and the Saidye Bronfman cultural centre.

The Experts Say

Sardinian Dish Similar to Barbecue

TORONTO CP — A Sardinian cook would apparently feel at home in Canada's bush or at a backyard barbecue.

On that island off Italy's west coast, one typical, traditional dish is meat roasted in an outdoor brick oven or at an open fire.

When shepherds prepare a roast to be cooked before an open fire, they smear it with salt which dries and falls off during the cooking. They baste it with melted lard while it roasts, but use no seasoning.

Clemente Pasqualini says roasts are never highly seasoned. As is done in outdoor cooking in Canada, they are sometimes roasted on a bed or a spit of aromatic wood that lends some flavor to the meat. Canadians might use maple or hickory or fruit-tree woods.

Pasqualini is a chef in a hotel in Cagliari on the southern tip of Sardinia. He was in Canada for the Sardinian tourist bureau, to prepare the food for publicity parties in Montreal and Toronto.

Another meat dish that can be simply prepared calls for cubed lamb and onions, browned in olive oil. You add one beaten egg per person, and when the eggs are cooked, serve with lemon juice.

Mr. Pasqualini says tradition also has a hand in the way baking is done. Several kinds of dough are given shapes and patterns of animals, faces, monsters. He says he thinks the custom dates back centuries to the times of the ancient gods.

One type of bread is traditionally baked in such shapes. All the breads on the island are made with hard wheat, and there is another type, a flat, beige cracker-like variety that is called music paper because that's what it looked like to someone.

Some pasta is given a pattern in much the way that a butter balls are. Balls of the dough are rolled on a carved wood, then cooked briefly in boiling water like any other pasta.

One sauce for it calls for chopped onion cooked yellow in olive oil, tomatoes and salt added, then sausages, cut in small pieces. Serve it on the pasta with parmesan cheese.

An almond paste dessert called pirichitus is made of sweet almonds boiled and peeled then mashed with sugar — 40 per cent sugar to 60 per cent almonds. The paste is sculpted into whatever shape amuses the cook, then baked golden.

A sort of tart called sebadas begins with a dough of flour, butter and egg whites, rolled and cut in circles with a glass.

To make a filling, use a soft, mild cheese such as cottage cheese. Put it in a frying pan, stir it with a fork, add a spoonful of sugar and a dab of white wine. Wen the mixture has thickened slightly, put spoonfuls on half the circles of dough, top with the other half, press the sides together and fry the tarts on both sides in olive oil. Serve them hot with honey.

Genealogist Speaks at UEL Meeting

The March meeting of the United Empire Loyalists' Association, Bay of Quinte Branch was held in the County Memorial Buildings in Napanee. Thirty-two members and three visitors were present.

After the presentation of the flag and the singing of the National Anthem the general business of the branch was carried on.

President, Loral Wanamaker, welcomed a number of new members.

Cummings Daverne introduced Dr. H. Burleigh, branch genealogist, who spoke on the story of early settlement at Adolphustown.

Dr. Burleigh gave an interesting talk on the experiences of the U.E. Loyalists as they journeyed from New York to Sorel in 1783. After spending the winter at Sorel they made their way up the St. Lawrence River to settle at Adolphustown in 1784. Although Adolphustown had many U.E. Loyalists, some of the people who came were settlers.

Allan Dempsey thanked Dr. Burleigh for his informative talk.

Curlers Entertain Senior Citizens

TWEED — Women of the Tweed Curling Club held a "young at heart" gathering at Tweed-Hungerford Community Centre March 18 for senior citizens.

The event was convened by Mrs. Helen Price and Mrs. Audrey Jones. Mrs. Helen Porch welcomed 61 guests at the door.

Frank Bowers and J. Harry Thompson explained the game to those who watched the curling and tea was served from 1.30 to 4 p.m.

Egg Producers of Ontario

A GROUP OF ONTARIO EGG PRODUCERS

More facts and information re plan. As per your Ontario Fowl Board Newsletter of March 6 in 1967, average price U.S. farmer received was 31.0c . . . average price Canadian farmer received was 28.4c.

The Ontario and B.C. producers set larger surpluses than normal, due to THREAT of Egg Plans in '66-'67. The Americans operated under NORMAL conditions.

The above prices only prove that Canadian Producers SUFFERED CONSIDERABLY from the artificial settings and conditions caused by proposed quota plans . . . let's hope we can get back to natural conditions SOON.

These bulletins will not be overly large, so watch carefully for them in your daily paper.

Respectfully - Ont. Egg Producers

Successful Living

Domineering Sister Rules Everyone

Dear Doris: My poor younger sister sure takes the brunt when the oldest one comes to visit us. She even goes as far as to take the curtains off my sister's windows, throw them in the garbage and tell her to get new ones; and does not think anything of slapping the children. When she arrives everybody tenses up. She could never say anything to mine even when they were small because I told her off once.

She paid my sister's and her children's expenses on a trip out to visit her but they could not watch T.V. Could not even go into the living room. Had them crying all the time. What do you say to someone like that without a real blowout? — BAFFLED.

Dear Baffled: How on earth can younger sister avoid blowing out — or up? You were right to nip it in the bud.

Material gifts simply don't make up for the insult of downgrading actions like throwing out the curtains. I'm thinking hers is a long standing arrogance with a passive, peace-loving little sister.

Perhaps a single blast - off would work the miracle needed. The bully needs ballying back. Promise young sister a celebration if she can work herself up to it.

Dear Doris: As we are having our 25th wedding anniversary I would like some statement to make, perhaps a joke or two after the presents are given. — Not A Talker.

Dear Not A: That's what they all tell me — that once they get on their feet, everything goes blank. One good remedy is to have some advance idea what you are going to say. Better still, have it all written out in front of you in case paralysis sets in.

Say a thank-you for the gifts; admire them, express how much you and your wife will enjoy them and that you appreciate the thought behind them.

Then say — In your own words, not mine — that what you appreciate most are the fine friends who have put up with you over the years. Tell a joke. Read "How to Preserve a Husband" (which I'm sending you) and remark that whatever your wife's method was, you feel well preserved.

It doesn't have to be an oration. Sit down.

Dear Doris: This boy likes a girl who is so two-timing it actually makes you sick. I like this boy very much but I do not want to break up their relationship.

The girl he likes was at a party with him and they danced together all night. This girl will stay with him, go to school and either completely ignore this party-partner or ignore other boys that also like her.

Whenever he talks to me I never know what to say. I know all about talking about what he likes but how do you get started? — Tongue-Tied.

Dear Tongue-Tied: I know; you can't just run up to him, button-hole him and say: "Look, you and I need to have a conversation because I'm go-go about you." Nor can you put him in a large cage and keep the other girls away.

Your only resort is to do what the others do: look your nicest, be friendly and helpful: keep active in school affairs so that you learn about mixing. And criticize no other girl, even if she has more nerve than you have about surrounding her quarry.

I'm sending you my 10 cent leaflet "Tips on Talking". Try what it says.

Kitchen Tested Recipes

Spiced Beef Roast Cooked Slowly

By MARY MOORE

QUESTION: I am an avid reader of your column. . . may I ask for some help? It may go back to the Spring of '56 or so. You gave a very nice recipe for a "Spiced Beef Roast." Spices were mixed and applied to the roast, the evening before, then the meat was roasted in a slow oven, if I recall correctly, about 275 deg. Fahr. for 3 to 4 hours, depending on size and if wished well done or not. Some of us tried it and I can distinctly remember that the outer side was well done and the inner was medium rare when we tried it. It was delicious. — Mrs. H. M. A.

ANSWER: It was '56.

BEEF ROASTED LOW AND SLOW WITH BARBECUE BASTE

One 6-lb. standing rib roast (preferably hung 14 to 21 days room temperature)

Barbecue Baste:

¼ cup vinegar
2 tablespoons brown sugar
¼ teaspoon curry powder
¼ teaspoon allspice
¼ teaspoon mustard
¼ teaspoon pepper
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon accent
½ teaspoon celery salt
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce

Mix Baste ingredients in a small bowl. Sparingly cover all but bone surfaces of beef with baste. Reserve remainder for basting every hour. Stand roast, rib side down, on trivet and roast at 200 deg. Fahr. 6 hours no water, no lid. About every hour brush on more baste mixture until it is used up. This roast will be moist, tender, pink inside. (Of course quality of beef and hanging time enters into the results.)

If you want your beef well done, a 6-lb roast requires 8 hours at 200 deg. Fahr.

Ann Landers

Dogs in Limelight At Dinner Party

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Last night we went to a dinner party at the home of new friends. There were five couples present and two big dogs.

ANN LANDERS

During cocktails the dogs roamed around the living room, sniffing the guests and occasionally snatching a small frankfurter from the hors d'oeuvre tray. The hostess saw all this and never said a word.

When dinner was served the dogs came right into the dining room and then the battle started. They poked their heads under our arms trying to get at the roast beef. They yelped and cried and we couldn't even carry on a conversation. The host waved the bigger dog away when he nearly snatched the meat off my plate. His wife said meekly, "Jim, perhaps you should take the dogs out?" He answered, "No, they'd feel hurt."

I looked at my husband and he was furious. The host sensed our feelings and said, in jest (but I'm sure he meant it), "Anyone who doesn't like dogs is not to be trusted."

Please print this letter and your opinion. — DOG GONED.

DEAR GONED: I hope you and your husband never get so hungry that you will accept another invitation at the kennel. The host and hostess were unbelievably inconsiderate of their guests and I am unable to say a single word in their defence.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I divorced a dull but decent man for Mr. K. and gave my young son to do it. Mr. K. promised to divorce his wife "when the time was right." In the meantime, he spent weekends with me, we took trips together, he introduced me to his business associates in other cities as "Mrs. K.," and he gave me open charge accounts all over town. This man was the centre of my existence for four and a half years.

Last week he informed me that it's all over. He gave no reason. Just over. He has removed all his belongings from my apartment and, from what I gather, he is at home full time.

What are my rights in court? Surely I have something coming for my time and trouble. Advise, please. — THE REJECT.

DEAR RE: I agree — you have something coming, and it sounds like you are getting it.

Since I am not a lawyer I cannot inform you of your "rights." I can say a few words about your wrongs, however. You made a bad bargain from the beginning and I am sorry for you. Regardless of what you might be able to squeeze out of this man, you are still the big loser. But this is how such affairs usually end. It's par for the course, Honey.

Mother: "I promised Terry I would take him skating today, but I'm so tired, I don't see how I can do it."

Grandmother: "Maybe he'll forget about it, if you don't mention it."

Mother: "Terry, I really don't feel able to go skating this afternoon. I'm sorry to disappoint you. We'll plan to go tomorrow instead."

Keep a promise to your child if it's at all possible, but if you can't explain why. Don't just act as if the promise had never been made.

ST. JAMES' C.W.I.

The March meeting of the St. James' Catholic Women's League, Stirling, was held recently in the rectory.

Preparations for the St. Patrick's card party were planned.

The president reported that a date had been set for catering at the Livestock Sales Barn.

Keen interest was shown in a copy of the diocesan history of the C.W.L. and orders may be given to the executive.

There is to be a special confession in St. James' Church March 20. Afterwards parishioners are invited to the recreation rooms to meet the participating clergy, and for light refreshments.

The subject of a trip to be taken early in the summer was discussed and members were asked to give some thought to this.

At the close of the meeting lunch was served by Mrs. J. Doran and Mrs. J. McAvoy.

MOUNT PLEASANT-RAWDON MESSENGERS

RAWDON — Mount Pleasant-Rawdon Messengers met in the church hall Sunday morning.

Mrs. Stanley Williams and Mrs. Grant Hubble presented the study chapters for primary and junior groups. Mrs. Garth Joslin conducted the devotional, assisted by Margaret Hoard, Kenneth Sharp, Donnie Hubel, Gail Merrick and Anne Bailey.

Plans were made to entertain the congregation at a pot luck dinner March 31.

The program, arranged by Randy Scott, Rodney Graff and Gail Merrick consisted of piano solos by Isobel Hoard and Glenn Merrick, readings by Kathy Sharpe and Linda Hoard, solos sung by Lynn Joslin, Kimmy Graff and Gregg Joslin and accordion music by Garry Couch.

Wishart Answers Jibes of Liberal and NDP

TORONTO (CP) — A Liberal and a New Democratic Party member took pot-shots at Attorney-General Arthur Wishart in the Ontario legislature Thursday, but he had answers ready.

Eddie Sargent (L—Grey-Bruce) asked Mr. Wishart to reprimand Toronto Magistrate Robert Dolepert for "not setting realistic bail and for not having human understanding in handing aid sentencing accused in court."

The attorney-general replied that he did not contemplate reprimanding any member of the bench, and added that political interference in the administration of justice would be "dangerous and reprehensible."

He suggested that any complaints about the actions of a magistrate be directed to Ontario's chief magistrate.

Mr. Wishart also announced in the house that he will not lay additional charges against Ralph Farris, former director of Northern Ontario Natural Gas Co., who was sentenced in 1964 to nine months in jail for perjury in connection with NONG stock transactions.

He was replying to Dr. Morton Shulman (NDP—Toronto High Park) who had said in a speech last week that Mr. Farris had been able to "avoid justice through his connections with the Conservative party."

Mr. Wishart had said in 1964 that further charges wouldn't be laid against Mr. Farris, believed to have been suffering from cancer at the time.

Dr. Shulman asked again Thursday if new charges would be laid in the light of Farris' "miraculous recovery."

The minister said that since 1964 the Crown had laid charges against mayors of four municipalities involved in the NONG stock transactions. All were dismissed.

"In our consideration there now is no possibility of securing further convictions," he said.

Mr. Farris now lives in Vancouver.

In other legislature business:

—First readings was given to a bill authorizing the government to establish and operate airports. It also enables the province to enter into agreements with the federal government and any municipality, corporation or individual to provide assistance for the establishment, extension, improvement and maintenance of airports.

—Vernon Singer (L—Toronto Downsview) asked the government to do away with its landlords and tenants law, drafted in England about "a century and a half ago."

He said a new act should provide for the establishment of tenants' advice committees empowered to initiate actions against landlords, and special tribunals should be set up to deal with tenant complaints.

Return Flight Cancelled

TRENTON — A contigent of 125 area air cadets was grounded in Ottawa overnight after spending the day touring points of interest in the Capital.

Represented in the group were cadets from the following squadrons: 608 Belleville, 173 Trenton High School, 704 Trenton, and 732 Batawa.

Weekend Training Resumed

A spokesman for the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment stated today that the regiment will resume weekend training this week.

The rifle company will continue with Mobile Command Reserve training during an exercise at Point Petrie while the balance of the Hasty Pees will carry on with recruit and driver training at Camp Picton.

The Camp Picton segment of the regiment will leave Friday night as will the Point Petrie section.

Cage Team To Compete

TRENTON — The base basketball squad will journey from CFB Trenton to London this weekend to compete in the Zone Five Canadian Armed Forces Finals.

The Trenton Base team will compete against "boosters" from Camp Borden, CFB Clinton, CFB Kingston, CFB Toronto and CFB London.

Bancroft Resident Draws Sweeps Horse

DUBLIN (CP) — A total of 262 Canadian tickets were drawn Thursday in the Irish Sweepstakes based on the running of the Lincolnshire Handicap at Doncaster, England, next Friday, March 29. Tickets were drawn on all 54 horses eligible for the race, although only about half are expected to start.

A ticket by 'Bingo' of Bancroft drew Peruvian Silk.

Devaluation of the pound sterling will reduce the prizes won by Canadians in the international lottery held in aid of hospitals in the Irish republic.

Holders of tickets on the winning horse will win £50,000—worth $150,000 in the 1967 sweepstakes but reduced to about $120,000 in terms of Canadian money by reduction of the pound from $2.3 to $2.60 earlier this year.

Holders of tickets on the second place horse will win £20,000, or about $52,000 compared with $60,000 last year, and holders of tickets on the third horse will win £10,000 or about $26,000 compared with $30,000 last year.

All tickets drawn on horses who do not start or finish out of the money will win a prize based on the amount of the pool. In recent years this has come to about $1,300, but the dollar figure is expected to be lower this year.

The first Irish Sweepstakes of the year was switched in 1967 from the Grand National steeplechase to the Lincolnshire because of uncertainty as to the future of the Aintree track where the famed National is run.

Gaglardi Quits Highways Post

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Flying Phil Gaglardi, British Columbia's colorful highways minister, has had his wings clipped.

Premier W. A. C. Bennett announced in the legislature Thursday that Mr. Gaglardi has resigned the highways portfolio because of ill health.

However, he was sworn in as a minister-without-portfolio and Mr. Bennett, who takes over the highway post, said Mr. Gaglardi "will continue to advise the government."

His resignation followed opposition criticism of the use made of the highways department's jet aircraft. There had also been complaints that his sons, Bob and Bill, were involved in land dealings along highways.

In other legislatures:

Quebec City—Jean-Marie Morin has been named minister without portfolio charged with administering the France-Quebec youth office in Quebec. Premier Daniel Johnson announced Mr. Morin's assignment with the cabinet includes responsibility for youth, recreation and sports.

Toronto—Ontario's Progressive Conservative government easily defeated two non-confidence motions. One, from the Liberal opposition, moved non-confidence in the government for refusing to participate in the federal medical care scheme. The second motion, from the New Democratic Party, rapped the government for refusing to help Ontario citizens cope with the rising cost of living.

Winnipeg—Liberal and New Democratic Party members accused the provincial government of "gross miscalculation in the education financing plan introduced last year. The accusations came in an emergency debate prompted by the announcement earlier this week that uniform mill rates under the school foundation program were being raised 4.1 mills this year.

School to Pay Higher Water, Sewer Rates

High school board members learned Wednesday night sewer and water rates at Central Hastings School in Madoc may increase drastically in the near future.

In a letter from Madoc Council trustees were told the rate would increase from $232 to $360 per year.

The board decided to contact the council before arriving at a decision on the issue.

THE PICK OF Punch

"Anyone who is anyone breaks a leg in St. Moritz — not in Bermuda."

Why does a Rambler American cost $289 less than other compacts?

Could it be because there is no annual model change?

You can bet your boots it is!

Last year, when we announced the no-annual-model-change policy for the Rambler American we were able to drop the price.

This year, in the face of generally rising costs, we are still able to sell the American for at least $289 less than any other domestic compact.

Isn't it nice to know that somebody's trying to hold the line against inflation?

And from the state of our sales of Rambler Americans (up 79%), it seems that there are a lot of people who agree with our approach: that for a compact car, a car designed as basic transportation, the annual model change makes no sense. So they're buying Rambler Americans.

What are they getting for their money? A spacesaver car designed and built for our kind of driving, our kind of weather, our kind of traffic. They're getting a car that will have a higher resale value because it's not going to change the shape of its sheet metal just because the calendar says so.

The 1969 Rambler American will be basically the same as the '68. There will be improvements . . . but no changes for the sake of change.

Before you take the spring-time plunge into a new car, take a look at the Rambler American, at your nearby American Motors dealer and ask yourself this question: "Is the shape of sheet metal worth an extra $289?"

THIS IS HOW RAMBLER AMERICAN STACKS UP AGAINST ITS MAJOR COMPETITION. TAKE A LOOK, TAKE A TEST DRIVE, THEN DRAW YOUR OWN CONCLUSIONS.

Make	Price of Model Listed*	Seating Capacity	Trunk Space (cu. ft.)	Warranty	Standard Engine
RAMBLER 220 2-door sedan	$2382	6	12	5/50,000 2/24,000	128 hp 6 cylinder
VALIANT 100 2-door sedan	$2682	6	14.1	5/50,000 2/24,000	115 hp 6 cylinder

Jack Ward at Study

Picton Construction Engineer Turns to Law In Order to Regain Touch with People

By HARRY MULHALL

PICTON — Jack H. Ward today completes the most crucial blueprint of his life.

He's one of more than 300 fledgling Ontario lawyers scheduled to be called to the bar at Osgoode Hall ceremonies today.

But he's more than that.

At 42, father of two sons, he is launching a new career. Donning the barrister's silk means deliberately doffing the security of an upper echelon post as construction engineer.

The new beginning means the end of painstaking readjustment and "a sense of relief that it's all over," Mr. Ward admits.

It also means a new sense of fulfillment. His newly-chosen profession will bring him in every-day closer contact with his fellows — the core reason for his career switch.

A native of Picton, Mr. Ward joined McFarland Construction Company as a University of Toronto engineering graduate in 1946.

Just ten years later he had risen through the ranks of the bustling McFarland organization to become chief engineer.

But the promotion held the seeds of future personal decision.

"Having reached the loftier echelon of the construction business I found I was dealing day by day with papers instead of people," reminisced Mr. Ward. "I like dealing with people.

"I felt I was being more and more confined to a desk and dealing simply with figures instead of individuals."

The inanimate telephone made another contribution.

"I got so frustrated with the fact that you go into the office in the morning and the phone could start to ring at 8 o'clock. At five p.m. all you've seemed to have done is to answer the phone."

"But," he philosophized, "I think this is one of the hazards of business today. We're all guilty of doing just that."

The death of his father — one-time Picton reeve, Ernest Ward — helped bring the personal dilemma to a head.

"At times like this you sit down and reassess a bit as to where you're going. I wasn't satisfied with the contribution I was making generally.

"I didn't give it much thought at the time," he recalled, "but when I look back I think that had a large bearing on it."

However, the decision to switch professions was almost spur-of-the-moment.

"I remember being in Kingston one day and thinking about that on the way down," Mr. Ward recalled.

"I thought I would go in and speak to the dean of law (at Queen's)."

The result of that conversation "sort of clinched it at that point."

But it came, naturally, as a surprise in the family circle.

"I think it was quite a shock for my wife, particularly," reveals Mr. Ward. "However, I was probably very fortunate in that my wife (Ruby) and my mother were both very encouraging about the whole thing after I spelled it out.

"You have to have the utmost co-operation from your wife and family. Otherwise, the odds are too great."

There also were out - of - home complications.

"You don't sort of realize how many responsibilities in terms of community you've picked up until you start to get out of them," said Mr. Ward, among other things a past Picton Kiwanis Club president.

However, with his mind set, he entered Queen's as a law student in 1963 — although not all problems had been overcome.

Looming large was the one - year absence, and Mr. Ward still maintained his job at McFarland's.

This meant a strained schedule. In the morning he commuted from Picton to Kingston for lectures; by afternoon he was back behind his desk. At night he studied.

"I wouldn't recommend that to anyone," he mused. He changed the itinerary the following year and left McFarland's in March 1964.

At university, he felt no awkwardness about age.

"You do feel a little hesitant going into an environment of people who are perhaps 15 years younger, but it really didn't bother me at all," said Mr. Ward.

At home, he joined sons Lindsay, 11, and Steve, 17, in studying nights.

"The fact father was studying in the basement may have had an encouraging effect on Steve," said Mr. Ward. "His own work at high school has been very satisfactory."

In 1966 he graduated and spent the next year articling with well-known Picton barrister R. V. Nourse.

(Mr. Nourse he counts among those whose reaction influenced his original decision-making.

"I told him I'd decided to make the change and he said if I did I would never regret it. When you're setting out on a venture it's the sort of encouragement and advice that makes the difference between success and failure.")

The last six months was confined to studying the Osgoode Hall bar administration, which qualified him for today's admission ceremonies.

Now, he plans opening general law practice shortly with offices near his Mary Street home.

But the fact he is today a lawyer doesn't mean he will entirely discard his first-chosen profession.

"I'm hoping to make the maximum use of my business experience generally. This is an area in which many lawyers are unaware — the peculiarities of the construction field."

Financial Watchdog Desirable

Government Aid Can Be Lost if Communities Not Alert

By MAURICE SWITZER
(Staff Reporter)

TRENTON — If municipalities aren't spending enough money these days, it's not the fault of senior governments.

A 200-page loose-leaf binder published by Ontario's Department of Municipal Affairs should be in a place of honor in the office library of every municipal clerk. Between its covers the neat, black-leather binder tells Ontario's cities, towns, counties, townships and villages just how much government subsidy there is around for the asking.

Municipalities can get financial assistance for controlling the activity of pesky insects, for paving roads, or for treating patients for venereal disease.

In "Provincial Assistance to Municipalities, Boards, and Commissions" any municipal official can delve for possible government grants by subject matter and, if that fails, he might be more successful in using a handy jurisdiction index.

With listings under 15 government departments, headings (such as education, highways, or health) the province goes out of its way to put hundreds of thousands of dollars in grants up for municipal grabs.

And once a grant is applied for, about all that stands in the way is a government auditor's verification to check that a community is spending the money where it claims.

O. W. Larry, in his 20th year as Trenton's Clerk-Comptroller, says it would almost pay many municipalities to hire a watchdog over government grant structures.

He suspects many communities let government aid slip through their fingers because they haven't done their homework.

After all, not every civic official could tell you a township can get 50 per cent of the cost of paying a traveling inspector for the control of the cattle - pestering Warble Fly.

How about a 50 per cent provincial grant up to $250 for the cost of herbicides to control "Leafy Spurge."

Or would you believe 75 per cent Queen's Park money to help a town provide "oral hypoglycaemic agents to indigent residents"? (That's providing insulin for welfare cases).

Most town fathers are aware, of course, of the more substantial sources of senior government assistance. By undertaking major construction between September and April, a council can get 75 per cent of the labor costs from the federal and provincial governments.

The winter works program is specifically directed at projects "which would not normally have been done in the absence of the program." The government's version of the "why wait-for spring — do it now" incentive offers up to 90 per cent of the labor costs in designated areas of high unemployment.

Trenton's new D. James MacDonald Bridge will be a monument to government grants. The $1,000,000-plus structure has been abutted mainly by government funds — 75 per cent of the capital cost of the bridge itself, and other lesser percentage grants for the cost of acquiring necessary land, building approaches, and other contingencies.

Similarly, the federal and provincial treasuries will pick up a healthy share of the tab for the proposed Dundas St. west overpass and Bay Bridge project in Belleville. The city's share of the initial $480,000 phase is only an estimated $73,000.

There are some perhaps less familiar avenues of government assistance available to interested and/or knowing communities:

- 40 per cent towards payment of a $25 wolf bounty, or $2 per fox;
- about $8,500 per bed assistance towards the establishment of a psychiatric ward in a hospital;
- up to $400 toward the salary of a curator in newly - established community historical museums;
- 100 per cent of Children's Aid Society's operating costs in caring for children of unwed mothers;
- up to $2.25 for each attendance at a community-established venereal disease clinic, plus 75 per cent of a physician's account for treating a V.D. patient;
- 25 per cent of a municipality's contribution for a pension plan for full - time firefighters and policemen;
- 20 per cent of liquor licence fees issued in a municipality, plus 80 per cent of fines imposed in prosecutions by police for contravention of liquor statutes;
- special welfare assistance for needy persons to go towards dental and optical services, vocational training, transportation, and specified funeral and burial costs, among others.

These and many more enticing offers are all but forgotten on our counsels by the Ontario government. It's left to the discerning municipal mind to reap the benefits.

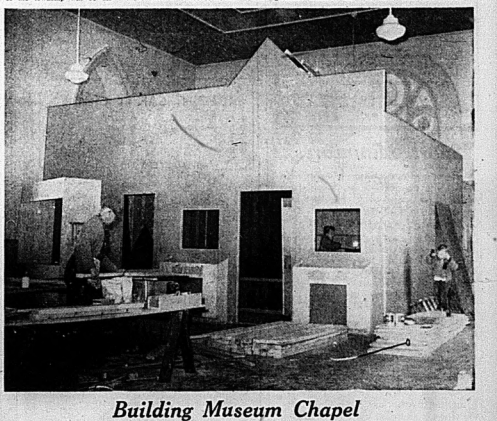
Shows Grandpa Plan

Museum to House UEL Antiques

By ELMER BONTER

AMELIASBURG — The township is a virtual storehouse for early Canadiana — especially U.E.L. memorabilia.

It is also rich in the tradition of the Wesleyan Methodist church prominent in the township before the United Church of Canada came into being in 1925.



In late years the township has been a fruitful hunting ground for antique retailers mostly from the province and the northern United States. More recently concerned local residents started to realize the value of historical treasure they had in their midst.

In centennial year (1967) a group here conceived a plan to preserve some, if not all, of the township's historical assets. They acquired the United Church property in the village for use as a museum so other people could share their efforts. They persuaded the provincial government to share the cost of the project with the municipality.

Then about two weeks ago the museum committee comprising Harry Bisdee (chairman), Mrs. Norris Whitney, Mac Wallbridge, deputy reeve Laird Adams, councillor Arnold Wetherall and township clerk William Nightingale set in motion the program to remodel the interior of the former place of worship from detailed drawings from Queen's Park.

When completed the museum will contain a chapel, a school room from a country school house, a pioneer's kitchen, bedroom and parlor, a blacksmith shop, photographs of all the Methodist churches in the township and portraits of many of the members of the former and present church boards. Interesting items all relating to the early settlers of the township will be displayed in individual showcases arranged appropriately along the larger permanent exhibits. At the front entrance the curator will also serve as receptionist and sell home preserves the same as the curators of all rural museums in the province.

The grounds outside the museum are to be maintained in rural atmosphere with a crooked rail fence and landscape effects in keeping with the early Canadian setting.

Building Museum Chapel

Visitors to the Amelisburg museum expected to open in July this summer will be able to meditate in the quiet among furnishings from former township United Churches closed earlier for economic reasons and lack of ministers.

MUSHMOUTH REPORTS

Dear Boss: —

I hear via the poolroom circuit that you will be looking for a job come May 1st.

As a matter of fact I am joining the ranks of the unemployed on the same date.

Let's get together, boss. We should make a good team especially with our knowledge of recipes of Clam Cocktails, Eel Highballs, Bass Blowups, Mushroom Martinies and Pike Sniffers,

I can't get you in on something I have in mind. With my slim figure, height six feet-two, vital statistics 38-28-34, I can get a job as a model in a pencil factory.

With your pear-shaped frame you could be eligible for a position as a balloon factory model.

Or with your Imlachian pate you shouldn't too much trouble landing a job in a curball factory.

I note by the papers that an outfit in western Ontario is looking for trainers and rubber-dressers for a heavyweight women's softball team. We could spill that one with me taking the night shift. I don't want any irate husbands chasing me in broad daylight.

Why don't you contact your old baseball buddy Jack Carson, the Ole sorrel-top might fit you in as a water boy for spitball pitchers.

Or brother "Red" might be able to use your literary ability concocting names for phony third basemen, Hi Red".

I hear there's a job at the country club magnetizing cups to help wayward putts. It should be easy at the 19th hole.

With your knowledge of sailing why not try the yatch. I hear there's an opening for a cabin boy on one of their outsize canoes.

You've been around the race tracks. You could hold a job as head pumper for deflated sulky tires. Or as a manicurist for nags afflicted with outgrown toenails.

I hear Bobby Hull is in the market for a valet for two or three of his prize Herefords. You've been around the "bull" long enough to qualify for the position.

Ever try the sales racket, boss? You might make it as a deodorant salesman in a hippy joint. Or a hair stylist at a gorilla convention.

"Ole 'Erbie" in Reg's Rendezvous says you can have Mr. St. Pierre's job of crème-de-menthe concession and I hear there's a foam measurer's spot open at Benny's Hideaway.

Look at the want ads in the daily newspapers, boss, you'll find some interesting openings there.

Here's a few I clipped for you. . .

Wanted by archery club — hole-plugger for targets.

Wanted by kennel club . . . experienced flea detector.

Wanted by umpires association; man to take charge of whisk-cleaning department.

Wanted . . . by curling club, man with some barber experience to look after broom maintenance.

That's enough of that, boss.

Tonight is Minnie Menard Night and I'm told Minnie will make a brief appearance at the arena to greet his old buddies and the huge crowd which has rallied to the cause.

And speaking of good guys, boss, a man you know walked alongside one of the Menard committee and pressed something in his hand. "That's for Minnie," he said in a low voice, "No names please," and moved on.

The committee chap later discovered the donor had transferred $50 in ten-dollar bills from his hand to the other.

Bruins Hang 8-0 Collar On Hawks;

Leafs Drub Wings

By GRAHAM COX
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Boston Bruins, building up a head of steam for the National Hockey League playoffs, drubbed Chicago Black Hawks 8-0 Thursday night in Boston.

Following a late-season slump after losing sensational sophomore defenceman Bobby Orr, the Bruins have rebounded to win nine of their last 12 games.

Thursday's win moved the Bruins into a second place tie with New York Rangers in the NHL's Eastern Division, eight points behind Montreal Canadiens.

In the only other scheduled game Thursday, Toronto Maple Leafs slammed Detroit Red Wings 5-2 at the Olympia in a game involving Eastern Division also-rans. Both had previously been eliminated from the playoff picture.

The Bruins are in the playoffs this year for the first time in nine years. And the man many experts said would be responsible for their elevation has been sitting on the sidelines for several weeks following surgery on his knee.

Twenty-year-old Orr, expected back for the playoffs, was a first-half all star when the injury forced him to the sidelines. The Bruins had a temporary letdown, but they've recovered the form that had them in first place early in the season.

The only game tonight has St. Louis Blues in Los Angeles against the Kings in a Western Division match.

The Kings trail Philadelphia Flyers, Western leaders, by four points, each with five games remaining in the 74-game schedule.

Eddie Shack scored twice for Boston with Phil Esposito getting a goal and two assists and Ed Westfall, Fred Stanfield, Ken Hodge, Tom Williams and John McKenzie one goal each.

Esposito's three points gave him 79 for the season, three behind Stan Mikita of Chicago.

Mike Walton scored twice to pace the Leafs, out of the post-season playoffs for the first time in 10 years.

Other Toronto goals went to Norm Ullman, Brian Conacher and Paul Henderson while Detroit scorers were Gary Unger and Kent Douglas.

It was the first game between the teams in Detroit since the two clubs.

EDDIE SHACK

The Bruins, in their recent surge have lost only two to Toronto and one to Detroit in the last 12 games.

One of the major reasons for the Boston surge has been the sparkling play of Esposito, creating a line for Hodge and Williams.

First last year on a Chicago line with Bobby Hull at right wing, Esposito was under orders to feed the high-scoring Black Hawks ace as often as possible.

But when he, Hodge and Stanfield were traded to Boston at the end of the season, the 26-year-old native of Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., had a new set of orders cut for him: Score when you can and pass when you can't.

He now has hit a personal NHL high with 33 goals and 46 assists.

In the last 10 games he has been among the hottest players in the league with 14 points on three goals and 11 assists. Only Ullman has more points—17 on seven goals and 10 assists.

By comparison, Mikita has four goals and six assists in the same period while Gordie Howe of Detroit has six goals and seven assists. Howe is tied for third in league scoring with Jean Ratelle of New York, who has picked up six goals and four assists in the 10-game period.

Rangers Lead 3-1

Junior 'A'; Baby Habs, Wings Move Up

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The number of teams seeking the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A championship was narrowed to six Thursday when Montreal Junior Canadiens eliminated St. Catharines Black Hawks and Hamilton Red Wings knocked out London Nationals.

The Canadiens downed the Catharines 6-1 in Montreal to win their best-of-seven quarter final playoffs 4-0 with one game tied.

In Hamilton, the Red Wings scored four goals in the third period to down London 8-4 and win the series 4-1.

In the other game played, Kitchener Rangers took a 3-1 lead in their series by edging Toronto Marlboros 5-4.

The Canadiens and Red Wings now await their next opponents. Montreal plays the winner of the Niagara Falls Flyers-Peterborough Petes series and Hamilton meets the winner of the Kitchener-Toronto series.

Other Flyers leading their series 3-1, are hosts to Peterborough tonight and Toronto in in Kitchener.

Rejean Houle sparked Montreal with two goals. Pierre Bouchard, Arthur Quoquehl, Jean-Pierre Bordeleau and Norm Descoteaux had the others. St. Catharines' scorer was Pierre Jarry.

Jim Adair scored two Hamilton goals and Mike Flanigan, Rick Smith, Freddie Speck, Dennis Dawson, Rene Leclerc and Jim Mcinally notched the others.

Bob Pate, Brian Chinnick, George Graham and Paul Scherer tallied for the Nationals.

Defenceman Ab Demarco was the Kitchener leader with two goals, the second the winner on a slap-shot with the Marlies' Fred Barrett in the penalty box.

Other Kitchener goals were scored by Bill Orr, Walt Tkaczuk, and Don Luce.

Toronto scorers were Carl Vargo, Dave King, Frank Hamill and Doug Acomb.

NHL Scoring Leaders

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

With a new set of rules to work by, Phil Esposito is proving himself a sharp shooter.

The Boston Bruins centre scored a goal and earned two assists Thursday to move within two points of Stan Mikita of Chicago Black Hawks, National Hockey League scoring leader.

Last year, when Esposito centred Chicago's Bobby Hull, his orders were to get the puck to the Chicago ace. Now that he's a Bruin, coach Harry Sinden has him shooting at every opportunity.

The new freedom has paid off in 33 goals so far this year—six more than he's ever scored in a season before—and 46 assists, six more than his best previous NHL total, for 79 points.

Mikita, shutout in Thursday's 8-0 whipping at the hands of the Bruins, has 81 points on 29 goals and 42 assists.

While Hull remains in the lead in goal scoring with 44, Esposito now is tied with Rod Gilbert of New York Rangers for the assist lead.

Another major move among the league's top 10 scorers, was by Gordie Howe of Detroit Red Wings, who moved into a third-place tie with Jean Ratelle of New York, each with 76 points. Howe picked up two assists as the Wings lost 5-2 to Toronto Maple Leafs and now has 40 to go with 36 goals. Ratelle's total is built on 31 goals and 45 assists.

The leaders:

	G	A	Pts.	PIM
Mikita, Chi	39	42	81	14
Esposito, Bos	33	46	79	21

Unbeaten 'Scots Wi Hay' Impress Rinks With Style, Strategy

MONTREAL (CP) — Chuck Hay of Scotland watched Ernie Richardson of Regina win the international curling championship in 1962 and decided he would learn to play the way Canadians do.

"I knew that any European rink that won the title would have to curl like that to win," Hay said Thursday night after he stretched his undefeated string to five in this year's tournament.

Richardson is the only skip to win the title more than once and his Regina foursome did it in 1959, 1960, 1962 and 1963.

Hay, the defending champion who is making his fifth appearance in the championships, said he took his rink out and practised the long slide as opposed to the European style of delivering on one knee.

He also switched his strategy from a draw game to a combination of takeout and draw.

Scotland's strategy and style were particularly impressive during the fifth round of the eight-rink round robin tournament Thursday night as they outguessed and outmanoeuvred a Canadian rink, skipped by 1966 champion Ron Northcott of Calgary, 10-5.

The victory left the Scots in command and assured them of a berth in the playoffs which get under way tonight with the second- and third-place finishers meeting in a semi-final.

The semi-final winner meets the first-place finisher for the title at 2 p.m. EST Saturday.

The loss dropped the Canadians into second place with a 4-1 record but Northcott can do no worse than tie for third place if he loses the last two games of the round-robin today.

The United States, skipped by 1965 champion Bud Somerville, was in third place after Thursday's action with a 3-2 record.

Roy Berglot's Swedish rink was tied with Pierre Boan of France, Thor Andresen of Norway and Franz Martl of Switzerland for fourth place with 2-3 records.

Werner Fischer-Weppler and his West German rink were already eliminated from playoff contention after going winless in all five games.

Scotland met Switzerland in the sixth round at 9:30 a.m. today, Norway played Sweden, the U.S. faced France and Canada met West Germany.

Scotland, which defeated France 14-4 and the U.S. 16-6 in earlier rounds Thursday, employed the Canadian strategy of starting fast to grab a 5-1 lead after four ends against Northcott.

"That was the secret of it all," said Hay. "We curled magnificently in the first five ends and got the big lead."

Canada began the day by walloping Norway 13-8 but managed only a 7-5 victory over Sweden in the second game.

The Swedes, picked as a threat before the start of the tournament by Hay, were tied 3-3 with Canada after six of the regulation 12 ends before Northcott rallied his forces to go ahead 6-3 in the next two ends.

"The ice was good and we were curling quite well," said Northcott. "I guess it just means that the European countries are getting better and the gap is narrowing."

The U.S. defeated Sweden 8-4 and Switzerland 17-6 before suffering defeat at the hands of the Scots.

Norway also defeated France 13-1, Switzerland crushed West Germany 16-6, Sweden walloped West Germany 22-5, Scotland downed France 14-4 and Norway defeated West Germany 13-8.

The last round of the tournament was set for 2:30 p.m. today with Canada playing France, the U.S. meeting Germany, Norway taking on Scotland and Switzerland playing Sweden.

The semi-final is scheduled for 8 p.m. tonight.

Tonight's The Night—For Him!

Hockey takes a 10-year dip into the past here tonight.

The memories of Allan and World Cup championships will parade before what is expected to be a packed house at Memorial Arena.

And it's all to assist "Minnie" Menard, the flying left-winger of Belleville McFarland and Mollawk glory, who had a glorious hockey career ended recently through the loss of an eye.

Tonight climaxes the month of hard work on the part of those arranging the game. Co-operation has been overwhelming in most instances.

Money has come in from the far corners of the hockey world to expand the pot for the "Minnie" Menard benefit game.

MINNIE MENARD

Participating in the game will be members of the Mac Hawks of the past two years, many of the McFarlands of the 1956 to '58 era, several of the renowned Whitby Dunlops, including Bob Attersley, and others such as Stan Smrke, who recently ended a colorful pro career, and Eddie Redmond, fleet winger from Peterborough to ask if he could help.

Such popular stars as Jean-Paul Payette, Gordie Bell, Joe Lepine, "Bep" Guidolin, Mg Al Dewsbury, Rene St. Illaire, Pete Conacher, Keith MacDonald and many, many more are coming for the game — at their own expense.

Ticket sale has been good and local industries, merchants and others have helped financially, with draw prizes, advertising and in numerous other ways.

The game is scheduled for 9 p.m. and it has been pointed out that all seats are "rush" — first-come, first-served — so those planning on attending would be wise to get there early.

We are certainly hoping that no one will be turned away," said one of the organizers, "but the arena only holds so many and we can't guarantee a thing for late arrivals."

It should be a big night for an unfortunate and deserving guy.

Nancy, Killy Flash Form In Practice

SUN VALLEY, Idaho (CP-AP) — The American International ski team meet at Mount Baldy today shaped up as a battle between defending champion France and Austria with Canada's Nancy Greene expected to steal some of the spotlight.

Miss Greene, the Rossland, B.C., flash who won silver and gold medals at the Winter Olympics in Grenoble, France, and France's Jean-Claude Killy, a triple gold medal winner at the Olympics, had the fastest practice times of the women and men Thursday. Official times were not kept.

Miss Greene, who swept all three events at Aspen, Colo., last weekend, is duplicate the feat here this weekend in the team competition that gets under way today with the down hill races for men and women.

Killy will attempt to make up for a dismal three days last weekend when he finished among the top three in only one race, the downhill.

However, neither Greene nor Killy will be able to add to their World Cup skiing leads here. The meet does not count toward the World Cup, awarded on points accumulated at the International Ski Federation sanctioned meets.

Skiers found—the 2,800-foot course tricky, as six fell and did not finish, including Rod Herbert of Vernon, B.C. Hebron was not injured.

Take Opener 9-2

Fuels Win At Sarnia

Belleville Smith Fuels trounced their old Sarnia "jinxbusters" 9-2 Thursday in their opening game of Sarnia's peewee "Little NHL" hockey tournament.

Smith Fuels, defending Ontario champions, had to defeat Sarnia in a tough provincial finals series last spring.

The Belleville club is currently deadlocked 1-1 with Barrie in the OMHA peewee semi-finals, with the third game of that series being played in Barrie this Sunday.

Meanwhile, Smith Fuels were meeting Weston in the second round of tournament play at 12:15 today.

The Fuelmen lost no time against Sarnia yesterday, building a 4-0 lead after just 6:50 had been played in the game. They received solid goal-tending from both Terry Marek and Bobby Moore, beaten for only single goals by Sarnia's Moore and Running.

The Belleville scoring was well distributed. Grant Goegan led the way with three goals while Peter Crawford scored two and helped on one and Steve Kirby also trigger-ed two goals.

Danny Menard contributed one goal and two helpers and Peter Molnski added the other goal and one assist. Wally Dainard led the playmakers with three assists, Peter Smrke, Andy Ricketts and Mark Coates each getting two, David Plesch, Tim Whelan, Bruce Sutherland and "Joey" Edwards loners.

Tweed Midgets EOMHA Champions

TWEED — Tweed won the Midget 4' division Eastern OMHA championship here last night, defeating Norwood by a 7-1 score.

The winners swept the best-of-three series in two straight games by identical scores.

They expect to meet Bobcaygeon in the playdowns for the OMHA title.

Mustangs Defeat Firemen

Mustangs defeated the Firemen—5-2 in the third game of the Gas House League's best-of-seven finals last night.

Neither the series standing nor the date of the next game is available.

Johnson scored two Mustang goals, Horwood, Hughes and Meagher getting the others. Hughes had three assists, Bates, Holloway and Meagher one each.

Hurst scored the Firemen goals with Istead and Cole having helpers.

Cards Still Winning

Husky Harmon Hits Brace Of Homers

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Harmon Killebrew took personal charge of ending a seven-game string of losses Thursday when he hammered two home runs and led Minnesota Twins to a 7-6 victory over Los Angeles Dodgers.

In other games, St. Louis Cardinals blanked Pittsburgh Pirates 4-0, Atlanta Braves shut out Philadelphia Phillies 7-0, Detroit Tigers slopped Cincinnati Reds 3-0, Oakland Athletics edged Chicago White Sox 5-4 and Washington Senators nipped New York Mets 2-1.

Also Houston Astros hammered Boston Red Sox 11-1, New York Yankees edged Mexico City Tigers 5-4, San Francisco Giants battered Cleveland Indians 14-3 and Chicago Cubs blanked California Angels 1-0.

Orlando Cepeda, the National League's most Valuable Player last season, hammered a home run and a double against Pittsburgh and lifted his spring average to .400 on 12 hits in 30 at-bats.

The Senators maintained a perfect record against National League opponents, making the Mets their fifth straight victims. Sam Bowens homered for Washington and Ron Swoboda connected for New York.

Atlanta's Dick Kelley threw five perfect innings against Philadelphia. Sonny Jackson drove in three runs with a pair of singles for the Braves.

The Cubs pushed across an unearned run in the fifth inning and shutout pitching by Rich Nye and Gary Ross protected it for the victory.

Juan Marichal worked seven innings and contributed a double to an eight-run San Francisco rally in the fourth inning.

Jim Wynn, Hector Torres and Ivan Murrell cracked home runs leading a 16-hit Houston attack that carried the Astros to their sixth straight victory.

Danny Cater tagged two home runs and Sam Bando hit his seventh of the spring for Oakland.

Earl Wilson, Mike Marshall and Les Cain combined on a De troit three-hitter. Norm Cash drove in two Tiger runs with an eighth-inning single.

Quinte Hockey

Stinsons; Two In Row!

Stinson Construction took a two - game lead in the 4-of-7 Quinte Hockey League titular series last night with a 5-1 triumph over the Aluminum Stars.

Third game of the series will be played in Belleville, at eight o'clock, Tuesday.

Stinson's fell behind 1-0 in the game's first half last night but replaced in the second half for five unanswered goals.

Hubert Pointer notched the Stars' goal, assisted by Donnie Moore, but the club spent much of the second half shorthanded through penalties.

LeRoy McBrien starred for Stinson's with a three - goal scoring effort. Rick Denard and Don Forsythe added the other counters. Forsythe assisted on a pair, Denard, Pete Mitchell and Don Bishop on loners.

All six of the losers' penalties came in the game's second half while four of the winners' half dozen were scored in the first half.

Lead Series 2-1

Whitby Stops Picton

Whitby erased a 2-1 Picton lead with five consecutive goals and went on for a 6-3 OHA Intermediate "B" playoff victory over the Merchants, in Whitby, last night.

The winners hold a 2-1 games lead in the 4-of-7 series with the next game scheduled for the Picton Arena Sunday at 8 p.m.

Whitby opened the scoring last night but Picton tied it 1-1 by the end of the period and jumped in front mid-way through the second. Whitby came back with three for a 4-3 margin going into the third, adding two more before the visitors closed the scoring.

George Jackson potted two of the three Picton markers with Carl Stacey adding the other one.

Lynn Middleton triggered a pair of Whitby tallies with loners for Lloyd Seymour, Gordie Luke, Les Sinden and Rick Switzer.

Picton drew eight of the contest's dozen minor penalties but only one of the Whitby goals came off a powerplay.

A large crowd is expected for Sunday's key fourth game.

LOOK FOR MONSTERS

Volunteers, at the Lock Ness Phenomena Investigation Bureau, scan the Scottish lake for monsters, hoping to prove once and for all that the monsters do exist.

City Novices Reach Semis At Welland

"Satch" Sutherland's Belleville novice team reached the semi-finals of the "A" division of the Welland tournament yesterday.

They defeated the strong St. Catharines team 3-0 and advanced to the semi-finals. They meet Sarnia today at 1:30 p.m.

Brent Babcock played an outstanding game in the nets for the Belleville team getting a well-deserved shutout.

Ross McLeod, Mike Meeker and Bobby Crawford scored for winners, Crawford also getting an assist.

Larry Waite had two assists, Andy Lupinetta and Micky Whelan one apiece. Mickey Whelan getting singles.

HIPPIE HAVEN IN LAOS

Hippies from Britain, Germany, France and the United States are moving to the ancient kingdom of Laos, lured by the carefree way of life and the hope of easy access to opium and marijuana.

CN Beat B and B Commission to Punch

MONTREAL CP — Canadian National Railways was trying to implement the B-and-B report even before it was made, says CN President N. J. MacMillan.

This came about because the railway conducted its own inquiry, on biculturalism and bilingualism five or six years ago, beating the Dunton-Laurendeau study to the punch.

Mr. MacMillan told an interviewer the bilingual report was "just about the same as that of the B-and-B in its broad-gauge recommendations.

"Flowing from that was our decision to embark upon bilingualizing our passenger and freight equipment, signs in our stations and hotels, issuing material in both languages and encouraging the use of French as the working language where there are enough people who use French to make it desirable.

"We have invoked this principle outside the province of Quebec and it is something of which we are really quite proud.

A furore arose in 1962 after former CN president Donald Gordon told a parliamentary committee French - Canadians had not reached the railway's top ranks because of a shortage of qualified applicants.

Stating that Mr. Gordon's remarks were "quite misunderstood and changed in context in various publications, Mr. MacMillan declared:

"In any event the process which began ahead of that has continued to this day and we feel we have done more in this field than perhaps any other comparable organization.

A predominantly French-Canadian group including senior officers and a member of the board of directors has for years sat regularly to consider all problems in the field.

CN headquarters has a language laboratory 'which I think is as well staffed and equipped as any comparable one in this country."

Opportunities to learn a second language are also provided in other parts of the system.

"We've also done a great deal of work on the translation of standing instructions which formerly were issued entirely in English. We now issue many of these in both languages.

"We have just completed the translation of our operating rules and that was a very difficult chore because it was essential that we preserve the niceties and the refinement which had evolved in terms of the English context and also the interpretations which had been made of the language through the years, something like the interpretations of insurance policies.

A translation bureau in itself had been found inadequate because of railway jargon and technical language, so a "linguistic bureau" has been added, one of its principal jobs being the preparing of a dictionary for railways — "our own glossary of terms.

"We would adopt French words to represent English equivalents only even if they weren't an exact translation they conveyed the same thought.

"The French dictionary of continental France didn't lend itself to this chore any more than a British railway manual lends itself to us in English, because we don't use the same word for the same thought or object.

Mr. MacMillan, a unilingual third-generation Canadian of Scottish ancestry, said the 1962 uproar regarding employment was unfortunate and "basically a problem of communication.

"As it stands today we have as vice - president of our St. Lawrence region and headquartered in Montreal Jean Richer, in charge of the railway from Oshawa through to Riviere-du-Loup in the east.

"His territory embraces a very good segment of Ontario including places like Kingston, Belleville, Cornwall, Ottawa and virtually all the province of Quebec as well as our lines in the United States through Vermont down to New London, Conn.

"This region is liberally staffed with French - speaking Canadians who are developing. We don't like to keep them always in Quebec because it is important to have people with broad experience.

"I very much prefer to cross-transfer promising men — to move them into other parts of Canada — and we've done this with very great success.

There were French-Canadians among vice-presidents at head office and a number also at the managerial level. Lionel Cote, vice-president of the law department, is a Quebecer, as is Maurice Archer, head of research and development.

Mr. MacMillan said that besides the regular language courses, selected persons are given the language "immersion treatment." Interest of French-language employees in learning English appeared to be strongest in Quebec City.

"We must be able to communicate with all our customers in the language of their choice, said the Winnipeg-raised CN chief.

"That is our objective but one problem we've had is that our train jobs are allocated in accordance with the rules of seniority and these were set without regard to language.

"They contemplated that everyone spoke English but not French. So we do have situations where we have running trades personnel who are unilingual.

"Were tried to teach them enough to help them get along with a customer who is unable to speak English, or prefers to speak French.

"Where we have had an employee who is co-operative, then this can be done. If not, then it becomes a difficult problem.

League of Mercy Does Good Work in Community

NAPANEE — The League of Mercy ,inaugurated in 1882, has a branch in Napanee, which, in a quiet way, has been doing much good work in Napanee for over a year. Women of the Salvation Army visit the sick in hospitals ,and nursing homes and in their own homes. Recently they have added the Happy Day School for the mentally retarded to their list.

Three uniformed members hold commissions issued to them from Toronto headquarters through the district office in Belleville. In addition, there are 12 associate members, working actively behind the scenes, sewing, and aiding the sick, especially in their homes. If a sick person cannot be left alone, a League of Mercy member will stay with her while the housewife does her shopping. If the shut-in needs help, a League of Mercy member will do her shopping, write letters for her, or come if she needs help.

There is only one car available among the members, and transportation is a real problem, especially for Mrs. A. Trafford, the secretary, who lives two miles out of town.

The League of Mercy has no fund-raising projects and depends solely on donations. They do distribute small yellow sunshine bags, to anyone who requests them. They ask only a penny for each day the sun shines, but have no objection if the bag contains a occasional silver coin to carry on their work.

Patient-day Costs Drop At Napanee Hospital

NAPANEE — The cost for a patient day at Lennox and Addington County General Hospital dropped in 1967 while the number of patients admitted increased.

Board chairman R. L. Chapman made the report at the annual meeting.

Cost per patient for one day averaged $36.26 in 1966 and dropped to $36.15 in 1967.

Mr. Chapman said the number of patients admitted increased 40 per cent, from 1,191 in 1966 to 1,671 in 1967. The number of people using the out-patient service increased 54 per cent over the first year of operation.

Administrator James Hepburn said there is a strong possibility the hospital will have student nurses in the future. The position of director of nurses will be filled soon.

Two new members, H. C. Empey and Scott Bateman, were appointed to the board for a two-year term. Three others, Werk Poole, Col. H. L. Armstrong and Erle Fenwick, were re-appointed to the board. The 13-man board is chosen on a staggered term basis.

Four Sections Of Road To Be Built

NAPANEE — Four sections of road in Lennox and Addington County will be tendered for construction this summer.

County road engineer Alec Moffat said the preliminary engineering work and land purchase will have been completed in time for tenderings.

The roads are county road 9, known as the River Road, southwest of Napanee; county road 8 in the Sillsville area; county road 3 from highway 14 at Beaver Lake west to the boundary line between Hungerford and Sheffield townships; and county road 14 leading east from Centreville to the township of Hinchinbrooke.

SUCCESS IN THEATRE

The Manitoba Theatre Centre, in its ninth year, attracted more than 150,000 persons.

THEATRE FEATURE TIMES

AT THE BELLE — Walt Disney's "The Jungle Book" and "Charlie, the Lonesome Cougar", Sunday through Thursday. Full length complete show at 7 and 9.

AT THE PARK — In Technicolor — "The Ambushers", Dean Martin, Senta Berger, Janice Rule. Starts Friday, 7.25. Saturday Matinee 2.25.

Smoking May Lead To Vascular Spasms

By Dr. Joseph G. Molner

Dear Dr. Molner: Please explain what "vascular spasms" mean. Is it a result of high blood pressure? What are the symptoms and how serious is it?

"Does smoking have anything to do with it? — M. B.

By dictionary definition, a spasm is a sudden, violent muscular contraction. So a vascular spasm is a sudden, but passing, narrowing of a blood vessel due to such a contraction.

Such vascular spasms can occur in various parts of the body. They are thought to be particularly noticeable except when they occur in the brain, since the brain has brief contraction, and hence reduction of blood flow, can manifest itself immediately.

The resulting symptoms can be quite variable: a passing sense of giddiness; disturbance of speech or vision; weakness of an arm or leg or foot, — it depends on the area of the brain which is involved.

Smoking can be an important cause since some individuals are particularly vulnerable to its effects. Smaller blood vessels can clamp down, from just one or two cigarettes, so the flow of blood through those vessels is momentarily stopped.

Saying that such spasms are a "result" of high blood pressure is not quite correct, but they may occur more frequently as a result of certain of the causes of high blood pressure.

The higher degree of arteriosclerosis, or partial clogging of blood vessels, can make the individual more prone and more likely to produce symptoms.

Trying to indicate "how serious" spasms are is rather difficult thing. In themselves, the spasms, since they are brief, are not particularly serious. They may, (or may not) mean that the underlying circulatory trouble should be watched.

Dear Dr. Molner: I have been taking a contraceptive pill for four years. Recently I had a checkup by a different gynecologist, and although I had absolutely no problem with the pill, he suggested changing to a pill of another dose made by the same company.

I have heard that the small, low dose pill is safer than the pill would not last as long as the larger dosage. As a result, I feel a terrible insecure. — K. M.

There's no reason for you to worry. The smaller dose has been found to be equally as effective as the larger o.e. Your gynecologist is a specialist and knows what he is doing. If you are still worried, discuss it with him.

The risk of skipping the large pill is just as great as skipping the smaller one — the pill must be taken exactly as scheduled to assure freedom from pregnancy.

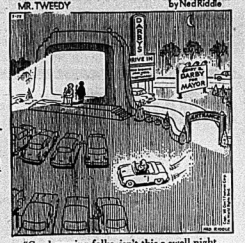
Dear Dr. Molner: I understand that older people need more calcium or calcium salts than ordinarily. Please advise me whether this is true or disputed and assimilated. Would half a shell each morning be sufficient? — Mrs. C.



Your original assumption is incorrect. Older people don't need more calcium than others. The greatest calcium need is in a growing child, a pregnant woman or a nursing mother.

Egrant, however, that many older people do not get as much calcium as they need, because they have let their eating habits slip.

An ample, balanced diet will provide enough calcium for the body's needs. But why egg shells? While they contain calcium, it is not in a readily digestible form. Why not get your calcium the easy way? Try milk. (Skim milk, or buttermilk if you prefer; they have as much calcium.) A glass or two a day, plus meat and vegetables in your daily diet will provide all the calcium you need — and save your teeth and gums from the wear and tear of trying to cope with egg shells.

"Notable Reduction" in House Fires

House fires in Belleville showed a "notable reduction" last year and Fire Chief Ted Poste feels that home inspections and continued education toward fire safety was to some measure responsible.

"Education in fire safety to reduce conditions that would endanger life or property are continually being brought to the attention of the citizens," says the fire chief in his annual report.

While there was a reduction in the number of fires in private homes, Chief Poste reported an increase in losses in the industrial and mercantile area, caused mainly by the loss of two vacant plants.

In both of these instances the fires were attributed to children playing with matches.

In all there were 571 fire alarms in the city last year, the big majority of them being night calls between 6.00 p.m. and 8.00 a.m.

In addition firemen were called out on 98 occasions to townships with which the city has fire protection agreements. More than half of the rural calls — 50 in number — were from the township of Thurlow.

Sidney township was the source of 25 alarms, Ameliasburg 13 and Tyendinaga 8. On two occasions the reels answered alarms on the Mohawk Indian Reservation.

Last year's fire loss in the city was up substantially ($200,724 or $8.26 per capita) over 1966 but figures for that year were unusually low.

The major fire loss in Belleville during the year was at the Oliphant Electric Wholesale last October, the loss being set at $80,000 for stock and equipment. Another heavy loss was at the Zegour as Brothers grocery on Dundas street east, set at $40,794.

But the really big fire of the year was at Trenton where the loss of the Bata Shoe warehouse was set at $780,000. Belleville firemen helped fight the blaze through mutual aid.

The department's fire prevention bureau had a busy year with a total of 501 inspections (exclusive of inservice home inspections) of residential units, including private homes, apartment buildings, boarding homes, hotels and hotels.

Another 131 inspections were made at public buildings (schools and churches etc.) 397 at mercantile establishments and another 114 at industrial shops and factories.

The home inspection program saw 782 homes inspected.

And what was the most common types of hazards found as result of the inspections by the fire prevention bureau?

Firemen reported they found 216 cases of improper disposal of rubbish and ashes. Improper disposal of dusting and wiping materials and improper storage of flammable materials were also common. As result of hydro inspections 114 minor defects and eight major defects were found.

The fire chief's report indicates high emphasis on the value of training for department members in their role of fire fighters.

Also noted are the number of fire hydrants in the city.

There are 655 fire plugs inside the corporation and another 61 on private property in the city and in the adjacent township areas.

And it is the duty of firemen to know wholly every one of the fire plugs are located.

Sunday School Lesson

Invitation to A Live-in

By CLARENCE W. CRANFORD

Millions of people in the world today are like a branch cut off from the plant whose roots have fed it. They are cut loose from the roots that have nourished the ideals and standards of the past.

This is why Elton Trueblood calls this a "cut-flower" civilization. A branch may be ever so artistically arranged in a vase, but it will soon die because it is cut off from the roots that gave it life.

Technology may teach people how to make better vases and buildings. It may arrange people in new ways through city planning and urban renewal. But this does not get at their basic problem as long as people are cut off from the roots that nourish the growth of personal honesty and the moral and ethical standards that lift them above the level of the animal.

Millions today are cut off from the soul. They live from year to year without ever walking across a field, or sitting under the shade of a tree. They are bounded by glass, steel, and cement. They take their food from grocery shelves with[out] ever once smelling the good earth in which it grew.

The Uniform Sunday School lesson for March 24: "Abiding in Christ," John 15 and 16.

Millions are also cut off from the geographical location in which their family's roots were deep. They are like strangers in a strange land. "Where are you from?" is the question they ask each other. They live wondering when some industrial or military assignment will require them to move someplace else.

Millions today are cut off from organized religion. They no longer attend worship services, or bother to join a church. They no longer consider the church important in their lives, or in the life of the community. They have turned to the cocktail hour rather than the communion rail for their solace. So they have one less reminder of God to cling to when the going gets rough.

In fact, millions are cut off from a purposeful faith. They are like ships adrift on a trackless ocean. They have no north star to guide them. They are like branches cut from a tree being moved around in a florist's truck. They may still have some blossoms of moral and ethical ideals made possible by a past connection with Christian or Judaic roots, but they are on their way to withered moral standards because they no longer have the roots of a deep religious conviction to feed them.

It was Jesus Himself who first used the illustration of the branch and the vine. (See John 15:1-6) By means of it, He invites people to a new kind of a live-in.

People today are familiar with sit-ins, kneel-ins, teach-ins and the like. The Salvation Army called its Christmas-programs for the poor a share-in. But Jesus invites His followers to a live-in. He asks them to "abide" with Him, and to let Him "abide" with them.

To abide in a place is to live in it. Therefore to follow Jesus is to engage in a live-in. It is more than just knowing something about Him. It is actually trusting Him and His truth, and living in terms of that trust.

People who abide in a place are expected to obey the laws of that place. To take part in Jesus' live-in, a person must be willing to obey Jesus' commandment to try to show Christian love toward others. (See John 15:13-12) Paul said Jesus' "law" is that people should try to bear one another's burdens. This is the only reference to a "law" of Christ in the Bible.

But that obedience is rooted in faith. It is rooted in the faith that Jesus' words are true, that His example is the best guide, that His presence continues in the person of God's spirit (John 16:7), and that His promises are the roots out of which Christian hope can grow. (John 14:1-3)

It is these roots that are looking for roots that can sustain them in life and in death, and who are looking for a way of life they can live in and not lose their bearings, Jesus says "abide in Me." (John 15:4) The world may be hostile. (John 15:18) People may prefer sit-ins to demonstrations of understanding and love. They may want to be freed from confining rocks. But this kind of freedom means death. A person is only free to grow a human dignity and worth by being bound by faith to a righteous and loving God. Jesus' whole life was given to help people see and trust this kind of a God more clearly.

NDP Blocks Hopes for Quick Adjournment of Parliament

OTTAWA (CP) — Government hopes for an adjournment of Parliament today apparently have been blocked by a persistent NDP campaign aimed at speeding passage of the government drug bill.

Health Minister MacEachen, government House leader and one of eight cabinet ministers campaigning for the Liberal leadership, said in an interview Thursday night the outlook is "bleak" for a quick adjournment.

The April 4-6 Liberal convention now is less than two weeks off and the cabinet contenders will have little time for campaigning if the House continues to sit next week.

The government has been trying to clean up supplementary estimates but so far the House has adopted those of only five departments: finance, veterans' affairs, external affairs, the secretary of state's office and defence production.

Also required is an interim supply vote, to give the government authority to pay its bills during the recess.

The NDP wants the government to call its bill aimed at lowering prescription drug prices before adjournment. But the government has not agreed and the New Democrats have been prolonging debate on supplementary spending in hopes the government will change its mind.

Only NDP members spoke in debate Thursday, apart from Defence Production Minister Drury.

Stanley Knowles, NDP House leader, told The Canadian Press that "any reasonable proposition" from the government could bring Commons business to a quick end. But he saw "no strong prospect" of this.

It was more likely the Commons would have to sit "for at least a day or two" next week.

THE LITTLE WOMAN

"Emily loved the movie—it was a sensitive, romantic, heart-warming bore."

Commons Group Wants Drug Addicts Treated

OTTAWA (CP) — With Parliament and the courts cracking down on drug offenders, a Commons standing committee has recommended an entirely different approach.

Calling for "a crash program to combat this great evil," the Commons committee on justice and legal affairs says treatment should be substituted for punishment in cases of drug abuse.

It recommends that:

—A federal-provincial conference be called to provide for establishment of adequate facilities for treatment and rehabilitation of addicts. The report notes that judges now have no place but jail to send them:

—That drug addiction be recognized primarily as an illness. "From the evidence before the committee, there is no doubt that a narcotic addict is not per se a criminal but is a sick man and should be treated as such;"

—Publication of the name of anyone charged under such legislation should be banned without consent of the Judge.

—Society should avoid wherever possible "the stigma of criminal conviction in drug cases, especially when youths or first offenders are involved.

OEA Has Chance To Guide Changes

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Educational Association has a chance to become the vehicle for school improvement if it is not too weak, OEA President Walter Pitman said Thursday.

His inaugural address to the association senate came at the close of the OEA annual meeting. A few of the 35 sections continue talks today.

Mr. Pitman, 30, said the 12,000-member OEA has had a weak voice in proclaiming views in revolutionary changes in education during the last year—larger units of educational administration, the end of Grade 13 examinations, modifications of curriculum and firm plans for educational television. He suggested the OEA has not spoken out on major policy revisions because the senate—representing the 35 sections from principals to teachers to trustees—meets only three or four times a year.

He asked the senate to consider a place in the structure for "the one significant group who are missing—the students."

"Eventually the OEA must come to grips with what has been called student power and assist those who would see it become as well, student responsibility."

Command Switch Made in Vietnam

Arabs Mourn Their Dead

Move Result Of Split

SAIGON (Reuters) — Gen. William C. Westmoreland was relieved of his command of U.S. forces in Vietnam because he disagreed with the Johnson administration over the U.S. role in the war, American observers said today.

The observers, both military and civilian, were not unduly surprised by President Johnson announced by President Johnson Friday night.

Many observers said his replacement was inevitable after he pressed for an expansion of the American role here beyond what the White House was willing to allow.

It was well known that Westmoreland, after the Viet Cong lunar new year offensive, requested more troops—and some reports mentioned as many as 206,000 extra men.

Vietnam was still shuddering from the new year offensive—a nationwide assault launched two months ago and which some observers said put the situation back to where it was in 1964 when Westmoreland first came here.

But as the weeks passed with no announcement from Washington of a troop increase, many officers and observers became convinced Westmoreland was not going to get the means to wage the sort of war he wanted.

Westmoreland, in a statement issued from his command centre at Tan Son Nhut military-civilian air base here, said he regretted having to leave "before the battle is over and peace is restored."

He said as the new army chief of staff at the Pentagon, a promotion effective from July, he would "continue to support our objectives here to the best of my ability."

Kicked Upstairs

LONDON (AP) — The news of Gen. William Westmoreland's appointment as U.S. Army chief was splashed over front pages in Britain's national newspapers today.

"LBJ sacks his Viet war chief," said the tabloid Daily Sketch over six columns.

"'Westy' goes as U.S. rethinks on war," said The Daily Mirror.

"The move means promotion for Westmoreland. But already the suggestion is being made that he is being 'kicked upstairs.'"

The Daily Express quoted an unnamed Pentagon official as saying: "If we had been winning victories in—Vietnam he would not be coming home."

Westmoreland To Come Home

WASHINGTON (Reuters) — The removal of Gen. William C. Westmoreland from the Vietnam battle scene is expected to clear the way for possible changes in President Johnson's conduct of the war.

Johnson told a hastily-called press conference at the White House Friday night that Westmoreland, 54, field commander in Vietnam for four years, is being brought back in July to take over as U.S. Army chief of staff at the Pentagon.

His successor has not yet been named.

Observers said the move was expected to encourage the belief the president was reviewing the over-all Vietnam situation in response to pressure from New York Senator Robert F. Kennedy and the war critics in the Democratic party.

The recall of the general also set off speculation that the election campaign of dissatisfaction with his handling of the war persuaded Johnson to think about a change.

Kennedy and Minnesota Senator Eugene 't. McCarthy, Johnson's two challengers for the Democratic presidential nomination in the November election, want him to de-escalate the conflict, move away from a war of attrition and do more to open negotiations with the Communists.

Westmoreland has been increasingly criticized for what dissenters and others felt were his inflexibility and unwarranted optimism in the face of Communist gains during the Tet offensive launched at the end of January.

Only five weeks ago Johnson vehemently denied reports he intended to replace Westmoreland.

Reporters at the news conference Friday night noted that the president failed to repeat the lavish words of praise he had for Westmoreland when he made the denial.

Then, on Feb. 16, angered by reports that Westmoreland would be relieved, Johnson virtually accused the press—especially the foreign press—of trying to undermine confidence in him and discredit his leadership.

Observers thought it significant that the president gave a non-committal reply when asked Friday night if the Vietnam command change meant an overhaul of battlefield tactics.

The president gave no clue about who would take over from Westmoreland.

Gen. Creighton W. Abrams, rated as the toughest combat commander in the U.S. Army, is Westmoreland's deputy in Saigon and has been viewed as the heir-apparent for some time.

Friends of Westmoreland, seeking to counter any impression he is being sacked, argued the job of army chief of staff can hardly be rated a demotion.

It also was pointed out that Westmoreland will be left to run the war for three more months —hardly comparable with the

UN Council Cannot Agree On Warning to Israelis

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — Members of the UN Security Council, weary after two days of marathon meetings and private consultations on the latest outbreak of fighting in the Middle East, pushed ahead today with their search for a resolution critical of Israel that all could accept.

The council meets at noon EST after it decided at about 1:30 a.m. that there was no hope for immediate agreement. Council members had begun their sessions Friday shortly after noon after meetings the day before that had lasted past midnight.

Diplomatic sources said it was generally agreed among members of the 15-nation council that Israeli retaliatory attack on Jordan Thursday should be condemned.

The sources said the major obstacle for a general reference to Arab terrorist raids into Israel and Israeli-occupied Arab territory which preceded Israeli's large-scale attack on Jordan. Israel said the attack was in retaliation for the raids.

Algeria, one of the most militant of the Arab states and a member of the council, was said to be opposed to any such reference.

The Western members of the council also are unhappy about a provision in a draft resolution put forward unofficially by Algeria that would warn Israel of "further and more effective measures" by the council if Israel should repeat its military reprisal.

Up to the early hours today, no resolution had been formally presented to the council.

Six Die In Fire

BERESFORD, N.B. (CP) — Firemen were searching for bodies today in the smouldering ruins of a home in this northern New Brunswick community where six persons are presumed to have perished late Friday.

Missing and presumed dead are Samuel Frenette, Jr., 33, his four children—Jacqueline, 10; James, 9; Steven, 6; and Cynthia, 1½—and a maid, Brigitte Pinardie, 18, of St. Sauveur, N.B.

Mrs. Frenette, a nurse's aid at Hotel Dieu Hospital in Bathurst five miles away, was at work when the fire broke out in the modern bungalow.

Two fire trucks from Bathurst fought the blaze, but it was well under way by the time they arrived.

Samuel Frenette, Sr., who lives about a quarter mile from his son, said today he did not know of the fire until he and his wife were awakened by a young man.

He said the man, who Mr. Frenette, Sr., didn't know, was the first person on the scene and tried to enter the burning dwelling. He was turned back by flames.

Nixon Assails Ontario Budget

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario's budget for the fiscal year ending March 31, 1969, sells the province short, Liberal Leader Nixon told the legislature Friday.

He said the budget failed to "install confidence and accelerate our growth."

It was not used as "the major device by which we can strive for full employment, for a high rate of continuing economic growth, for reasonable price stability, and for the equitable distribution of rising incomes."

Mr. Nixon questioned the wisdom of cancelling $20,000,000 in public works projects, "particularly when they were designed to fill the gap left by Expo and other centennial projects."

Champagne Lunch Served To Man Living in Coffin

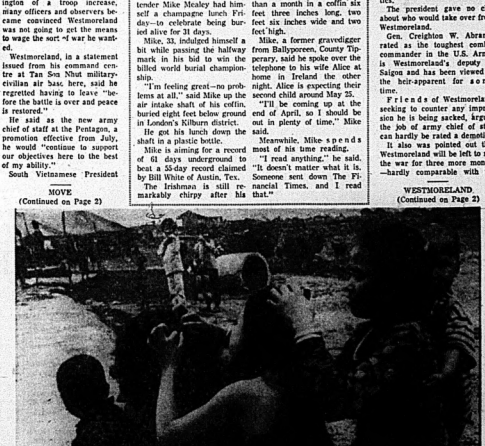
LONDON (AP) — Irish bartender Mike Mealey had himself a champagne lunch Friday—to celebrate being buried alive for 31 days.

Mike, 33, indulged himself a bit while passing the halfway mark in his bid to win the billed world burial championship.

"I'm feeling great—no problems at all," said Mike up the air intake shaft of his coffin, buried eight feet below ground in London's Kilburn district.

He got his lunch down the shaft in a plastic bottle.

Mike is aiming for a record of 61 days underground to beat a 55-day record claimed by Bill White of Austin, Tex.



The Irishman is still remarkably chirpy after his close confinement for more than a month in a coffin six feet three inches long, two feet six inches wide and two feet high.

Mike, a former gravedigger from Ballygowen, County Tipperary, said he spoke over the telephone to his wife Alice at home in Ireland the other night. Alice is expecting their second child around May 25.

"I'll be coming up at the end of April, so I should be out in plenty of time." Mike said.

Meanwhile, Mike spends most of his time reading.

"I read anything," he said. "It doesn't matter what it is. Someone sent down The Financial Times, and I read that."

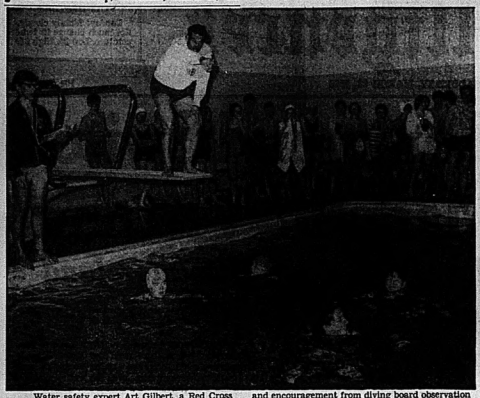
Man Given $1,200 Damages Has to Pay $60,000 Costs

TORONTO (CP)—A Toronto tailor Friday was awarded $1,200 in a damage action against Howard Investments Ltd. and the City of Toronto, but also was assessed an estimated $60,000 in legal fees.



Lucio Anthony Casaccio had claimed $1,000,000 in damages for trespass, nuisance and interference on his private right-of-way.

Mr. Justice Neil Fraser of the Ontario Supreme Court said that ordering Mr. Casaccio to pay full costs for the month-long trial "may work a hardship" on him. But it would "not be a proper exercise of discretion to relieve him further."

He said Mr. Casaccio pursued the suit "beyond all reason."

The judge awarded Mr. Casaccio $500 and costs of $700 because a lane on his property had subsided as a result of construction by the Howard firm.

Mr. Casaccio claimed that the defendant companies erected a large building near his land and swung loads of material over his property, threatening destruction of his property. He had include l in his claim $100,000 for trespass of his air space.

Water safety expert Art Gilbert, a Red Cross supervisor at CFB Trenton, offered trainees advice and encouragement from diving board observation point as he judged course enrolment.

Settle Strike

Workers Get 15 per cent Hike

TRENTON — The all-woman strike against a local firm ended yesterday with ratification of a contract for 15 per cent wage increase.

All but one of the 30 members of Local 530 International Union of Electrical Radio and Machine Workers voted to accept a memorandum of agreement drafted by union and Essex Electric officials in Toronto on Thursday.

The local had sought a 25 per cent increase in a two-year contract before talks broke down and the Water St., plant struck Feb. 15. The highest Essex offer to that date was a reported 10 per cent increase over two years.

The minimum hiring rate per hour under the terms of the new agreement will be $1.23, increasing to $1.29 next year. Other rates will be — one year: $1.34 ($1.41 next year), senior employee $1.50 ($1.56 next year), lead hand — $1.61 ($1.69 next year) and lead hand set up $1.65 ($1.73 next year).

The previous Essex hourly wage scale ranged from $1.12 to $1.50. All increases are retroactive to Oct. 5, 1967, the expiry date of the former agreement.

Other benefits included in the new agreement stipulate — two weeks paid vacation after two years' service (formerly two weeks after three years); local rights to process grievances on behalf of the employees; automatic bereavement leave (formerly upon request to employer.)

An IUE spokesman said agreement by the company to supply hot water for coffee and tea brewing during break periods had been a controversial employee demand included in the new contract.

A surprising gain to come out of the month-old all woman strike was the inclusion of a lone male worker in the Local 30 bargaining unit. The Essex plant maintenance mechanic, whose basic rate will be $2.06 hourly becomes the only male in the local.

The strikers return to work on Monday.

Tom Gill Heads Area Key Clubs

OTTAWA — A 16-year-old Belleville student has been elected head of a high school service club circuit in Eastern Ontario.

He is Tom Gill, a Grade 12 student at Belleville Collegiate, and vice-president of the school's Key Club.

He was elected lieutenant governor of the club's No. 9 district, which includes 10 Key organizations with 200 members.

His election came at a Key Club convention here attended by 65 Belleville students from city clubs.

The Key organization is a high school version of Kiwanis service clubs.

Student Drivers Graduate

TWEED — Thirteen graduates of the driver education course at Tweed-Hungerford District High School received their certificates at a recent assembly.

They are: Joan Bennett, Bill Boyle, Cathy Cassidy, Geraldine Courneyea, Donna Griffin, Aaron Hunt, John Kitchen, Michael McCormick, Margaret McCulloch, Beth Schwager, Murray Spencer, Ted Thompson and Paul Woolfrey.

The course consists of 25 hours classroom instruction conducted by J. R. Poste, and 18 hours in-car instruction, 3 students at six hours behind the wheel, taught by St Mackenzie.

Instructional materials, including films, are supplied by the Safety Education Branch of the Ontario Department of Transport. The driver education car is a Plymouth Fury III, supplied by Heath Jones, Tweed. Since some of the students are from the rural area the classroom sessions will be held at noon.

A second group of 19 students are now taking the course, which should be completed early in May.

Obituaries

HARRY E. JAQUES

The funeral service for Harry E. Jaques was held this Saturday afternoon in the Bennett-Weaver Funeral Home in Campbellford. Rev. Dr. E. M. Smith officiated. Interment was in the Mount Olivet cemetery in Brighton.

The bearers were Melville Petherick, Francis Long, Fred Hendrick, Gordon McGee, William Moran and Charles Pudephatt.

Mr. Jaques, formerly residing at 112 Dundas Street in Campbellford, died Thursday in the Campbellford Memorial Hospital after an illness of one year. He was in his 75th year.

Born in Allisonville, he was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Edward Jaques. He resided in Campbellford for 20 years.

Mr. Jaques was a retired farmer. He was a member of St. John's United Church and he was a former member of the True Blue Lodge, I.O.O.F. in Campbellford.

He is survived by his wife, the former Ollie Ames; by two sons, Russell of Campbellford and Glenn of Belleville; by one sister, Mrs. Flossie Sherwin of Warkworth; by one brother, Fred Jaques of Brighton; and by eight grandchildren.

Bridge Street A.O.T.S. Club Enjoys Tea

The monthly meeting of Bridge St. United Church A.O.T.S. Club was held on Wednesday evening with a better than average attendance.

President Jack Ireland presided. A potluck dinner was served by the women of the church. Sgt.-at-Arms was Borden Lee.

Clayton French expressed the appreciation of the Club members.

Joe. Demeza led a sing-song with Alec Gordon at the piano and Don Williams led the devotional period.

David Thompson announced that the Selby United Church A.O.T.S. Club has invited the Bridge St. Club to visit them in April and present the program for the evening.

Ron. Smith spoke on the club project, appealing to the members to support Crossroads Africa and buy "Crossroads Africa" tulip bulbs, this being the national project for A.O.T.S. clubs across Canada. The Club members also decided to continue their local project to carry on the work of improving the parsonage grounds.

Highlight of the evening's program was a travelogue by Don. Lockyer, Principal of Queen Victoria Public School. He told of his experiences and that of his family while serving as a teacher in a teachers' college in Northern Nigeria for approximately a year and a half. The pictures shown made his message most informative and interesting.

Preparing for Blood Clinic

The regular meeting of the Belleville branch of the Canadian Red Cross Society was held on Tuesday evening. Past-President Archie Lewis presided and Assistant treasurer Newton Thompson's report was accepted committee chairmen were heard.

Mrs. A. H. Ketcheson, chairman of the Homemakers Service, reported as of end of February. There were 11 cases involving 58 children, 171 days of service were given to 19 families. Senior Citizens of the executive to attend the graduation exercises of the Home Nursing class to be held Tuesday, April 16th at 8 p.m. in Education Hall.

Mrs. Gordon Miller reported there were 402 blood packs donated at the last clinic held at Chris Crane. Mr. Lewis hoped the clinic on April 11th at Kiwanis Centre will be equally successful when more of the older high school students are expected to be donors.

Westmoreland Will Come Home

summary relief of Gen. Douglas MacArther by President Truman during the Korean War.

And yet there were other elements, even beyond Westmoreland's own reaction, that contributed to an impression Johnson had cooled toward his commander.

If Johnson had promoted Westmoreland to the prestige of chairman of the joint chiefs, grounds for regarding Westmoreland's relief as a repudiation would have been virtually non-existent.

But the president implied strongly that Westmoreland wasn't considered for the chairmanship, regarded as the top military position.

Johnson said Westmoreland was considered for the post of commander-in-chief of the entire Pacific area and for the army staff chief job. But the president did not mention Westmoreland in connection with a possible replacement for retiring Gen. Earle C. Wheeler, chairman of the joint chiefs of staff.

And Admiral U.S. Grant Sharp, the U.S. Pacific commander who reaches the mandatory retirement age of 62 next month, will remain in uniform an extra two months, until July 2, to allow time for naming his successor.

Move

Nguyen Van Thieu congratulated Westmoreland on his promotion, but said it was not his place to comment on the general's removal from command in Vietnam.

Ground fighting for the most part slackened in small-unit skirmishes in scattered parts of South Vietnam but the besieged U.S. marine base at Khe Sanh came under the heaviest enemy shelling in recent days.

U.S. B-52s hammered North Vietnamese positions around Khe Sanh, hitting bunkers, caves and a storage area two miles southeast of the camp.

Troop concentrations, trucks and supply areas near the camp also were targets of U.S. bombs.

Gunfire by Vandals Shuts Down PE Power

Vandalism today was being blamed for a power failure that cut hydro supplies closer across Prince Edward County.

"Damn fools' reacted an Ontario Hydro official when the overnight power failure was traced to insulators damaged by gunfire.

The angry response was echoed in other quarters.

The blackout shut down kiln operations at Lake Ontario Cement's Picton plant.

The damage neutralized a power line running across the county from Rossmore to Picton. Homes and farms along the route were affected.

Power transmission died about 2 a.m. today when heavy overnight rain seeped through the damaged insulator and shorted the line.

Hydro crews traced the damaged insulator to the Picton area and divided the affected area into sections. They worked five hours— to 7 a.m. — before power was restored along the cable's route.

"We were able to restore much of the power in about an hour and a half," said a Hydro spokesman.

However, the cement plant was in the last section tended by repair crews.

A Lake Ontario Cement official said the plant's three kilns were out of operation almost five hours He could not immediately estimate what the production loss would be.

Ontario Hydro have reported the entire incident to provincial police.

Sniping at power lines has produced several power failures in the Quinte district in recent years.

The shots cause hair-line cracks in insulators which are not immediately apparent. The damage first shows in wet weather — like last night's heavy rains.

The Hydro indicated the insulators had been deliberately chosen as targets for unknown marksmen. But discounted hunters as culprits.

"There's certainly no game in the area where this has happened," he said.

"While we were in there this morning we found four or five others damaged," added the spokesman.

"We're now doing more patrols on the line to make sure there's no more damage."

Three Held Facing Car Theft Charges

Three Toronto teenagers face car theft charges after they were arrested by provincial police early today.

The trio were arrested in a car reported stolen in Thomasburg.

Another vehicle, earlier reported taken at Scarborough, was found abandoned in Thomasburg.

Charged with theft are Daniel Stewart, 18, Gilles Robichaud, 18, and James Wider, 16.

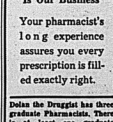
IN MEMORIAM

BELANGER — In loving memory of a dear father Ernest Belanger who passed away March 24, 1956. A page in the book of memory, Blendly turns today.
We remember you in silence,
For memory is the keepsake,
And with memory we see you,
As you were when you were here.
Sadly missed by friends
Mary and Doug Hull.

BELNAP — In loving memory of our dear brother Robert Belnap, who died March 24th, 1956.
We shall remember him as he was,
We the years had made him wise,
Not changed by time or death.
Sadly missed by brother Fred,
To a beautiful life, came a sudden end.
He died too soon, everyone's friend.
Lovingly remembered by brothers and sister.

BELNAP — In memory of my dear son, Ronald Belnap who died suddenly March 24th, 1956.
Ron, you left us all so suddenly,
Of a day my heart was crushed,
When God took you, oh so quickly,
And we all in gloom were thrust.
Your life was cut off death stopped you,
In the prime of manhood days,
But I know you are resting now you,
And be with you always.
—Ever remembered by Mother.

BELINE — In loving memory of a dear father Ezra Fletcher Deline who died March 24th, 1957.
One year since that sad day,
Our God I loved was taken away,
God took our home, it was His will
But in my heart, he liveth still.
Wilma.



BELINE — In loving memory of a dear father and grandfather Ezra Fletcher Beline who died March 24, 1957.
In tears we saw you sinking,
Heard your last faint sigh,
Our hearts were almost broken
When you had to die.
Our hands held tightly beside you,
But when we saw you sleeping,
We knew that God loved you best,
So He took you back to keep.
To suffer that again,
—Sadly missed by daughter Mrs. Ann Fletcher and daughter-in-law and grandchildren.

Police Magistrate in 1890's Recorded Sight of Ghosts

By GERALD E. BOYCE

Several Belleville residents are said to have seen supernatural figures and happenings in the 1890's. D. D. Rogers saw a house mysteriously illuminated as he returned to the city from Shannonville. Mrs. MacAnnany and her daughter saw a ghost-ly being in their home. Mrs. Phillips reported seeing a young girl sit while with what seemed like a halo of light radiating from her entire person. These accounts, as described in the previous "Historic Hastings" article were first recorded in a small family newspaper exactly 75 years ago.

The author of the article also pointed out that on two occasions he himself had seen ghostly apparitions. In the writer's own words:

"A few weeks ago, I was sitting at the organ in our drawing room, when some impulse caused me to turn my head quickly to the left. There was a large chair between me and the folding doors, and by the side of this chair stood the figure of a man, facing the door leading into the hall. It wore a black frock coat, turn down collar, black hair, strongly marked features, and black side whiskers. I took in every detail. It remained only sufficiently long so as to indelibly stamp it on my mind.

"About two weeks ago I was seated in the same place, felt the same impulse, turned to the left, and saw a black substance which I cannot exactly describe, but which seemed to me like a lady's dress, just disappearing 'thro' the door that led to the hall.

"I can give no explanation of what I have seen and, although not a believer in ghosts, know I am not mistaken.

"The 'uncouse' who laugh at ghost stories and who know everything, will be amused at these narrated. But after all, 'There is much more in heaven and earth than is dreamt of in thy philosophy, Horatio.'"

Since these two occasions took place a few weeks before they were described in print, they must have taken place in the fall of 1892.

As to the writer . . . who was this person who testified in print concerning the two ghostly visitations? He was no less a person than John F. B. Flint, a distinguished Belleville lawyer, Born near Belleville on December 29, 1826, the son of prominent merchant and politician Billa Flint, John J. B. Flint received his education at the Belleville Grammar School and Victoria College. Called to the bar, he began to practise law at Belleville in October, 1848.

So highly was Flint regarded by his fellow citizens that he was elected to the town council in 1860 and served as mayor of Belleville in 1872, which post his father had occupied in 1866. In 1884, J. J. B. Flint was appointed police magistrate for Belleville and South Hastings; he continued to hold this important post for almost a quarter of a century, and many hundreds of alleged criminals appeared before him for trial.

Married to Eliza Jane Holton in 1866, Flint had only one child, and this heir died in infancy.

John J. B. Flint's place in the life of this region was summarized by a biographer early in the present century.

"He has been connected throughout the entire Bay of Quinte region and is universally esteemed, not only as a capable and upright magistrate, but also as a genial courtly gentleman."

This was the man who recounted his two ghostly visits. The house in which they took place may have been the Flint home on Charles Street, just north of Bridge Street. This house was identified as 211 or 215 Charles Street.

Next a further word or two on some more of our supernatural history.

(Article 143 in a series sponsored by the Hastings County Historical Society. Correspondence should be addressed to Mr. G. Boyce, 24 Centennial Secondary School, Belleville. The author's appreciation is extended to Mrs. C. A. Shaver of Kingston who provided the copy of the 1892 family newspaper in which these two articles have been based.)

Good to the Last Tap

Phil Burton tries out his old Morse key just once more before retiring as Canadian National Telegraph manager. Telegraph transmitter is the same one with which veteran operator started tapping telegrams 45 years ago in Toronto.

45 Years of Service

Phil Burton, Manager of CN Telegraph Office Here, Retires

Phil Burton's fingertips have been 45 years keeping people in touch.

They're not a whit less supple — but superannuation has ruled them out of business.

Not that Phil has any regrets. As a Canadian National telegrapher his record of service is second to none. And the job has been personally absorbing, up to the day yesterday — when he retired.

It spans an era for which time has given a distinctive aura with its own sound and symbols: the green eyeshade, the dust jacket — and the Morse-code key's crackle.

"There was some romance to it, a personal touch," reflects Phil eyeing the lineup of new communications equipment in the CN's East Bridge office.

No one industry has seen so many rapid - fire changes in the past two decades.

Even the Morse - code key lasted more than a century. Telegraph already had linked the globe when Phil was born in East Sutton, England, in 1904. Radio was in its infancy when his parents crossed the Atlantic in 1907 to settle near Peterborough.

And today, they can dial direct from Belleville to Vancouver to transmit a telex message — in less than 15 seconds.

"We even got Copenhagen, Denmark, direct from here the other night in the same time," said Dick Tyrrell, talking over as office manager from Phil Burton.

The equipment also has changed. Compared to today's sophisticated installations, the old Morse telegraph looks now like a child's hobby.

You don't see any of it around now—the key for tapping out the dots and dashes, the sound-box for receiving — amplified by simply sticking an empty tobacco can against the sound bar.

One reason they're so scarce is that each operator usually owned his own key — like Phil — and brought it with him, even into retirement.

His chosen trade was not a career he'd planned for.

"When I was a young kid, I dreamt about becoming a railway officer," he remembered. "Telegraph was the next thing."

After initially with CNT at Peterborough, he was sent to the main Toronto office for training.

It was the early 1920's and the hey-day of the telegrapher.

Radio, long-distance telephoning were still relatively new. Everything went by telegraph, news stories, business calls, personal telegrams.

The Toronto office was so busy messenger boys used to slide them down the aisles. Battery after battery of telegraphers flunked each other, concentrating on sending or receiving and translating the code.

"I thought at first how could they decipher all that," said Phil. "There was so much noise.

He learned the secret quickly. It was a matter of concentration. Once the telegrapher donned the traditional eye shade and dust jacket, his world was exclusive. Only himself and the code were important.

"It was something like a language. We just used to the sound and read it. You don't count the dots and dashes."

In 1922, after a stint as telegraph operator, Phil hied to Sudbury. After that, came a series of postings: to Walkerville, North Bay, Kingston, among others.

It was in Kingston in 1929 he married his wife Kathleen. They now have a son, a daughter, and grandchildren.

In 1937 the Burtons moved to Belleville, where Phil became local CNT manager — the job he held up to retirement.

His career communications career has ranged from big news breaks to petty personal problems. He has rushed copy on such dignitaries as the Prince of Wales. He has covered sports, murders.

He has helped reporters beat the closest deadlines. Once in Kingston he tapped out a story while the scribe dictated the format verbatim.

But the most demanding time was wartime. Sometimes the telegrams would come daily, confirming fatalities at the front.

"When we had messages we had to be careful how we contacted the people. You had to try and get a man in the family to go there and deliver it properly," says Phil.

Once the key tapped out the key death of an RCAF flier, who had been a messenger in the office with Phil.

Both Phil and his assistant remember the grim serviceman's wife with the black news.

Then at the war's end that the business really began to change. The teleprinter began making its appearance in a big way. It's been improving ever since.

Once, a good telegrapher could despatch more than 25 words a minute.

Now, the average teleprinter can punch out 75 words a minute — and still be behind the operator who sends the sales. Battery after battery of telegraphers flunked each other, concentrating on sending or receiving and translating the code.

"I thought at first how could they decipher all that," said Phil. "There was so much noise.

He learned the secret quickly. It was a matter of concentration. Once the telegrapher donned the traditional eye shade and dust jacket, his world was exclusive. Only himself and the code were important.

"It was something like a language. We just used to the sound and read it. You don't count the dots and dashes."

Horticultural Expert Promotes Club Project

John Bradshaw, Canada's noted horticulturist and radio and television personality will be in Belleville on Tuesday, March 26 as part of a journey that originated in British Columbia.

Mr. Bradshaw has donated three weeks of his time to promote a Unified Church project that is designed to feed and educated, skilled, young Canadians to Africa for three months.

Mr. Bradshaw will be speaking at a general meeting open to the public in the evening at 8.00 p.m. in the Bridge Street Sunday School Auditorium. His topic will be horticulture.

Assisting him at the meeting will be two young Africans, a "crossroader" who has participated in the "good-will tour" and an African who will outline the results and effects of the tours. There will be no admission.

Part of Mr. Bradshaw's mission will be to outline the money-raising project, that, it is hoped, will send about 30 "crossroaders" to Africa in 1968.

The project is the selling of a specific registered tulip bulb across Canada in the hopes of raising $100,000 for the Canadians to finance their trips.

The "crossroaders", participate in a training program (to be held in Canada this year for the first time) and then accompanied by a similar group of Americans travel to Africa where they participate in such projects as building hospitals and immunizing the people.

Members of AOTS men's clubs in the United Church in Belleville will be taking orders next week for the bulbs.

The meeting on March 26 sponsored by the United Church of Canada, an interdenominational activity.

Teacher Receives Medal

TWEED — John F. Burns, Tweed, has received a centennial medal with an accompanying citation in recognition of his valuable service to the nation through his 43 years of teaching.

A native of Streetsville, Mr. Burns joined the staff of the Tweed District High School in 1942 as a specialist in agriculture. He also organized a cadet corps in Tweed, and was for many years the chief instructor.

He started the school band as a bugle band in 1943, and continued as the band's manager for many years after it was changed to its present form. He served as vice-principal and head of the department of science for a number of years.

Mr. Burns began his teaching career as a public school teacher in S.S. No. 5, Ashton, following his graduation from the Toronto Normal School in 1927. He retired from the staff of the local high school in June, 1965.

Mr. and Mrs. Burns are spending the winter in Clearwater, Florida, and have been visiting friends. Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Lindsay of Perth, at the latter's winter home at New Smyrna Beach, Florida. They plan to return to Tweed at the end of April.

Trenton Kiwanians Seek Workshop for Retarded

TRENTON — Local Kiwanians last night made public their efforts to establish an area workshop for the mentally retarded.

The club's drive had been hinted in January by president elect Frank Miron, and was given substance last night by a guest speaker.

William J. Berendsen of the Ontario Association for the Mentally Retarded, said he hopes to see establishment here in the near future of the province's 61st adult workshop.

Mr. Berendsen, coordinator of Adult Services for the Association, said the program now involves some 1,500 mentally retarded adults in the province and said about a dozen persons in the Trenton area would benefit from a local workshop.

He spent much of yesterday talking to local industry to ascertain if there were "simple" jobs to suit the workshop training program. Adult trainees earn spending money while being rehabilitated.

Jobs may be simple — collecting leather, sorting nuts, bolts and washers, or cleaning laboratory bottles.

"Simple, that is, once you know how," says Mr. Berendzen. "Some of the trainees we deal with have IQs of 20 — they may not even be able to communicate, let alone count."

"But we can teach them to be productive to the extent of their ability."

"For us, many things in our program come naturally," Mr. Berendsen told his Kiwanis Club audience.

But for the retarded adult, who had been, in effect, "kicked out" of society, first class opportunity classes, things like grooming, table manners, how to use coin-operated telephones, or how to buy at a store, are "skills" that may have to be learned.

The program yields two-way dividends.

"Almost any firm has some 'simple' or 'recovery' job we could take on for them."

"Whether it be the production of 40,000 prp-made Christmas bows for department stores or mailing and packaging potatoes for caterers, workshop trainees have a long list of satisfied customers. One of these, Northern Electric Ltd., cited the workshop program for producing six million telephone dialstrires without a single error. Mr. Berendsen said.

Kiwanis president Frank Miron said his club was spearheading the drive to establish a local workshop. Once established with the co-operation of industry and labor the workshop would be operated by the local Association for the Mentally Retarded with financial assistance from the Provincial Government.

A workshop would complement the rehabilitation program at the Trenton and Brighton District School for the Retarded near Smithfield, now accommodating 22 area children.

Three Charged After Quantity Of Stolen Goods Recovered

City Police and members of the Belleville OPP detachment have recovered an undetermined amount of stolen goods, a police spokesman stated Friday.

According to the spokesman, identification of articles is still being done although some have been already identified as stolen.

Among the goods were four sheets taken from the immediate Belleville area and one from Foxboro. They were found in the Long Sault — Cornwall area.

Also recovered were a television set, believed to have been stolen from a local motel, and a snow-cruiser.

The recovery of the goods followed investigation by Det. Donald Yeamvood of the City police and Det. Sgt. Louis Spry of the OPP.

In custody here, charged with possession of stolen goods, is Harry Raby, 64, of Sydney township.

In custody in Lancaster are David Raby, 17, of Belleville and George Raby of Long Sault. They are charged as well with possession of stolen goods.

SA Youth Council Meets Here

Belleville will be the scene of weekend activity and discussion this week as a youth delegation of about 250 participate in the Salvation Army Mid-Ontario Division Annual Youth Councils.

The young people are all in the high school, college, and career bracket.

Beginning on Saturday, following registration the delegates will participate in a swim meet and a bowling tournament.

Other activities of interest will be a gospel hootenanny and a series of talks and discussions under the leadership from such areas as Bowmanville, Lindsay, Peterborough, Oshawa and Whitby.

Of Col. and Mrs. Leslie Pindred, Canada's Field Secretary.

Wages and Inflation

Wage pegging in Canada? If this sounds more like the economics of Britain it is a reminder at least that austerity UK-style is a condition the people of this country are fortunate to have escaped.

So far, that is! Recent budgetary measures and higher taxes at both the federal and provincial levels are indicative of the need for some caution in spending. Reductions in capital spending by Ottawa are a measure of this situation.

By the same token extravagance in the field of foreign aid, while domestic needs are neglected — as outlined in today's Ottawa Offbeat column — are at variance with the Government's own declared policy. Protestations that it is cutting back on spending cannot be taken seriously as long as we keep pouring tax dollars into obscure projects abroad.

But to get back to the subject of wage pegging. Ontario boards of education have decided on an unofficial salary scale for teachers, and are sticking to their offer of a three per cent raise this year.

Expressing congern at what she described as this "arbitrary" figure, Edith Butler, assistant executive secretary of the Federation of Women Teachers' Association of Ontario, said teachers are "meeting a solid wall in negotiations this year."

And yet if economies are to be made generally, by the Government on down, would not unrestricted wage negotiations run contrary to the anti-inflationary measures held to be necessary at this time? The three per cent ceiling is an unofficial one which removes any element of compulsion where school boards are concerned. Presumably, though, it is expected that the three per cent figure will be honored in any negotiations.

Salaries for teachers have been improving steadily each passing year. As a profession they are among the leading wage earners. If economy is the watchword in these still inflationary times they cannot complain if some degree of restraint is called for.

Away From It All

Further development of the Bruce Trail, outlined in an article in Reader Digest, offers the kind of away-from-it-all picture of the outdoors that the increasing urbanization of society tends to obscure.

The trail, which began as the dream of Hamilton metallurgist Ray Lowes, now stretches 450 miles from the Niagara river to the tip of the Bruce peninsula.

Within a few years, says the article, the trail will be part of a vast network. New York state hiking clubs for instance have made good progress with a 500-mile path to link the Bruce with the Appalachian Trail. Then there will be a continuous hiking route through rural and wilderness lands from Georgian Bay to Georgia.

The northernmost segment extending some 150 miles up the Bruce peninsula is the wildest and probably most beautiful part of the entire trail. Here the escarpment forms a towering shoreline. In many places the white surf of Georgian Bay beats on the rocks 300 feet below.

The trail appeals to varying degrees of enthusiasm in the hiker, from those who like to make the trek a little at a time, to the hardened hoofers who stay with it all the way and complete the trip over a period of about three weeks.

The trail, as the magazine article suggests, with a picturesque turn of phrase, "has tapped a yearning that many people feel in this mechanized time — a yearning for primitive, places where a man can walk on and on and still be alone."

Easter Seals

A little girl with a winsome look and hope in her eyes . . . the trustling look that any child of three or so has a right to present to the world.

The youngster was born without a left arm but manages well with an artificial limb provided by the Ontario Society for Crippled Children.

Her picture appeared the other day with an advertisement reminding Quinte area residents that it is Easter Seals time. Here in Belleville the Rotary Club is campaigning once again on behalf of the young people who are handicapped in one way or another.

During the past year no fewer than 968 youngsters were discharged permanently as a result of new treatment methods. This would not have been possible without the continued support of the public. Remember then, these children, at Easter time.

Foreign Aid Flourishes While Home Needs Neglected

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — The foreign aid lobby — that strange alliance of global dream merchants who subscribe to the bizarre belief that your tax dollar magically becomes ennobled when spent on international charity — has been having pretty much its own way. Up to now, that is.

For years this give-away gang has been selling the story that Canada, already the western world's second - ranking lightwad, threatens to be No. 1 in international scrooginry.

It's been an easy propaganda exercise for the handout lobby — and immensely rewarding, too — because so few people, especially taxpayers, ever talk back.

And not getting much of an argument the global do-gooders who love to go world - saving with your taxes, have been able to twist the federal government's arm.

It's a form of pseudo - moral blackmail, calculated to give the government an aching guilt complex.

And oddly, it's been causing the administration such painful pangs that this year of financial crisis when Finance Minister Sharp boasts he is cutting back spending in every possible department, the foreign aid division of external affairs is managing to spend more.

This year, the aid bill is running $141,400,000 up $13,200,000 from last year's $130,200,000.

But now people are starting to talk back to the foreign aid lobby, both in and out of Parliament.

In the Commons, Cape Breton Conservative MP Donnie MacInnis has been asking the government to explain how come it can give India a $70 million loan interest free for 37 years — a no-strings gift, for all practical purposes — while pleading poverty and "justice," as Prime Minister Pearson has put it, that it can afford only $2 million loan for Nova Scotia to help with the $20 million purchase of the Dosco steel works.

On the same basis, another Cape Breton Conservative, Robert Muir, has wondered about the $12 million Ottawa is giving Gabon and other African satellites of France that Generiel de Gaulle has been using to cause Canada trouble.

There have been similar questions in the Senate where Gratian O'Leary has charged that much of foreign aid is spent for the self-aggrandizement of certain federal government globetrotters in posturing irresponsibly, as saviors of underprivileged mankind.

But none of this packs the impact of the angry taxpayer.

And he, bless his heart, has taken to writing letters of foreign aid protest to the editors of newspapers here in the capital where they're bound to capture government eyes and perhaps even get under government skins.

Just listen to taxpayer William Potvin who lives just across the Ottawa River from the capital, and so, has to cross a greatly overworked bridge to make it to work here:

"I see we are using some of our foreign aid tax dollars to build a bridge in Jamaica.

"In spite of being one of the taxpayers who send a lot of MPs think are too dumb or too busy ever to learn of these things, I have a strange feeling that the income tax bill I am confronted by at this particular time of year is accounted for in part by just this sort of thing.

"And I feel very good, knowing that the well-to-do holidaying in Jamaica, mostly Americans and other non-Canadians, will be able to leave the golf courses on time for the cocktail hour at their luxury hotels by way of the new bridge, while I sit in my car patiently for two hours, waiting to get across the river to Ottawa so I can get to work and help finance a new bridge somewhere, except, of course, here."

Then there's the tart billet-doux to the editor from Henry Langton of Pembroke:

"How nice it is of my government to let my share in the bill for an airport at Grenada in the West Indies that our foreign aid is financing.

"It adds to my content when I recall that when I want to fly miles to either Ottawa or North Bay."

It must make other Canadians well content, too — especially those in the smaller cities and towns all across the land who often have to drive even further to get to a scheduled airport.

Final foreign aid note: not only is the cost of Canada's do-gooding going up to $141,400,000 but the payroll for staff to give it away is increasing, too, from just under $3 million in a shade more than $4 million.

And while other federal departments are supposed to be "freezing" the size of their staffs, in external's foreign aid division, they're running it up from 440 to 500.

Today in History

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

March 23, 1968

The first impeachment of a U.S. president began as Andrew Johnson appeared before the Senate, 100 years ago — in 1868. He was charged under the Tenure of Office Act, thrust on him by dissident congressmen to prevent the president from dismissing officers approved by Congress. Johnson opposed congressional plans to disfranchise ex-rebels and enfranchise Negroes immediately. The Senate failed by one vote to reach the two-thirds majority to remove him.

1908—The Japanese ship Matsu Maru sank near Hakodate, drowning 300.

1945 — Ontario's Conservative government was defeated on a confidence motion.

First World War

Fifty years ago today—in 1918—British troops evacuated positions southwest of Cambrai; the Germans pierced British lines between the Omignon River and the Somme; long range bombardment of Paris from a distance of 75 miles began.

Rightist Pressures in Rhodesia

By CAROL KENNEDY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The rump revolt of white extremists in Rhodesia, coinciding with an invasion by Negro guerrillas and the promise of sterner sanctions from a hostile world, will have given Premier Ian Smith an unwelcome refresher course in modern Rhodesian history.

In the last 10 years, reacting against outside pressure from the black and white, Rhodesia has swung relentlessly to the right, ever since Garfield Todd—perhaps the only true liberal in Rhodesian politics—was ousted by Sir Edgar Whitehead.

Successive prime ministers, each seeming tougher than the last in outside eyes, have been turfed out by their former supporters for being too soft on black nationalism or British government "interference."

Bizarre as the idea may seem of Ian Smith ever coming to be rated as a moderate ruler, each move to the right has in fact "liberalized" the image of the man before. Whitehead, the donnish intellectual who, in tandem with federal chief Sir Roy Welensky, first introduced detention laws and other harsh emergency powers, now is regarded as a middle-of-the-road outside Rhodesia and positively leftish within.

Winston Field, the rancher who swung Rhodesian politics far right in 1962, was pushed out by his own man Smith for pussyfooting on negotiations with Britain. Now Smith, the man who proclaimed rebellion in 1965 and presides over an increasingly segregationist society, is being accused of practising "clandestine racial integration."

Sure Sign Of Spring

Windsor Star

The loud, somewhat mournful whistle of a Great Lakes freighter, carried through fog or balmy air or even a blizzard, is the one sure sign of spring. And the sight of a freighter speeding along, spic and span after an early-season refit, is absolute proof that better days are upon us.

Community Concert Programs

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

According to the Constitution, the aims of the Community Concert, Association shall be:

1. To build and maintain a permanent concert audience.
2. To cultivate an interest in good music.
3. To provide for its members an opportunity to hear good music in the form of concerts and recitals.
4. To foster and encourage public appreciation of music.

For over 30 years the association has made a valuable contribution to the cultural life of Belleville by bringing us concerts by outstanding artists such as Lois Marshall, Jorge Bolet, Ronald Turini, Michael Rabin and Leonard Rose.

Next season members are being offered the Manhattan Pops Orchestra and Aniheda Alfbrose. In an evening of Viennese music or a nightclub-type concert good concert music, under the terms of the Constitution?

A Tip for Canadians

Windsor Star

Britain, currently undergoing economic problems which make Canada's look puny, has been getting a few badly needed chuckles, and some help, from the "I'm Backing Britain" campaign.

You wouldn't catch Canadians wearing "I'm concerned for Canada" badges; we're more anxious about our dignity than the flighty and volatile British. But there's no reason why a quieter sort of campaign would not work. Perhaps not extra hours of work without pay, but even a little greater effort on the part of each individual Canadian.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FILES OF BYGONE YEARS

30 YEARS AGO

March 12, 1938

W. L. Langlois, the newly appointed road engineer and superintendent for the County of Hastings comes to this district with a wealth of engineering and road construction experience behind him. A graduate in civil engineering from the University of Toronto, Mr. Langlois is a registered professional engineer in the provinces of Ontario and Quebec, an associate member of the Engineering Institute of Canada and a Bachelor of Arts and Science. He has held important positions in Canada and the United States.

F. L. (Teddy) McLean of Toronto is spending the weekend here with Mrs. F. Pounsett, Charles Street.

40 YEARS AGO

March 23, 1928

Constable Promoted: "Arthur L. Booth, after nine years of faithful and efficient service as a constable on the Belleville Police Force has been promoted to the rank of sergeant to succeed Sergeant Dan Sale who is now Chief of Police at Galt. The appointment of Sergeant Booth is a popular one. He joined the force in 1919.

A Trades and Labor Union is to be organized in the district.

From our file copy at this time in 1898: "The Rev. Dr. Carman, General Superintendent of the Methodist Church, in Canada, will leave shortly for Japan to inspect the missions conducted in that country, by the Methodist Church."

50 YEARS AGO

March 23, 1918

Merchants are busy, following the flood, in clearing ice and rubbish from the basements of their stores and back yards.

From our file copy at this time in 1868: "S. S. Moore, who left here a few months ago with the local Klondike party, has returned home owing to illness." The weather man introduced a little of the January brand of weather today. It froze quite hard last night.

From our file copy at this time in 1868: "Brockville has a trade like Spring and it is being enforced. Belleville roads would be in a better condition if a similar bylaw were in force here."

"Pied Piper" Image

McCarthy's Anti-War Platform Attracts Young People

By ARCH MacKENZIE

WASHINGTON (CP)-They call Democratic Senator Eugene McCarthy the Pied Piper of Minnesota.

Students power is important these days. McCarthy's strong showing in the New Hampshire presidential primary March 12 was due to the legions of youngsters rallying around him and his anti-war platform.

By the busloads, the students are charging into Wisconsin to knock on doors, lick envelopes and answer telephones in hopes McCarthy can deal President Johnson another rebuff.

April 2 is the day on which registered Wisconsin voters indicate the men they prefer to carry the major party banners into the November presidential election.

The movement is significant on two counts. It is part of a global pattern of active participation by the young.

Chairman Mao Tse-tung's cultural revolution was fuelled by the teen-age Red Guard.

Youth played a major role in Indonesia's crushing of the Communist coup attempt three years ago.

Even President Nasser of Egypt has had to face demonstrations recently and perhaps the best current example is the continued fracturing of the East European Communist bloc, with student power in the lead.

The Soviet Union fears the student unrest, which has recurred in Poland and played a big role in the upheaval of Czechoslovakia.

Domestically, McCarthy's troops—many of whom have made the sacrifice of wearing shorter hair and longer miniskirts than they prefer—are easing the concern that the younger generation may be tuned in solely to draft-dodging, LSD and non-peaceful protests of the status quo.

Not since the golden era of the civil rights drive three years ago—at Selma, Ala., and the march to the capital at Montgomery—has youth played a comparable role.

It is no accident that youth is conspicuous in all the political camps.

McCarthy's campaign leads the way and it is believed he chose to take a stand against President Johnson partly because of the views of his own four children.

When Robert Kennedy leaped into the race, nine of his 10 children were lined up before the TV cameras.

President Johnson is often pictured these days with his grandson, Lyn, nine months. Both the Johnson sons-in-law are headed for Vietnam.

Richard Nixon has always carried his family along on his campaigns. An added attraction this year is the 18-year daughter Julie, 19, is engaged to David Eisenhower, 19, grandson of former president Eisenhower. That won't hurt Nixon.

Children's Hymns Undergo Changes

TORONTO (CP) — As far as the United Church of Canada is concerned, children's hymns aren't what they used to be, and a good thing, too.

The church's recently published hymn book for children up through Grade 3 combines hymns and secular songs in arrangements easy for children to handle, some of them chorded for guitars.

The title song, Bless the Lord, gives thanks for sidewalks and traffic lights, chewing gum and playground swings, baseball bats and hockey games. It was written by a Roman Catholic priest.

Rev. Gordon Freer, the editor, says Bless the Lord is a compilation of some new hymns written for it and others sifted out of about 100 collections from Canada, the United States and Britain.

Few of the standards survived the sifting process. Hymns such as Jesus Bids Us Shine or Jesus Loves Me were discarded largely for theological reasons but sometimes for their inferior music or their air of 19th century sentiment and gloom.

Mr. Freer says the standards would apply to many adult hymns, too.

"The hymns acceptable to Christians today are few and far between, and there are few people writing hymns. There are few that can be used meaningfully with children. Many can't be used meaningfully for adults. They represent theological pictures that don't communicate adequately today."

He agreed Onward Christian Soldiers might serve as an example of an outdated hymn.

Most of the hymns in Bless the Lord stress love and joy in the world: "God of the rabbits, keep them warm," "Who is my neighbor? The shy girl down the street. The Negroes in my school. The Catholics next door."

Mr. Freer says children cannot comprehend religion in the way an adult does. He believes hymns can help build the foundation of religious training by teaching love.

"Most of the content that the average adult labels religion cannot be communicated to a child. We must give them a foundation by building attitudes of trust and love in the life of a child, helping them see the world as a place of joy and wonder. We must encourage a child's natural instinct for trust and wonder."

He says the book "is one of few recent attempts by a church to exercise theological integrity in the songs it puts in front of children."

The book includes two records for listening or for rhythm band accompaniment.

He says he would also like to see the church try an original collection of hymns.

Mr. Freer says Bless the Lord has received "a very well received. He is pleased that an order for copies has come from a Roman Catholic church in Scarborough, Ont.

The book took about three years to prepare. A volunteer committee of musicians and teachers, in and out of the church, did the sifting, reailing and arranging. Mr. Freer says they began with about 300 possible hymns and songs, and brought them down to 120. They mixed hymns and songs to encourage another attitude.

"There is no such thing as sacred or secular. It is God's world in its entirety. For the Christian, God's presence is everywhere."

Pope Makes Changes In Catholic Curia

VATICAN CITY (Reuters)—Pope Paul gradually is making changes in the Vatican Curia, the central government of the Roman Catholic Church, which will give it a younger and more international look.

The Pope is carrying out the changes with his customary tact and diplomatic skill to ensure progress is achieved without alienating conservative elements in the church. But the consequences are nonetheless far-reaching.

The Curia is composed of nine congregations, recently reduced from 12, with each roughly equivalent to a government ministry.

For centuries, it was dominated by Italians and today is regarded as bureaucratic and out of touch with church problems outside Italy.

Pope Paul is trying to change this traditional image by bringing in prelates with pastoral experience, lowering the traditionally high average age of key office holders and appointing non-Italians to high positions.

Six out of the nine congregations now are headed by non-Italians.

But Vatican observers regard as equally significant a decision by the Pope to bring in seven diocesan bishops for each congregation as advisers to bridge the gap between the church hierarchy in Rome and Catholics throughout the world.

The Curia also is taking on a younger look. The 1962-65 Vatican council recommended that clergy should retire at 75 to make way for younger men.

The suggestion was adopted but left non-compulsory by the pontiff.

Resignations by elderly prelates have begun to trickle in, although more slowly than expected, and Pope Paul gradually is building his new team of advisers before undertaking the major reorganization and de-centralization of the Curia, scheduled to begin shortly.

The most eye-catching change was the appointment of Prante Cardinal Seper of Yugoslavia to replace conservative Alfredo Cardinal Ottaviani as head of the Congregation for the Doctrine of Faith—the Vatican's watchdog on faith and morals.

Seper, the first prelate from a Communist country to hold such high office, is regarded as more modern - minded and flexible than his predecessor.

The most significant change still expected is in the key office of secretary of state now held by 84-year-old Amleto Cardinal Cicognani.

Cole Slaw Recipe Rates Top Honors

By MARY MOORE

LETTER: (dated July 15, 1967) I am enclosing a Cole Slaw recipe that is "better than best"... I have not had a chance to test the 14-day part as we never have any left that long. — Jane R.

ANSWER: As you know I answered your letter last July but only last week made the 14 - Day Cole Slaw because readers constantly clamor for cole slaw recipes. It is now 7 days old and seems to improve every day I take a taste. Thank you.

SATURDAY

Dinner Menu

Main Course Italian Minestrone Soup; Homemade Refrigerator Rolls; Celery, Olives; Apple Dumplings with Nutmeg Lemon Sauce; Coffee.

14-DAY COLE SLAW (courtesy Jane R.; approx. 12 servings - yield depends on size of cabbage)

Dressing:

1¼ cups spirit vinegar
½ cup water
1¼ (or 1½) cups granulated sugar
1 teaspoon celery seeds
1½ teaspoons mustard seeds
¼ teaspoon turmeric
1½ teaspoons salt

Salad Ingredients:
1 medium - large hard green cabbage, finely shredded
1 medium - large carrot, finely shredded
½ Spanish onion or one whole white onion, grated
1 or 2 peppers green, shredded
½ cup salad olives including pimiento, chopped (optional)

In a saucepan stir together the dressing ingredients and bring to boil, being sure sugar is dissolved. Cool.

Combine all salad ingredients in a large bowl, shredding cabbage, carrot and peppers finely and grating onion and chopping olives (if used). Pour cooled dressing over and mix well. Store in covered glass jars in refrigerator 12 hours before using. Now see if it will last 14 days. Frankly, I can only vouch for 7 days as it is all gone!

WOMEN GO MILITARY — The striking military style mini-coat (left) features epaulettes, large button-down pockets and a Sam Brown belt in black leather. The maxi-length trench coat has a waist and sleeves, with roomy hip pockets completing the military effect. Both of these British fashion creations will be exhibited during the Scandinavian Fashion Week to be held in Copenhagen beginning March 24. (CP Photo)

ANAF LADIES' AUXILIARY

The regular monthly meeting of the Ladies' Auxiliary ANAF was held recently in the club room. The meeting was opened by president A. Storms. Two minutes' silence was observed for fallen comrades.

Minutes of the Provincial Command meeting, held recently in London, were read.

All business pertaining to the Auxiliary work, was discussed and dealt with.

Sports out of all ANAF Ladies' Auxiliaries in Ontario, will be held in Toronto, May 4.

Two applications for membership were read and accepted. New applicants are to be notified of their initiation date.

Winners of the draw were Comrades R. Fitzgibbon and A. Storms sr.

The meeting adjourned and lunch was served.

Club Activities

GAMMA MU CHAPTER

The bi-monthly meeting of Gamma Mu Chapter was held on Tuesday at the home of Mrs. Ray Stickle.

Next meeting on April 9 members will convene at the home of Mrs. Mac McNicol to work on the project of making stuffed toy animals. The service committee chairman is investigating buying an aquarium for the Belleville General Hospital's Children's Ward. The chapter will buy meet discs from the international office to be presented to each member of the outgoing executive.

The elections were held and the new executive is as follows: president, Mrs. Jodi Schnell; 1st vice-president, Mrs. Dot Day; 2nd vice-president, Mrs. Pat Belyea; recording secretary, Mrs. Jeanne Stickle; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Ruth Owen; treasurer, Mrs. Elaine Fox; alternate elective: coordinating committee, Miss Anne Davey; representatives, Mrs. Marg Anderson.

A program entitled "Music's Influence on Our Lives" was presented by Mrs. Andrew Robb. She played by Katherine L. Johnson dian Centennial Library, "Sounds of Canada," preceded the record from the Canadian narrated by Pierre Berton.

The Blue Group served refreshments to end a very pleasant evening.

TRIAL UNIFORM—This is the basic uniform for women of the Canadian armed forces to be tested beginning this fall. In medium green, the jacket is single breasted, semi-fitted and waist length, with a modified, A-line, pleatless skirt to mid-knee length. There is no tie or collar tab. (CP Photo)

Hospital Auxiliary Meets

The March meeting of the Women's Hospital Auxiliary was held in Education Hall with Mrs. W. Grant Harvey presiding.

New volunteers are needed, especially for the Opportunity Shop.

Mrs. F. Beeby informed the auxiliary of the coming seminar on hospital volunteers to be held in Kingston on April 30.

The Women's Hospital Auxiliary has already raised and set aside $30,000 for the new hospital and the objective for 1967-68 is another $15,000. A new portable radio is being donated to pediatrics. It was suggested that the cost of furnishing and decorating a solarium and chapel be investigated.

Mrs. Harvey gave a progress report on the plans for the Hospital Ball to be held May 3 at the Sun Valley Motor Inn. There will be both dancing and bridge.

During the social hour an auction was held with Mrs. W. C. Gault as auctioneer. Her patter as the article went on was most amusing. Proceeds go to the Opportunity Shop.

Designers Put Zing Into Women's Uniforms

OTTAWA (CP) — Unification of Canada's armed forces is putting new zing into service women's uniforms.

The new green trial uniforms, unveiled today by the defence department, in some respects resemble the costumes of Air Canada hostesses.

They are smart and more fashionably feminine than the old khaki outfits of the army's CWACs, the light blue of the air force's WDs and the navy blue of the navy's Wrens.

The wardrobe includes a suit and blouse, working dress, bowler-style hat, overcoat and gabardine raincoat. Accessories are black except for those worn by nursing sisters.

The skirt of the basic uniform and the working dress both feature a simple, modified A-line with a mid-knee hem.

Gone are the old-style uniforms with their mannish shirt collar, necktie and plain, skirt under a hip-length, fitted suit jacket with wide lapels, brass buttons and squared shoulders.

Eastminster UCW Enjoy OSD Tour

A tour of the Ontario School for the Deaf was the highlight of the March Meeting of the Eastminster UCW.

Dr. J. G. Demens conducted the tour and explained the uses of the various aids in teaching the children how to read and write.

The Ontario School for the Deaf has approximately 250 students. They range in age from 5 years to 21 years. There are 75 teachers, many who have been trained at the Belleville school.

Classes at OSD are not large, with eight students to each class. The school rooms differ somewhat from those in an ordinary school, because although blackboards are used, the desks are set in a semi-circle with head sets attached to each desk. Overhead projectors are also used. In the younger grades, mirrors, pictures and candles are used to obtain the proper sound.

During the first few years at school, the deaf child is mainly taught language. The average five year old knows 2000 words, but the deaf child of five, perhaps, may know only 200 words. Therefore his vocabulary must be extended before he can go on to other subjects. Children from ages seven to ten learn handicrafts, as well as academic subjects.

In the senior years, the girls have sewing classes, hairdressing and good grooming, typing and key punch operating. Matriculation subjects are taught to the grade ten level, after that they may write an entrance exam, and if they pass it, they may go on to Galaudette College in Washington. Here they take a five - year course and receive their Bachelor of Arts degree. If the senior does not wish to further his studies or does not pass the entrance exam, he may stay on at OSD for further vocational training.

The school has, besides the regular classrooms, a rhythm room with drums, piano and all the percussion instruments, a snack bar with a juke box for dancing, and a well equipped gymnasium. Religious instruction is given in all denominations every Friday morning and on Sunday there are church services and a special movie.

The children are divided into groups of thirty - six, and there is a house mother for every 12 children. The house mother is required to take a five week course at Milton, Ontario, to prepare her for this job.

The fire alarm system was of particular interest, because as well as an audio alarm system, a visual one is necessary with the use of lights to attract attention.

Since color and light play an important part in the life of a deaf child, all the rooms are bright and cheerful, and there is a great deal of color used throughout the school.

Following the tour, the U.C.W. members returned to the Eastminster Church, where the president, Mrs. Lois Edey opened the business portion of the evening. It was decided to have a barbecue this spring but not a banquet in the fall. At the general meeting in April the U.C.W will have as their guests the C.G.I.T., who will put on the program for the evening.

Mrs. Dorothy Riley and Mrs. Queenie Meldrum conducted the worship service on "Talents".

Reports Given At Manor WA Meeting

The Auxiliary of the Hastings Manor met in the library for the monthly meeting and birthday party, recently.

Mrs. F. Davidson the president, conducted the business, and committee reports were given. Mrs. Kingston reported there had been five rose bowls sent to residents in the Belleville hospital during the past month. Mrs. D. McLean announced there would be a bingo party held for the residents on March 21st. It was unanimously approved by all members that a refrigerator be purchased for use in the Tuck Shop.

The birthday cards for the month of April will be sent to the residents by the Quinte Women's Institute.

At the conclusion of the business, the group met with the residents in the dining room for the customary birthday party. The birthday song was sung to the guests and Mrs. Wessels read a poem. Mrs. Hattie Pooley who was celebrating her 102nd birthday and Mr. Otto Fischer who was 90 cut the birthday cake.

Special birthday wishes were extended to Mrs. Agnes Elliott, member of the Auxiliary, who also was celebrating her birthday.

Mrs. Kerr and Mrs. Burns poured tea and all enjoyed a social time together.

Deputy Registrar Honored

Mrs. Marjorie A. McCaw, deputy local registrar at the Court House, Belleville, for a number of years, was recently honored on the occasion of her retirement by the legal secretaries. They held a surprise party at the home of Mrs. McCaw.

In appreciation of her aid to the secretaries and their solicitors a corsage and an engraved watch were presented to Mrs. McCaw. In her reply Mrs. McCaw said it had been a pleasure to work with the secretaries.

Hilarious School Playette Easily Produced by Children

Dear Doris: You had a request from Mrs. J. P. for the words to the song "Three Wise Old Women". I'll be glad to send the catchy tune, too, if she has forgotten it.

At a private girls' school the Juniors brought down the house by acting it (with props supplied by the janitor who also filled in as the polar bear in a bear rug on top of a half hydro pole).

The biggest girls, in borrowed football pads plus cushions were the women. The men were little, with fierce moustaccios and wigs. The makeup class had a heyday. The rest of the Juniors were "Chorus"; sitting back of stage (Theatre Under the Stars style) but the "Dear me . . ." and "We'll do-hop" lines were shrill soldo and trios. The only musical accompaniment was a toy xylophone with one "off" key! And a Japanese hand drum.

I can still laugh at the gusto and excitement of the performance. — G. W.

Dear G. W.: I'm sure it was hilarious. Your script, plus stage directions, would make it easy for any group to put it on.

Apparently two rhymes are involved: One about women who went a-hunting for plums and guns; and one about men looking for bears and gold. True man-style, the men fled from the women, who, true woman-style, chased them; and rescued them from a snapping polar bear.

I'll supply copies to anyone sending in 10 cents and a stamped envelope.

* * *

Dear Doris: When my husband gets drunk he often gets violent with me. During my last pregnancy he'd punch me in the stomach. He's not so many nights a week that our three small children hardly see him. Our bills are all behind and there's never money for clothes.

He says he can't quit drinking because he gets the shakes too badly. I can't help it but I still love him. (sometimes I think I hate him). Am I also to believe a family should stay together. If I were to tell him to get out or if I leave him, I'd have to go on welfare. — Desperate.

Dear Desperate: The law says a woman may leave an abusive husband and sue for support. Sometimes it is only such a drastic rebellion which can bring an alcoholic to see how his drinking is wrecking many lives.

Permitting blows in the stomach which could kill or maim an unborn child isn't helping, is it? You can be helped to cope with things by contacting your local child care agency, family court, family agency, A. A. or Al-Anon (the group for relatives of an alcoholic).

If you had sent your name and address, my advice could have been more detailed and specific.

Dear Doris: Tell "Heavyweight" for me to run — not walk — to the closest Canadian Coast-to-Coast Calories Counter Club. There she will find her answer: no fad diets, but many friends, and helpful tips and, as we all know, misery likes company — she'll like an active group. In five C's, she'll release her boredom.

If there is no five C club in her area tell her to start one. We started last October with about eight and now have a membership of over 30.

I'm a long way from my goal but have lost a few pounds and don't intend to give up even if it takes forever. — A Five C Member.

Dear Member: This peppy new group is Edmonton, Canadian. Branches are sprouting all over the place, with enquiries coming in to head quarters about how to get going.

I'm glad it is doing a job for you. I'll pass on details to anyone asking.

ONE SASKATCHEWAN SUMMER

"To have been in the pioneer west and then witness its growth and development is a priceless wonderful privilege." — Nell Merry.

* * *

Pioneers obey the stirring dictum: "Ask not what your country can do for you, but rather what can you do for your country," and we feel our readers will agree its meaning deepens while following the narrative of Miss Nell Merry, well-known Kelowna BCI teacher, 1133 Ann Street, who today, as we chat about adventure as youth's perogative, recalls:

"What to do in the summer vacation was one of the problems that exercised my mind in my freshman year at Queen's. A number of my friends had spoken of their adventures teaching school on the Prairies the year before. My mind was full of recollections of Owen Wister's Virginian and Ralph Conner's Sky Pilot; books that were popular at that period, and I thought it would be most romantic to find out what the pioneer west was really like.

"Saskatchewan had become a province only a few years before and settlers were pouring in from Ontario, the United States and foreign parts, lured by the promise of a quarter section of land. Inevitably, schools had to be built to accommodate their children, and for a time many of these were manned during the summer months with students from eastern colleges.

"If one left as soon as exams were over and remained until the middle of September, the rural schools were able to draw a government grant. Students were given their return trip, tourist class, to any place in the West for $30.

"I did not hesitate to put my name down as a prospective teacher.

"The train that I boarded in Toronto had 30 of Queen's people aboard. Most were going to teach, some were going as preachers or surveyors. One "fleeing" told me, later that his first pastoral duty was to help shingle the church, and his next, to give a hand in digging the grave and make the coffin for a parishioner who died within a week after his arrival.

"We were a cheery group as far as Winnipeg, where we were separated. I spent the night with relatives, and next morning seven of us boarded a train Saskatchewan bound. As the miles of unbroken prairie rolled past my window I began to feel apprehensive. Then, as one after another of my companions dropped off, leaving me the last passenger, my heart sank into my boots. I was not alone for my own. All the little prairie towns we passed looked so drab — one could understand their unconcern by the number of grain elevators along the trail.

"When I reached Midale, my destination, I was told that there was a seven mile drive to my school section. A small boy driving a team of horses and a buckboard was put at my disposal. The wind was whooping over the prairie, as we drove those seven, desolate miles. When we reached our destination, I had lost most of my hair-pins and my face was black from the dirt and grease from the filthy cowhide robe which kept sidding off my knees, escaping my frantic clutch. As I looked around for the house in which I was to spend the next three months, the boy pointed out a small sod shack. I almost told him to drive me back to the station.

"The shack turned out to be fairly comfortable. Running water and electricity were non-existent and the greatest drawbacks were bed bugs and alkaline drinking water. By the way, I discovered after careful investigation that no matter how meticulous a housekeeper was, the bugs were a constant menace, as no matter how often a night's shelter to a stranger who had missed the trail, and he usually brought the creatures with him.

"My school was small — but 12 little boys and girls — and was situated a mile from our shack. Shortly after my arrival, I found to my dismay that the family was planning to take up land further west and were going to leave me alone for the summer with the grandmother. I told them firmly, that if I got a chance to get away for weekends, I would not hesitate to leave the poor woman alone."

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Mother: "Be quiet, Jane, and do as I say. There are not two sides to this problem and I'm not going to waste time discussing it. You cannot go to a big public dance."

Jane: "You never try to see things my way."

Give your teen-ager a fair chance to state her case. Then if you must disagree, do so — but at least, listen to her side of the argument.

Mother: "Tell us about this dance before we make a decision. We really don't know much about it. Who is planning it and who are the chaperones?"

Jane: "Peggy's parents are helping us plan it . . . . .

Craftsman Combine Talents Making Exceptional Antiques

By RALPH and TERRY KOVEL

Talented twosomes often make antiques that show the unusual talents of each craftsman. Josiah Wedwood, the English potter of the 18th century was a famous and successful man in his own time. He was an inventor and was interested in the works of other creative men.

Matthew Boulton was an ormolu mount maker. He also made Sheffield silver and other metal work. In 1896, Wedgwood wrote to Boulton about the use of an engine lathe to make pottery. Wedgwood advanced about $20,000 to Boulton to help him experiment with the steam engine and other machines.

Later Jasper ware made by Wedgwood was mounted in cut steel mountings made by Boulton in a merging of the talents of the two men.

Q. What is a ditty box?

A. A ditty box was a sailor's box that held thread, needles, tape, and other small sewing equipment.

Q. I understood that the word "sterling" was just used by the United States in 1967. It was marked on all silver with a content of 925 parts out of 1000 parts of silver. All of the early solid silver had no mark.

A. No.! Sterling is a very old word. It is believed that the name originally came from the English word "Easterlings." An Easterling was a German living in the east who did silver work for King John. "Sterling" appeared on Irish silver as early as 1720. Coin silver in the United States was marked "coin," "standard," "premium," "fine" or with numbers. Some coin silver had the maker's name or initials with or without a few pseudo hallmarks. The 18th century American silversmith used his initials or name on or mark at all.

The 19th century American silversmith usually used his name and one of the other marks. By 1860 the word sterling appeared on most United States silver.

The United States mint, in 1792, fixed the standard of coinage to 892 parts pure silver in 1900. The standard was raised in 1837 to 900 parts silver in 1900. The word "coin" was to be used on silver with the same standard as that of the silver money. The word "sterling" was used on pieces made to the British requirements of 925 parts in 1000.

Silversmiths in Baltimore, Md., had a marking system of their own after 1814. The Baltimore makes sometimes used the word "sterling" along with their own marks.

BOOK REVIEW

Doll collectors have two new Putnam publications to enjoy. "The Complete Book of Doll Collecting" by Helen Young ($6.95) is a good book for the serious beginner. "European and American Dolls" by White ($19.95) is a large beautifully illustrated reference book that includes marks, hair styles, and other identifying features.

Policewomen Investigate Poverty

MONTREAL CP — A squad of 11 Montreal policewomen has what many of their male colleagues on the force consider the toughest police assignment — investigating families afflicted with poverty, violence and abject hopelessness.

Each member of the Juvenile aid bureau averages 10 cases a week, usually in families in need, many involving battered children, missing persons and first-time sexual offenders.

Often they have to separate deprived children from their families and place them in foster homes until a more whole squad agrees is the worst part of their job.

Policewoman Jeanne Ruest wept the first time she made an arrest 20 years ago. She had to separate from his mother a little boy the same age as her own.

Now, hundreds of arrests later, Policewoman Ruest doesn't cry any more. But she says, "I guess we all cried once."

"It's hard to take a child away from his parents even if we know those parents are bad for him," Policewoman Jacqueline Pigeon says.

"We think of him as our kid. And we know that later in life he will be a marked child because he was placed in a foster home."

Ann Landers

Lawyer in Agreement With Ann's Advice

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I have been a country lawyer for many years and am impressed by the sincerity and correctness of your counsel. In a recent reply you said a bride-to-be is not obligated to confess her indiscretions to her fiance. I agree with that advice and would like to add just one more thought. If the woman is going to disclose such information she should do it before marriage, not after.

I have tried over 200 divorce cases and have consulted in many cases that never came to trial. I learned in my work that a great many divorces are the result of sexual maladjustment, and the maladjustment is often caused by mistrust and suspicion.

Again and again I have heard men say, "If only she had told me about it before our marriage I would have been able to understand. Since she did not, I certainly wish she had kept her mouth shut altogether."

I hope you will publish this letter, Ann. It might save a marriage here and there. — OMAHA READER.

* * *

DEAR OMAHA: Here's your letter and my thanks for having written it. It might interest you to know that I heard from hundreds of women who said they confessed a premarital affair and regretted it ever after. Your letter gives excellent insight into the mind of the male who is on the receiving end of such a confession. It should button up the controversy from all sides.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Be a good scout and help me out. My wife believes in you. For the first seven years of our marriage I wasn't the best husband in the world. I got involved with a few girls and I gave my wife a bad time. We had a couple of kids and I promised to straighten around. In this past year I've behaved a lot better.

My wife is the most suspicious woman in the whole world. She is always handing me hairpins which she says she found in my pockets, or a lady's compact which I never saw before. Then I get the third degree. Last week she found some cigarette butts in the car ashtray with lipstick on the ends. They could have been left by the office manager or one of the girls I drive home from the bowling alley. Anyway, it's nagnag, nag, every time I come home a little late and I'm tired of defending myself.

Do you think if I went down to the police station and took a lie detector test and came out O.K. she would lay off once and for all? — BARNEY.

* * *

DEAR BARN: Why are you looking for a lie detector? It sounds like you are married to one. With a history like yours, Bub, it is not surprising that you suffer suspicions. It will take time and a record of good behavior before she is able to trust you and believe in you again. Start now to earn her confidence and one day you will have it.

Powell Comes Home to Joyous Welcome

NEW YORK (AP) — Harlem's best known intinerant Baptist preacher, Adam Clayton Powell, came home Friday night, staging a typically sudden and flamboyant entrance to a city he had avoided for 18 months.

The former congressman, still buoyant and irrepressible more than a year after the U.S. House of Representatives denied him his congressional seat, returned to face the legal problems that kept him in self-imposed exile on the island of Bimini in the Bahamas.

But to his supporters, the only thing tha' mattered was Big Daddy was back. And Powell, considerably greyer than when Harlem last saw him, played his old-style role with perfect ex-politician role to the hilt.

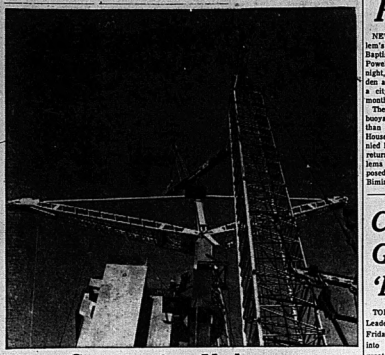
Screaming with joy, well-wishers mobbed the 59-year-old Democrat as he was first spotted crossing a street near his Abyssinian Baptist Church.

"Keep the faith, sweetheart," he shouted as two women leaped and landed with her arms around his neck.

Powell, who has faced the threat of arrest here for criminal contempt since December, 1966, flew in to Newark, N.J. He surrendered to a sheriff in Manhattan and was released in parole by Sta te Supreme Court Justice Arthur Markewich.

Powell went to Harlem, New Y o r k's predominantly-Negro area where he is seeking re-election to the 18th congressional district seat he held for 22 y e a r s. He made his way through his milling supporters to the Renaissance Ballroom where a crowd had been building for hours.

On the ballroom stage, Powell —coatless and his pink-striped shirt pulled open nearly to the waist by the hands that continued to claw him—spoke into a microphone.



His words were drowned out by the shouts of "Adam's back!" and "Keep the faith, baby!"

Later, when he went outside to walk the streets and tour the bars a substantial number of people appeared indifferent to him. A few young Negroes in one bar commented, "He ain't with us anymore."

Powell said he viewed the night as "the opening of my campaign for re-election."

He went to live in Bimini after he was excluded from Congress in 1967 for misusing public funds and defying the New York courts.

He faces jail as a result of a 1966 jury finding that he deliberately violated court orders to appear for a financial examination as a debtor.

Fieldwork is underway on the 38-storey high towers of the new Quebec Bridge. Sections of the tower s are being fabricated in Lachine, Que. (CP Photo)

Canada Gets U.S. 'Brains'

TORONTO (CP) — Liberal Leader Robert Nixon predicted Friday the flight of U.S. brains into Canada "is one of the greatest advantages that will accrue to Ontario over the next 30 years."

Mr. Nixon also told the legislature Ontario profited last year from conditions that resulted "in the significant migration of capital" from Quebec.

He said the migration of top men and women to Ontario has only compounded the problem the Maritime provinces have in wooing new or expanding industries.

Mr. Nixon said in a budget debate the government should think of opening an Ontario house in each major region of the United States to encourage immigration.

"The New Hampshire primary result, and Robert Kennedy's challenge to President Johnson, has shown the extent of the division which now is eroding our neighbor to the south," he said.

Internally, the U.S. is facing a summer of strife and violence, he said.

"The people themselves are divided within their own fundamental boundaries as they have not been divided since 1860."

Skunk Wants to Mate But Ad Is Misconstrued

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) — "Male skunk wants to meet female skunk, object matrimony. Call 738-5254 mornings."

Such was the ad placed in The Star-Telegram personal column by Mrs. Jan Killian, who wanted to mate her skunk, Sweetz, 2.

There seems to have been some misunderstanding.

A number of female callers thought the ad was a plea from a lonely bachelor with little self-esteem, Mrs. Killian said.

The calls, she said, were typical:

"Hello Mrs. Killian speaking."

Female voice at the other end, "May I talk to Mr. Skunk, please?"

"Pardon? Mr. er. ah Skunk can't talk, he's a skunk.'

"That's okay, so am I."

"But he's the four-legged kind. He's an animal."

Pause.

"Oh." Click.

Or:

"Hello. I want to meet Mr. Skunk.

"I always did want to meet a man who 'objected' to marriage! '

Except for two persons who owned female skunks, the callers were either women with marriage on their minds or curious men, Mrs. Killian said. She's still looking for a mate for Sweetz.

One woman, she said, got upset when Mrs. Killian explained that the skunk was a skunk.

"What do you mean putting an ad in the paper if you don't have a man there?" she demanded.

Broadcast Positions Are Filled

OTTAWA (CP) — The government filled the ranks of its new regulatory agency for broadcasting Friday, picking a long-time CBC executive as vice-chairman.

Harry J. Boyle of Toronto was appointed second man in the Canadian Radio-Television Commission, the new regulatory agency that is to succeed the Board of Broadcast Governors.

Mr. Boyle, 52, will work under Pierre Juneau, moved to chairman of the BBG from vice-chairman earlier this week and ticketed to head the bigger and more powerful CRTC when the new Broadcasting Act is put into effect April 1.

Filling out the other three positions for full-time members are Mrs. Pat Pearce, broadcasting columnist for the Montreal Star; Hal Dorman, former press secretary to Prime Minister Pearson and still on the prime minister's staff; and Real Therrien, a Quebec City broadcasting and telecommunications engineering consultant.

To Your Good Health

Heart Patient Should Rest After Meal

By Dr. Joseph G. Molner

Dear Dr. Molner: Should a person with a heart condition rest, lie down or relax about after a meal? — H. H.

Digesting one's food requires an increase in circulation of the blood in the digestive area — the shifting of circulation takes place automatically in the body.

If a person already has a heart condition, that means that it is wise not to put too much strain on it. The blood supply for the digestive tract makes its demands; therefore do not make too many other demands on the heart at the same time.

Hence the answer is that a person with heart trouble should take it easy after a meal. Whether one sits or lies down is a matter of preference, but exertion should be avoided.

If the meal has been a small one, there is no harm in walking slowly or moderately. A large meal, however, can provoke the pain of angina pectoris.

In any event, it is advisable for such a patient not to overeat.

Dear Dr. Molner: Is there any way to prevent prostate gland trouble? If so what measures should be taken? — S.L.

There isn't any way as simple as taking a pill or following a faddish diet, just as there isn't any sure way of "preventing" appendicitis, pneumonia or arthritis, although there are general health rules which will help.

Best thing to prevent serious prostate trouble is to have it treated early rather than later. The way to do this is to understand the prostate, know what it does, and be able to recognize early signs if trouble starts to develop. You'll find all that in my booklet, "The Pesky Prostate." For a copy, send 25 cents in coin and a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Dr. Molner, in care of the Chicago Sun-Times Syndicate, P. O. Box 158, Dundee, Ill.

Dear Dr. Molner: My spleen has been removed. I have heard there are certain foods I should not eat. Is this true? — Mrs. G. G.

There are no foods that need to be avoided because of removal of the spleen. Diet is not related to the situation.

Dear Dr. Molner: We are four ladies who like to read and study up on diseases in the library and medical journals.

We have yet to find any mention or write-up on pernicious anemia. Is it so deadly that one does not like to go into details about it? Is it a first cousin to leukemia? Does it shorten one's life if an elderly person has it severely? — D. W.

Dear me, you must have been at the library on the days I've discussed pernicious anemia in this column.

The story of pernicious anemia is one of the very inspiring ones in medicine. It used to be unalterably fatal, the victim wasting away and sometimes becoming paralyzed.

About 40 years ago it was discovered that giving the patient large amounts of liver every day could stop the disease in its tracks.

Later the important part of the liver was found to be Vitamin B 12, so today with the use of periodic shots of Vitamin B 12, pernicious anemia has lost its terrors. It is no kin to leukemia.

The disease still exists (sometimes massked for a time by ingredients of mixed vitamin preparations) but by giving B 12, the physician permits the patient to live a normal life.

If you are interested in medical topics, why not read up on the story of Dr. G. R. Minot, who discovered the secret of controlling pernicious anemia, and was himself, if memory serves me, just as dramatically saved? He had diabetes, too — and insulin was discovered in time to rescue him.

Aircraft Keep Watch As Utilities Blasted

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — Utility companies are using aircraft observers and reinforced patrols following a series of explosions that have damaged power lines.

Pacific Telephone said it would institute a 24-hour security program—air patrol and armed guards—at all strategic locations in the San Francisco Bay area.

The FBI and police declined comment on their investigation of the blasts. The latest knocked out telephone service Friday in an area northeast of Oakland.

Pacific Gas and Electric, whose power lines were damaged in the same area Wednesday, said its security patrols were being augmented.

Adding to the uneasiness was a bomb hoax which closed the heavily-travelled, three-tube Caldecott auto tunnel for 90 minutes during the Friday morning commuter rush.

Wednesday morning a 75-foot tower, carrying two 115,000-volt transmission lines to Berkeley and the University of California Radiation Laboratory, was knocked down by explosives. That same night, a Pacific Gas and Electric worker was knocked unconscious at an El Cerrito sub-station.

Then Thursday, crews discovered one leg of another tower supporting the downed power line had been blown out, but rust indicated the blast occurred weeks ago.

Anglican Primate Concerned About Services for Indians

OTTAWA (CP) — The Primate of the Anglican Church of Canada has requested urgent clarification of the government's stand on Indian and northern health services, it was learned Friday night.

The primate, Most Rev. Howard Hewlett Clark, expressed his concern in a telegram to NDP Leader T. C. Douglas about "conflicting views and reports" on a recent health department directive that "seems to imply a reduction in northern health services."

Health Minister MacEachen told the Commons March 14 his department has been obliged "to readjust, rearrange and in some cases to curtail services for the coming year."

Archbishop Clark urged that the situation be clarified publicly "before the leadership convention."

The Liberal party meets in Ottawa April 4-6 to choose a successor to Prime Minister Pearson.

The archbishop's telegram was shown to a reporter by NDP House Leader Stanley Knowles. A spokesman for Prime Minister Pearson said he did not know whether Mr. Pearson had received a similar telegram.

The directive mentioned by the archbishop has been the subject of recent arguments in the Commons.

Mr. MacEachen told the Commons March 14 a directive has gone out to senior health department officers throughout Canada "indicating the type of services which the department will be able to offer in the coming year."

Walter Densdale (PC—Brandon-Souris) said the directive indicates that resources available for Indian health services have been greatly reduced.

Mr. MacEachen said expenditures are not being reduced in comparison with last year, but the government has been "unable to maintain the rate of expansion in terms of expenditure that we did in the previous year and, because of this, we have been obliged to review the nature of the services we have been offering to the Indian population."

Constables Weren't Punished For Tale of Police Beating

TORONTO (CP) — Attorney-General Arthur Wishart denied Friday that one North Gwillimbury Township police constable was dismissed and another put on extended night shift duty because they informed "superiors" their chief had beaten a prisoner.

The suggestion was made in the legislature by Dr. Morton Shulman (NDP—Toronto High Park).

Mr. Wishart said Constable Anthony Baylis was hired on a probationary basis in June, 1967.

Last November, the chief and a non-commissioned officer agreed he was not qualified but another officer asked that the constable be given more time to prove himself.

Mr. Wishart said Constable Baylis fired one or two shots over the head of an apparently intoxicated youth who was fleeing from a patrol car last January.

The police chief said action was "immature" and the North Gwillimbury council asked for the constable's dismissal in February.

As for Constable P. C. Jarvey, Mr. Wishart said, he has been on the night shift for some time because of a staff shortage. Two members of the force are away on courses.

Dr. Shulman said Mr. Wishart did not mention whether the police chief beat up a prisoner.

Mr. Wishart said the NDP member had asked why one constable was dismissed and another kept on night shift, not about a prisoner being beaten. However, he would look into the matter.

North Gwillimbury Township is about 30 miles north of Toronto on the South shore of Lake Simcoe.

Wrong Drug Given Boy With Cardiac Arrest

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP) — A coroner's jury, investigating the death of a 10-year-old Waterloo boy, has recommended that lidocaine hypodermic bottles containing intravenous drugs be big, bold and not less than half an inch high.

The jury made the recommendation after hearing six hours of evidence into the death of Paul Doran, who died of k cardiac arrest in St. Mary's General hospital after an operation for acute appendicitis.

Dr. G. A. Lansky, the surgeon who removed the perforated appendix, said the boy received up to 250 cubic centimetres of sodium chloride, a salt solution, when he should have received only 100 cubic centimetres.

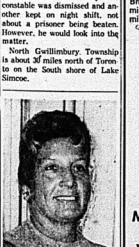
The doctor said the salt had no ill effect, but it would have had an ill effect either.

He said a nurse had been asked to get a bottle of sodium bicarbonate but that he had not checked to see whether the proper bottle had been brought to the operating room.

"You assume that if you give an order (for drugs) this will be given. I don't think that in a case of cardiac arrest it's necessary to consciously stop what you're doing to say 'give me that so I can see if you've brought the right stuff.' "

IS A SUCCESSFUL FUTURE YOUR GOAL?

There is no short cut to success but we can offer a successful future to a man who can be trained for management responsibilities.



The man we want will be between the ages of 23 and 32 and will have an aptitude for sales and administrative work.

Junior Matriculation and some experience in banking, sales, accounting or credit is desirable but not essential. Good starting salary, training program and full employee benefits.

We are interested in discussing YOUR future. Call us today and arrange an appointment.

Cadi Spurns Jury's Advice

TORONTO (CP) — Magistrate David Coon Friday described a grand jury which recommended tougher bail standards as "a bunch of housewives."

A county grand jury Thursday suggested that persons with records for crimes of violence should not go free on bail while facing new charges. Crown Attorney Kenneth Chase referred to the recommendation as he opposed bail for three persons charged with possession of burglary tools.

"Mr. Chase, when I became governed by a bunch of housewives sitting on a grand jury, there'll be a new moon in the sky," Magistrate Coon said.

The Intelligencer

BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, SATURDAY, MARCH 23, 1968

Ten years rolled back here last night as quickly as the thrust of an outstretched hand; the flash of a smile and a grasp on a shoulder.

They came here from the near and far-away places, champions in the true sense of the word.

They renewed old and lasting friendships and relived old "scrambles" with former foemen who were the 1958 world championship colors of the equally famous Whitby Dunlops.

None was forgotten. Those that, through force of circumstance were unable to attend the first reunion in a decade were here in the spirit through the magic of remembrance.

The sorrow of circumstance was partially dimmed by the joy of reunion. They huddled in memory-jerking groups.

And those former McFarlands brought nostalgia to hundreds of fans who knew them and watched them play and defeat the best the country and the world could produce in the blood, sweat and tears days of 1958 and 1959.

Nor was the reunion with their former senior "A" foemen and foes of the Dunlops much less colorful. They came here at their own expense to help pay tribute to a fellow sportsman who felt victim to an adverse quirk of fate.

They proved as did all who came to play "for Minnie" that there is a lot more to sport than the mere winning of games and collecting trophies."

They proved beyond the shadow of a doubt that a lot more than the urge to win, beats in the hearts hidden beneath the jersey of an athlete.

The response to "Minnie Menard Night" was little short of magnificent. Hockey men especially, including those in the top monied ranks felt their heart-strings tug with the sympathy common to all sportsmen when a fellow athlete is stricken.

Few of these men knew Minnie, personally. That did not matter. They rallied generously in the cause like the true sportsmen they are.

At this writing the total amount derived from Minnie Menard Night is not available. Here guesses hazarded between $4,000 and $5,000. That is not definite.

Nor was the response of the little guys on the street, Joe and Jane Hockey Fan and many who have little interest in the sport, less heart-warming than those closer to Minnie.

Business men and industry helped in no small way. They donated prizes and bought tickets. And the outlying communities put their shoulder to the wheel with selling and purchasing tickets for the Night. The news media of the city and district made a fine contribution.

There no doubt will be expressions of appreciation of the magnificent response to the "Night" aired and published.

But the words have yet to be phrased that can fully express the deep sincere appreciation to all and sundry of Minnie Menard and his family. His personal friends, hockey buddies and other associates know how Minnie feels .He tried to tell me the other day — but his voice choked and his hand shook.

"Just tell them, George," he said, "Thank you from the bottom of our hearts for the splendid thing everybody has helped to do for us."

And I know that Minnie, like the rest of us, is deeply grateful to those of his McFarland and Mo-Hawk buddies who organized, operated and brought his night to such a successful conclusion.

The committee headed by Coach Floyd Crawford did a magnificent job. And I know his team-mates "old and new" of the senior Mo-Hawks did not need any urging to lend a shoulder to the wheel.

People may be funny and this old world slightly wacky but it takes a Menard episode to reveal what a lot of good people are living in it.

And this column adds its own to Minnie's heartfelt expression of gratitude and appreciation.

"THANK YOU!"

"Minnie Menard Night" Big Success!

By GEORGE H. CARVER
Sports Editor

Memory Lane reversed itself here last night and a decade rolled back in sixty minutes.

World champion gladiators of the 1959 hockey wars buckled on swords and went at the current Mo-Hawks in a milder form of the late fifties combats.

The Belleville McFarland world title winners of those rollicking years sent waves of nostalgia over a crowd-packed arena.

Aided and abetted by the fast - skating younger blood of the 1967-68 Mo-Hawks of the OHA senior "A" League. The winner?

Minnie Menard, popular member of the world champion McFarlands and the Mo-Hawks who suffered the loss of an eye during a game played in Napanee.

The entire proceeds of the "Minnie Menard Night" will be turned over to the injured player.

In generous gesture, members of the Mo-s came here at their own expense to help swell the fund for a fellow athlete.

Referee Gordie Fevereaux, of the OHA staff, who officiated at many games during the Mo-s - Dunnies years came here at no expense to the fund committee.

Committee consensus of the public and others in the response to the fund appeal was "nothing short of magnificent".

And Joe and Jane Fan turned out in attendance tribute to Menard. Some 2,500 watched a game that lacked nothing for action, thrills and a dash of humor.

The score? A 4-4 tie with big Joe Lepine goofing up a penalty shot that could have won the game.

Pre-game ceremonies saw George Godson, one of the outstanding players of the 1967-68 Senior "A" League presented with the Bill Green Memorial Trophy by Bobby Green son of the late hockey star after being named the most outstanding player of the current Mo-Hawks.

And George lived up to the tribute by scoring two goals and an assist in the 4-4 tie game.

Among the hockey notables attending the game were Bill Durnan former Montreal Canadien who won six Vezina Trophy awards and Greg Currie chief scout of the Los Angles Kings and Lorne Cook past president of the Ontario Hockey Association.

Telegrams of good wishes to Minnie came from Wren Blair, manager of the Minnesota North Stars; Billy Reay coach of the Chicago Black Hawks and former assistant manager of the 1959 McFarlands, and Moe Benoit also a former Mac. They were read to the overflow crowd by Jack Devine OHA president who was the master of ceremonies.

And the oldtimers were here in force.

There was the "Turk" Barclay in the Macs nets with Gordie Bell standing by — just in case. Big Al Dewsberry teamed up with and old defence buddy, Jean Paul Lamirande and outside of a shortage of breath did a stand-up job.

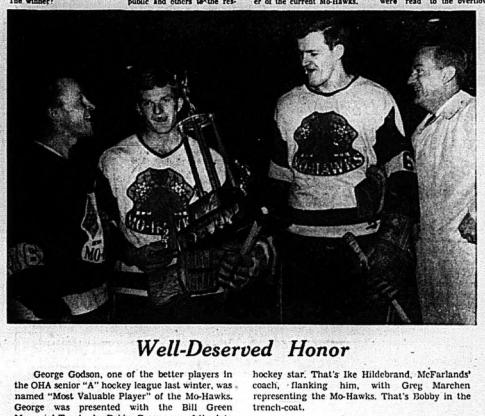
Then there were Johnny Mureitch, Lionel Boily, Floyd Crawford, Fiori Goegan —and the one and only Bep Guidolin, Jean Paul Payette, Wayne Brown, Lou Smrke whose brother Stan played against him. Davy Jones, big robust Joe Lepine, Dennis Boucher and who will ever forget Ike Hildebrand, Keith MacDonald, Rene St. Hillaire, Pete Conacher, trainer Art Charlton and former Mac manager Drury Denyes.

Faring the "immortals" for the Mo-Hawks were Joe Junkin in the nets, Stan Smrke retired professional player, Garg Gresdahl. Bob Taylor, Greg Marchen, George Godson, Ralph Plante, Bob McAlpine, Shaker Baker, Gary Darling with manager Bob Temple.

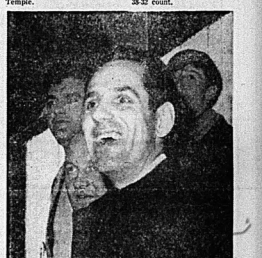
The hockey game left little to be desired albeit the aging Macs were a trifle slow at times, but a lot worse games were seen here during the past winter.

The oldsters lacked little speed afoot. They matched the "youngsters" in any way you looked at it and proved they had forgotten little of the style that was them the Allan Cup and the world title.

The game lacked nothing for action. It was fast with both teams not pulling any punches bodi-wise.



Referee Eddie Fevereaux had a lenient eye and not a sinner was sentenced.



The greybeards piled up a 3-0 lead in the first period with goals from Davy Jones, Wayne Brown and Keith MacDonald.

Godson scored his first goal in the second and Stan Smrke added another before the Macs made it 4-2 on Bolty's stick.

The Macs rallied slightly in the third frame with Godson getting his second goal and Gary Gresdahl tying the count with a few minutes to go. Frank Crawford, brother of Floyd batted on that one.

At that the Macs outshot their younger opponents by a 38-32 count.

Well-Deserved Honor

George Godson, one of the better players in the OHA senior "A" hockey league last winter, was named "Most Valuable Player" of the Mo-Hawks. George was presented with the Bill Green Memorial Trophy by Bobby Green, son of the late hockey star. That's Ike Hildebrand, McFarlands' coach, flanking him, with Greg Marchen representing the Mo-Hawks. That's Bobby in the trench-coat.

Bantams Win At Georgetown

Belleville Kinsmen bantams swept their series with Humber Valley winning two games by 4-2 scores.

They met Richmond Hill this morning at 9.20. Ricky Meagher starred for the Kinsmen in both games scoring three of the eight goals and getting an assist.

Scoring in the first game were Meagher, Cliff Janitsch, Dave Smith and Peter Ackerman, Janitsch had two assists, Meagher and Smith one each.

Meagher racked up a pair of goals on the second win, Danny Lapinskie and Janitsch getting the others. The later also had two assists with Meagher and Doug James getting singles.

Tweed Beaten By Elmvale 5-1

TWEED — The Tweed peewees suffered their second defeat in 29 games here last night bowing to Elmvale 5-1 in the OMHA playoffs.

The second game of the best-of-three series will be played tomorrow.

Trenton Midget Tourney

TRENTON — With the climax to the seventh annual Midget All-Star hockey tournament coming up here tonight the series of elimination games so far produced a lot of sportsmanship spiced with a shining example of the good Canada-US relations that can be instigated by international competition.

The game for the grand championship title is being played here in the Community Gardens tonight starting at 7.30 p.m.

Today the finalists will be decided in separate tussels between Toronto Rangers and Bel Air of Ottawa and Toronto Marlboros and Bramalea. The first semi-final began at 9 a.m.

The State of Rhode Island entered a team in the tournament sponsored by the Trenton Lions Club along with 27 Midget clubs from Ontario.

At the last minute the faculty members of the school the American boys attended ruled the long trip to Canada and time spent in tournament play could interfere with students' performances at this important period of the curriculum. Needless to say local organizers were disappointed but not nearly as much as the eager puck chasers from the eastern seabord.

The Rhode Islanders, however, sent a representative all the way to Trenton with apologies for all concerned. As a goodwill gesture he brought with him a beautiful blanket for each player on the Trenton Lions entry. "Since circumstances did not allow us to participate please accept this token of appreciation for the effort put forward on our behalf," the spokesman for the American team said.

Belleville's hopes faded the first day activities got underway last Monday. Trenton midgets met a similar fate on Thursday night in an overtime fixture with Burlington, the latter winning after 15 minutes extra play by counting more shots on goals three to one) when neither team could break the 2-2 stalemate.

Novices Lose To Barrie 3-2

Belleville's Food City novices lost a heartbreaker in the Welland tournament dropping a 3-2 overtime decision to Barrie yesterday.

The winning goal came in the second overtime period.

The city team will come home as the finalists in the AA division of the tournament.

Larry Waite and Mike Meeker scored for Belleville. Meeker also had an assist as did Ross McLeod and Eddie Grills.

Minnie smiles his enjoyment at last night's game as he watched his former team-mates of the McFarlands' world champions and the 1968 Mo-Hawks go through their paces.

Nancy Thrills Ski World With Amazing String Of Wins

SUN VALLEY, Idaho (CP) — No woman has ever dominated modern-day world skiing the way Canada's Nancy Greene has this season in running up a amazing string of victories that has reached 10 so far this season.

Well on her way to her second World Cup in Alpine competition, the 24-year-old Olympic champion from Rossland, B.C., made it nine in a row Friday when she captured the downhill at the American International meet here.

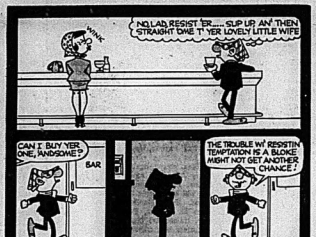
She hasn't been beaten since she won the Olympic gold medal in the giant slalom at Grenoble, France, in February. In the post-Olympics international competition, Nancy won twice at Chamonix, France, twice at the Canadian championships in Collingwood, Ont., and three times at Roche and Aspen cup races in Aspen, Colo., a week ago.

Her downhill victory here Friday was her ninth straight and 10th of the season. She won one race at Grindelwald, Switzerland, before the Olympics, then injured her ankle. That kept her on the sidelines for a spell but she bounced back brilliantly in the Winter Games with her gold in the giant slalom and a second-place silver in the slalom.

She has two more races here and the big question, of course, was whether she can keep it up.

While Nancy performed at her best, Frenchman Jean-Claude Killy continued to have his troubles trying to get back into the winner's circle since he left his homeland.

Killy, who swept all three Alpine events at the Grenoble Games, has been winless in North America so far this season. Friday he finished second in the downhill.



Gerhard Nenning of Austria won the downhill, pacing Austria to the team lead with 86 points. France is second with 66, Switzerland has 51 and Canada and the U.S. are tied with 32. The three-day invitational meet here is basically a competition among countries based on combined points from men's and women's teams.

France, the defending champion, was favored to repeat with Austria considered its strongest challenger.

However, Miss Greene and Killy, leading the World Cup by healthy margins, captured more than their share of attention despite the fact the meet here does not count toward the cup.

The address will be held today with the giant slalom scheduled for Sunday over the Mount Baldy course, said by some skiers Friday to be choppy and risky.

Bobby Hull's World Of Hockey

By BOBBY HULL

We're coming up to the end of the National Hockey League schedule and some of the things that happened during the season were, I think, curious.

Who'd have guessed, for example, that the Stanley Cup champions wouldn't even make the playoffs in the Parent Division? The last guy to guess it would have been Punch Imlach, coach of Toronto Maple Leafs.

You hear a lot of gossip about Toronto's failure, stuff like the fellows not getting along with Punch and so on. That is gossip as far as I'm concerned, and I've got no comment on whatever internal problems another team might have.

Some physical things were obvious about the Leafs, though. Their older fellows, who had done such a great job in other years, lost half a step or more this year.

No telling what Allan Stanley (42), Johnny Bower (44) and George Armstrong (rising 38) have meant to Toronto in the last 10 years. Their prominence had an uncommon lot to do with Leafs' dominance of four Stanley Cups in the last six seasons.

I suppose Leafs' season, this year, was one of transition: some old legs going, some new ones not quite arriving. The team's collapse, after generally being picked to finish second to Montreal, probably means extensive changes before next fall.

The rest? Montreal on top as everybody expected, although not before Canadiens slumped to last place around Christmas time. New York was a big tough club, but nobody was tougher than Boston. The Bruins rattled and socked, helped along by Phil Esposito, Fred Stanfield and Ken Hodge, whom they obtained in a trade with Chicago.

Our own season revolved around winning a lot of big games when we had to. Young Jack Norris, whom we got from Boston, shut out Toronto, for example when Leafs needed to win a game that would have brought them four points closer to us in fourth place.

Before the season began, a lot of people forecast that I'd score 60 or 70 goals because of the expanded NHL. I said when these columns began that I didn't think that would happen. I felt then that expansion teams would be a lot better than most experts believed.

So I wasn't surprised the way the parent clubs had trouble with the new ones. This was because there were a lot of individuals in the expansion section who really put out when they got a second chance to play in the NHL. They couldn't make it before, but they were out to prove they could now.

Then there were a lot of young fellows, with possibly not as much ability as others, who made up for it by desire and skating. They played positional hockey, up and down their wings to check us off balance.

They had such good goaltending, like St. Louis got from our old buddy Glenn Hall, that if they got one-or-two-goal lead, the parent teams were in trouble

Irvine Gets Pair

Kelly's Kings Blast Blues

By GRAHAM COX
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Ted Irvine is a carbon copy of the players Los Angeles Kings tried to draft when the National Hockey League expanded to 12 teams last June.

The Kings decided then to concentrate on the youngsters, building for the future, rather than have all their plans on veterans already seasoned in National Hockey League play.

"As a result, they are in second place in the NHL's expanded Western Division and breathing down the necks of division leading Philadelphia Flyers with just a week remaining in the schedule.

And Irvine, a rough, tough left winger, is a perfect example of the team's young strength.

He scored two goals Friday in pacing the Kings to a 6-1 victory over St. Louis Blues in the only scheduled game. The victory gave the Kings 69 points, two fewer than Philadelphia.

The goals gave the 6-2, 190-pounder 17 for the season.

The other Los Angeles goals were scored by Howie Hughes, Bill White, Ed Joyal and Bill Lesuk. The lone St. Louis marksman was Jim Roberts.

Philadelphia is in Los Angeles tonight in a crucial encounter. In other games Detroit Red Wings are in Montreal against the Canadiens, New York Rangers play the Maple Leafs in Toronto, Pittsburgh Penguins take on the North Stars in Minnesota and St. Louis is at Oakland against the Seals.

Sunday has Montreal at Chicago Black Hawks, Toronto at New York, Boston Bruins at Detroit and Minnesota in Philadelphia.

Dennis Ribant's manners keep getting him into hot water in baseball's spring training exhibition season.

Ribant may have set an exhibition season record Friday when he was tossed out of his game for the second time this spring as Detroit Tigers downed Boston Red Sox 8-6.

Ribant, who foresook hockey in Canada after playing for Hamilton Red Wings in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series, as Thomas clashed in the six inning when the Boston player asked umpire Joe O'Donnell to examine the baseball.

"He threw me a couple of spitters," Thomas said later, "and I asked the umpire to look at the ball."

Ribant tossed the ball in to be examined and it sailed in the vicinity of Thomas' skull. That's when the Boston outfielder charged the mound. "He threw the ball right at me and I didn't want him to get away with it."

Ed Mathews, Detroit's first baseman, wrestled Thomas to the ground and both dugouts emptied. Tempers quickly cooled and Thomas an Ribant were ejected.

As for the game, rookie catcher Arlo Brunsberg hit two home runs and Mathews tagged one against Boston's Dave Morehead. Mike Andrews smacked a three run and two doubles for the Red Sox.

Frank Quilici walloped a grand slam homer—one of three hits he collected in the game—as Minnesota whacked Cincinnati. Bob Allison had four hits for the Twins.

Los Angeles rallied for a pair of runs in the ninth inning and edged St. Louis. Jim Lefebvre opened with a single and with one out, Len Gabrielson's bounce to a bad hop and slipped past second baseman Ed Spiezio for a hit. Pinch hitter Tom Haller singled home the tying run and when Dick Simpson's throw bounced away, Gabrielson scored the winner.

Smoothie Rates Second

MIAMI, Fla. (CP-AP) — Trainers at Favorable Thomas, to-5 favorite, and He's A Smoothie, strong second choice, believe their horses will get the winner's share of $66,000 in today's Gulfstream Park Handicap.

But trainers and owners of seven other horses hope for at least part of the purse in the 1¼-mile race being run for the 23rd time, with a 3:15 p.m. EST post time.

Favorable Turn and He's A Smoothie each carry 121 pounds.

"He's A Smoothie has set five track records on both the dirt and turf, and holds two records now," said Warren Beasley of Toronto, trainer of the 1967 Canadian champion.

"I'm very confident the other horses in the race will find out he's as good on dirt as he is on the grass."

Powerhouse in the Mountain

A huge cavern is being gouged inside a mountain on the Outardes River in eastern Quebec. It will house the powerhouse for Outardes 3, one of the three dams on the river that are part of the Manicouagan-aux Outardes power development complex. When completed, Outardes 3 will produce 1,034,000 horsepower. (CP Photo)

Uncertainty Depresses Markets

By FRITS ROOS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Uncertainty about the international monetary system continued to depress Canada's stock markets this week as volume ebbed to its lowest level of the year.

Golds again paced the decline.

The group started with a near-record plunge following a weekend decision by six major central banks to launch a two-price system for gold bullion—freezing the official bullion reserves and creating a private, free gold market.

The move apparently disappointed speculators who had pushed up prices of gold bullion and mines to record levels in expectation of an official increase in the price of gold.

Bullion prices, which in Europe had soared by more than $10 above the three-decade-old official rate of $35 an ounce (U.S.), began to sag in a wave of uncertainty about where the free market's future price would settle.

By the close of the week, Canadian gold mine stocks, traded mostly by U.S. residents forbidden to own bullion, had settled back to a modest rally.

Others subsidizes virtually all Canadian gold mines to a maximum of $10.27 an ounce, but observers do not say whether the subsidy can be continued under the gold pool's new rules.

However, no fewer no Canadian company has announced it will operate without the subsidy and supply the free market.

During the week, Toronto's gold index tumbled 13.59 points to 212.60—about 40 points below the record set about three weeks ago.

Some Mines again headed the list down, dipping 7 points to 63 on 16,000 shares. Campbell Red Lake dropped 1½ to 31, Kerr Addison ¾ to 15¼ and Sigma 60 cents to 6.40.

Industrials opened the week with a burst of enthusiasm about steps taken to solve the monetary crisis.

However, the mood changed quickly and the rally turned into a sharp decline which eased off towards the close.

Toronto's industrial index dropped 3.11 to 144.92—its lowest level since early December, 1966.

Analysts blamed investor weariness about the Vietnam war and record interest rates, which astract investore to bonds from stocks, for the decline.

Steels, pipelines and pulp and paper stocks were hit hardest.

Stelco, which traded at a six-year low of 16⅝, closed at 17¼ for a loss of ¾. The company's annual report expressed concern about increasing imports, especially under the new Kennedy Round tariffs.

Dofasco fell ¾ to a 1968 low of 15⅞ and Algoma ⅝ to 16⅛.

Fraser Companies tumbled 1¾ to 15¾ after announcing a steep decline in profits.

Toronto's oil index declined 3.72 to 165.99 and base metals fell to 97.61. Declines outnumbered advances 855 to 157. Volume was 10,141,000 shares compared with 13,613,000 the previous week.

Montreal's composite index dropped 3.41 to 140.10. Declines outpaced advances 221 to 72 while volume slipped to 4,464,000 shares from 7,122,000 last week.

Employment News

By J. CHARLTON
Manpower Counsellor

Most students in the local area have recently completed their spring examinations. Soon the results of these examinations will be known and many students will be disappointed at their low achievement. Thoughts of leaving school will probably cross their mind.

However, the student who drops out of school before obtaining the best possible education finds that the status of his adult life has been determined and will remain at a lower level than he is capable of attaining.

We are faced with the fact that most jobs in the generation ahead of us will require persons who are much more skilled, better trained, and better educated than in the past. Trends which have constantly upgraded the skill of the labor force in Canada remain as persistent as ever. We cannot sustain a high rate of economic growth in the years ahead without a continuous flow of qualified people into the labor force. It can only be concluded that the future will offer decreasing opportunities of employment to the unskilled.

The early school drop-out who has not acquired basic skills, is not only unable to find satisfactory, permanent employment, but is also greatly handicapped in acquiring specific vocational training as an adult.

He is likely to be the first person laid off when there is a slow down in employment and studies have shown that such a person will move down the occupational ladder instead of up.

Many thousands of people in Canada who have been caught in this unenviable situation are now seeking retraining through the occupational training for adults program administered by the Department of Manpower and Immigration. In many cases, they are taking training in the basic educational skills of reading and arithmetic, to make a solid foundation for the specific occupational training desired.

If interested, check with the local Canada Manpower Centre at 324 Church Street, Belleville.

PROCLAMATION

"COMMUNITY CONCERT WEEK"

The Belleville Community Concert Association is holding its annual campaign for members from Monday, March 25th, through Saturday, March 30th, 1968. The drive is a most worthy one, its purpose is to assure a series of concerts here by world-famous artists during the coming year.

Each community is made a better place in which to live by its schools, churches, libraries and civic organizations. All of these agencies work to make living in a community a more valuable, a more rewarding experience. Such an organization is the Belleville Community Concert Association. The availability of fine music presented by authoritative, professional artists is an advantage of inestimable value to the citizens of Belleville.

Such advantages are made possible through the work and efforts of citizens such as the officers and workers of the Belleville Community Concert Association. It is through their work and continued support of our citizens that we are able to hear and enjoy the riches of music and we urge the citizens of this area to take advantage of these fine concerts.

Therefore, as Mayor of the City of Belleville, I proclaim the week of March 25th to March 30th, 1968, officially as COMMUNITY CONCERT WEEK.

D. P. Boyle,
ACTING MAYOR.

Dated at the Mayor's Office
March 23rd, 1968.

World Curling!

Canada, Scotland Eye Title!

MONTREAL (CP) — The 1968 international curling championship will probably be resolved by survival of the fittest after three days of rigorous play leading up to today's final.

The finalists—Canada and Scotland—showed signs of sheer fatigue Friday night after the eight-rink round-robin preliminary event.

"We just seemed to run out of steam out there," said skip Chuck Hay of Scotland after his defending championship rink from perth defeated Norway 13-8 in the seventh round to finish the preliminary undefeated.

The final is scheduled for 2 p.m. EST today.

Meanwhile the Canadian champions, skipped by Ron Northcott of Calgary, went into their eighth game in three days against the U.S. in the semi-final Friday night.

The Calgarians, who won the championship in 1966, wrapped that one up early, forcing Bud Somerville and his 1965 titlists from Superior, Wis., to concede a 12-2 defeat after seven of the regulation 12 ends.

Canada reached the semi-final with a 6-1 won-loss record that included a 22-5 victory over France and a 19-6 rout of West Germany in Friday's earlier matches.

Meanwhile, the U.S. finished third before the semi-final with a 7-1 record after defeating France 14-6 and West Germany 16-5 in the sixth and seventh rounds respectively.

Scotland defeated Switzerland 19-3, Sweden downed Norway 15-10 and Switzerland 20-6 in other Friday games.

Marlies Oust Kings

COLLINGWOOD, Ont. (CP) — A goal by Grant Moore at 7:41 of the first overtime period gave Toronto Marlboros a 3-2 victory over Collingwood Kings and sent the Marlies into the Ontario Hockey Association Senior finals.

The victory, watched by 2,400, gave the Marlboros the best-of-seven semi-final series 4-2 in games. Toronto now will meet the winners of the Kingston Aces and Galt Terriers series.

Brad Hymers and Bill Crawford scored the other Toronto goals. Dave Fitter and Claire Alexander replied for Collingwood.

Collingwood took 1-0 lead in the second period on Fitter's goal.

Marlboros tied the score midway through the third period on Hymers' goal, but Alexander scored for Collingwood about a minute later.

Crawford tied the score again on a 25-foot shot with about seven minutes remaining in the third period.

Commons to Sit Again Monday As NDP Seeks Drug Price Curb

OTTAWA (CP) — The New Democratic Party has messed up the Liberal leadership race for fair.

It has also caused a split in its own ranks by so far refusing to allow the Commons to adjourn until April 23 for the campaign leading to the April 4-6 leadership convention here.

The NDP, widely aware of its members dissenting privately, has kept debate going on 1967-68 departmental supplementary spending appropriations to try to force the government to bring forward its bill to lower drug prices.

To complicate matters further, the cabinet is reported split over the drug bill.

The drug legislation has been given second reading—approval in principle—but still has to go through two relatively routine stages before it gets final Commons passage.

The next prime minister cannot be bound constitutionally by any promise Prime Minister Pearson may make on the drug bill.

Mr. Pearson is reported furious about the NDPs tactics. Romeo Leblanc, Mr. Pearson's parliamentary aide, told reporters Friday night the prime minister feels the eight leadership candidates in his cabinet are entitled to at least two full weeks of campaigning.

Mr. Leblanc said all parties except one had an understanding that Parliament would recess Friday.

The Commons will be back at the same stand Monday, however, with the appropriations of nearly 20 departments still to be approved.

Mr. Leblanc said leadership candidates not required in the Commons to pilot through their departmental appropriations can proceed with their campaigns.

However, this applies to only two of the eight candidates: External Affairs Minister Martin and Finance Minister Sharp.

However, nobody expects the other six minister candidates—Transport Minister Hellyer, Justice Minister Trudeau, Health Minister MacEahen, Consumer Afairs Minister Turner, Agriculture Minister Greene and Trade Minister Winters—to leave the field to Mr. Martin and Mr. Sharp.

Stanley Knowles, NDP whip, said in an interview that the impasse has arisen because the government refuses to go ahead with its own legislation—the drug bill.

He said the NDP has no quarrel with the proposal that the leadership candidates should have an opportunity to campaign. But Mr. Pearson had said himself several times that Parliament should come first.

Mr. Knowles added that the NDP wants to question in particular Mr. Turner, sponsor of the drug bill, and Mr. MacEachen about cuts in hea services for Indians and Eskimos.

Sydney Omarr's Astrological Forecasts

For March 24

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Accent on gracious entertaining — be with congenial persons. Avoid those who sing song of gloom. Your genius is well living. Think of yourself — then others will also enjoy themselves.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Get together with those who mean the most to you. Discuss ambitions, professional plans. Make clear your intentions with regard to responsibility and activities in proper perspective.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): You have extra time to study leases; future plans. If no extra time — make time. Necessary to know where the future is taking you. Study special newspaper features.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Consult one with experience where finances, business ventures are concerned. Your feelings run deep — you tend to be emotional. But today make an effort to permit logic to have a say.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Study aims. Find out what you need, what can be discarded. Streamline operations. Get rid of deadwood. You are asked by mate or partner. You help yourself only if willing to face facts.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Individual you associated with attempts to communicate. Barrier may be actual distance or emotional shell. Find out which — then take steps to clear the way. Many benefits at stake.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Much emphasis on critical faculty. Make sure you can discern what is to be kept, discarded. Break from routine into a more active mold. Oppose person who reveres tradition.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Opposite sex plays prominent role. You can find out who means most to you. Day when essentials come to fore. Superficial attitudes do not suffice. Act accordingly.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Realize there are alternatives to journey or expensive call. Discuss various methods with one close to you. Preserve your prestige. Stick to principles without being arrogant.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Good day for discussions which involve buying, selling. Very applicable to land, real estate. Deal with the solid, not the flimsy. Message crystal clear by tonight.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): You discover surprise allies. Those you feared turn out to be friendly. Many you took for granted now cause you to doubt. Your ideas, plans today are subject to revision.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Be quiet within. Answers to problems are forthcoming if you absorb spiritual counsel. Participate in special club or church activity. Sincerity is great ally today.

If today is your birthday . . . you are a natural designer, you may also possess unusual speaking or singing voice. Domestic adjustment is on the horizon.

General Tendencies: Cycle high for Aquarius, Pisces, Aries. Accent added to Leo: Study aims, goals. Find out what opposition is thinking, planning.

For March 25

ARIES (Mar. 21 —Apr. 19): After morning hours you may feel slightly let down as work routine proceeds. Keep in to establish rapport with associates who share interests. Find out about club, group, organization.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): After a slow start you find that contacts begin paying off. Friendly gestures from others send morale soaring. Plan — influence people. You can plant seed of success.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Stress original approach. People in authority want to hear your ideas. Also, get something on paper, even if only a bare outline. Express yourself in an individual manner.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Follow through on hunch. Your ideas of trends, cycles pay dividends today. You can get finger on pulse of public. Do so. Exude confidence. Read and write. Communicate.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Study investment possibilities. Be willing to expand base of operations. Opposition experienced early today amounts to nothing. You overcome obstacles. Accept challenge. You win.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Check details. Individual who advocates fast action may not have your best interest at heart. Know this — respond accordingly. Not wise to delegate duties today.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Mutual individual makes known private financial situation. Your prestige rises if you are wise in utilization of information. Keep clear.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Love and romance play highlighted. If single, could be a most exciting day. If married, you rediscover loved one. Child can require attention. Listen to problems with an open mind.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Key to success today is perceptiveness. Ideas are plentiful. You must select the best. Choose quality over quantity. Neighbor is gossipy. Stick to fact, not rumor.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): You get ahead today through willingness to experiment. Don't feel there is only one method. Utilize alternatives. Be versatile. Exhibit sense of humor. Short journey may be necessary.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Finish what you start — then look to future. There are opportunities for success. But today you must take the initiative. Enhance income potential.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Cycle high. Circumstances turn in your favor. Make your own breaks, opportunities. Study Aquarius message. Find out the why of events. Be analytical. Answer is available.

If today is your birthday . . . you are introspective, emotional, sensitive to thoughts and mood of others. Break in partnership or close association is indicated — but this could work in your favor.

General Tendencies: Cycle high for Pisces, Aries. Special word to Virgo: Find out what the competition is planning. Do this through discreet inquiry.

Would-be Leaders Woo Manitoba's Delegates

"You know how you're always thinking about a way to make money in your spare time . . ."

OTTAWA (CP) — Liberal leadership candidates make elaborate precautions to avoid crossing campaign paths, but the courtesy only goes so far.

This weekend Winnipeg has been too much to resist for five of the eight cabinet contenders. They hustled into town to court most of Manitoba's 145 convention delegates, there to attend a meeting of the provincial Liberal council.

Consumer Affairs Minister Turner invited them to a Friday night dinner. External Affairs Minister Martin had invitations in their hands for an evening reception.

They were to have breakfast today with Health Minister MacEachen.

Trade Minister Winters was to see them after lunch, and it was Finance Minister Sharp's 4 p.m. reception after that.

Last Friday, most campaign offices had firm schedules for their ministers up to the middle of next week and they were working frantically to nail down day of the three-day convention in Ottawa.

But the Commons failed to clean up its business Friday, and cabinet ministers face possible interruption of their schedules next week to return and defend their departmental spending estimates if acting ministers cannot do the job.

Mr. Martin and Mr. Sharp have had their estimates passed, and they will have a clear run to the convention.

Mr. Martin is squeezing an incredible number of delegate meetings into his itinerary for the next nine days.

In the West since Thursday, he was to tackle Saskatoon and Regina today, then British Columbia Sunday and Monday—meeting delegates in Kelowna, Kamloops, Prince George and Terrace, Victoria and Vancouver, before he flies East Tuesday in time to shake hands in Rouyn-Noranda, Que.

The external affairs minister and other rivals joined in important cabinet meeting in Ottawa Wednesday morning. Then Mr. Martin goes to Toronto and other Ontario centres. He spends the last day of March in eastern Quebec.

Mr. Sharp is trying desperately to make up for an entire month in which rejection of his tax bill and problems with the Canadian dollar kept him tied to his desk.

He spent Friday shoring up his position in Alberta, and has three Winnipeg events today. Sunday he's in rural Quebec and Quebec City, Monday at Montreal and then makes his first foray into the Maritimes.

He meets delegates and holds press conferences in Fredericton, Moncton, Saint John, N.B., St. John's, Nfld., and Halifax.

Justice Minister Trudeau lost a round to the weather Friday night and was prevented from flying to Halifax. He arranged to speak to groups of delegates there by both closed-circuit television and a telephone hookup from Ottawa. Today he is in rural Quebec and Sunday in Northern Ontario.

He speaks to the Newfoundland legislature Monday, spends Tuesday in QUEBEC, Wednesday in New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island, Thursday in Montreal and Friday in Toronto.

Mr. Turner was to leave Winnipeg today for Vancouver and Victoria, returning Sunday to Edmonton.

He goes to Calgary, Medicine Hat, Alta., and Regina Monday, to Port William and Hamilton Tuesday, and on to rural Quebec Wednesday and Montreal Thursday. He spends Friday and Saturday covering all four Atlantic provinces, touching Fredericton, Halifax, St. John's, and Charlottetown.

Transport Minister Hellyer has only the week planned in detail. He was in Nova Scotia, Prince Edward Island and Quebec City Friday, and visits outlying centres in Quebec today and Sunday.

Mr. MacEachen, his important breakfast out of the way this morning, was to head for Regina, and later Saskatoon.

Sunday finds him in Edmonton and Calgary, Monday in Hamilton and Tuesday and Wednesday on tour in Quebec.

Mr. Winters makes an assault on Quebec Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, touching the usual gathering points for rural delegates. He is in Nova Scotia Wednesday, Newfoundland Thursday and Friday, and winds up his campaigning next weekend in the Ontario cities of Fort William, Timmins, Kingston, London and Sarnia.

Agriculture Minister Greene, who escaped injury Friday when his plane crash-landed on takeoff at Woodstock, Ont., stays in Ontario until Monday night. He will cover southern cities before flying to the Lakehead Monday and back to Western Canada Tuesday.

Mr. Greene will be back in Ottawa Wednesday for the cabinet meeting and to launch a new book, The Liberal Tomorrow.

Eric Kierans, the only heavyweight in the race from outside the cabinet, spends his final full week of the campaign in Quebec.

in Lethbridge to Alberta delegates to the April 4-6 leadership convention in Ottawa, Mr. Sharp said he expects Justice Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau will lead the first ballot because of his glamor.

"But after that first ballot, it's going to be a wide-open race."

At a Calgary stop, Mr. Sharp told a news conference he will change the national parks policy if he wins the party leadership.

Meanwhile, Ontario Liberal Leader Robert Nixon announced his support for the finance minister, saying "his ability, diligence, honesty and integrity are beyond any question."

Also touring on the Prairies was External Affairs Minister Paul Martin, who told Lethbridge area delegates that parliamentary procedures are antiquated.

The 41-year-old party candidate said open debate hampers movement of bills through the Commons and time limits should be instituted.

In Calgary he told a news conference that he hopes to use retiring Prime Minister Pearson's diplomatic talent "in a very important area of external affairs" if he wins the party leadership.

At a Winnipeg news conference, Mr. Martin said he was not in favor of calling a general election before the fall of 1969.

"The people of Canada aren't anxious for an election right now. They want us to get down to work on the budget."

Seven of the 11 other leadership candidates were also campaigning.

Consumer Affairs Minister John Turner said in Winnipeg he would try to standardize education systems in Canada if he were to become prime minister. A standardized system would permit teachers to move from province to province without having to requalify to teach and would allow students to cross provincial boundaries without losing grades.

Mr. Turner also predicted that a federal election would be in low soon after a new party leader was chosen.

In Montreal, Trade Minister Robert Winters invited Montreal Mayor Jean Drapeau into a future federal cabinet if he becomes prime minister.

Mr. Drapeau declined.

In Toronto, Mr. Winters told 20 members of the provincial Liberal caucus that he will serve his term in the Commons even if he loses his bid for the leadership.

Leadership candidate Eric Kierans told Montreal university students that Canada should publicly declare that it opposes the war in Vietnam and the continuation of it by either side.

Individuals Urged to Fight for Human Rights

(CP) — Mr. Jus- law, of Quebec made a strong for pressure by private bodies id spread of legal human rights.

ke of the last speak- the opening session day Assembly for ights organized by and private organiza- a contribution to the International Year for Human Rights, set for 1968 by the General Assembly of the United Nations.

Mr. Justice Batshaw said one of the main obstacles to progress in human rights is failure by countries to ratify outstanding agreements which would guarantee rights.

"I suggest that we in the private sector might help to attain that objective by identifying and studying the reasons which have militated against international agreements being adopted and translated into the domestic legislation of member states of the United Nations.

"We might concern ourselves especially with the nine conventions which the (General) Assembly has singled out—slavery, genocide, rights of women, racial discrimination, all adopted by the UN; forced labor, discrimination in employment, equal pay for equal work, freedom of association, all adapted by the International Labor Organization; and the UNESCO convention on discrimination in education."

He suggested studies by qualified persons of the problems involved with solutions to be suggested.

Earlier, a Finnish lawyer told the 85 persons attending from 30 countries that while the years since the war showed a 100-percent improvement in the number of countries permitting women to vote, many nations are dragging their feet on other aspects of women's rights.

Mrs. Helvi Sipila, Finnish member of the UN Commission on the Status of Women and former commission chairman, was the only woman to speak Friday.

She said women first got the right to vote in New Zealand, 75 years ago. By the end of the First World War 20 countries had granted the right, by 1945 this had risen to 52 countries and today it was 117 countries.

But in many countries the rights of women to hold public office and exercise public functions had not yet been established. Other areas such as minimum marriage ages, education, equal pay and discrimination in employment had not been dealt with either.

As an accompaniment to today's session a small group of Montreal students planned to parade again outside the downtown building in which the meeting is being held.

Members of the Montreal Student Committee for Human Rights, said their two-day demonstration was in protest against what they call the "Russification of the Ukraine," one of the 15 republics in the Soviet Union.

Scientists Work Together

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Who invented the steam-engine? Most of us would say "Watt" — but before him there had to be Rivault, Porta, de Caus, Worcester, Savery, Desaguliers, Blakely, Papin and Huygens.

Did the American, Benjamin Franklin, discover the identity of lighting and electricity in June, 1752? So did the French scientist, D'Abilard, in a similar experiment — a month earlier.

Did Joseph Henry lay claim to the electric motor? But, simultaneously, the electric motor appeared in the U.S., England, France, Germany, Italy.

I dredged up some of these interesting and little-known parallels last month, as we were celebrating something called "National Brotherhood Week." It's sadly ironic that the greatest evidence of "brotherhood" in the 200 years since the Industrial Revolution has been in the field of science and technology, more than in religion, education, citizenship, or any other form of human association.

The "progress" we are proudest of is the result of collaboration among men of many nations. Although the instruments devised by science have often been used for conflict, the scientific enterprise itself has always rested on a broad basis of brotherhood and the international exchange of ideas, help and good will.

There were six inventors of the thermometer, and one of the telescope — all in different countries. There were four converging discoverers of sunspots in 1611: Galileo in Italy, Scheiner in Germany, Fabricius in Holland, and Harriott in England.

The important discovery of the cellular basis of both animal and vegetable tissue was made by Schwann, Remak, Turpin, Dumortier, Purkinje, Muller and Valentin. Anesthetics (both ether and nitrous oxide) were discovered in 1845 by no less than four men of different nationalities.

Two years later, in 1847, the law of conservation of energy was formulated by Joule, Thomson, Golding and Helmholtz. A method of liquefying gases was devised by Cailletet, Pictet, Wroblowski, and Olzewski in 1877. The laws of heredity were worked out by Mendel, De Vries, Correns and Tschermarck.

The fact that this scientific brotherhood has worked practically proves — more than all the idealistic sermons — that human beings are capable of advancing themselves only through active co-operation not through hate, envy, bigotry and aggression. Whatever is important in modern living has come from the efforts of men joined in a common quest: to seek greater knowledge and welfare for all mankind.

When next we switch on an electric light, gulp down a vitamin, take a child's temperature — let us recall some of the names to thank.

Hippies Salute Spring

NEW YORK (AP) — Police using nightsticks broke up a milling, shouting crowd of 3,000 hippies jammed into Grand Central Station today for a "yip-in" — a combination salute to spring and anti-war demonstration.

More than 30 persons were arrested, and several were injured.

The young people, who call themselves "Yippies"—members of the Youth International Party, an anti-war group—moved into the high-domed main waiting room at midnight Friday night proclaiming a "yip-in."

Singing and chanting "Hell, no, we won't go!" they marched back and forth bouncing balloons into the air and climbing atop the circular information booth in the centre of the main rotunda. Some were colorful costumes.

Police moved in after the youngsters started hurling firecrackers and other objects into the main waiting room. About 100 patrolmen were on hand. Aided by guards, they cleared the main exits and pushed the crowd out side doors.

Several of the long-haired youths were seen bleeding about the face.

A police spokesman said officers went into action after demonstrators climbed on the information booth canopy and ripped the hands off the clock.

Among those injured was Don McNeill, a staff member of the newspaper Village Voice. McNeill said police, in getting him out of the station, shoved him so hard that he slammed his head against a glass door and required five stitches at hospital.

Leaders of the Youth International Party include Paul Krassner, editor of The Realist; Jerry Rubin, former campus activist at Berkeley; Bob Fass, announcer for FM radio station WBAI and Ed Sanders, member of a folk-rock group and founder of the Peace Eye bookshop in Greenwich Village.

UN Rebuke to Israel Fails to Quiet Guns

Bandit Slays Man at Keene

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — Donald Comre of Keene, Ont., a service station attendant, was shot and killed Saturday by a holdup man who escaped with about $60.

Henry Knoll, owner of the service station about four miles east of Peterborough on Highway 7, returned from a shopping trip and was told by his nephew that a stranger had shot his assistant.

Provincial police are looking for a man wearing a red cap and a dark green jacket.

Firing Resumes Across Jordan

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The United Nations Security Council unanimously condemned Israel Sunday night for last week's attack on Arab guerrilla bases in Jordan. But Israel brushed aside the rebuke and insisted it acted in self defence.

The 15-nation council voted as the guns of Israel and Jordan opened up anew along the Jordan River frontier.

The council resolution also deplored "all violent incidents in violation" of the 1967 Arab-Israeli ceasefire. But Arab delegates challenged the U.S. view that those words applied to Arab terrorist raids into Israel.

The resolution further declared the council "would have to consider further and more effective steps as "envisaged" in the UN Charter to prevent future attacks—a hint at economic and military sanctions.

The council acted at its eighth meeting in four days on complaints filed by Jordan and Israel against each other.

The agreement to deplore "violent incidents" made possible passage of the resolution.

India, Pakistan and Senegal had submitted—a resolution Saturday night containing such a condemnation of Arab activities, they left out a provision U.S. Ambassador Arthur Goldberg had demanded—deploring "all violent incidents and other violations of the ceasefire.

Because of this, their resolution was sure of getting only seven of the nine votes necessary for adoption—those of the sponsors plus the Soviet Union, Hungary, Algeria and France.

India then suggested a compromise formula—deploring "all violent incidents in violation of the ceasefire."

Arabs insist that individual Palestine Arabs setting bombs in Israel do not violate the ceasefire because the council's ceasefire resolutions for last June's Arab-Israeli war are addressed not to individuals but to governments.

Troops Fight Across River

TEL AVIV (AP) — Israeli and Jordanian troops fought across the Jordan River ceasefire today for the second straight day after army patrols clashed with guerrilla infiltrators during the night, the army said here.

An army spokesman said positions on the Jordan bank began firing with machine-guns near umm-Tuzz Ford south of the Beisan Valley at noon.

Israeli forces returned the fire and the clash continued intermittently for 80 minutes, he added.

No Israeli casualties were reported. But Sunday night an Israeli soldier was killed and three were wounded in a gun battle south of the Sea of Galilee.

U.S. Marine Commandant Says Khe Sanh Is Safe

WASHINGTON (AP) — The new U.S. Marine Corps commandant says the North Vietnamese "can't force us out" of besieged Khe Sanh by bombarding its airstrip into uselessness and preventing its re-supply.

Gen. Leonard F. Chapman Jr. said: "We've got ample helicopter capability which doesn't need any airstrip and we also have an air-drop capability."

The 15,000 or more North Vietnamese troops threatening the marine-held bastion in northwestern South Vietnam have intensified their bombardment of Khe Sanh in recent days.

Also, there are reports of anti-aircraft artillery which could seriously threaten American planes and helicopters supplying and protecting the base.

Chapman, who took over leadership of the 300,000-man marine corps Jan. 1, said in an exclusive interview that if the North Vietnamese intend to assault Khe Sanh with infantry "they are going to have to hurry because the weather is running out on them."

Critics have argued Khe Sanh is not worth the blood and resources being spent to hold it.

Chapman disagreed, saying the position "is still the main infiltration routes.

"Of course, there is also the psychological aspect of the thing as it is now built up," the marine chief said, meaning that Khe Sanh has taken on a symbolic quality akin to Dien Bien Phu, the French outpost overrun at the end of the French-Indochina war.

On other points, Chapman also:

—Opposed any change in basic U.S. strategy in Vietnam.

—Rejected the idea of pulling U.S. forces back in defending population centres and bases and leaving the countryside unprotected.

—Conceded the Communist winter offensive registered shocks to the South Vietnamese cause.

Chapman said the U.S. can gain its objectives "if we just persevere."

He predicted "the net effect of the recent Tet offensive will be favorable to us" because of violence by the Communists against Vietnamese civilians.

Marines Assault North Vietnamese

SAIGON (CP) — U.S. marines and helicopter gunships swooped on a North Vietnamese platoon entrenched in bunkers near Khe Sanh Sunday and killed 21 of them in a fierce four-hour battle, a U.S. military spokesman said today.

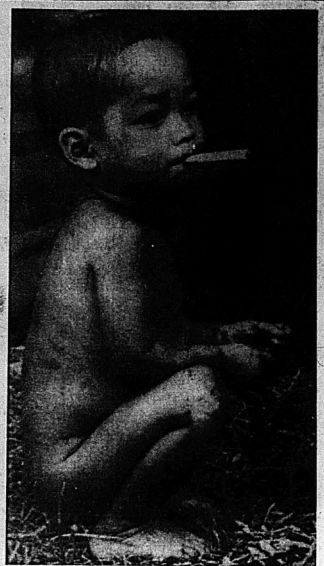
About 44 marines patrolling two miles north of Khe Sanh, the exposed marine base 420 miles from here, first sighted the North Vietnamese in the bunkers and immediately radioed up with a hail of small arms and automatic weapons fire.

The spokesman said the helicopters and artillery from nearby support bases were directed on to the North Vietnamese positions at the height of the battle. One of the helicopters was shot down by intense ground fire.

The four crew members were burned and were evacuated to a medical aid centre.

American casualties in the battle were reported as five dead and four wounded, two seriously.

North Vietnamese gunners shot down another U.S. marine helicopter near Khe Sanh Sunday but eased up in their shelling after two days of heavy bombardment.



Around Saigon, U.S. and South Vietnamese troops killed 44 Viet Cong soldiers in two clashes, bringing the insurgent death toll from Operation Quyet Thang, the biggest Southern operation of the war, to 1,261 in two weeks, spokesmen said. They said 11 American were killed and 70 wounded, bringing the total for the operation to 41 killed and 463 wounded.

Groundfire also hit a big CH-47 Kayleigh helicopter landing with cargo five miles southwest of Camp Carroll, the artillery base to the east that supports Khe Sanh. Although moderately damaged, the helicopter landed safely and the crew was uninjured, spokesmen said.

About 100 shells hit the Khe Sanh base Sunday, a sharp drop from the more than 600 rounds fired into the fortress on each of the two previous days.

In reply to the heavy shelling, U.S. B-52 bombers had dropped as much as 1,000 tons of explosives Saturday night and Sunday.

Irish Airliner Lost With 61 on Board

FISHGUARD, Wales (AP) — Bodies and bits of wreckage were found today near where an Irish airliner plunged spinning into the Irish Sea Sunday with 61 persons aboard. Hope has almost been abandoned for finding any survivors.

The British Air-Sea Rescue Centre, directing the search, said a frigate had picked up two bodies and sighted a third.

Wreckage was found about eight miles off Rosslare Point, Wexford, Ireland.

Lifeboats from Kilmore and Dunmore on the Irish coast put to sea and an Irish Army helicopter joined the search for more bodies and wreckage.

Royal Navy ships and Royal Air Force planes swept 1,900 square miles of the sea about 15 miles off Strubnel Head in southwest Wales — the last known position of the Aer Lingus turbo-prop Viscount before it crashed just before noon.

No Canadians were known to have been aboard the plane, on a scheduled flight from Cork to London. The passengers included nine Swiss who had been on a fishing vacation in southern Ireland.

Seconds before the crash, another Irish airliner in the area picked up a radio message, apparently from the ill-fated plane, that it was spinning at 1,000 feet.

The message, much of it lost in background noise, was:

"We moved . . . breaking up . . . that's better Who are you talking to? . . . 1,000 feet, spinning rapidly."

An air line spokesman said the weather at the time of the crash was normal.

Five Die In Toronto House Fire

TORONTO (CP) — Four young girls and a 24-year-old man died Saturday night when smoke from a kitchen fire spread through a west-end apartment. Firemen attributed the deaths to asphyxiation.

Dead are Lawrence Joseph De Baszige, his daughter Beverly Jocko, 4, nieces Sharon McGregor, 7, her sister Brenda, 5, and Melina Lamourdire, 2.

The McGregor children were the daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Larry McGregor, who were out at the time of the fire. Beverley was the daughter of Elizabeth Jocko. Mr. De Baszige's wife, who also was away.

Powell Predicts Youth Will Fight White Power

NEW YORK (AP) — Deposed Congressman Adam Clayton Powell predicts "civil war" by young people over the U.S. race situation.

Powell, back from an 18-month self-imposed exile in Bimini, the Bahamas, roared an emphatic "No!" when asked at a news conference Sunday if he envisaged a race war this summer.

But, Powell added, he believes that both white and black youths would join in battling the "white power" structure.

Farm Union Head Maintains Farmers at War with Industry

STRATHMORE, Alta. (CP) — Farmers are at war with the industrial segment of the economy and only "one big union" will protect them, says the president of the Ontario Farmers Union.

"We now are reaping the fruits of foreign control," Walter Miller of Tara, Ont., told a meeting Friday of two dozen district farmers, referring to the closure Feb. 29 by Canada and Dominion Sugar Co. Ltd. of a sugar beet factory in Chatham, Ont.

Concluding a six-stop swing through the provinces to carry the one-big-union message, Mr. Miller said the sugar beet factory in Taber, Alta., will be closed just as the Chatham factory.

He said the Chatham action by Canada and Dominion Sugar, a subsidiary of international financiers Tait and Lyle, put 100 workers and 90 farmers out of work.

He said the oligopoly, his description for giant industrial organizations, callously closed the Chatham plant despite a written agreement last year to keep it open for at least five years—"to bolster up a cane-sugar subsidiary in some other country."

Mr. Miller said:

"Whether farmers like it or not they are at war with the industrial segment of the economy.

"We could close up Canada Packers in Ontario tomorrow—but they'd merely push a button and send out west for supplies of meat which would be delivered by Alberta farmers.

"Are you willing to back the principle of one big union that will put a halt to their cash flow if we call upon you? Big business and the oligopolies can't stand an interruption in cash flow."

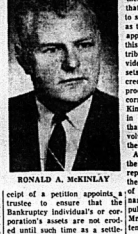
Accountants Hear President



Bankruptcy Act Not Punitive

The Bay of Quinte and the Kingston Chapter of the Society of Industrial Accountants recently held a joint meeting at Havelock Hotel in Havelock.

The meeting was conducted by Mr. Glyn Harry, B. Comm., R.I.A. Bursar of Loyalist College, Chairman of the Bay of Quinte Chapter who requested Mr. Ron Connelly, R.I.A. of Lake Ontario Cement Co., Program and Membership Director, to introduce the speaker, Ronald A. McKinlay, President of the Society of Industrial Accountants of Ontario.

Prior to commencing his address, Mr. McKinlay advised that at the present there were 1,200 Registered Industrial Accountants in Ontario and approximately 14,000 students on course.

Mr. McKinlay's Topic was "Bankruptcy." He stated that Bankruptcy comes under Federal Jurisdiction according to the British North America Act and that the Bankruptcy Act had been amended in 1966. He advised that the purpose of the Bankruptcy Act is not punitive, but rather it is to provide a method of dealing with persons or corporations which through some error in judgment or misfortune have become insolvent. He said that there were two types of Bankruptcy, ie., voluntary and involuntary (by petition of a creditor). The Superintendent of Bankruptcy in Ottawa on receipt of a petition appoints a trustee to ensure that the Bankruptcy legislation and the poration's assets are not eroded until such time as a settlement is arranged. At that time the Trustee is responsible for converting assets into cash and distributing it to Secured Creditors, partially secured creditors, and insured creditors.

RONALD A. McKINLAY

In some cases before a petition is made for winding up a company, a proposal can be arranged which allows the business to have a last chance to recover. The proposal usually involves arranging of additional cash for the business to be made available by interested parties. If the creditors approve the proposal, it then becomes binding on all parties. He stated that there were a couple of problems that the Bankruptcy Act needs to solve. Firstly, in some cases as the Trustee cannot act whilst appeals are being processed, this process can delay the distribution of assets and also provide a means of eroding of assets to the disadvantage of creditors; therefore, the appeal process should be shortened to correct this loophole. Mr. McKinlay pointed out, secondly, in many cases of Bankruptcy, that the same people are involved in the management of the firms.

At the present time although the names of such persons were reported, to the public it was in the public interest that the cloak of secrecy be removed and the names of such persons made public. At the end of his talk, Mr. McKinlay conducted an exercise and interesting question period.

Mr. Ken Wormald, C.A., B. Comm. of Mead Johnson Canada) thanked Mr. McKinlay.

Security Review Advocated

TORONTO (CP) — Transport Minister Paul Hellyer said Sunday he would review all of Canada's social security programs — including medical care insurance — if he wins the Liberal leadership race and becomes prime minister.

Interviewed by John Bassett, publisher of The Telegram, on the television program Direct, Mr. Hellyer said "a fresh look" is needed for Canada's welfare legislation.

He said the federal government's medical care insurance plan has already been postponed twice. The plan goes into effect July 1 with the federal and provincial governments sharing the costs. So far, only British Columbia and Saskatchewan have joined.

Mr. Hellyer said he would review the health insurance program with the idea of making it part of a comprehensive social security plan in Canada.

He said he sees External Affairs Minister Paul Martin and Justice Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau as his strongest opponents at the April 4-6 leadership convention in Ottawa.

Salvation Army Youth Council Attracts Large Area Delegation

About 140 delegates from all over the Mid-Ontario Division invaded Belleville this weekend for the annual youth council sponsored by the Salvation Army.

The delegates, most of them in the high school, college and career group, came from such cities and towns as Peterboro Falls, Bowmanville and Oshawa.

The weekend's activity began following registration, with a swim meet and bowling tournament on Saturday afternoon.

In the spirit of meeting new friends and having a good time, most of Saturday evening was spent in greeting leaders, singing and enjoying one's self.

During a Gospel Hootenanny held that evening Col. Leslie Pindred, Canada's Field Secretary, was introduced as the leader and main speaker for the councils.

The delegates participated in a sing song and were the subject of lots of entertainment supplied by cadets and officers of the Salvation Army. Presentation of prizes won in the bowling tournament also took place.

After a Salvation Army meeting-making and good will the delegates settled down for three sessions on Sunday, in the morning, afternoon and evening.

During the sessions the delegates took part in more music and listened to several speakers including Col. Pindred.

Army Soloists

Cadets Mr. and Mr. James Alexander were part of the entertainment that was seen by the youth council on Saturday evening during the gospel hootenanny.

Five Injured in Mishap

MADOC — Five persons were rushed to Peterborough Civic Hospital Saturday night after the automobile in which they were driving went out of control and rolled over.

Driver of the vehicle was Mrs. Sarah Mae Bell of Ottawa. Mrs. Bell, her husband Ronald and their children Rodney 6, Ronald 8 and Debra all received injuries although only Mr. Bell's was serious enough to have him remain in hospital overnight.

The accident occurred on Highway 37 two miles east of here. Damage to the vehicle was estimated at $2,000.

BIRTHS

HIRD — Lewis and Mary (nee Cole) of 648 Main St., Deseronto, are pleased to announce the birth of a son, Charles Leroy, weight 8 ozs., 13½ ozs., February 14th, at Kingston General Hospital. A brother for Mary and Judy.

IN MEMORIAM

BUTCHER — In loving memory of Bertha and Hubert Butcher, my dear parents, and my brother George.

Gone is just a gateway,
Our loved ones pass through,
On their way to the land,
Where we'll meet them anew—
And while we can't see,
What's on darker side,
We know that it's Father,
Who will be our guide.
All that He provides,
To those who believe,
And His kingdom is waiting,
For us to receive.

Sadly missed by Hazel and Vic; grandchildren and great grandchildren.

DELINE — In memory of a dear father and grandfather who passed away March 23, 1967.

We think of him in silence,
No eyes can see us weep,
But deep within our aching hearts,
His memory we keep.

—Ever remembered by son Art, daughter-in-law Vi and grandchildren.

LAKE — In loving memory of a dear parent, Alvela Lake who passed away March 23, 1967.

Just a thought of sweet remembrance,
Just a memory sad and true,
Just the love and sweet devotion,
Of a mother dear to you.

—Remembered by Spencer Lloyd and family.

VESTERFELT — In sad and loving memory of a dear daughter and sister Sadie Marie Fitzgerald who passed away March 25, 1957.

Time may heal the broken-hearted,
Years may erase the wound, less deep,
But it cannot still the longing,
For the loved one gone before.
Who shall say the grief is lessened,
Though the smile may hide the tear.

Memories keep the wound still open,
Despite the passing of the years.
—Always remembered and dearly missed by dad and sister Jessie.

Loyalist Must Share Its Confidences with Community: MP

The administration of Loyalist College today was told it must be ready to co-operate and share confidences with the rest of the community.

The caution, from Dr. R. T. Potter, MPP Quinte, intimated that a breakdown in communications between Loyalist and the community it serves would defeat college concepts.

The legislator's admonition also spread responsibility for the college's success to other local groups.

The administration "must be prepared to co-operate . . . with other groups, and these groups must be prepared to enjoy the confidence of each other," he warned. "If any group fails then the purpose for which these colleges are being constructed will have been defeated.

"We cannot afford to let any individual or any group defeat this program."

Dr. Potter's warning embraced:

Students — "Take every opportunity you can to participate in this program . . . "

Local Industry — "I must ask local industry to accept their responsibility and to come forward and advise us and our board as to what is needed in this community (in courses geared to local industrial needs)."

Citizens: They "must be prepared to come forward and offer advice and assistance of a constructive nature in order that we can get this college on its feet."

Finally, he reminded the administration: "Above all, I ask the administration to keep these channels of communication open at all times.

"They must remember they are the guiding hand in this program and theirs is the heaviest burden of all."

Dr. Potter looked to the college as a future core of community activity.

Among its other courses, he envisioned an academic training centre for the community's nurses.

He also hoped for a large auditorium — "badly needed in this area" — to accommodate local cultural and recreational pursuits.

"But," he emphasized, "for this to be successful then we must have total community activity . . . everybody must become involved."

Dr. Potter's remarks were made at a Student Council assembly in Centennial Secondary School auditorium where Loyalist College is temporarily quartered.

As he spoke, however, work crews already were clearing land on the Loyalist Campus site, on Belleville's western outskirts.

About four acres were being bulldozed of brush on Wallbridge Road for erection of a temporary building to house Loyalist students by next Fall.

Loyalist president J. K. Bradford also stressed the community concept as he thanked Dr. Potter for his speech.

"We're not an island," said the college head. "We don't exist alone. We're part of the community and we're working in co-operation not only with individuals, but groups and organizations in working out our community aims."

Scouting activities

1st CANNIFTON-CORBYVILLE

On Tuesday, March 12th, the Pack visited the plant of The Intelligencer and Radio Station CJBQ where they were given a tour of the radio station and printing plant of the newspaper.

This was another educational feature of the Boy Scout Program and was in keeping with the theme of 1968 "Fit for Citizenship".

Sixer Fred Cone of the Cub Pack thanked the members of the staff for their kindness and stated he was sure that all the boys were very interested. The Pack was accompanied by Asst. Cubmaster Mrs. E. Donaldson and Cub Instructor and helper Miss Sheryl Strolliker.

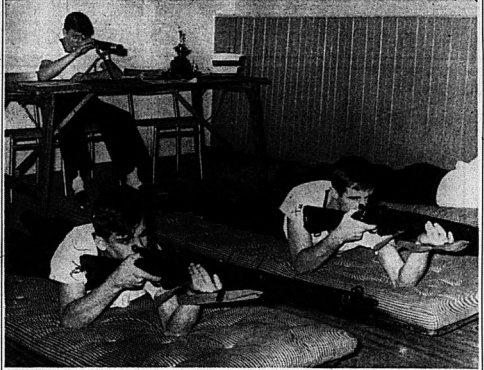
A number of boys of the Scout Troop spent the day at Camp Sagonaska, the Belleville District Camp near Thomasburg recently. They were driven to the parking area some distance from the camp and hiked the remainder of the way to the camp. Firelighting and cooking tests were practised and a number of the Scouts were successful in passing this outdoor test.

A feature of a Thursday meeting of the Cubs was a trip to number 2 fire station, where Capt. Bruce Diamond and his staff showed the Cubs through the station and explained the use of the various equipment. Cubs were allowed to mount the machines and ring the bell, as though they were on a regular fire call.

Cub Larry Kirk presented Capt. Diamond with a box of homemade candy from the Pack for his kindness. Cubmaster (Akela) Mrs. Reynolds, Asst. Cubmaster (Baloo) - Mrs. Donaldson and helper Miss Sheryl Strolliker accompanied the boys.

8 BELLEVILLE (COLLEGE HILL UNITED)

"Fit for Citizenship" was the theme of the party of Scouts, Cubs, Rovers, Scouters and Committeemen, numbering 50 persons that boarded a bus for Ottawa on Saturday, for a special day of "good Scouting".



Their destination was Ottawa, the nation's capital, where conducted tours were made of the Rockcliffe Airport, war museum, Parliament Buildings and RCMP Barracks. A special feature of the day's outing was a visit to Boy Scout National Headquarters building, which was opened especially for this Group.

Accompanying the group was Scoutmaster - Basil Kirby, Cubmaster G. A. Jenkinson of the Pack and Troop and Messrs. Driver, Wessels and Scott of the Group Committee.

Considerable singing and noise was noticed on the going trip, but the return was not quite so noisy, as the party was very tired after the long day. Arriving home in the late evening they were all quite ready to retire for a much needed rest.

It was felt by everyone that more such educational trips of value to our future citizens should be made at regular intervals. With this thought in mind heads will soon be together to plan another trip to some other area of interest.

Thanks are due all those parents and supporters who made the trip possible financially and through their efforts in other plans to make the day a success.

While L.C. Mark Grant watches the results of his comrades' shooting prowess, C.P.O. David McMaster and L.C. Jack Crozier take aim in the annual Marsden trophy shoot yesterday in the Belleville Armories. David's best score was a 92 of a possible 100 while Jack tallied 95 of a possible 100.

Illustrated Talk Given Camera Club

At the regular meeting of the Belleville Camera Club on Wednesday, members and guests were privileged to hear Mr. Nick Mika as guest speaker. Mr. Mika gave an illustrated talk on the relationship of photography and silk screening and their combined uses in industrial applications.

Mr. Mika was introduced by President Ed. Ineson and thanked by Mr. O. Singleman. As an expression of appreciation, Mr. Mika was presented with a complimentary membership in the Camera Club.

The results of the recent competition "Centennial Year" were announced with first and second prizes going to Mr. J. Lewis and third prize to Mr. D. Askett.

The evening concluded with refreshments.

Sea Cadets Post Fifth Win

For the fifth year in a row the Marsden Trophy emblematic of Small Bore rifle marksmanship supremacy for Eastern Ontario Sea Cadet Corps, remains in the possession of the Belleville Sea Cadets.

The trophy, first offered for competition in 1963 by Thomas Marsden, then Commanding Officer of Kingston's RCSCC, was taken by the Belleville cadets after they scored 369 points of a possible 400 points.

Ottawa's first team was not far behind with 363 points. Belleville's second team was third with 355 points.

Taking part in the shoot yesterday were teams from Belleville, Ottawa, Kingston, Trenton and Port Hope-Cobourg.

A team from Cornwall failed to make the competition as a storm en route forced them to turn back.

Chief Warns Parents About Swollen River

Youngsters of the community created quite a bit of police activity yesterday.

Two children, ages five and six, were picked up near the Moira river and returned home by police Sunday after a concerned citizen telephoned about them "hanging around" the swollen river.

Police Chief C. D. Crosby said this morning that the river and streams are dangerously swollen and that playing near them was quite dangerous, especially for the younger set.

Later on Sunday, police were called to Lambert Drive where a visiting youngster from Toronto had caught his hand in a muskrat trap.

David March, 12, of Scarborough who was visiting at Lambert Drive was playing outside when he came upon several of the traps. Not knowing what they were, he began to examine them and one closed on his hand.

Although the youngster was not seriously injured he is sure to have a very sore finger for the next couple of weeks. Once again the Belleville police chief warned parents to warn their children against such things as traps and the swollen spring waters.

The Big Breakup!

Slowly, warmer weather moves across the Quinte district, dissipating the dreariness of a long winter. Snow and ice soon will be just so much water under the bridge. The thaw has arrived and the breakup is underway . . . as underlined by this scene yesterday near Prince Edward County's popular Outlet beach.

Quinte Club Holds Carnival Rehearsal

About 50 people were on hand Saturday night at the Belleville arena for a "costume parade," a rehearsal by the Quinte figure-skating club.

The purpose of the "parade" was to look at costumes to coordinate the color of the show.

The program, the annual Club Carnival will be held next Friday and Saturday with a matinee performance on Saturday afternoon. The evening times will be 8.00 p.m. while the matinee will be seen at 1.30 p.m.

About 100 members of the club will be taking part in about 20 different acts.

The carnival was edited and produced by Osborne Cohen of Toronto and will feature a musically-accompanied story called "Celeste" as one of the highlights.

Generation Gap

How to achieve a state of rapport with students is a major problem of teachers — or for that matter of parents and adults generally.

Some teachers possess this quality of rapport, or empathy, through sheer force of personality. They are not only knowledgeable but also communicate their learning with authority. These are gifts that command the respect of students.

It helps too if teachers can embrace the interests of the young people. By doing so, and by exercising imagination, they can achieve far more impact than if they remain aloof and disinterested.

An example of good communications between teacher and students is afforded by Robert Nielsen of Peterborough who has just won the Ontario Educational Association — Globe and Mail Award of Merit.

Mr. Nielsen, who is 30 and a teacher at Sir Sandford Fleming Community College, commanded the attention of his students by playing the Beatles record Sgt. Pepper's Lonely Hearts Club Band. But this was not merely to provide a soporific. Here was a Beatles work with a message — and into the resulting discussion also went consideration of the Beatles contemporary interest in the religious and philosophical views of Indian mystics.

For all the ease with which communication is achieved today, the gulf between the generations is probably wider than at any time in the past. To a considerable extent the times in which we live have left the adult world behind and the young people in a state of confusion with no one to whom they can turn.

To successfully cope with modern life requires a judicious respect for the traditional and for history, along with awareness of the present and the swift changes that are taking place daily. More than ever one has to be in touch and in tune. And the more we can bridge the gulf between the generations the better it will be for all.

The Political Grind

Just as the show must go on and the mail get through, so must any politician worth his salt honor a commitment to supporters and constituents.

In these days of swift communications one would think delivering the goods as it were would be all that much easier. Well — yes and no, as Agriculture Minister Joe Greene and Justice Minister Pierre Trudeau have discovered in recent days.

Mr. Greene was unhurt when his chartered light aircraft failed to lift off a runway at Woodstock and nosed over in a field. The minister was unable to meet convention delegates in Goderich and Wingham but drove instead to Ontario street delegates there.

Mr. Trudeau meanwhile had to cancel a campaign visit to the Maritimes because of bad weather. However, this did not deter the Justice minister. He spoke by telephone to delegates in Halifax and followed this up with a closed circuit television appearance at an Ottawa studio linked with Halifax. Two-way communications enabled the delegates to question the candidate.

In politics — as in life — it is a case of "never say die."

Vietnam Strategy

The appointment of Gen. William Westmoreland, U.S. commander in Vietnam, to be Army chief of staff, seems a clear indication the Johnson administration is contemplating a change in tactics in the fight against the communists.

The suggestion is that Westmoreland, in being removed from the battlefield and given this high administrative post, is being "kicked upstairs."

He has been said the U.S. has been trying to fight the Viet Cong and North Vietnamese with second world war strategies and there has been plenty of evidence of that. Too often the Americans have permitted the communists to ambush, while at the other extreme the defence of a fixed base like Khe Sanh smacks too much of the old Maginot Line type of defence.

At this stage the U.S. forces in Vietnam need someone of the personality and tactical boldness of the late Gen. Douglas MacArthur of Korea fame, to regain the initiative and perhaps end the conflict there. True MacArthur made mistakes and there was the intervention of China, but it is going to take some new approach if there is to be a military conclusion in Vietnam.

Israeli Action

Jordan's Ruler Caught In Political Cross-Fire

By CARL MOLLINS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The Israelis appear to have switched to a hard line against Jordan's King Hussein since the lone Arab moderate on their borders seems unable or unwilling to negotiate peace terms.

Israeli leaders, who had been advised by Western governments against action that might topple Hussein, may even have decided Israel would be better off—at least no worse—if a more radical regime took over in Jordan.

Some Zionist sources interpret Israel's raid across the Jordan River Thursday as an attempt to help Hussein by cracking down on unruly guerrillas who pose as much threat to the king as to Israel.

In the immediate aftermath, Arab newspapers outside Jordan praised Hussein's Arab Legion for "defeating" the Israeli raiders. Public reactions in Arab capitals have been favorable to Hussein's renewed call for a summit session.

However, Palestine refugees in the Jordan Valley were already resentful about Hussein's failure to protect them. Perhaps significantly, Hussein did not appear in public Friday for a funeral in Amman for raid victims.

Although politically hostile Arab leaders publicly offer Hussein sympathy, the support is likely to prove as short-lived as the solidarity that followed the six-day war last June.

In any case, there is no sign that the Israeli raid came anywhere near crushing the Jordan guerrillas who have been driving Hussein while they harass Israel. In fact, three Arab guerrilla organizations showed signs of closing ranks after months of mutual suspicion following the raid.

Some Western diplomats believe any Israeli disruption inside Jordan—billed as an attempt to prop up Hussein or otherwise—is dangerous to the throne.

Israeli intelligence is thus unlikely to believe seriously that hitting the guerrillas could help Hussein. Nor is there any evidence that such action by Israel is likely to push Hussein into cracking down on the guerrillas or send him scurrying to a peace conference.

After failure of Hussein's hesitant attempts to curb the guerrillas and start peace talks through United Nations mediators, Israel may have lost interest in Hussein's future.

In fact, it might serve Israel's long-term interests if a radical regime sympathetic to Iraq and Syria took over from the king.

Then the alignments north of the Arabian Peninsula would be clearly polarized—the Arab countries backed by Russia, and Israel supported exclusively by the United States.

Such polarization, some Israelis feel, would bring an end to the equivocal U.S. position of supporting both Israel and Jordan with aid and arms. If peace is impossible, alignments in the Middle East at least would be clear-cut.

Land Value Taxation A Spur to Housing

Letter to
The Globe and Mail

When the demand for houses outstrips the supply it is only natural that the price of existing and new houses will increase along with the rents. Most "experts" immediately think negatively in terms of rent controls, lower down payments or of some confused government plan such as basic shelter exemption. These do not solve the problem of rising prices and usually add to it.

The Globe and Mail has added a powerful voice to those who for years have advocated a form of land value taxation as a means of reducing the price of land and getting more houses built.

A tax on land values, as created by the presence and activity of the community, forces underdeveloped (slumland) or idle land into production. Jobs are created and higher wages, through competition for labor, result. Almost all other taxes, including the income tax, discourage production at every level and result in higher prices for the finished product.

Let us hope more people become aware of the positive aspects of land value taxation.

Today In History

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

March 25, 1968 . . .

Bishops throughout Christendom assembled at Pisa to settle the problem of having two popes, one in Rome, the other in Avignon, France, and decided to repudiate both. 520 years ago —in 1409. More than 500 bishops gathered and solemnly voted Benedict XIII and Gregory XII deposed and excommunicated as heretics. They then chose the cardinal of Milan as Pope Alexander V, leaving three claimants to the position. Alexander's successor called the Council of Constanza in 1414 which ended the split.

1832—Poet Walt Whitman died in Camden, N.J., at the age of 73.

1936—A naval treaty was signed among the U.S., United Kingdom and France.

First World War

Fifty years ago today—in 1918—the German advance on the Western Front continued as the Germans captured Noyon, Guiscard, Ham and Liancourt and neared Marlcourt, enemy troops reached trenches they had held in 1916; British troops captured Es Salt in Palestine.

Second World War

Twenty-five years ago today—in 1943—Whirlwind fighter-bombers, escorted by Spitfires, raided freight yards at Abbeville, France; RAF Blenheim bombers attacked the railway junction at Katha and the airdrome at Meiktila in Burma; Allied bombers attacked Japanese bases at Amboina and Rabaul for the second time in a week.

Protein Biscuit From NZ Fights Hunger in Asia

Cornwall Standard - Freeholder

One can now eat his way, not only to better health, but also to greater knowledge, thanks to experiments which began in New Zealand about 18 months ago.

Through the combined efforts of the New Zealand Dairy Research Institute and the New Zealand Dairy Board, a biscuit made from milk protein is now being manufactured and distributed to Asian countries which are short of protein.

Scientists claim that two of these biscuits eaten daily will help increase the weight of the consumer and give children an alertness which will certainly assist in their learning ability.

The biscuits, which will run about 54,000 to the ton, cost about one-and-a-half cents each and in protein, one biscuit is equal to about a third of a pint of milk. The biscuits are fruit or chocolate flavored and can be fried as well as eaten as manufactured.

At present, only about 5,000 biscuits are made daily, but plans are under way to increase this output many times.

In order to assure distribution in needy regions, the Reserve Bank of New Zealand, a non-profit organization has been set up and will work through relief organizations such as the Red Cross and the Save the Children Fund.

In Lucknow, India, for example, the children will receive milk biscuits a day.

The New Zealand authorities feel depressed and famine stricken areas can never be eliminated until standards of education in them improve; also a great part in this battle and it is known that the lack of drive among many people is definitely caused by lack of protein.

The production of the new biscuit also is expected to aid New Zealand's huge dairy industry.

Man's Inhumanity to Man

Christian Science Monitor

In New York City a young boy was smothered in a cave-in because neighbors would not heed the anguished plea of a father, his own hair afire, to stop and help him.

Man's inhumanity to man is horrifying to contemplate. Such actions violate all of men's moral and spiritual instincts, to say nothing of their social obligations. These instances — and they are duplicated daily in a thousand different places in a thousand different ways — are crying evidence of how depraved men and society need to gain a stronger and higher sense of universal brotherhood.

Yet, we need not be unduly disheartened over the possibility that this will be done. A 90 cent survey, for example, found three-fourths of the teen-agers questioned replied that their strongest unfulfilled wish was to be able to help other people more. As one 15-year-old put it: A voice inside me, my conscience, makes me want to do this.

When we let it, this "still small voice" will speak to every one of us. And if we heed it, we shall quickly find countless ways in which to lend a much-needed helping hand.

All for the Sake of A Cow

From Senate Debates

Senator Harry Hays (L—Calgary): I must tell you a little story. In 1927 I travelled from Calgary north to a little town named Didsbury to buy a cow I had seen there. The sale was on the afternoon before New Year's, it was 30 below zero, and I purchased this cow at about 4 o'clock in the afternoon. The sale was held outside the barn and, as I say, it was around 20 below with a north wind blowing.

The cow cost me $210. I drove half-way back to Calgary, and I thought to myself that it was pretty cold, the fellow had my money, she was a fresh cow and it might be better to see if she had not milked her out.

So I drove all the way back and milked her out as she was standing in a corral near the barn. Neither she nor I was too happy about it. I got back home at 11 o'clock on New Year's eve and it took me three years to get in good with my wife again having been absent from home over New Year's eve for the sake of a cow.

Senator Hazen Argue (L—Regina): You must have had cold hands.

Mr. Hays: The next day the cow was put on official tests. She made 812 pounds of fat, or almost twice the amount we are speaking of now. The following year she produced 1,409 pounds of fat, or more than three times the amount we are speaking of today. Of course at that time it was a Canadian record; as a matter of fact, it was a world record.

I have milked 125 cows for 30 years — not myself, but I have retained more than a dozen over Christmas and New Year's Day because of the preceding celebrations. If we had a cow that could not give 400 pounds, she was a cull and we got just enough to pay her around. Any decent herd averages between 300 and 700 pounds of fat today. So, we are not speaking of a great quantity of butterfat and, although there are many people involved, somewhere along the line we had to make a decision as to whether we were going to go ahead with this and have economic unity, or whether we were going to have one- or two-cow farmers. I do not think that would be good for the farmer who is participating, or for the industry that we are trying to improve.

Cigarette Goes Mini

Peterborough Examiner

In one of the shrewdest moves a tobacco firm has ever made, a Canadian cigarette company, whose name will not be mentioned here, has come up with something dramatically new — a shorter cigarette. Instead of adding a centimetre, the company subtracted a quarter of an inch, thus creating North America's first "compact" cigarette.

The advantages are obvious. As they contain less tobacco, the cigarettes will sell for 20 and 30 cents less a carton. Smokers will get just as much and live a quarter of an inch longer on the average. Their lungs will be a quarter of an inch cleaner, their breathing a quarter of an inch easier, their hearts a quarter of an inch stronger. Hurrey.

News of the new cigarette comes at a time when a Lindsay survey reveals that some 35 per cent of Grade 8 students are smokers — and that there are Grade 4 pupils who smoke four or five packages a week.

LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FILES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

March 25, 1948.

Members of the Prince Edward and Hastings Law Association held a dinner meeting at the Queen's Hotel, when plans for the forthcoming bar association convention for District No. 6 were discussed. President of the local law association Alan B. Sprague presided over the meeting which was attended by solicitors from Belleville, Trenton, Cobourg, Picton, Stirling and Madoc.

Mrs. W. T. Nugent, 211 George St., left by plane to visit her daughter, Mrs. B. D. Joynt, of Winnipeg. Mrs. Nugent will be returning home on April 20.

30 YEARS AGO

Hatless Citizen

Hamilton Spectator

The other afternoon in New York a number of men were asked why they didn't wear a hat on a cold day. One of the men, Jack P. Falco, of Brooklyn, gave the sort of answer we're going to give the next time.

"I sympathize with the plight of the hat industry, but I never could find a hat that looked good on me so I gave up. I'm not outdoors long enough to feel the cold. How about those girls bundled up with hats, scarves and earmuffs? If they're so cold why do they wear miniskirts?"

World's Most Powerful Bankers Talk Shop Monthly at Basel

BASEL (AP) — Once a month the men who control three quarters of the world's money supply turn up in this small Swiss industrial city for a quiet talk on everybody's favorite commodity.

The big money men are the representatives of 32 central banks in the world's wealthiest countries.

Sir Leslie O'Brien, governor of the Bank of England, is a regular. So is Karl Blessing of the West German Bundesbank. Gido Carli, head of the powerful Italian central bank, comes often.

At least once a year there is an appearance by William Mc Chesney Martin, chairman of the U.S. Federal Reserve Board.

With little publicity they handle the currency swaps and huge loans designed sometimes in vain—to keep a country's money from having to be devalued. They handled the international gold pool that ceased to exist after a meeting of bankers in Washington this week.

These matters of high finance are only just a shuffling of billions among bankers. What ever decisions these men make affect everybody.

Since the pound had to be devalued, despite their efforts, Britons are paying more for anything that comes from abroad.

The excuse for these meetings is a little known organization called the Bank for International Settlements. It was founded in 1930 to handle some of the financial arrangements that arose out of the First World War. Its management is proud that both sides in the Second World War carefully respected the bank's immunity and that some members from Communist Eastern Europe still show up for annual meetings.

Though it does not issue money itself, BIS traded until this week on the London gold market to keep the price stable. It holds deposits for national governments, makes quick loans to them to ward off panic or squelch speculation, and sets up the swap arrangements by which the country can get the temporary use of another's currency in large quantities.

In its last full year of operation the total business of BIS reached a record $26,000,000,000. It made a tidy $15,400,000 for its stockholders, largely the central banks of member countries.

Formal meetings of the BIS board are held on the second Monday of every month except July and August. They take place at the organization's headquarters, a rather grimy fivestorey building.

But the most important talks are held during the weekends when the bankers arrive early and gather in groups at their hotels.

These meetings of the "Basel Club" have grown in importance since the mid-1950s. They played a big part in getting rid of the currency controls that isolated West European countries from one another for some years after the Second World War.

Foreign reporters rarely appeared in Basel. Those who did were simply refused information, or were told that the bankers could not really make any decisions because they did not represent their governments.

Things have changed in recent months, with the monetary situation one of the centres of world attention. At their last meeting the club issued a Sunday night statement so that it could appear in Monday morning papers and have a maximum effect in dampening speculation on the gold market. It was not especially successful —the central bankers suffer from a credibility gap, as do politicians.

As might be expected, they are a conservative lot. They don t like speculators. They don't like evaluations. They don't like the idea of changing the price of gold, unchanged at $35 for 34 years.

They are wary of the plan—pushed hard by the United States—to create a new kind of international money, sometimes called "paper gold." But they may find themselves having to deal with it.

Officially this form of money will be known as Special Drawing Rights on the International Monetary Fund. It would provide funds to keep international trade and investment flowing when the rest of the world begins to feel the effect of Presi dent Johnson's program for reducing the flow of U.S. dollars abroad.

To avoid irritating the conservatives, the more adventurous economics don't talk much about the day they hope to see when the SDRs are transformed into an internationally-controlled money that would largely take over the role of gold. But even William Mc Chesney Martin, the biggest of the big money men, has spoken of gold as "that barbarous metal." If the day ever comes when it is replaced, the "Basel Club" will have a new and even more important role in managing the world's supply of money.

Vernon Marquez, N.E. President To Visit City

Vernon O. Marquez, president of Northern Electric Company Ltd., will be a visitor in the city next week when he is scheduled to speak at the annual "management night" program of the Quinte Chapter of Industrial Management Clubs of Canada.

The local chapter with its 115 members throughout the Quinte district will hold its dinner meeting at the Knights of Columbus Hall on March 26. Mr. Marquez will speak on the topic "Adaptability to Change."

Born in Trinidad, Mr. Marquez joined Northern Electric in 1939 as switchboard wiring operator. He became general manager, sales division in 1957, was named vice president in 1960, executive vice president and director in 1963 and has been president of the company since March 1967.

May Extend Classes for Retraining

Classes for retraining rural manpower could be extended this year to Napanee and Cloyne, at the northern tip of the Quinte deficit.

However, the projects hinge on the availability of staff and classroom facilities, says E. J. Buckley, director of the district Adult Education Centre in Belleville.

The classes would mainly concentrate on academic upgrading for farmers and other rural wage-earners, dislocated by the farm-technology revolution.

Currently, 167 farmers from across the Quinte region are attending courses in Belleville to improve their academic and technical knowledge. Similar classes are also held at Bancroft.

The courses are sponsored by ARDA.

Academic upgrading classes were held at Cloyne last year but various delays prevented the course being held this year said Mr. Buckley.

Recently, Paul Anderson, superintendent of Napanee-area elementary schools, told an ARDA meeting of farmers at Tamworth that officials would assess the area's interest in classes during the summer months.

The survey will be conducted by Ontario government agricultural representative G. M. Mills and ARDA counsellor Robert Deyo.

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP) — The Toronto stock market continued at last week's sluggish pace in mid-morning activity today. Price changes were mostly small and mixed and volume was extremely light.

Golds posted some fractional gains. Kerr Addison edged up ¼ to 16¾ and Madsen Red Lake 10 cents to 1.90.

In the industrial list, Pembina Pipe Line and Zellers gained ½ each to 17½ and 43½.

Dome Pete advanced 1¾ to 47¼. Campbell Chibougamau Mines was off 20 cents to 8.55.

On index, industrials slipped .13 to 144.79 and base metals .22 to 97.39. Oils rose .53 to 166.62 and golds .64 to 213.24.

Volume by 11 a.m. was 437,000 shares compared with 489,000 at the same time Friday.

Huskilson Quits Party Over Choice

TRENTON — Northumberland area Liberals are having internal party problems less than two weeks away from selection of a national leader.

At the centre of the controversy is Wilfred Huskilson, the Cobourg town councillor who has resigned as president of the provincial riding association.

William Menzies, R. R. 3, Trenton, has been appointed "pro tem" president while the riding executive tries to ask Mr. Huskilson to reconsider his resignation.

Mr. Huskilson tore up his party membership card at the first meeting of the Federal Northumberland and Durham Liberal Riding Association Feb. 28.

He claimed he was not chosen among the six delegates to the April 6-14 Leadership Convention because he would not support Pierre Elliott Trudeau as a replacement for retiring Liberal leader Lester Pearson.

At that time, the Association of the newly-created Federal riding showed indications of support for the Minister of Justice.

Mr. Huskilson said today he would be issuing a public statement on his position tomorrow.

Nerve Gas Kills 6,400 Utah Sheep

SKULL VALLEY, Utah (AP) — An investigation to determine what killed about 6,400 sheep in this desolate, semi-arid western Utah valley continued today as ranchers moved into the pastures to shoot other suffering sheep.

In the last 10 days sheep began dying by the thousands and several qualified veterinarians have linked their deaths to nerve gas testing at the U.S. Army's Dugway Proving Ground, adjacent to the rangeland.

Dr. Mar Pawcett, one of two veterinarians called to the Hatch Ranch—which has retained more than 90 per cent of the loss—said: "I have no doubts at all that organic phosphate poisoning from nerve gas testing killed the sheep."

He said he based this on lab tests at Utah State University and on private study.

The Dugway commander, Col. James H. Watts, said the centre's scientific director, Dr. Mortimer A. Rothenberg, said the organic phosphate compound is also found in common pesticides and insecticides.

People, cattle, horses, dogs and other animals in the area have not been affected.

STOREY — HUBBARD

On March 16, 1968, at Bridge St. United Church, Janis Lynne, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Frank Hubbard, Belleville, was united in marriage to Richard Douglas Storey, Scarborough, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Edward Storey, Belleville. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Harry M. Davis, and the soloist, Miss Roslyn Robertson, was accompanied on the organ by S. Alec Gordon.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a full-length sheath dress of white Guipure lace and satin, with matching train attached at the waist. Her veil was shoulder length, held in place by a white floral headpiece. She also wore an heirloom necklace of tiny mother-of-pearls and emeralds, once worn by her great-grandmother. Her bouquet was a cascade of white commercial 'mums.

The maid of honor was Miss Judy Howarth, Toronto, who wore a floor-length mulberry colored crepe sheath with matching headpiece. She carried a bouquet of tiny white 'mums. Miss Wendy Hubbard, sister of the bride, was junior bridesmaid, dressed similarly to the maid of honor, but in shocking pink. She also carried a bouquet of tiny white 'mums.

David Storey, brother of the bridegroom, was his attendant. Ushers were Wayne Gough, Oshawa, and Stephen Hubbard, brother of the bride.

The bride's mother received guests at the reception at Club Canara, dressed in a sky blue linen sheath with matching hat, furs and accessories. The bridegroom's mother assisted, wearing a black and white two-piece double knit suit with black accessories. Both mothers wore corsages of Talisman roses.

For her wedding trip to northern Ontario, the bride wore a white brocaded suit with an apple green top coat and white hat. Her accessories were midnight blue patent leather and she wore a corsage of Talisman roses.

SIMONE — DAY

Jacquelyn Alice, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Percy Day, Belleville, and James Anthony Simone, Toronto, son of Dominic Simone, Toronto, and Mrs. George Endon, Beaverton, were married in St. John's United Church, Agincourt, March 9, 1968.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a short white organza over taffeta dress with white lace coat. Her headdress was a short veil and she carried a bouquet of red roses and white 'mums.

Miss Janice Day, the bride's sister, was her attendant, wearing a short, peacock blue chiffon dress and carrying yellow roses and 'mums.

Thomas Brown attended the bridegroom and Ronald Adair and Andrew Simone ushered the guests.

Following a reception at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Boutilier, Scarborough, the couple left on a wedding trip to the United States. On their return they will live at 233 Redpath Ave., Toronto 12.

Discrimination Against Women Is Discussed

MONTREAL CP — Public opinion should be mobilized to force politicians to take steps to end discrimination against women, a human rights meeting was told Saturday.

Sir Hugh Wooding, chief justice of the Court of Appeal of Trinidad and Tobago, said another means might be intervention in some areas by a United Nations commission.

He was addressing about 85 experts and observers from around the world at a meeting on human rights organized by individuals and private organizations.

For many years he had been concerned about the plight of destitute widows, unmarried mothers and illegitimate children in his part of the world.

Many times the law seemed to mitigate against widows, with distant relatives suddenly appearing to claim most of an inheritance.

"We've got to stamp out the stigma against illegitimate children," he said. "Will we never stop visiting the sins of the father on the child?"

Manouchehr Ganji, of Iran, said all member states of the United Nations are legally bound to guarantee equal rights to women.

"This is a clear obligation," he said. "Sex is shown as one of the grounds on which discrimination is forbidden."

Woman Novelist Dies at 72

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. CP — Funeral services will be held here today for novelist Margaret Iris Duley who died Friday after a long illness. She was 72.

Miss Duley was considered Newfoundland's first significantly successful woman novelist because of four novels she wrote in the 1930s and 1940s—all with Newfoundland settings.

They were The Eyes of The Gull, Cold Pastoral, Highways to Valour and Novelty on Earth.

Highways to Valour was selected by Donald G. Finch, founder of the Canadian Literature club, as the best Canadian fiction of 1941.

The suit, second from right, available in either pure wool or wool mixture fabrics, has a gently shaped jacket with inset sleeves and white pique cuffs; the skirt is slim. The dress on the right featuring a rolled collar is in an all wool fabric.

Missionary From Brazil To Speak

TWEED — Sister Francesca of the Sisters of St. Joseph, Peterborough, has returned to the Peterborough area from Brazil for a holiday.

She is one of five Sisters staffing a 15-bed hospital in the jungle. Built by the Brazilian government and supported by the Canadian people, it has one doctor and cares for 12,000 out-patients a year. Six local nursing assistants are being trained and a laboratory, X-ray facilities and laundry are being added.

Sister Francesca is the granddaughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Narcisse Lajoie and was superintendent of Nurses at St. Joseph's Hospital, Peterborough, before taking her present position.

She will speak in St. Carthagh's Hall, Tweed, March 31, at a potluck supper sponsored by the Catholic Women's League.

Television Reviewer Appointed

MONTREAL CP — Veteran television reviewer Pat Pearce adjusted her distinctive eyepatch — a turquoise one, to match her jersey and her slippers — and shrugged unsmilingly.

"How do I feel about being appointed to the commission? "Ask me that six months from now. Right now I'm packing to go on a Caribbean holiday."

Patricia Pearce Fisher, who pioneered TV criticism 15 years ago with a column in the now defunct Montreal Herald, and who now writes broadcasting reviews for the Montreal Star, was appointed Friday as one of five full-time members on the new Canadian Radio-Television Commission.

The eyepatch, she says, is the result of a mysterious tonsil infection which developed suddenly 20 years ago and cost her the sight of her left eye.

For Belfast - born Mrs. Pearce, the new appointment will mean a lapse in one of Canada's longest and most unusual journalistic careers. Her cool, analytic approach to a medium often called "second-rate" has been an important influence on radio and TV producers since Canadian television began in 1952.

"The people who put down television as 'second-rate' are often the very ones who never watch it," the grandmother of four children said in an interview.

Mrs. Pearce worked as a secretary and then as a feature writer on London's Fleet Street for several years before emigrating to Canada with a baby daughter and $2.50 in her pocket in 1940. She had just been divorced.

The daughter now is the mother of four, which makes Mrs. Pearce something of an authority on children's programs.

For seven years she worked as secretary to S. Morzan Powell, then The Star's literary editor and acknowledged prince of Montreal critics.

In 1947 she went to The Herald and covered "everything — theatre, radio, films, nightclubs — the lot."

Her interest in reviewing television started at The Herald where she began writing a regular radio-TV column in 1953.

She moved back to The Star in 1957 and has been there ever since, acting as "a referee between the producer, the sponsor and the public."

Wife of Israel's Premier Speaker at Awards Night

MONTREAL CP — Miriam Eshkol, wife of Israel's premier, gave notice Sunday the Jewish people will not be driven from their homeland.

She spoke to 1,600 guests gathered to honor Mrs. Samuel Bronfman, wife of the president of Distillers Corp.-Seagrams Ltd. and herself a prominent worker for Jewish and charitable causes, Mrs. Bronfman was president with the Eleanor Roosevelt Humanities Award by the World Israel Bond Organization.

Mrs. Eshkol said Jewish people have been fighting in Israel for 50 years to build a nation and homeland where Jews can live in peace.

"We have been accused of having brought catastrophe for our surrounding neighbors," she said.

"I beg you to go to Israel and see for yourself the catastrophe we have caused. We have brought water to their homes, and light. We have cultivated a desert and made it grow. We have given them work — yes, it has been quite a catastrophe.'

Organizers said more than $1,500,000 was collected for Israel in less than 20 minutes as Montreal's Jewish population rallied to the call for help.

The record amount surpassed the $1,000,000 collected in 45 minutes last spring, when David Ben Gurion, Israel's former prime minister, came to Montreal.

19-year-Old Playing the Field Is Neither Unethical Nor Dishonest

Dear Doris: Our daughter, 19, has been going with a fellow for two years. Recently Betty suggested that they quit going together for a three - week period and let them try going out with somebody else, and think things over, as she has been thinking that things haven't been going too well for a while now.

Bob didn't seem to realize that things weren't too good and didn't want to do this. However, he did agree to it. As soon as the three-week period started a friend asked Betty to go out, and she went. They have been going out a great deal ever since.

They seem to have become fond of each other regardless of whether this is the right thing to do or not. Bob has always considered the boy a good friend of his.

What I would like to know is — do you think, as we do, that this is an unethical and dishonorable thing to do? Bob is extremely upset about the whole thing and is getting rather desperate. — Disapproving.

Dear Disapproving: Would you prefer a solid commitment from Betty to marry a boy she started going with at 17 — when she is obviously unsure of herself? And if your answer to that question is "No", are you thinking that Betty must not go out with anyone Bob knows, anyway? I fail to see any dishonor about what Betty is doing.

Dear Doris: After 10 year. in the auto industry I've had about all I want of it. I have alway had a desire to be an auctioneer since I was a kid but never followed it up.

Now I'm at a loss as to how to go about it. I went to the public library but all I could find was a book called "Going, Going, Gone!", which is a history of auctioneering but doesn't help me at all in getting into this field.

I would like to do it before I'm too old to make a change and find myself ensnared to the life of an auto worker for life. I'm presently 33 years of age and feel I have the voice and the flare for showmanship required to make a success in this field.

Dear Sold: The two vocations are poles apart, and that's for sure. But your knowledge of mechanics will be useful whatever you end up doing.

Did you know that there are some auto occupations written up in concise, readable form, by The Guidance Centre in Toronto? The articles are called occupational monographs; sections include history and nature of the work, qualifications, preparation, employment, remuneration, how to get started, and other helpful ideas.

I looked through the list and found that one has been done on Auctioneering. Write Guidance Centre, 371 Bloor St. West, Toronto 5, Ontario, and ask for it, enclosing 15 cents.

Hours Of Free Service Given By Babysitting Exchange

TORONTO (CP) — Mrs. Norman Selby, mother of two, used 108 hours of babysitting services in 1967 and it didn't cost her a cent.

If she had had to pay, it would have cost her more than $100.

The sitters were mature, adult women like herself, giving her confidence the children would be cared for properly.

Mrs. Selby is a member of a suburban Toronto babysitting exchange, a group of mothers who sit for each other.

The mothers earn a time credit for each hour of sitting and double time after midnight on weekdays and 1 a.m. on weekends. No one is allowed to accumulate more than 25 hours of credit or to owe more than 25 hours of service.

Mrs. Selby said: "When we need a sitter, we call the bookkeeper for the month and she gives us the names of the members who owe the most hours. Then it is up to us to call them until we find one who is available."

Another mother of two, Mrs. Donald Hall, said: "The most wonderful thing is having a reliable adult to watch the children.

"A few weeks ago my eight-year-old became ill while we were out and the sitter handled everything well. A teen-ager might have panicked."

Mrs. Hall said the club also eliminates the problem of last-minute cancellations by teen-agers who decide they should rather go to a party.

"There is no sense joining the club if your husband is not willing to co-operate," said Mrs. Hall. "Some men just don't like their wives going out to baby-sit on Saturday night."

For Mrs. Selby it was different. "My husband can watch the hockey game and I'm able to watch a movie on television. It works out very well."

The club has discovered that February, March, October and November are the busiest babysitting months.

Tuesday nights and weekends are busiest during the week. Tuesday is a busy night for bowling.

HITS CHURCH

JOHANNESBURG (AP) — Rev. Mangalleo P. Mkhatshwa, an African missionary, has said the Roman Catholic Church in South Africa will remain a "foreign club" unless it gives more responsibility to African clergy. "If we mean to be honest, some European priests should serve under black clergy — a daring thought, I know," he wrote in the independent Catholic lay publication, Challenge.

Ann Landers

Mother Has Intense Hatred for Daughter

DEAR ANN LANDERS: These past four years have been like a nightmare. I'm as if I have been waiting for a bomb to explode. I don't believe you can help me but it will ease my mind to know I asked for your help.

From the day our daughter was born I have felt nothing but contempt for her. Every day it gets worse. I treat her like dirt, but I just can't help it.

ANN LANDERS

We have a son but I have no problem with him. He is a sweet youngster and well-behaved. I rarely have to raise my voice at the boy, but I am constantly shrieking at the girl. She is becoming aware of my hatred and is terrified of me, too. Can you help me before something horrible happens? — COUNTDOWN MOTHER.

* * *

DEAR MOTHER: You are projecting your hatred for someone else onto this unfortunate child. Perhaps it has to do with your husband or your feelings toward your own mother.

You are a very sick woman. Ask your physician to recommend a psychiatrist at once. In fact, ask him to recommend two psychiatrists. A child who has been the object of her mother's intense hatred for four years in all probability needs help too.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband's mother is a great looking gal, has a neat figure and is only 15 years older than I am. Eunice and I could easily pass for sisters. She has laughingly described her husband (number three and 18 years her senior) as "dead from the neck both ways."

Eunice has a good job in the office of a warehouse and is popular with everyone. In fact, she is too popular. This is the problem. Her husband phoned us twice last week and again tonight looking for her. My husband said to me, "If Mom is using us as an alibi she should tip us off." I looked at him in amazement and said, "I wouldn't play that kind of game, even for your mother."

We got into an argument about "loyalty" and he insists his mother is an unusually vital woman, that her husband is unquestionably impotent and there is nothing immoral about "penetrating" her so she can have a decent life.

May we hear from you? — STILL FIGHTING .

DEAR STILL: This is a decent life? Sorry, I don't buy it. If your husband wants to "protect" Eunice, that's up to him, but you are under no obligation to do so. The next time Eunice's husband calls, say "Just a minute," then hand the phone to your husband.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Hank and I have been married 15 years. We have six lovely children. Hank used to wear his wedding ring all the time — until three months ago. When I found it in a bureau drawer I asked him why he wasn't wearing it anymore. He said the foreman at the shop told him that rings sometimes cause accidents and he should not wear one.

When I suggested that he carry the ring in his pocket to remind him that he is married, he said, "You must be crazy." Do you think maybe he has a girl at work? — VERY WORRIED.

* * *

DEAR VERY: A man with six kids doesn't need to carry his wedding ring in his pocket to remind him he is married. The grocery bills and shoe bills are reminders enough. Rings can be dangerous to a man who is working on a machine. Accept his word and stop nagging.

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Girl: "My mother isn't speaking to me. She's mad because I blew up and yelled at her this morning. I don't know why I act like that. Now she won't have anything to do with me."

Mother: I realize you were very upset this morning and I know you didn't mean all the things you said. Would you like to talk things over now?"

The teen years are often turbulent ones and the young may air their feelings strongly. Don't let these outbursts alienate you. This is the age when your daughter needs your liking and respect.

Cooked Cereal Lesson

By MARY MOORE

If you were the amateur nurse in charge of your sick mother and the doctor said she should be on a soft diet would you know what to do? Would you know how to make an appetizing bowl of cream of wheat or oatmeal porridge? Teen - agers! Would you know how to make porridge for the family for breakfast if Mum was sick?

Today's cooking lesson covers four cooked cereals: rolled oats, cream of wheat, cornmeal and cracked whole wheat or mixed grain cereals. (Pity me: I have eaten two different kinds of hot cereals for two mornings in a row. It is no way to lose weight but they tasted wonderful!)

MONDAY

Dinner Menu

Sausage Rolls; Chili Sauce; Scalloped Tomatoes; Whipped Turnip with Potato; Celery and Dill Spears; Prune Whip with Custard Sauce; Tea.

HOT ROLLED OATS CEREAL ("porridge" — 4 servings) (This is not the quick package method. Make night before.)

1 cup quick-cooking rolled oats
1 teaspoon salt
2½ cups boiling water

In top of double boiler over direct heat boil water with salt. Stir in oats with wooden spoon until boiling. Transfer to bottom of double boiler containing 1" boiling water. Cover and cook 1 or 2 hours, stirring twice. Best made the night before. To reheat for breakfast replace water in bottom of double boiler with hot, stir cereal well and heat through.

HOT CREAM OF WHEAT (3 servings)

½ cup cream of wheat
½ teaspoon salt
2¼ cups boiling water

In top of double boiler over direct heat boil water with salt and slowly stir in cream of wheat until boiling. Transfer to top of double boiler containing boiling water, cover and cook ¾ hour. If made at night for breakfast next morning cover top surface of cereal with thin film of water (¼"). Reheat as above for Rolled Oats.

HOT CORNMEAL CEREAL (3 servings)

½ cup cornmeal
½ teaspoon salt
3 cups boiling water

In top of double boiler over direct heat boil water with salt and slowly stir in cornmeal until boiling. Transfer to bottom of double boiler containing 1" boiling water and cook 2 hours stirring 2 or 3 times. If made at night cover surface with thin film (¼") water to prevent crust forming overnight.

In morning stir well and heat through in double boiler.

CRACKED WHEAT OR MIXED CRACKED WHOLE GRAIN CEREALS (serves 3) (Make night before)

¾ cup cracked whole wheat or mixed whole grain cereal
¾ teaspoon salt
2¼ cups boiling water.

In top of double boiler over direct heat boil water with salt. Stir in cereal until boiling. Transfer to bottom of double boiler containing 1½" boiling water. Cover and cook 3 hours, stirring 2 or 3 times. Cover surface with ¼ cup water to prevent crust forming overnight. In morning replace water in bottom of double boiler with boiling water, stir cereal well and heat through before serving.

Serve any of the above with light brown sugar and 10 per cent cereal cream.

Pearson Calls Anti-war Demonstrators Unfair

HAMILTON (CP) — Prime Minister Pearson said Saturday night he believes there is less chance now of reaching a negotiated settlement in the Vietnam war than there was a few months ago.

"We are not going to get peace in Vietnam by war whooping and dancing around banners bearing hostile slogans that condemn the United States for all the cruelties and wrongs in the world today, which is a travesty of justice and truth," Mr. Pearson told the Canadian Club of Hamilton in one of his last major speeches as prime minister.

Earlier, he walked through a dozen anti-Vietnam pickets outside McMaster University.

* * *

"We do not advance the cause of peace by supporting a double standard of total condemnation of our neighbor and our friend and sympathetic condonation of the crimes of its enemies which are not our friends.

"But to concentrate all blame on our neighbor for Vietnam and condemn her as the major, or, as some say, the sole aggressor is foolish and dangerous."

The U.S. stands a greater risk of rebuff of any peace initiative if it may undertake because of political and military developments in recent weeks, the prime minister said.

To end the war "will require a greater risk for peace than the United States has yet found it wise or possible to take.

"But whatever chance there is should be taken. Whatever risk there is, is less than that of continuing this war which is becoming more awful and more dangerous every day."

Mr. Pearson said one course for peace might be for the U.S. to halt all bombing and military action in Vietnam and seek peace talks, or to turn the Vietnam problem formally over to the United Nations.

The alternatives would be to allow U.S. military power to be used "without limitation of kind or purpose," which would likely cause the war to spread beyond the borders of Vietnam, he said.

Another alternative would be to continue a "war of attrition against not only the Communist foe but also, tragically, against the peaceful population.

"It would be a Passchendale of Southeast Asia, with the generals of 1968 demanding more and more men and material to be swallowed up in the jungles of Asia as they were in the mud and gore of Flanders in 1917 by the orders of the well-turned-out generals of the day."

Mr. Pearson also criticized those in Canada who advocated banning the sale of defence materials to the U.S. If such a move would end the war, then it would be worth the economical and political price Canada would have to pay, he said.

"Such a move would not shorten the war by one hour but would end friendly relations with our neighbor. It would mean the end of continental defence co-operation and the end of Canadian participation in Atlantic collective security."

Briton Says U.S. Withdrawal Would Leave India to Reds

LONDON (AP) — "If the Americans pull out of Vietnam the Communists will take over the whole of Southeast Asia—and Burma, India, right up to the Caspian Sea would go."

The words are those of Field Marshal Sir Gerald Templer, commander of British troops who beat the Communist guerrillas in Malaya after the Second World War.

"An American withdrawal would have absolutely disastrous effects, not only in the Far East but farther afield," he said in an interview.

Now, 64 and retired, Templer expressed the belief British troops should be fighting alongside Americans in Vietnam.

The whole of Southeast Asia —which he said would fall after a Communist triumph in Vietnam—consists of the Philippines, Indonesia, Malaysia, Laos, Cambodia and Thailand. Beyond Burma and India to the Caspian Sea lie such countries as Pakistan, Afghanistan and Iran. To the north of this great are are mainland China and the Soviet Union.

Canadian Indians Need Foreign Aid?

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The future of medical care for Canadian Indians stirred a new round of comment during the weekend.

Arthur Wambidee of the Sioux Indian reserve at Griswold, Man., says Indians may have to seek foreign aid if Ottawa will not reconsider what, he said, appears to be a new policy on medical services for Indians.

In an interview in Brandon, Man., he said it is too early to talk of cancelling the so-called "medicine chest treaty" of the last century which granted Indians free medical and hospital care.

In Calgary, Sunday, Health Minister MacEachen told a news conference the federal government will make certain that health services will be available to Indians who can't afford to pay the cost of medical care themselves.

But he said, he hoped that Indians with incomes will pay for health services themselves or from band council funds.

Politicians, Professors Attack Canadian Policy

TORONTO (CP) — Politicians and professors attacked Canada's foreign policy Saturday at a policy convention of the Toronto and District Young Progressive Conservative Council.

Gordon Fairweather, federal member of Parliament for the New Brunswick riding of Royal, suggested that Canadian immigration policy continues to discriminate despite official assurances.

"There is no immigration office in Nairobi," he said. "The nearest office is Beirut. It might as well be in downtown Toronto in that part of the world."

Dalton Camp, national president of the Progressive Conservative party, said Canadian policy is grounded on the possibility of war rather than on exploring the problems of peace.

David Cox, political science professor from Queen's University in Kingston, said: "Canada has a kept-woman relationship with the United States."

ONTARIO HOSPITAL SERVICES COMMISSION

NEW HOSPITAL INSURANCE PREMIUMS

HOSPITALS AND HOSPITAL SERVICES ARE BETTER THAN EVER, BUT THEIR COSTS ARE RISING STEADILY... AND SO ARE OURS.

BETTER CARE—BETTER PROTECTION

Modern scientific hospital care is putting thousands of patients on the road to health every day. This care is the best that has ever been available—but it is becoming more and more costly to provide. Steadily rising hospital costs have, for many years, affected all hospitals across Canada and in other countries. Nevertheless, the quality of hospital care cannot be sacrificed—facilities and service must constantly attain increasingly higher standards. In 1959, however, Ontario Hospital Insurance ended the worry of hospital expense for patients who need such care. Over 7 million Ontario residents, 99% of the people, have peace of mind in knowing that their hospital bills are 'prepaid' through their Government-insurance plan.

WHY COSTS CONTINUE TO RISE

PRICES ARE UP

Hospitals, like everyone else, are paying more for salaries, wages and fringe benefits, and more for food, drugs, equipment, supplies and services.

SERVICE IS BETTER

Medical science now provides many new, costly types of treatment which require admission to hospital. While these procedures prolong life and improve health, they also increase the use of hospitals and require more skilled staff, more facilities, more drugs and other expensive supplies.

HOSPITALS ARE USED MORE

Greater use is also being made of hospitals because there is no longer a financial barrier to necessary care, more hospital beds are available and there are increasing numbers of elderly citizens, many of whom require prolonged treatment in hospital. In 1947, Ontario had only 17,473 active treatment, chronic and convalescent hospital beds; in 1958 there were 31,000. Today there are over 46,800 such beds available to insured persons. More beds mean more patients, more cost.

PAY ENVELOPES TAKE MOST

About 75¢ out of every $1.00 in insured hospital services represents salaries, wages and fringe benefits for hospital employees. Hospital staffs now enjoy employment conditions which are comparable in rates and hours of work and fringe benefits to other similar occupations in the community. This means that hospitals, today, have more and better paid employees to provide their essential round-the-clock service for the sick and injured.

NEW PREMIUM RATES

There has been no change in Ontario Hospital Insurance premiums since 1964, and this has been made possible through increased Provincial Government contributions from general revenues to maintain the premium rates established at that time. In the years 1965, 1966, and 1967, the Provincial Government contributed $176.5 million in support of the plan, plus some $334 million for mental and tuberculosis care, and for special and capital hospital grants, to a total of $510.5 million.

The Government has now found it necessary, however, to introduce new premiums to help meet the sharp increase in the cost of the Ontario Hospital Insurance Plan. The Provincial Government will continue to contribute substantially to the cost of hospital care, and the Federal Government's contribution will also keep pace with the rising plan costs.

The new premiums effective with regular advance payments for the benefit month of July, 1968, are:

BASIC STANDARD WARD INSURANCE

Single (no eligible dependants) - - - - - - - - $ 5.50 a month

Family (one or more eligible dependants) - - - $11.00 a month

The above new rates will be payable on all regular group and pay-direct billings due in April, 1968, to cover the benefit month(s) beginning with July, 1968.

NEW BENEFITS

Consistent with its policy through the years of adding wherever possible to the benefits of Ontario Hospital Insurance, the following new benefits will be available to insured persons on and after July 1, 1968.

OUT-PATIENT HOSPITAL SERVICES

Coverage for hospital out-patient services prescribed by a physician when associated with necessary medical treatment—but not drugs taken home, or diagnostic x-ray examination or laboratory tests which are listed as benefits of the Ontario Medical Services Insurance Plan (OMSIP). Such x-rays and laboratory tests, however, will continue to be covered under present "emergency" benefits and in follow-up treatment of fractures.

These added benefits will include the use of a substantial list of care facilities at hospitals which are necessary to modern medical care and will close the gap between present insured services and those services normally covered by OMSIP.

ESSENTIAL AMBULANCE SERVICE

Also, benefits will be provided for ambulance service which is essential for the transportation of a patient. The patient will be required to pay a small portion of the cost to the ambulance operator at the time the service is provided. Details of the benefit will be announced at a later date.

NOTE: The above summary is for your convenience only. For detailed information please refer to the Provincial and Federal acts and regulations regarding these matters, or write to the address below.

BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, MONDAY, MARCH 25, 1968

You may not know some of these fellows by name, but to rehash an old cliche "their jesses should be familiar."

You've seen the red and gold of their lodge headpieces bobbing up and down in hockey arenas, fall fairs, circus tents, nautical outings and Christmas parties.

In fact almost everywhere you see one or more crippled kiddies gathered together you'll find a Shriner.

And make a home where child physical misfortune has struck, has heard the whispered prayer of gratitude "Thank God for the Shrine Club."

Collectively the Shrine has built and supports some 19 Hospitals for Crippled Children in the United States and Canada. As individual clubs they do yeoman service the year round for the less fortunate children in their communities.

Because they believe in the slogan, "A Man is Never So Tall as When He Stoops in Help a Child."

In my tenure of three decades at a sports desk the "Men in the Red Fezzes" have been generous with time, money and effort to assist these children, lovingly dubbed "The Sweethearts of the Shrine."

Their reward? The smiling faces of a cured child — those that have been helped to better health — and the shining eyes of grateful parents.

For a number of years the Bel-Ra Mosque ,the official name of the Belleville Shrine Club, have featured their early year activities by the sponsorship of a minor hockey tournament. Aided and abetted generously by the Belleville Minor Hockey Association officials ,teams and those of outside communities.

Shrine president Bill Stewart and tournament chairman George Muller have lined up a strong committee to look after the details of the 1968 Minoy Tournament slated for Memorial Arena Friday and Saturday April 12th and 13th.

Belleville Minor Hockey Association president Tom Neill and his officials are lending a willing shoulder to the wheel.

Wednesday evening committee Shriners Jim "Salpe" Matthews, Harry Birkinshaw, Hugh Sullivan, Ralph Plumpton, Dick Sargent, Hal Gibbs and Harold Hamblyn, Giving his blessing and hoping to be here is Rameses Temple Imperial Potentate Lord Athol Layton, well-known wrestler and television sports commentator.

A number of teams will participate in the two-day tournament. And as Chairman Muller puts it "Strong Legs will Skate so that Weak Legs Can Walk."

Peewee teams will be here from the BMHA, Napanee, Kingston, Oshawa, Cobourg, Trenton, Peterborough, Toronto, Whitby and West Hill.

There will be presentations of awards too. Harry Rollins will present the Harry Rollins Trophy. Shrine president Stewart the Shrine Club Trophy and, it is expected, a member of the Don McNevis family will present the Tommy McNevis Memorial Trophy to the winner.

The tournament will get under way at 9.30 a.m. on Friday April 12th and run through Saturday to the finals which will be played in the early evening.

The annual Shrine hockey tournaments have always been greeted warmly by city and district residents. Officials hope the response will be as generous this year as in the past.

Tickets are now on sale.

And speaking of coming events 1st down Friday or Saturday of this week for the annual colorful skating extravaganza of the Quinte Figure Skating Club. The opening performance will be given in Memorial Arena Friday evening.

Club officials and those participating — a cast of over 100 — are in the last stages of rehearsal of a presentation said to be as colorful and rhythmic as any of its predecessors. No effort has been spared to repeat the successes of former years.

In colorful singles, pairs and ensembles with the artistry of visiting stars of the figure-skating forwarts, the club depicts "Schooldays" down through the years in a musical melange that should delight lovers of figure-skating.

Whip Hawks, Wings

Leafs, Rangers Split

Habs Nail Top Spot; Trio For Howe!

By GRAHAM COX

Canadian Press Staff Writer

Montreal Canadiens and Gordie Howe, like a rare wine, improve with time.

The Canadiens, boning up for the Stanley Cup playoffs, sewed up first place in the National Hockey League's Eastern Division during the weekend while Howe, in his 22nd season with Detroit Red Wings, scored three goals and 40 assists.

The Canadiens nailed down their first place finish Saturday night with a 7-4 victory over Detroit and followed it up Sunday in Chicago with a 7-2 win over the Black Hawks to snow goalie Jack Norris under a hail of shots.

Howe, who scored two goals Saturday, added one Sunday and assisted on another as the Wings edged Boston Bruins 5-3.

The high-flying Habs win Sunday was enough to Toe Blake's 400th in regular season play.

At Christmas, with the 74-game schedule half over, the Canadiens were last in the six-team division.

The heavy win victory was their third in a row and seventh in eight games.

After losing to Toronto Maple Leafs 3-1 Saturday, New York Rangers moved two points up on Boston into second place in the Eastern standings by beating Toronto 4-2 Sunday while Minnesota North Stars consolidated their hold on third place by beating Pittsburgh 3-0 Saturday then battling back for a 4-4 tie with the Penguins Sunday.

Fourth-place St. Louis Blues gained a step on the fifth-place Penguins, tying Oakland Seals 3-3 Saturday as the Penguins neared elimination in the expansion division.

The Canadiens opened fast Sunday, scoring three times within 2½-minutes in the first period, and the Hawks never recovered as Montreal continued to snow Chicago goalie Dave Dryden under a hail of shots.

John Ferguson scored twice and Bobby Rousseau, Yvan Cournoyer, Jean Beliveau, Ralph Backstrom and Serve Savard once each.

Ken Wharram scored both Chicago goals with Stan Mikita getting assists on both to boost his lead in league scoring to 87 points on 39 goals and 44 assists.

He needed them. Howe, 39, advanced into second place among scorers with 80 points on 39 goals and 41 assists.

Frank Mahovlich scored his 300th and 301st NHL goals Saturday to pace the Red Wings.

The 30-year-old Timmins, Ont., native, traded to Detroit from Toronto this month with Gary Unger and Peter Stemkowski, joined a list of only 11 other 300-goal scorers in NHL history.

Unger and Bruce MacGregor also scored Saturday with Eddie Shack, Ken Hodge and John McKenzie scoring for Boston.

The game also marked the return of Boston defenceman Bobby Orr, who picked up two misconducts and a mandatory match penalty in the second period. It was his first game in six weeks following a cartilage operation on his left knee.

Orland Kurtenbach scored twice in New York's three-goal, first-period barrage. The other New York goals went to Phil Goyette and Ron Stewart with Paul Henderson and Brian Conacher replying for Toronto.

In the televised afternoon game Sunday, nothing worked for Pittsburgh despite one of their best skating and passing efforts of the season.

A 1-0 lead dissolved in the first period when Pittsburgh defenceman Bill Speer had the puck carom into his own goal of his skate blade. Then a 4-2 third-period lead disappeared when the North Stars just refused to play dead as time ran out.

Parker MacDonald got credit for the first Minnesota goal with the others going to Mike McMahon, Andre Boudrias and Jean-Paul Parise.

Pittsburgh goals were scored by Billy Dea, with two, Earl Ingarfield and Ken Schinkel.

The Canadiens got the Prince of Wales Trophy the hard way Saturday, spotting Detroit, 1-0 and 3-1 leads then slamming home six straight goals to sew up their 16th championship since 1917.

It was their ninth championship since Blake became coach in 1955. During that time they also have won seven Stanley Cups including a record five in a row.

BOBBY ROUSSEAU

GORDIE HOWE

Bobby Rousseau almost made it his personal championship, scoring three times. Cournoyer, Backstrom, Gilles Tremblay and Jacques Lemaire got the other goals. In addition to Howe's two, Detroit goals were scored by Unger and Gary Jarrett.

Rochester Wins Third West. Title

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Don McLeod, goalie for Springfield Kings of the American Hockey League, probably will never be able to forget Sunday night—as much as he'd like to.

He saw more pucks Sunday from the sticks of Rochester Americans players than most goalies see in two games—48—and lost 10-1.

The Rochester victory clinched the Americans' third Western Division championship in four years, even though they lost 7-4 Saturday to Baltimore Clippers.

For the Kings the loss, coupled with a 2-1 setback Saturday to Cleveland Barons, held them deep in third place in the Eastern standings with Baltimore, which lost 7-1 Sunday to Buffalo Bisons, threatening to oust them from the playoffs.

Hershey Bears, who own first in the East, lost 4-3 to Providence Reds Sunday when Quebec Aces dropped Cleveland 7-5.

In Saturday's other game, the Bisons blanked the Bears 4-0.

Dallas Finishes With Win

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

After spotting Memphis a 1-0 lead, Dallas Black Hawks came back Sunday to beat the South Stars 4-2 in the last regular-season game for both teams in the Central Pro Hockey League.

Both teams finished third in their respective divisions. The Stars earned a playoff berth against Kansas City Blues, runner-up in the North Division, while the Hawks meet Fort Worth Wings, second-place finishers in the Southern Division.

Tulsa Oilers have clinched the Northern Division title and Oklahoma City Blazers the Southern Division championship.

In other games Sunday night, Houston Apollos beat Fort Worth 3-1, Kansas City whipped Oklahoma City 6-2 and Omaha Knights defeated Tulsa 3-1.

Stirling Evens Elmvale Series

Stirling scored a hard-fought 3-2 overtime win on home ice Saturday night to force a third and deciding game in their OMHA Juvenile "D" semi-final series with Elmvale.

Elmvale won the opening game, at home, 7-4.

Stirling, having won the toss, will be the site of the deciding game tonight. Game time is 9 o'clock and a large crowd is expected.

N.H.L. Scoring Leaders

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Stan Mikita of Chicago Black Hawks won't be separated from his Nathan Hockey League scoring title, but a new challenge has cropped up to make him work for it.

Gordie Howe, Detroit Red Wings veteran winger scored three goals and earned an assist to move into second place during the weekend while Mikita won 5-3 over Boston Bruins Sunday after losing 7-4 to Montreal Canadiens Saturday.

Mikita earned two assists Sunday as the Hawks lost 7-2 to Montreal to give him 39 points on 39 goals and 44 assists.

But Howe, a 22-year veteran who will be 40 March 31, raised his goal production to 39 for the season, which along with 41 assists gives him 80 points, one more than Phil Esposito of Boston who went scoreless Sunday to remain at 79 points on 33 goals and 46 assists.

Alex Delvecchio of Detroit earned three assists during the weekend to give him a leading 47 for the season while Bobby Hull of Chicago remains the top goal scorer with 44.

Edge Barrie 4-3

Fuels Rally; Enter Peewee Finals

Belleville Smith Fuels will defend their Ontario Minor Hockey Association peewee "A" championship — thanks to their comeback ability.

The Belleville youngsters, playing the third and deciding game of the semi-final act in Barrie yesterday, fought from behind twice to nose out Barrie 4-3.

Smith Fuels will meet Walkerburg for the Ontario championship which they won last spring against Sarnia.

Barrie leaped into a 2-0 first-period lead yesterday but Belleville made it 2-2 going into the final period.

Again the hometown Barrie boys jumped ahead 3-2 in the early second of the period — but the defending champs never slowed their efforts.

It paid off with the tying goal at 9.30 when Andy Ricketts completed a play with Wally Palanzi.

Overtime loomed as the minutes ticked by and Belleville goalie Terry Marek kept it tied by stopping two clean-cut Barrie breakaways.

Grant Goegan, one of the Fuelmen's scoring stars all season, fired the deciding blast with the clock reading 17.40. The little speedsters put the disc home on a three-ply play with Tim Whelan and Peter Crawford. Belleville checked tightly over the last couple of minutes to protect the lead and earn a spot in the provincial finals.

Mark Coates ignited Belleville's first comeback with Goegan assisting, at 3.45 of the middle heat. Andy Ricketts' first of two goals made it 3-2 at 18.20 with Coates and Goegan goals assisting.

G. Richardson at 5.15 and J. Simmons at 7.05 built Barrie's early lead and Richardson took only 30 seconds of the third period to make it a 3-2 game.

Belleville team officials called it "another fine team effort".

Brampton Novice Tournament

BRAMPTON (CP) — A Waterloo bench penalty helped Mississauga to open the scoring and defeat Waterloo 3-1, clinching the class A title and the grand championship of the Brampton novice hockey tournament which ended Saturday.

Mississauga reached the championship final by edging Peterborough 4-3 in the class A final and downing the class C winners, Leamington, 2-1, in two sudden-death overtime periods.

Waterloo earlier defeated Brampton 5-3 to win the class B. title, and eliminated Cambington 7-4 in the semi-final of the tournament of champions.

Defeat Brampton 5-1

Kinsmen Bantams In Finals

Belleville Kinsmen Bantams reached the championship series of the Ontario Minor Hockey Association on Sunday defeating Brampton 5-1 to sweep the best-of-three series in two straight games.

They took the series 7-1 after blanking Brampton 2-0 here last Friday night.

The Kensmen meet the winners of the Wallaceburg-Owen Sound semi-finals for the all-Ontario bantam title.

The Kinsmen got away to a shaky start drawing four penalties in a row including a misconduct to Ricky Meagher.

Brampton, however failed to take advantage of the "sinners absence" and opened the scoring late in the first period on a goal by Cliff Janitsch.

The goal fired the Belleville club and with Meagher in the penalty box rammed home four goals in the first and early second periods.

David Salfth flung home the second goal from Danny Lupinette. The latter followed with the third from Smith and Janitsch and Mike Rollins scored the fourth tally from Smith and Lupinette.

That's the way the score went until late in the third period with Brampton battling hard to avoid the shutout.

They pulled their goalie with just over two minutes to go and Ricky Meagher added the fifth goal in the open net.

Roger LaMoore in the Kinsmen goal, appeared headed for a deserved shutout but Brampton's Orr spoiled it by scoring the team's lone goal with 35 seconds to play.

TheiKinsmen were edged 2-1 by Richmond Hill in the Georgetown Tournament. Ricky Meagher getting the goal.

The Richmond Hill team after defeating the Kinsmen for the "B" championship, went on to win the grand championship.

The Belleville club placed the two top scorers of the tournament, Ricky Meagher being the best with 13 points and Doug James getting seven.

Canada Turns Back Scotland To Win World Curling Title!

MONTREAL (CP) — Ron Northcott and his rink from Calgary have proved to Chuck Hay of Scotland that it's one thing to curl like a Canadian and another to play like a Canadian champion.

Northcott skipped his Canadian champs to an 8-6 victory Saturday in the final game of the International curling championship against the defending champions from Scotland to become only the second skip to win the championship more than once.

The rink he defeated had watched Frnie Richardson win one of his four titles several years ago and decided to adopt the Canadian style.

But Northcott, with Jim Shields playing third, Bernie Sparkes second and Fred Storry lead, caught the Scots by excelling at Canadian standards all the way, playing straight knock-out, grabbing an early lead and outwerking the Hay foursome.

"But you'll have to remember things are a bit different to us here in Canada," Hay said. "The backs in Scotland are sliting on the ice and they are embedded here. You see, when we come out of the Canadian hack, we are much closer to the ice—almost six inches—and your stone hits the ice earlier. "It makes you think when you start your delivery and you lose some of your concentration."

The Scottish curlers use the long slide and Canadian strategy, but they still use the push brooms for sweeping as opposed to the corn straw brooms used by North Americans.

Northcott and his rink had been fatigued to the point of exhaustion going into Saturday's final game. They had finished second behind Scotland in the eight-rink round-robin preliminary event before meeting the United States in the semi-final Friday night.

The U.S.-Canada match was the eighth game in three days for both rinks. Canada won 12-2, forcing skip Bud Somerville of Superior, Wis., to concede after seven of the regular 12 ends.

The rules specified that all games must be played through the 12 ends, and there was general criticism over the decision by the U.S. skip. But Somerville's continuation would have served no purpose except add to the Canadian rink's fatigue.

"The whole rink was so dull they weren't reacting on the sweeping calls," Northcott said after the game

The Scottish rink was fatigued as well and passed up a chance to watch the only remaining threat to the title in the semi-final after gaining a bye into the final.

Canada went into the final game against the rink that had handed them the only defeat of the round-robin event and both rinks went to takeout because of ice conditions that denied draws.

Canada led 2-0 after three ends, but took advantage of two and assumed command on the fourth end.

Leeds Blanks Manchester City 2-0

LONDON (CP)-Leeds United entered the final quarter of the English soccer season with a 2-0 victory Saturday over Manchester City in a struggle at Leeds between the English League's leading teams.

Second-half goals by Johnny Giles and Jackie Charlton carried the Leeds unbeaten streak to 22 games.

Manchester United showed it was not going to relinquish the First Division championship without a fight. It whipped Nottingham Forest 3-0, with two of the goals coming from fullbacks —Shay Brennan and Francis Burns.

Going into Saturday's games, Leeds, Manchester City and Manchester United held the top three places, separated only by goal average. Now Leeds' superior goals count puts it on top with Manchester United second.

Leeds has 45 points from 33 games. Manchester United 45 from 32 games and Manchester City and Liverpool each 43 points from 32 games.

Liverpool kept alive its hopes with a 2-1 victory over Sheffield Wednesday.

In the vital six weeks ahead, the odds must be on Manchester United finishing on top. Six of its 10 remaining games are at home. Leeds has only four home games left.

West Bromwich Albion had one of the day's best wins. Following a 6-2 loss at home to Everton a week ago, it won 3-2 at Leicester, after trailing 2-0 at half time. The success should give Albion a boost for its Football Association Cup quarter-final clash with Liverpool Saturday.

Everton snatched a 1-0 victory over Newcastle United.

Fulham appears resigned to relegation. Fulham lost 3-1 at home to Arsenal, which had not won a league match since Dec. 23.

Women Archers Win!

Women archers of the Belleville Archery Club made a clean sweep of their division at the York County Bowmen Club's Mixed Tournament on Saturday.

They easily captured the women's team trophy with individual scores that bettered those of the men. Their team average equalled the best turned in at the tournament.

Carol Armstrong led the field from Belleville, London, Galt and Toronto with a 279 score. Team-mate Leola Dostator had a 270 and Eileen Donaldson 264.

The Belleville men's team finished in a second-place tie. This included Floyd Armstrong, Royce Dostator and Lorne Donaldson.

On Sunday the Ontario Archery Association's indoor championships were held in three different zones.

Belleville hosted the eastern zone, Hamilton the central zone and Port Arthur the Lakehead zone.

In the eastern zone Belleville's Royce Dostator won the men's shoot with a 278 with Carol Armstrong taking the women's honors with 275.

Rev. Hendrickson won the women's barebow award with a 216 and John Widdicks the men's barebow with a 236.

Picton Squares Series

Picton Merchants, enjoying the friendly confines of their home amgna once again, defeated Whitby 5-1 last night to deadlock their 4-of-7 OHA Intermediate "B" quarter final series at two games each.

The Merchants have lost both starts in Whitby but will enjoy home - ice advantage over the remainder of the series with two of the final three games slated for Picton.

Whitby visits Picton again tomorrow (Tuesday) at 8.30 with the sixth game in Whitby on Friday. If the seventh game is necessary it will be played in Picton next Sunday evening.

Sammy Mulholland's crew outshot the visitors 41-30 before another big crowd last night and led from the start. They scored two in the first heat and made it 4-0 in the second.

Syd Faulkner paced the Picton attack with a pair of goals. His first, at 16.22 of the second frame, opened up the comfortable 4-0 lead and he added the final in the game's last minute.

Carl Stacey potted Picton's initial goal at 6.38 of the game and Mulholland made it 2-0 at 17.05. Fred James upped the score to 3-0 at 3.10 of the second period. George Jacklin collected two Picton assists, Stacey, Doug Dafoe and Boland Berry, loners.

Whitby's lone scoring play came at 9.17 of the third when defenceman Lee Sinden finished a play with Brian Fletcher.

Elmvale Peewees Oust Tweed

TWEED (Special) — Elmvale eliminated Tweed from the Ontario Minor Hockey Association peewee "D" semi-finals, in Elmvale, yesterday by whipping the local youngsters 7-1.

The strong Elmvale club, with outstanding goaltending, won the 2-of-3 series in consecutive games.

Tweed's lone score yesterday was Barry Rivers.

Two bus loads of fans from this village accompanied the team on the trip to Elmvale.

Despite the setback, the Tweed peewees enjoyed a very fine season, losing only one of their first 29 games and winning up the year with three defeats in all.

Angels Blanked In Three Of Last 4 Games

By ED SCHUYLER JR.
Associated Press Sports Writer

This is the kind of exhibition baseball season it's beeh for manager Bill Rigney—about the only thing he's had to comment on lately is what pitcher has looked best in shutting out his California Angels.

So far, it's been San Francisco southpaw Ray Sadecki.

"That's the finest we've seen this spring," Rigney said of Sadecki's pitching Sunday in the Giants' 4-0 victory over the Angels, who have been blanked in three of their last four games.

"I can see why they were excited about him last year," Rigney said after Sadecki scattered four hits over nine innings.

Sadecki finished strongly for 12-6 record in 1967.

In other games, Houston Astros doubled Oakland Athletics 11-4 for its eighth straight victory, Cincinnati Reds edged St. Louis Cardinals 6-5, Washington Senators overcame Philadelphia Phillies 4-2, Cleveland Indians nipped Chicago Cubs 5-4, Detroit Tigers blanked New York Yankees 2-0, Baltimore Orioles stopped New York Mets 3-0, Chicago White Sox beat Minnesota Twins 9-5, Los Angeles Dodgers downed Pittsburgh Pirates 4-0 and Boston Red Sox whipped Atlanta Braves 6-2.

In action Saturday, Chicago edged Philadelphia 8-7, the Yanks downed the Mets 6-2, Minnesota beat Washington 2-1 and Cleveland edged the Cubs 4-3. California took a 5-4 win over San Francisco, Cincinnati beat Oakland 7-3, Houston won 15-10 over St. Louis, Atlanta beat Boston 5-2 and Baltimore blanked Detroit 4-0.

At Nassau, in the Bahamas, Pittsburgh beat Los Angeles 2-1. While Sadecki was making a baseball look like a marble to the Angels, it continued to appear the size of a grapefruit to Sal Bando and Don Pavletich.

Bando hit his eighth homer of the spring for Oakland, and Pavletich knocked his fourth and fifth for Cincinnati.

Washington beat Philadelphia by scoring three runs with two out in the ninth inning. Frank Allen's two-run double brought it. two, and the third scored when shortstop Don Money lost a pop fly in the sun.

Cleveland overcame a 4-0 Cub lead by scoring five times in the seventh on a double, two singles, four walks and a hit batsman.

Denny McLain pitched the first seven innings and rookie Daryl Patterson finished up in Detroit's shutout of the Yankees.

Eddie Watt yielded two Met hits in the first inning, then he and Pete Richert, who took over in the ninth, pitched listless ball the rest of the way for Baltimore

Pete Ward the Lachine, Que., born third-baseman, paced the White Sox, who overcame a 4-1 Minnesota lead, with a home run and two doubles.

Killy Took Two

Nancy; Wins Triple Sweep

SUN VALLEY, Idaho (CP-AP) — Nancy Greene faces a pleasant possibility this week—it just could turn out that she'll retain the women's World Cup of international skiing before her admiring Rossland, B.C., hometowners.

The 24-year-old British Columbian will compete in the slalom and giant slalom next weekend at the Rossland meet, the next-to-last one counting toward the cup.

Miss Greene holds a 26-point lead over her nearest rival, Isabelle Mir of France who has 150 points. The experts give Miss Mir slight chance of overtaking the Canadian star at Rossland and the winding Heavenly Valley, Calif., meet.

Jean-Claude Killy of France, the defending men's cup champion, also is considered likely to retain his title. Killy, who has 175 points, is reported so sure that Dumeng Giovanoli of Switzerland, who has 117 points, cannot overtake him that he considering entering only the slalom at Rossland and not even competing at Heavenly Valley.

Killy told reporters Sunday he will "make one run for Nancy's sake" at Rossland.

Both Nancy and Jean-Claude dominated the weekend's American International meet here. Miss Greene again scored a triple victory, winning the downhill, slalom and giant slalom, just as she had done a week previously at Aspen, Colo. But the Aspen meet was worth 75 points to her, while the meet here didn't count toward the cup.

Killy, who had finished among the top three only once at Aspen, won the slalom and giant slalom and placed second in the downhill here.

National Seniors Under Way

EDMONTON (CP) — The luck of the draw gives a Moncton foursome, skipped by Harold Mabey, a bye in the first round this afternoon of the National Seniors curling championships as the New Brunswick rink sets out to defend the title the province won last year.

Firemen Bruins and Unroyal Indians captured the Belleville Minor Hockey Association's peewee division championships on the weekend.

Bruins nipped Canadiens 2-1 in the "A" final while Indians scalped the Pirates 5-1 to take the "B" crown.

Earlier in the playoff tournament games, Bruins nipped Hawks 5-4 and blanked the Wings 3-0 while Canadiens nudged Leafs 4-3.

In the bantam game, McQuade and Watt scored for the Bruins and T. Bridge had the Canadiens' goals.

Steven Hale got the Bruin shutout against the Wings while Mike Watt, Tim Tuggette and Steve Tracey fired the goals.

Watt scored two, Brant, Tracey and Farrell loners in ousting the Hawks. Losers' goals went to Aiken, Sullivan, Hillborn and Rollins.

Indians won the "B" crown on single goals by Smith, Lynch, Carrie, Irwin and Lloyd. Foxall was the lone Pirates' marksman.

In the Canadiens' win over Leafs, Bateman, Jeff Soule, Steve Cowan and Robert Whodbeck had goals. Leafs' goals went to Marta, Alex Tosh and Peter Vos.

In recent BMHA novice playoffs, Rangers whipped D.C.A. Transfer 10-3 while Belch and Son Bears topped Aces 7-3.

Shelly scored three Bears' goals, Grant two, Belch and Cow one each. B. Kuzetzky had two and M. Munkitrick one for Aces.

Woodley paced Rangers with three goals and the others went to Hayman, Kerr, Bunnell, Vollrath, Rutherford, Whalen and Bates. R. Suddard had two and Calnan one for D.C.A.

12-Hour Endurance

Porsches Finished On Top

SEBRING, Fla. (CP) — There wasn't any question about which were the best cars in the 12-hour auto endurance race here Saturday, but there were plenty of questions about how the race was run.

Porsches ran 1-2 in the-annual event; the winner driven by Jo Siffert of Switzerland and Hans Herrman of Germany and the No. 2 auto by Vic Elford of Britain and Jochen Neerpasch of Germany.

Third place, 130 miles behind the leaders, went to Craig Fisher of Toronto and Mark Donohoe, U.S. roadracing champ, in a Chevrolet Camaro.

The winners covered 227 laps —1,232.4 miles—at an average speed of 102.512 miles an hour while the second Porsche went 226 laps and the Camaro 221 laps of the 5.2-mile track.

Five other Canadians figured prominently in the standings with a Porsche 911, owned and driven by Jacques Duval, Montreal television personality, and co-driven by Horst Kroll of Toronto, finishing ninth at 203 laps. A Shelby Mustang driven by Francois Favreau of Montreal and Marius Amyot of Rimouski, Que., went 184 laps to place 17th.

Bill Brack of Clarkson, Ont., co-drove an MGB to 18th place over-all and fourth in its class.

Lead Series 3-1

Hornets Trim Aces 6-1

KINGSTON (CP) — Galt Hornets moved to within one game of entering the Ontario Hockey Association Senior finals by trouncing Kingston Aces 6-1 here Saturday.

Galt holds a 3-1 lead in games against Kingston in the best-of-seven semi-final series which resumes Tuesday in Galt.

Toronto Marlboros have already won the other berth in the finals. Kingston is the defending league champion.

Fern Belanger and Don Snider scored twice each as Galt handed Kingston one of its worst defeats of the season in front of 2,579 fans. Ted Power and Eddie Burr scored the others.

Syl Apps scored Kingston's lone goal early in the third period after Galt had built up a 5-0 lead. His goal spoiled Norm Defelice's bid for his second shutout in the series. Defelice made 37 saves compared to 23 for Kingston's Neil Perry.

Marlies Win Tournament

TRENTON — Toronto Marlboros blanked Toronto Rangers 6-0 here on Saturday night to win the grand championship title of the seventh annual Midget All-Star tournament sponsored by the Trenton Lions Club.

The Trenton entry may feel badly about being eliminated on Thursday by Burlington with more shots on goal in overtime play but the locals can look back with pride on the 5-3 defeat they handed Marlboros in the Monday meeting of the two clubs. After losing to Trenton, however the aggregation from the Maple Leafs farm system walloped all opposition on the way to the top rung of the ladder.

An example of Marlboros balance of power and strong reserves they made available as competition stiffened before the final game was mirrored in their decisive route of the respected Brandies entry by an 11-2 count early Saturday afternoon.

The goalgetters for Marlboros in their title victory were Alan Avery (3), Bob D'Alvise (2), Rick Iasanoto (1), and Jeff White (1).

Leafs Win BMHA Bantam "A"

Leafs captured the Belleville Minor Hockey Association bantam "A" championship with a couple of close victories on the weekend.

The champions downed Wings 3-1 in the final after nipping Bruins 3-2 in the semi-final.

D. Nuttal, T. Hurst and S. Cairns scored in the titular contest with Mike Sullivan replying for the Wings.

In the semi - final, Leaf goals went to W. Andrews, D. Jones and T. Hurst. R. Harrington and C. Evans had Bruin goals.

In the other semi-final game Wings edged Rangers 2-1 on a pair of goals by R. Lapore. A. Tebworth had the Ranger tally.

In quarter-final, Bruins dumped Canadiens 6-2. R. Harrington scored twice, S. Boardman, D. Hall, C. Evans and J. Cavanagh adding loners. T. Raffel and Mike Lawson had Canadiens' goals.

In the other game, Wings and ANAF Dukes tied 2-2 with Wings getting the nod on a shot-on-goal margin. M. Dales had Wings' goals with C. Carlier and D. Horwood scoring for the Dukes.

Women's Hockey Tournament

Belleville Barriage Leadscapers won once and lost twice while competing in the third annual Keswick Junior Girls' hockey tournament on Saturday.

Most of the teams in the tournament were from the immediate Toronto area.

Barriages lost 4-1 in the opening game to Toronto's X100's; whitewashed Toronto Shelletton 2-0 after being dropped into the "B" section; fell 8-2 to Sam's Sports of Toronto in the "B" semi-finals.

Gail Bunnett scored Belleville's goal in the 4-1 loss with X100's goals shared by Buffy Taylor, Gail Foster, Chris Rodgers and Pam Mather.

In the 2-0 triumph over the Shelletton, Susan Miles and Sharon Drummond triggered the goals.

Belleville drew a bye in the next round but ran into high-scoring Mary Murphy, who pumped home five goals, in the game with Sam's Sports. Gail McNeil, Sandy Simond and Mary Sullivan also scored for the winners. Darlene Cross scored both Barriage's goals.

Central Bankers May Leave Gold to Jewelers

LONDON (AP) — The West's central bankers, having moved closer to freeing world money from its chains of gold, may take a further step in Stockholm this week toward leaving the metal over to the jewellers wholesale. That is the belief of Britain's top economists.

They see the establishment of a two-tier—a free and a official—market for gold as a logical answer to the recent gold panic.

Before the central bankers voted this system at Washington March 17, world currencies were related to each other by being exchangeable into gold at a fixed rate of $35 a fine ounce.

The bankers decided to let private buyers of gold flight it out among themselves at whatever price they can get for whatever supplies are not in the hands of central bankers.

The bankers have reserved for themselves continuance of the $35 price. When the central bankers exchange gold at that price, they are exchanging pure units of account with a purely arbitrary book-keeping value.

In that case, economists here argue, they will be freed for gold at all. A simple international understanding to continue exchanging their currencies at that rate would suffice, provided safeguards against cheating could be set up.

In Stockholm next Friday, delegates of 10 wealthy nations, known as the Group of 10, meet to create the purest of purely credit money. Its units don't even have a name but are known as SDRs, standing for special drawing rights. One of them would buy a cup of coffee but the United States wants $2,000,000,000 worth of these governmental units of credit to be created each year.

That amount is roughly the average annual increase of world trade. At the present time, world trade has a volume of roughly $71,000,000,000. There is only $45,000,000,000 worth of gold to finance that trade and last year not one ounce of newly-mined gold found its way into the vaults of government banks. It all went to hoarders and speculators.

The difference between $45,000,000,000 and $71,000,000,000 was financed by dollars and pounds sterling pouring out of to United States and Britain.

The two countries for years have been buying, spending and lending more abroad than they were taking in.

Everything went merrily along until people in Europe and even in America and Britain began to get worried and starting changing their dollars and pounds into gold.

This steady drain brought the crash of the weaker of the two reserve currencies. The pound was devalued Nov. 18 and the attack on the dollar began.

Gold was siphoned out of the vault of the seven central bankers through the international gold pool they set up in 1961. The gold pool, operated through the Bank of England, bought up or sold whatever gold was needed to steady the market. It worked well until the run on the bank began last November.

In Washington the seven central bankers, who were eight until France had enough last June and walked out, all but closed down the gold pool for good, since they agreed to end the supply of gold to private, non-governmental buyers.

Britain's gold market, the largest in the world, was shut down on the eve of the Washington meeting until next Monday. When it re-opens it will operate like the markets in Paris, Zoelich or Hong Kong, buying and selling whatever free, non-monetary gold comes on the market.

The London market will presumably also handle whatever new gold South Africa sells by agreement through the Bank of England. But Johannesburg doesn't seem in any hurry to sell its gold these days, pending clarification of the intentions of the central bankers.

Thus, says Prof. Harry G. Johnson of the London School of Economics in The Times, governments, by their public raid on gold, have hastened the demonetization of gold and its replacement by a credit money, the only rational solution to the fundamental irrationality of an international monetary system based on gold."

Speculators and hoarders have already bought up enough gold to supply the jewelry market for a long, time.

Leadership Candidates Discuss NATO, Vietnam, Quebec, Prices

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Regional, national and international issues were prominently pursued as candidates for the federal Liberal party leadership entered their final 10 days of campaigning leading to the Ottawa convention April 4-6.

Justice Minister Trudeau, speaking at a news conference in North Bay, Ont., said Canada should re-examine its role in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

He said that while he favored Canada's pulling out of NATO military, he wanted the country to remain active in the organization—politically and diplomatically.

Mr. Trudeau, one of 14 candidates for the leadership, said he would like to see a parallel strengthening of continental defence with the United States after Canadian troops are withdrawn from NATO.

Later, in Sudbury, he told students at Laurentian University that Canadian demonstrations against U.S. policy in Vietnam are an ineffective way of halting the war.

Transport Minister J. J. Greene, speaking in St. Thomas, Ont., said that halting the sale of Canadian arms to the United States would not stop the war in Vietnam and would be only a "token gesture."

Taking a stand similar to Prime Minister Pearson, who has announced his backing, Mr. Greene urged Canada to stop criticizing U.S. involvement in Vietnam, saying the U.S. is fighting through the International Control Commission.

He said that an effective Canadian arms embargo would have to include stopping sales of all metals that could be used for military purposes and this would put 500,000 persons out of work.

"We've been lucky to have such good neighbors—a country of 20,000,000 beside the most powerful nation in the world. But they won't be good neighbors very long if we continue to shoot bullets at them and to side with their enemies."

Concentrating on national issues, Trade Minister Winters said Canadian firms have an obligation in Quebec to "make their companies a congenial place for French-speaking employees to operate."

Mr. Winters, speaking to 25 English-speaking businessmen in Montreal, said the government was going to spend a lot of money to develop true bilingualism in Canada.

"I think there is a tendency on the part of those companies, because of the lack of English-speaking executives, to expect all employees to speak English and communicate in English," he told the businessmen.

Finance Minister Sharp, speaking to 50 convention delegates in Quebec City, said "it is very important for the future of Quebec that there should be a strong federal government."

He said that only a strong federal government can handle the economic problems that face all the provinces.

He asked by a delegate whether he believes in a special status for Quebec, Mr. Sharp said he disliques the expression "special status" because the federal government should have the same powers in all parts of Canada. But he stressed Quebec has special needs and problems.

Health Minister MacEachen surrounded by a small band of Indians and Eskimos in the lobby of a Calgary hotel, early asked him about reported plans to curtail federal health services for treaty Indians.

He told the group, that he would make a "reassuring" policy statement in the Commons early this week.

Speaking in Edmonton, Mr. MacEachen said that some services had been cut, but the moves were "sensible.

External Affairs Minister Martin said in Regina that a determining factor in the federal leadership race will concern an expanded program of federal provincial affairs, aimed specifically at Western Canada.

"I propose to establish a definite federal presence in the Prairie provinces," he told a press conference.

Transport Minister Hellyer said in Rimouski, Que., that a new constitution should solve current problems and be flexible enough to allow for future changes brought about by constant evolution.

Speaking to convention delegates, Mr. Hellyer said the current constitutional crisis is largely due to the prevailing economic situation.

He said the next prime minister should strike for full employment and elimination of inflation.

The key to solving the constitutional problem was dialogue between authorities of the different provinces, he said.

Consumer Affairs Minister Turner said in Edmonton that Mr. Batten report on prices and living costs in the Prairie provinces is a "very useful document," and suggestions in it are being reviewed.

Visiting with convention delegates, Mr. Turner said he has written to the three Prairie premiers asking permission for federal officers to review data contained in the report.

The report, prepared by a commission headed by Judge Mary Batten of Saskatoon, alleged that two companies had a near stranglehold on the grocery trade in the West.

Turning to the international scene, Mr. Turner said that if Canada stopped selling arms to the United States, other countries such as Sweden and France would pick up the slack.

Rev. Lloyd Henderson during the weekend in Winnipeg canvassing delegates for signatures to his nomination papers, He said he received 20 of the 10 needed to be eligible for balloting at the leadership convention, and would have no difficulty getting the rest.

Strange Smoke Screen Probably Due to Valves

By RAY STAPLEY

A reader writes: "I drive a 1963 6-cylinder station wagon with automatic transmission. At 60 miles-per-hour plus, and after about 10 miles or so of driving, I feel a momentary drop in speed. On looking behind I notice a heavy blue smoke screen just like we see in the James Bond movies. It lasts for a few seconds and repeats again after a few more miles. It does not occur at city speeds. The P.C.V. valve has been changed several times when though they all tested OK. I have consulted several mechanics and none of them have run into this before."

I have discussed this with several engine rebuilding friends of mine but none of us has experienced a condition exactly like this. We all agree, however, that there are only three ways by which enough oil could enter the combustion chamber to cause such a dense smoke screen. A faulty modulator valve in the automatic transmission can cause the A-T fluid to be drawn into the engine. The remaining two ways oil can enter the combustion chamber is due to worn or malfunctioning piston rings, or through the valve guides. Since it is rather doubtful that piston rings would cause this intermittent smoking condition, it would appear that the valve guides must be the answer.

Here is what may be happening — lubricating oil is fed under pressure up to the valve mechanism and this same oil is returned to the crankcase through passages in the cylinder head. Occasionally these return passages become restricted or plugged with sludge and the oil cannot return to the crankcase quickly enough.

When this occurs the oil then builds up under the rocker cover, and once the oil level reaches the top of the valve stems it then runs down through the valve guides and into the combustion chamber. At higher speeds the oil builds up faster and this could be the reason the smoke only occurs at 60 mph or more. Also, when decelerating at high speeds, a high engine vacuum builds up which tends to suck the oil down through the valve guides. There are rubber "O" rings at the top of the valve stems and wear in these seals aggravates the condition.

(I would appreciate hearing from any mechanics who may have run into this of - beat problem and have some suggestions to offer other than those I have outlined in this column.)

For the past few months I have been besieged with enquiries from readers as to the cause of their engines coughing, backfiring, hesitating or developing a "flat spot" when pulling away or under accelerator at lower speeds.

The following, is one of many letters I have received: "I drive a 1965 Valiant 6 cylinder 4 - door with automatic transmission. With one exception I've had over 40,000 miles of trouble-free driving. My problem is this: with a cold engine I pull away to the first traffic light where the engine idles briefly, then as I depress the gas pedal to pull away it almost quits — it does if I don't "nurse" the accelerator and feed the gas slowly. Also, if I press too hard when attempting to accelerate, say from 10 miles per hour, it either stalls or spits back through the carburetor. These conditions practically disappear once the engine thoroughly warms up. I've gone the rounds of repair shops. My regular mechanic diagnosed the problem as a faulty accelerator pump and installed a parts kit in the carburetors but the problem still persists. Then he tried various choke and carburetor adjustments — some aggravated the problem, none made it better.

"Two other garages tell me it is a design fault. One mechanic claims he tried everything and was unable to cure the problem in a similar model.

"It was suggested that rewiring the ignition system just may be the cure. (I didn't buy this one). At a dealer's I was told No problem, sir, just a matter of setting up the automatic choke. This was done but still no improvement, in fact I think it's worse. Before getting back on the merry-go-round I thought perhaps I'd seek your advice."

I have mentioned before in this column that the difficulty is not so much dishonesty but frequently lack of ability to diagnose a hidden problem. Anything that can be seen — a worn fan belt, bald tire, loose pivot wheel bearings, a hole in the muffler, things readily detected by the naked eye, are usually quickly diagnosed and corrected. But the cause of a "flat spot" or miss in the engine seldom is visible. A step-by-step diagnosing procedure must be followed in order to pin-point the exact cause, location and cure.

While a faulty carburetor accelerator pump is frequently the cause of flat spots, there are many other things that can cause the problem. A sticking heat riser valve, while often overlooked, can readily be the culprit. Late ignition timing, a weak coil, stale fuel, ignition points too close, worn spark plugs, too coarse a timing engine, high tension wires burned away internally, poor compression — there are but a few of the points that must be checked before condemning the carburetor.

All makes of engines, regardless of whether they are equipped with single, twin or four barrel carburetors can develop "flat spots". However the problem seems more chronic with six cylinder engines fitted with single barrel carburetors.

In many instances, when a motorist complains of a flat spot, it is immediately blamed on the accelerator pump and the installation of a carburetor "parts kit" is recommended. Sometimes this is the cure and sometimes not. But should this procedure fail, it does not necessarily eliminate the carburetor as the culprit since the "parts kit" most commonly used includes only a few of all the moving parts usually needle and seat, accelerator pump and gasket set.

Frequently with single barrel carburetors, a brand new unit costs only a few dollars more than a regular "parts kit" overhaul job and often an exchange rebuilt carburetor is cheaper than repairing the original unit. Some taxi operators find that with single barrel carburetors it is far more economical to install brand new units.

Golfing Gamble Paid Off

PENSACOLA, Fla. (AP) — Bert Floyd is trying to erase his image as a golfing playboy, but the 25-year-old Texan still likes to gamble.

The chunky bachelor took a one-shot lead into today's final round of the Pensacola Open golf tournament because of a gamble that paid off Sunday.

Floyd, who wiped out an eight-stroke deficit with a blazing 64, eagled the eighth hole after driving into the woods. He was 225 yards from the green, but he saw a six-foot opening between the trees and went for the hole with a three-wood.

The ball stopped 30 feet from the cup, and Floyd knocked in the putt for an eagle three on the par-five hole.

Canadians Will Homesuik, Al Balding and Al Balchen were well back of the frontrunners. Homesuik shot a third-round 72 for a 213 total, Balding had a 74, 219.

Floyd turned in a 34-hole total of 202, 14 strokes under par and a shot in front of George Archer and Tony Jacklin. Tom Shaw, who led the first two rounds with scores of 63 and 67, was at 204 after a 74.

NBC's Hour Long Ice Special Graceful, Tuneful and Colorful

NEW YORK (AP)—Television, young as it is, already has built some traditions. One of them is the "highlights" program.

Sunday night TV presented the annual highlights of an ice show. Next Friday there will be highlights of a circus making its tour.

If you've seen one ice show or one circus, you have pretty well seen them all, yet there is a fascination to both that time cannot dim—which comes through on the tube.

NBC's hour-long ice special had nothing unusual to present. Sunday but was graceful, tuneful and colorful, with here and there the required touch of broad comedy.

As the seasons roll by, the only thing that seem to change in ice-shows is the music, the costumes and the hosts. The music is more likely to be from the latest Broadway hits than from The Skater's Waltz.

Over the seasons and on all three networks, the ice shows have all taken much the same form, and even the hosts across the same—they arrive gingerly on skates and make jokes about how badly they skate.

NBC's Highlights from the Ice Capades of '68 was really not much different from Highlights from the Ice Capades of 67, except that the comedy team of Rowan and Martin, wobbly in the feet, were wound in place of past hosts. In an effort to add a little more spice to the proceedings, Jeanie Sommers was on hand for a couple of songs.

NBC has added two comedians as regulars to the summer series replacing the Dean Martin show. They are Paul Lynd and Shecky Greene. Stars of the show are Frank Sinatra Jr. and Joey Heatherton.

The next CBS National Geographic special, on April 16, will be a story of Portuguese cod fishermen whose work takes them onto the seas for six months atla time. The show is called The Lonely Dorymen.

Like Father, Like Son, And Howe

GEORGETOWN, Ont. (CP) — Mark Howe, son of Detroit Red Wing great Gordie Howe, took the limelight from his father during the weekend.

While the elder Howe was scoring three goals and an assist in two National Hockey League games, Mark led his Detroit team to the championship in the Georgetown International bantam hockey tournament.

Howe scored four goals, including the winner, and assisted on two others Saturday to lead Detroit to a 6-5 overtime victory over Richmond Hill in the tournament's championship game.

Detroit reached the finals by defeating Hespeler 3-1 in a semi-final game. Richmond Hill blanked Essex 6-0 in the other semi-final.

CO-PRODUCER NAMED

Sam Levene has been named co-producer of the CBC-TV's Sunday night public affairs program, The Way It Is, and will replace Percy Rosemond who is returning to film directing.

Barrie Wins Two Titles

WELLAND (CP) — Two Barrie teams won two of the three grand championships at the 32nd annual Little National Hockey League tournament of champions which ended Saturday.

Barrie peewees blanked Welland 3-0 and the bantams defeated Toronto Faustina 3-1.

In the midgets, Peterborough prevented a Barrie sweep of the three grand champion titles by shutting out Barrie novices 3-0.

The three Barrie teams earlier had claimed all three division titles for cities with a population from 15,000 to 35,000.

Division champions for cities with a population over 35,000 were Peterborough novices, Welland peewees and Toronto Faustina bantams.

Barrie's three teams gained entrance to the finals by each defeated Belleville 3-2 in overtime, the peewees edged Belleville 3-2 and the bantams downed Trenton 5-1.

Reports Given at Hospital Association Annual Meet

NAPANEE — Patient care per day cost was lower in 1967 than during the nine months the Lennox and Addington County General Hospital operated its 1966, R. L. (Reg.) Chapman told the annual meeting of the Association last week. Mr. Chapman is chairman of the Board of Governors. Cost per day for 1967 averaged $30.75 for each patient; while in 1966 the cost per patient was $38.26.

The number of patients in the 12 months of 1967 was 5,474, Mr. Chapman stated. This was an increase of 40 per cent over the nine months after the hospital opened the previous year; while in the outpatients' department the figure showed treatment in the 12 months.

In 1967 the hospital employed 106 people full time, and 34 part time, with a payroll of $541,000. Lennox and Addington furnished 78 of the full time employees, and 26 of those who worked part time.

Two new members, Scott Bateman, and H. C. Empey, were appointed to the board of Governors for a two-year period. Two, whose terms had expired were re-appointed, Eric Franch and Werk Poole. Col. H. L. Armstrong, who wished to retire, was requested to remain for one more year.

In addition to Chairman R. L. Chapman, other members of the board are Mrs. Malcolm Isbester, Bruce Finlay, Elburn Zeran, Glenn Herrington, E. Brant Bergstrome, Dr. R. A. McLellan and Dr. J. A. Hawley. Members of the board were chosen on a staggered-term basis.

Double Deceit Is Seen

NEW YORK (AP) — Senator Thruston B. Morton (Rep. Ky.) says today that the Tonkin Gulf naval encounter, which touched off large-scale U.S. military intervention in Vietnam, may "have been the result of deliberate provocation."

Writing in the current issue of the Saturday Evening Post, released today, the onetime Republican national chairman does not state directly who was behind the "provocation."

"To this date what actually happened has not been made fully public," Morton writes.

"But," he adds, "from the evidence I have seen and from conversations with those familiar with the facts,"one point stands out in my mind with painful starkness. . . .

"By daybreak, just a few hours after the naval encounter, substantial retaliatory American land, sea and air forces were poised for all-out military intervention. This was made possible by logistical preparations that must have required long and thorough planning."

Morton accuses the application of the Tonkin Gulf Resolution, which permitted the president to take measures to defend Vietnam an American war, was based upon the flimsiest of hard information and may even have been the result of deliberate provocation."

The administration claims, Morton points out, that North Vietnamese gunboats made an unprovoked attack on two U.S. destroyers in international waters of the Gulf of Tonkin, off the Vietnam coast, on August 4, 1964.

Morton says the Tonkin resolution, which he voted for, was "a double deception."

"Senator Fulbright Johnson did not, as he could have, come before the Congress and candidly admit that originally deteriorating circumstances in Vietnam required a major increase in U.S. participation. . . . He resorted to subterfuge."

"President Johnson," Morton writes, "has told the United States into a conflict . . . that has become one of the greatest tragedies in our history.

"President Johnson has thus crippled his usefulness as our national leader and as the leader of his party."

Stirling

STIRLING — Mrs. Reg McGeough is a patient in Belleville General Hospital.

Madoc district Odd Fellows held a reception in the temple in honor of the Grand Master of the State of New York, Bruno Mongrain. Laurel Rebekah Lodge catered for the banquet.

River Valley Women's Institute card party was convened Friday evening at the home of MacMullen and her committee. Winners were Miss Judy Donohoe, Mrs. George Heasman, Ed Heasman and Bert Bedford.

Mrs. Leon Shortt recently entertained in honor of Miss Betty Banderboey, a bride-to-be.

Chief Charles E. Hicks and Mrs. Hicks spent some time with relatives in Oakville, Ont., and attended the funeral of his father.

At the annual meeting of the Hon. J. R. Cooke Chapter of the IODE held at the home of Miss Gena Spry and Miss Rosa Spry, the following officers were elected: Hon. Regent, Mrs. H. G. Martin; past Regent, Miss Rosa Spry; Regent, Mrs. Kenneth Sine; 1st vice-Regent, Mrs. Peter Bolggs; 2nd vice-Regent, Mrs. Ralph Clements; secretary, Mrs. Robert Philp; assistant secretary, Mrs. Robert Burgess; treasurer, Mrs. Donald McIntosh; educational secretary, Mrs. James Bryant, Echoes secretary, Miss Rosa Spry; services at home and abroad secretary, Mrs. Robert Hough; standard bearer, Mrs. Douglas Ackers.

Card Parties Planned to Aid Association

NAPANEE — The Lennox and Addington Association for the Mentally Retarded is bending every effort to add to its building fund, since the Happy Day School now in use is inadequate. Last winter euchre parties were successful in adding a nice sum, but the sub-water bad weather has cut down on attendance at all three monthly parties. The one for last Wednesday night limited the party to 10 tables.

Mrs. David Andrews took home the prize for women's high and Mrs. Orwell Brooks for the low. Allan Chadwick won the men's high, and Jamie Mrs. Brooks the low. Mrs. Hazel Wright and Jewel Bayford for lone hand, and Mrs. Wright won it on a draw. Mrs. Ball held the lucky number for the door prize.

Others have offered to be responsible for more euchre parties and so the Happy Day School will see another euchre party next Friday evening.

At the March meeting the group decided to ask their friends to join them in a "Make-Believe Tea" in their own homes, and to contribute the proceeds they would normally give at genuine tea. The invitations go by mail, accompanied by some of the materials for the tea.

Mr. Goldkind made his study by sitting in magistrate's court in the old city hall, talking to police, social workers and prostitutes themselves.

Mr. Goldkind says that the prostitute is convicted under the Criminal Code for what she is, rather than for the commission of a specific act.

As a result, he said police have to record prior acts in order to show that the woman has the personal condition required to get a conviction.

Mr. Goldkind says that one striking feature of the courtroom practice was the apparent familiarity of the Crown and the bench with a number of accused women who had obviously gone through the courts before.

But he says he does not know how the courts can change this situation unless the present legislation is changed.

ANAF News

For the third time this month the members were saddened to receive the news that another old and valued comrade had passed away. He was Cdr. Tom Colden who died suddenly last Wednesday. This has been the saddest period of time the Club has experienced. The President and members extend their sincere sympathy to the late comrade's family.

Cdrs. S. Sperry, J. Semark, Sr. and H. Boyle are recuperating at home. All have been visited and looked after.

Several distinguished and welcome guests visited the Duke of Edinburgh Unit's clubrooms over the weekend. On Friday evening two well known members of Toronto's 48th O.C.A. arrived accompanied by their charming wives. They were sports chairman, Bob Nicholson, and entertainment chairman Herb Sunshall. They were met by President George Christopher and sports chairman Russ Bishop and went into conference about the semi annual sports meet between the two clubs.

After some discussion they decided to finalize their plans on Saturday as the guests could enjoy the regular social evening and renew old friendships. On Saturday afternoon they met again and a probable date of June 15th was reached so the sports minded members are advised to keep this date in mind as the 48th O.C.A. will be guests of the club and they are very tough opponents to beat. In the evening the visitors joined in the Mr. and Mrs. Darts tournament and finished up a weekend they thoroughly enjoyed.

On Saturday evening the official annual visit by the Provincial Command was made by the President Lou Murphy, 2nd Vice President Stan Melbourne and directors Bill Smith and Stu. Robinson, and were met by President George Christopher and several members of the executive. They were joined by Dominion Pres. Ed Lundmark and discussions were then held about matters pertaining to local Provincial and Dominion affairs. These visitors also enjoyed their evening with the Unit after their business was concluded.

The membership chairman Cdr. Bill Salter states that he will have a table set up as often as he can to accept any dues that have not yet been paid. 1967 cards will expire on March 31st and cannot be recognized after that date. Cdr. Bill is hoping to have a big initiation night combined with a sing in late April or May. He reports that the number of new applications is exceeding all expectations and there should be about fifty new members eligible for their initiation by then.

President George Christopher along with Jack Lundberg and Dick Burns visited a number of our Canadian Forces centres-in-in Europe last fall during their trip to attend the World Veterans Federation meetings in Holland and Comrade George took a number of pictures of the last resting place of a number of men from this district. Among them was a young man by the name of George Swan. He would be pleased to pass this picture along to any relatives of this young man.

Food Plant Objects To High Sewage Rates

DESERONTO — Since Metcalfe Foods, Limited, feels that the estimated rate for its using the proposed sewer system is much too high, Deseronto council has written the Ontario Water Resources Commission for permission to proceed with the proposal with normal overstrength. With the canning company excluded, the proposed sewage disposal plant would cut that in size, and thus in cost.

A letter received from the company at its council meeting last week in respect to the sewage rates, advised the council that "the estimated cost figure to the firm is far in excess of the company's ability to absorb in its yearly operation." The letter asked for an early reply to the council's decision.

Before making any estimate as to rates for either households or industry, the council has sought the advice of the OWRC, and, on that advice, had estimated that use of the proposed sewer system would cost Metcalfe Foods, Limited, approximately $30,000 annually.

The general feeling in Deseronto is one of regret that the company feels that it cannot meet the estimated rate submitted to it.

Bonds St. in Deseronto is badly in need of repair. A letter received from the Department of Highways stated that the town forces go ahead with the patching under the advice of the patrolman, Vernon Kinmett, submitting the accounts to him; and then forwarding them to the District Maintenance Engineer for payment presently. It was decided to do this, with cold patching used at present. Deseronto hesitates to spend too much money on its streets, not knowing when sewer construction will make it necessary to tear them up. Dundas St is a connecting link of Highway 2.

NOTICE

CITY OF BELLEVILLE

At the request of the Council of the City of Belleville, the Ontario Water Resources Commission has investigated the possibility of acquiring existing sewage works and installing extensions to these works. The proposed works project is owned by the Province of Ontario and will consist of treatment facilities, a sewage pumping station and forcemain. It is now proposed to acquire the Front Street pumping station and treatment plant and extend the forcemain to the south and fall sewer at an estimated cost of $928,572 and construct such additional works estimated to cost $2,450,000, making a total cost of acquisition and construction of $3,378,572. To recover the cost of the acquisition and construction of the sewage works, it is proposed to impose an estimated service rate of 8 cents per 1,000 gallons for sewage accepted from the municipality.

It is proposed to meet the annual charges for the sewage works as follows: a flat rate charge of $3.00 per month on all domestic water services as well as a mill rate levy of 1.8 mill on the assessed value of all lands within the municipality and in addition a 44 per cent surcharge on all commercial and industrial water services.

On the basis of these levies, a typical home having an assessment of $5,000 would pay the following amounts annually:

Flate rate of $3.00 per month on the water bill	$36.00
1.8 mill on assessment of $5,000	8.00
	$44.00

Any ratepayer may within twenty-one days after the first publication of this notice, send by prepaid post to the Clerk of the City of Belleville, at the address given below, a notice in writing stating his objection to such approval or to the imposition of the said special sewage rate.

The Ontario Municipal Board may approve the said special sewage rate and may approve of the said works, but before doing so it may appoint a time and place for public hearing at which any objections will be considered, but notice of such hearing will be given only to those persons who have given notice of objection as provided for above.

Plans may be inspected at the office of the undersigned during business hours.

DATED AT BELLEVILLE and first published this 25th day of March, 1968.

Date of Second Publication:
Monday, April 1, 1968.

Thousand Prostitutes Busy In Toronto, Our 'Cleanest' City

TORONTO (CP) — A study by a third-year law student at the University of Toronto says that 1,000 prostitutes work daily in Toronto bars and streets and suggests that courts are not strict enough.

The six-month study by Paul Goldkind, 24, says that it appears futile to give prostitutes short jail terms. He adds that prostitutes consider fines as some sort of business tax or license fee.

Mr. Goldkind, however, says that this city is one of the cleanest in North America and adds police have not permitted vice to get a foothold.

He recommends a special treatment centre be set up for prostitutes, similar to the Alcoholism and Drug Addiction Centre.

The study, Mr. Goldkind says, shows that "the prostitute was indeed a most disturbed personality, requiring intensive therapy if change was to be at all possible."

He says that male prostitution is becoming more common and that women become prostitutes mainly to get money for expensive drug and liquor habits.

Rebellious Child Needs Expert Help

By Dr. Joseph G. Molner

Dear Dr. Molner: I just read a letter to you about sending an 8-year-old to bed without dinner . . . after I had sent my 8-year-old to bed without dinner for the first time in his life and I was too upset to settle down and read.

I know sending him to bed wasn't the solution, but at that time I was at my wit's end. Teachers tell us he cannot be trusted to do what he is told. That's nothing we don't already know. We can let him go on, with his watch on, and tell him exactly when to come in, but he never arrives on time.

We tell him to do something and he seems to go to great lengths not to do the opposite. People tell us this is "just a stage," but this is getting hard to believe. How can he still learn responsibility or he won't.

We have paddled him, denied him of his allowance, not allowed him to ride his bicycle, restricted him to the yard or the house, scolded, begged and pleaded. Yet at times he can be a delightful child and often completely frustrated by this 8-year-old.

We wonder if we should take him to a child psychologist, and at times wonder if we are the ones who need counseling. I realize this is more a problem of mental health than physical, but would appreciate your comments. What it does...one do when all else fails? — Mr. and Mrs. D. H. N.

I can't give you any glib answer when a child rebels to this extent — it is a "behavior problem." It requires an expert in child psychology or psychiatry.

You live in a small town which would not have a child guidance clinic — a most useful place to find help in this type of case — but I note that you are not very far from a city which has a well-respected medical school and medical center.

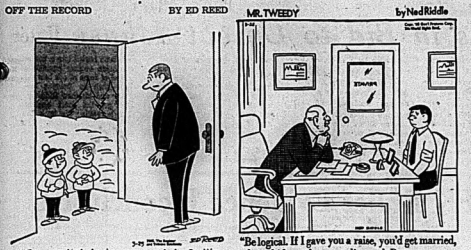
My thought would be to have your own physician (or school physician or counselor if there is one) give you a letter of referral to the department of psychiatry at the medical school.

You suggest that maybe you don't know how to discipline. Maybe so; a psychiatrist or psychologist for a team of the two) may be able to analyze what makes the boy tick, and give you some useful advice as to how to handle him. But I note from your letter that he has constant trouble at school as well as at home. So don't be too quick to blame yourselves. (Too many parents go to the opposite extreme.)

From your letter, I would judge that neither punishment nor giving in to the boy will teach him responsibility. Some deeper quirk is driving him, and you need expert help in discovering what it is and how to handle it.

Dear Dr. Molner: Is there any kind of operation to fix one's ears so they don't stick out? I am 13 and mine have caused me embarrassment most of my life. If something can be done, how would I go about having it done? Would I consult an ear specialist? I am so tired of being called "big ears." — G. E. P.

Yes, something can be done. No, don't go to an ear specialist, who is concerned with the inside, but the visible parts of the ears. Go to your regular physician, and ask him to refer you to a plastic surgeon. Changing the angle of the ears is an operation which is being used regularly.



Dear Dr. Molner: Would eating three bulbs of garlic in one day help bring down high blood pressure? — M. C.

No. But I can't vouch for what it might do to people who smell your breath. That garlic — for blood pressure notion is an old one, with no evidence to support it. There are less aromatic means for controlling blood pressure.

Dr. Molner welcomes all reader mail, but regrets that due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Troops Back Panama President Against Assembly Impeachment

PANAMA (AP) — National guard troops smashed the headquarters of opponents of President Marco A. Robles today and arrested an opposition leader after the National Assembly swore in a new president—an action Robles ignored.

The troops moved in two hours after Arnulfo Arias, twice-deposed former president, called for countrywide civil resistance—understood to mean a general strike—in support of the assembly's decision to convict Robles of unconstitutional political activity and suspend him from office.

A make-or-break showdown seemed imminent. The national guard, the nation's only military force, already had announced it could not obey the assembly decision and it would await an opinion from the Supreme Court, due to re-convene next Monday.

With 12 minority deputies staying away from the impeachment proceedings, the assembly voted 30 to 0 Sunday to convict Robles of charges brought by his opponents—that he influenced the selection of a candidate for the May presidential election, allowed the use of government facilities for political propaganda and hired and fired government employees for political reasons.

Robles is the first vice-president, Max Delvalle, as president and Delvalle named a new cabinet and called the assembly into session to draft reforms in the electoral law.

Crowds of demonstrators opposed to Robles milled in nearby streets.

Throughout Sunday, the opposition appeared unable to marshal a demonstration to equal a pro-government rally held Friday.

Robles contends the assembly has no legal right to impeach him. His supporters have asked the Supreme Court to rule on a lower court injunction against the assembly's proceedings.

The impeachment of Robles was the third such case in Panama's history.

Strictly Personal

Public Favors Poor Books

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

With fascinating predictability, when the general public decides (for one reason or another) to become interested in a serious subject, it invariably picks a poor book to learn it from.

A couple of seasons ago, Robert Ardrey's book, "The Territorial Imperative" became the coffee-table favorite; and a great deal of cocktail-party chatter was devoted to the idea of "territory" as explaining man's combative and aggressive behavior through history.

There is a large and learned literature on territorial behavior, but the Ardrey book was a shallow specimen, which took a narrow idea and tried to stretch it beyond its legitimate use. While it is true that many species are "territory - minded," it is not even true for man's closest relatives among living primates, the gorilla and the chimp, and much less so for us man himself, despite the superficial appearance.

Now the newest best seller is a book called "The Naked Ape," which points out our animal heritage and our similarities to other members of the ape family. The theme of the book is that if we more thoroughly understood ourselves as animals we might diminish our expectations, relax our anxieties, and behave a little less hysterically in the face of personal and social problems.

But "The Naked Ape" is as shallow and one-sided a book as "The Territorial Imperative," in its own way. Its main mistake is the assumption that much human behavior is predicated on our "animal" origin, whereas the really frustrating problems are those that come from our profound differences from other animal species.

Killing, of course, is perhaps the most serious problem. Except for a few strains of ants, other species do not kill one another within the same species; again, our nearest living relatives, the gorillas add the chimps, are remarkably pacifistic and rarely even attack one another physically, much less murder.

As Prof. Marston Bates has put it, there is a streak of meanness in human beings that other animals do not possess; in some way, their behavior is more "rational" than ours — they attack only out of hunger or other basic drives; we attack because of pride, rage, feelings of inferiority, bigotry, snobbishness, boredom, and what not.

It is not the ape within us that makes life hard, but the non-ape. It is that strangely mixed-up mental and emotional structure of man that makes us the cruel predators of the world, not our primate ancestry. Some of our behavior, of course, is animal in origin; but that is the harmless part, as compared to those activities that end in war, in persecution, in despotism, and in mutual self-destruction.

Sydney Omarr's Astrological Forecasts

For March 26

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Much of what occurs today appears clouded — issues are not clear. There is behind - the-scenes activity. You want to leave a project — but realize it has not been completed. Be mature.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Your ability to let others know what you feel, desire is emphasized. Fine new contact proves beneficial. Your hopes and wishes come closer to realities. Have talk with friend.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Public attention comes your way. Know this. Guard against carelessness. Be sure, positive and direct. People ask questions. Answer with sincerity. Then you win.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Travel may be necessary. Important to outline objectives. Some who profess to know answers may, in fact, be puzzled. Find out who, what, where and why. Then, proceed accordingly.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Avoid extravagance. Temptation is to coddle yourself where finances are concerned. Wise path sees you counting your pennies. Those who care are not impressed by foolish spending.

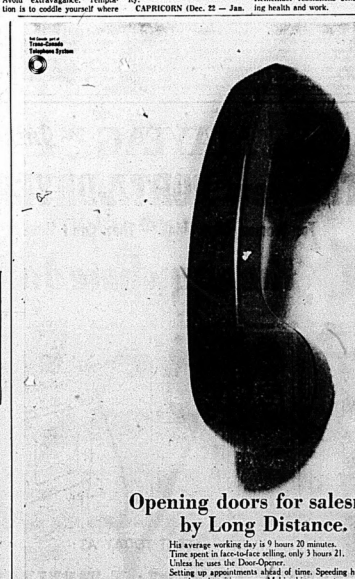
VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Dont be in too much of a hurry. Mate, partner may express viewpoint opposite your own. Defer final decision. Wait and observe — dilemma is due to be solved.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Best to stick to familiar ground. Gain confidence, co-operation of co-workers. Not wise to change re-tine. You are at your best today when you write, speak about special job.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Social contacts important today. Your ability to put over special projects is accented. Personal magnetism rating is high. Opposite sex is attracted — you appear a winner.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Be ultrapractical where land, property enter picture. Study details, check leases. Take long-range view. If perceptive, you could strike a profitable bargain. Accent security.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Don't try to do or say everything at once. Your enthusiasm is wasted if forces are scattered. Concentrate — finish one aspect of project at a time. Then you win friends and gain popularity.



AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Forego path that seems like easy money road. Be original. Stress independence of thought, action. Key to success is creative thought. Ignore one who preaches get-rich-quick scheme.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Many approach you with ideas, questions and problems. Heed your own counsel. Means speak up for what you believe right. An outsider may attempt to change plans. Resist.

If today is your birthday . . . you have ability to earn money, but you must learn to also save it. Opportunity exists during upcoming months to greatly enhance prestige.

General Tendencies: Lunar position favorable for fishing. Cycle high for Pisces, Aries, Taurus. Special word to Libra: Remember resolutions concerning health and work.

Kennedy Turns on Californians in Bid to Unseat Johnson

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Enthusiastic thousands mobbed Senator Robert F. Kennedy on his weekend campaign tours of southern California.

Small children screamed in panic as crowds of jubilant grown-ups pressed around them Sunday to get a good look at the 42-year-old New York Democrat, who seeks to unseat President Johnson as his party's presidential candidate.

As autos moved slowly beside Kennedy's car, occupants reached out to get an autograph or a handshake.

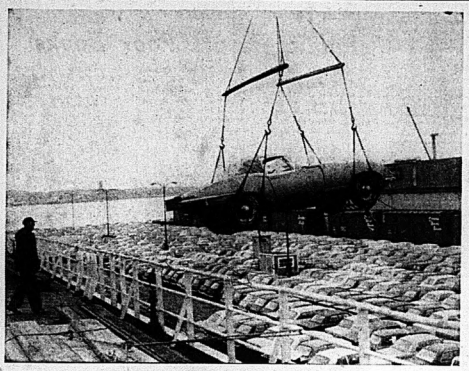
Girls leaped up and down and squealed after getting a signature, a word or a handclasp.

A sweating, shoving crowd pounded his head with their hands and nearly immobilized him when he attempted to leave an amphitheatre where he spoke to more than 10,000 persons Sunday.

When his aides finally got him back to his black convertible, Kennedy fans swarmed over the car, yelling wildly and tugging at his arms until he toppled from the trunk into the back seat-unhurt and seemingly unworried.

Thus Kennedy began his campaign for the June 4 primary in California.

Primaries are mainly a test of public support for politicians seeking party nominations for president. The candidates are chosen at party convention by delegates.



Kennedy's effect on the crowds began to overshadow the words of his speeches, which already have taken on a pronounced similarity from one audience to another.

In an attack on the Johnson administration, Kennedy said in Los Angeles: "For almost the first time the national leadership is calling upon the darker impulses of the American spirit, not, perhaps, deliberately, but through its action and the example it sets—an example where integrity, truth, honor and all the rest seem like words to fill out speeches rather than guiding beliefs."

Kennedy said a dramatic example of what he called "deterioration" is the war in Vietnam.

"More than 500,000 Americans have been hurled into a bottomless Asian swamp against the counsel of some of our best generals, such as Douglas Mac Arthur and Matthew Ridgway."

He got the most applause when he said: "We know that by following the present course we cannot win a military victory—cannot settle the war, and I don't believe that's satisfactory."

More than 1,500 British cars of various makes and models are unloaded in Halifax from the Norwegian car carrier Norbu. The cargo of the Norbu, a converted grain carrier, is part of a stepped-up British car export program to offset a shortage of car exports due to a lack of shipping and labor disputes. The ship will act as a car carrier for the next few months until the shortage is made up. (CP Photo)

JFK Bullet Evidence Inconclusive

NEW YORK (CP) — An article in the Saturday Evening Post says members of the Warren commission investigating the assassination of President John Kennedy tried but failed to see vital autopsy photographs to clarify "confusing" evidence about what bullets struck the president.

In a copyright article, writer David Wise says the commission considered evidence about the bullets "totally inconclusive."

Transcripts of the commission hearings were declassified by the National Archives at Wise's request after being filed as "top secret" for four years.

The article says:

"At the panel's third meeting, on Dec. 16, 1963, several commission members complained that the initial Federal Bureau of Investigation report on the association failed to clear up the question of what bullets struck the president and Texas Governor John Connally."

During the session, commission chairman Chief Justice Earl Warren called the evidence on the bullets "totally inconclusive."

He was supported by committee member John J. McCloy, who said "th's is looming up as the most confusing thing that we've got."

More than four months later, at the April 20, 1964, meeting following testimony by Connally, commission counsel J. Lee Rankin urged that at least one commission member and a doctor should examine the autopsy photographs.

Describing attempts to view these photographs as "perfunctory," the article ads:

"There is no further mention of the autopsy photos in the classified transcripts. The commission never saw them."

It was the Warren commission which determined on the basis of its evidence that Lee Harvey Oswald acted alone in assassinating Kennedy in Dallas in 1963.

The Post article contends that doctors who had performed a autopsy on Kennedy's body drew sketches for the Warren commission, filmed autopsy

Subliminal Slogan Technique Feared in Use by Commercial TV

MONTREAL (CP) — A British political warfare expert talked Sunday of the "insidious danger" to human rights of messages you cannot hear and slogans you cannot see.

In an interview, Lord Ritchie-Calder of Edinburgh said it is within the capacity of present technological knowledge to use "subliminal and brainwashing" techniques to direct thinking by sneak attacks on the subconscious.

He is attending a six-day meeting of human rights experts which began Friday.

Lord Ritchie-Calder was director of plans for political warfare in the foreign office during the Second World War. Officially he did not exist, so secret was his work.

"One project on which I worked at that time involved the use of slogans printed on colored bands. A slogan on a red band might have a yellow band superimposed, then it was run through a projector at 24 frames a second.

"The effect was that the slogan disappeared as the screened image became a gental grey," he said.

"The idea was to show it in German cinemas to make the population hate Hitler or to lower their belief in winning the war but we didn't get round to using it for this.

"What happens is that the eye does not see the message but it registers it in the brain and the subconscious absorbs the implication.

"It is my belief that this technique is being used by some advertisers on television today, although this is generally denied.

"You can tell it is being used if the color bands slip causing a slight fuzzing effect. When I was in California recently I was sure I saw this on some commercials."

Another unknown danger was the use of ultrasonic waves.

"Sounds in frequencies above the normal hearing range, like dog whistles, can be beamed constantly at a listener, registering on his subconscious and forming an impression," he said.

"These subliminal methods already are being used in psychiatric treatment under the rationalization that it is the same idea as hypnosis. My fear is that we are too ready to accept ace in these rationalizations.

"I am also afraid that such techniques could be used by unscrupulous persons over something as respectable as the CBC without the knowledge of the network. The only real way to ascertain if such methods are in use is to see advertisements and programs being prepared at source.

"The third fear I have is that such methods could be used for political reasons to indoctrinate a population.

"Constant vigilance is our only protection against such intrusions."

Spring Spirits Sweetly Soar in Sunshine

By DON MacKENZIE
Staff Reporter

Springtime . . . and the livin' is easy — at least as long as the temperatures keep at the point they reached today in Belleville.

Even with clouds above, the mercury pushed its way up to 55 degrees and it is expected to reach this level again tomorrow.

Even with the variable cloudiness and possible thunder showers that are also forecast, spirits are still soaring as high as the mercury.

The female population may be a little disappointed that they can't provide a preview of new Easter fashions without getting them wet but at least new raincoats will get some use.

And good news for the mariners . . . the ice breaker Simcoe is on its way from Prescott and will be coming up the Bay of Quinte to help speed up nature's spring thaw.

Increased activity has been noticed at the marinas in town. Bay Marina reports that, although it is still a little early in the season, there has been an increase in activity at the yards.

Belleville Marine Yards Ltd. also feels that it is still a little early in the season. "It is usually around mid-April when the fever really hits," says Ian Morch.

Still, there have been quite a few boat-owners going down to the yards to examine their boats to find out what has to be done to make them seaworthy for another season.

Belleville merchants have noticed an influx of shoppers looking at the bright summer fashions but it is also a little too early for them. "Mostly still window shopping," said one glumly. It was followed up with a smile though . . . "But just wait until next month."

Local children are turning into sunshine supermen transforming railings into slides and fences into tightropes.

"It's springtime," said one enthusiastically, "I must be getting out of school soon."

He may have been wrong about school but everybody's hoping the part about spring is going to finally hold true.

France Calls For Gold Rule

BRUSSELS (AP) — With three days until the Stockholm conference that seeks final accord on "paper gold" as international credit, France called today for a conference to create a monetary system ruled by real gold.

"France, however, was completely isolated," Dutch Finance Minister Hendrik Witteveen said after French Finance Minister Michel Debre argued his point at a dinner here Monday night.

Debre told his colleagues from the Common Market countries that special drawing rights on the International Monetary Fund were not a solution to the world monetary crisis. The drawing rights are called "paper gold."

Debre said that instead, the official price of gold should be raised and a new monetary system set up with gold supreme.

Replying to Debre Monday night, however, Italian Treasury Minister Emilio Schiller said the two-price gold market and the system of drawing rights could function quite well.

Industrial Wastes In Quinte Watched

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

TORONTO — The Ontario Water Resources Commission still will prosecute any industry directly emptying polluted waste into the Bay of Quinte.

But municipalities will still be directly responsible for protecting their own disposal systems against industrial pollution.

That's the explanation today after local municipal representatives reacted with mixed feelings to remarks here yesterday by OWRC chairman Dr. J. A. Vance.

Fears that the OWRC was shifting the onus for industrial pollution control in the Bay were sparked during debate between Dr. Vance and a Trenton public utilities official at the annual meeting of the Ontario Municipal Water Association.

Today Dr. R. T. Potter, MPP Quinte, said here that what first appeared a shift in government policy was merely a matter of misinterpretation.

At yesterday's meeting the Trenton official complained the OWRC was not as severe with industry as with municipalities in pollution control.

He said complaints to the OWRC about industrial pollution of the Bay of Quinte brought a reply that the analysis commission should take ask a writ against those responsible.

"It would be a warrant to close the plants down — and how long would we last?" asked the official.

Dr. Vance said all municipalities should have their own industrial waste bylaws.

"Who controls the industrial wastes going into your disposal systems?" Dr Vance retorted. "We've urged these bylaws as one control."

Trenton was told to take action at the municipal level instead of waiting for the OWRC to "take off the gloves and get tough."

Dr. Potter, checking the situation in Toronto today, said Dr. Vance's remarks should not be construed as a shift in government policy.

The OWRC official minister-preted the question, he said. "Dr. Vance's reply had nothing to do with wastes going directly into the Bay of Quinte. The OWRC still is responsible for policing disposal of industrial wastes directly deposited in the Bay of Quinte.

"It will take legal action against any industry passing waste into the Bay itself," he said.

However, municipalities would still be responsible for pollution being passed directly into their own sewage disposal systems.

"What Dr. Vance was talking about doesn't change standing practices," explained Dr. Potter.

Trade Deal to Assist Poor Lands Hits Snag

NEW DELHI (Reuters) — A plenary session of the United Nations Conference on Trade and Development, called to discuss a deal to narrow the gap between the world's rich and poor nations, was cancelled two minutes before it was scheduled to open today.

The developing countries today approved the deal which covered preferences and aid targets, after it was hammered out by conference negotiators in the early hours of the morning.

The success or failure of the eight-week conference of 122 states was considered to hinge on approval of the deal by the developing, developed and Communist nations represented.

No official explanation was given for cancellation of the plenary session. But a spokesman for the developing countries said he understood the developed countries objected to the inclusion in the preference declaration of a clause to provide special treatment for the least-developed countries.

The plenary session was previously extended for 4 hours especially to get the deal pushed through.

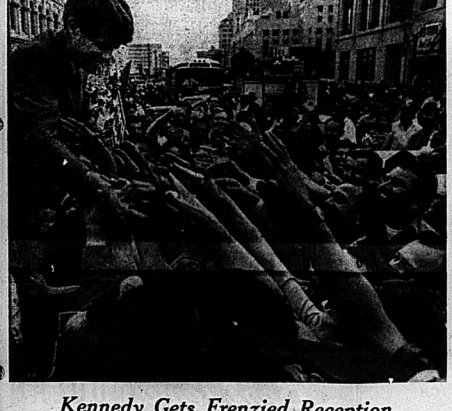
Philippines Said Plotting Invasion

MANILLA (AP) — A Philippines army recruit testified in the Senate today that a secret special forces camp on the island of Corregidor was designed to train troops to infiltrate the Malaysian state of Sabah.



The case came to light when newspapers reported that 10 to 60 recruits had been shot down after a mutiny in the camp last week and a congressional inquiry was launched. An army report at the time said three mutinous trainees were killed.

Talk of White Racism Held Over-emphasized

WASHINGTON (AP) — Wilbert J. Cohen, nominated by President Johnson to be secretary of health, education and welfare, says the White House riot commission's report overemphasizes "white racism."

Vice-President Hubert H. Humphrey has made a similar comment about the report. But the head of an administration anti-poverty program contended racism exists in and has been encouraged by the white churches of America.

Cohen told a press conference Monday: "I've thought a good deal about that term 'white racism? It bothers me good deal because I think you could also say there is black racism and brown racism and red racism."

He said he doubts that the commission's use of the term "white racism" is helpful.

The national advisory commission on civil disorders said in its report earlier this month that "white racism" was a basic factor in the riots that have torn the big U.S. cities in recent summers.

Cohen said: "I wish some of the energy that has gone into rioting had gone into efforts by the rioters for self improvement.

LBJ Promised Labor Backing

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson has won promises of solid U.S. labor support for his re-election and left little doubt he intends to seek another term.

"We do intend to stand here as long as we can stand here," he said Monday night. "And fight for what is right."

Johnson dropped the hint on his political aims during an unannounced visit to the second annual farm policy and rural life conference.

The promises of labor support came earlier at a legislative conference of several thousand AFL-CIO building and construction trades delegates.

AFL-CIO President George Meany said the 14,000,000-member labor federation will support Johnson for re-election despite his Vietnam war policy critics.

"I don't think we're going to turn our back on a friend," Meany said. "Labor will discharge its obligations."

Kennedy Gives Views

Viet Cong Must Be Given Voice

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Senator Robert F. Kennedy said today the Viet Cong—despite "brutal acts of terrorism"—must be granted a role in Vietnam's political life if the war is to be settled.

The United States, he said, must "recognize the powerful force of Vietnamese nationalism" if it wants to end the conflict.

Launching his campaign for Oregon's May 28 presidential primary, President Johnson's challenger from New York detailed the elements he said are essential to attaining peace in Vietnam.

The primary will test Kennedy's popularity with registered Democratic voters against other Democratic presidential hopefuls. The presidential candidate will be chosen at a national party convention by delegates.

Johnson's handling of the Vietnam war and U.S. unrest over the war are the cornerstones of his drive to unseat the president at the Democratic national convention in August.

"What we are doing," he told a Portland reception Monday night, "is taking on the old political system . . . taking on the establishment." In trying to break the tradition that an incumbent president is re-nominated.

Pearson Expected To Quit in April

OTTAWA (CP) — How soon after a new Liberal leader is elected April 6 will he take over the reins of government from Prime Minister Pearson?

Mr. Pearson has said he is willing to give up his job to the new man the day after the leadership convention, if his successor wants it that way.

But current betting is that the changeover will not take place for two weeks after the convention—and many people think the best bets are being put on either April 22 or April 23.

On April 22 this year, Mr. Pearson—if he is still in office —will celebrate his fifth anniversary as prime minister. Many observers think he would like to finish out the fifth year before handing over the office to his successor.

And April 23 will be Mr. Pearson's 71st birthday. He first announced his intention to retire last December to his wife, on her birthday, and some think he'd like to step out of office on his own.

Electric Club Sponsors Exhibit

Electricity is far from static.

Even if it is an invisible force, there's still more to it than meets the eye.

For one thing, it still supplies most of the power that keeps the day-to-day world turning.

And, as man and his world become increasingly complex, it also supplies versatile answers to sophisticated problems.

This week, Quinte-area residents have an opportunity to finally view some visible proof of just how diverse is the medium's potential.

Tonight, it will turn the spotlight on electricity at a special three-night show in Belleville.

Sponsored by the Quinte District Electric Club, the exhibition at the Tiki Club — is planned to do more than spark interest in electric power.

"The idea is to demonstrate to the public what the electric world is all about," a club official says by way of simplified explanation. "And it isn't just a promotion. It's to bring the public up to date on standards and equipment in the industry and impress upon the people that electricity holds for modern living."

To that end, manufacturers, contractors, Ontario Hydro and local public utilities officials will be on hand.

While the show will contain a multitude of electrical displays, there'll also be plenty of opportunity for discussion.

The industry's representatives will be on hand to talk to and advise consumers on prospects and problems.

"Electricity provides convenience, comfort and exhilaration in modern living and this is a home-show in a sense," says the official.

Among its other adaptations, electricity has been pressed into service from simple waterheating to warming patios and swimming pools for use beyond the summer months.

Artistically, it does more than light a front porch. Suitably selected electric-lighting can enhance landscaping.

These and many other potential uses for power can be discussed with the experts at the show. Films and demonstrations will aid further. And, as added attractions, there are door prizes nightly plus entertainment.

For the ladies, not bothered with such problems as insulation, wiring standards and designs, there'll be home-cooking demonstrations.

The show will be given a civic-opening at 3 p.m.

60 Junior Horticulturists Visit Bush

Cold, blustery weather didn't dampen the enthusiasm of 60 members of the Junior Horticultural Society as they toured the maple sugar bush at Moira. They were the guests of the Moira River Conservation Authority under the guidance of Sandy Griswold, field officer.

Members viewed the form of Mr. Collins of Moira. At the sugar bush they saw many trees being tapped, the vats holding the trees' sap, the evaporators which are used in the processing of maple syrup.

The juniors are preparing to enter the Ontario Horticultural Association competitions to be held in Windsor in June. One tests include a vegetable zoo. This entry will consist of two animals made from vegetables, foliage or seeds and a junior garden club display to feature a conservation, beautification, or horticultural project of the club during the past year.

This summer the juniors will also be growing strawflowers for the Ontario competitions at the Royal Winter Fair. This collection will consist of five strawflowers (b l o o m s or sprays) grown from seed and dried by the exhibitor. Strawflower seeds will be distributed to the members in time for early spring planting.

Members will also collect three sprays of treated leaves. The collection may consist of one, two or three different varieties. The leaves are to have been treated in a way as to preserve their natural beauty.

Public School Board Unable To Raise Quorum for Meeting

The Belleville public school board didn't meet last night.

Only three of the seven trustees showed up for a meeting which was scheduled to begin at seven o'clock so chairman Arrowsmith Smith was forced to cancel proceedings because he didn't have a quorum.

Normally eight members sit on the board but trustee William Townson quit last month in order to comply with changes in the school administration act.

Those in attendance at the board office were chairman Smith and trustees Mrs. Milan Graham and Harvey E. Bronson.

Chairman Smith said board member Jack McFarlane was in New York City while three other members of the board — Walter Galt, Gerald Brennan and Max Haggarty — were vacationing in Florida.

The date for this month's meeting was decided at the last board meeting on Feb. 19. At that time all members agreed the March 26 meeting date would not interfere with anyone's schedule.

The only member absent from the last meeting was trustee Walter Galt.

Generally the board meets on the third Monday of every month but during discussion at last month's meeting the date was advanced by one week. All members agreed to the change.

Public school superintendent Lawrence Kells mailed the agenda for the March 25 meeting on March 20. In his agenda Mr. Kells states committee meetings commence at seven o'clock but no time is listed for the regular board meeting.

Usually the board procedures, which are open to the public, begin at eight o'clock.

Items on the agenda for the meeting included discussion on a brief to the premier of Ontario, several resignations and a discussion on a statement to the legislature by W. G. Davis, minister of education.

The regular board business also had to be held over until the next meeting.

No delegations were on hand at the meeting.

Perhaps indicative of the shortage of board members was the fact that, for the first time this year, it was listed on the agenda that four trustees are required for a quorum.

The board were also to select a trustee to replace Mr. Townson at last night's proceedings.

Proposed Amalgamation Of School Board Outlined

PICTON (Staff) — A group of some 50 home and school members, township Council members, and a scattering of ratepayers turned out last night at North Marysburgh Central School to hear Mr. P. H. Torrance ,assistant regional superintendent of the Department of Education from Kingston, explain some of the misconceptions concerning the new larger units of administration and the guiding principles behind the proposed legislation to amalgamate county school boards.

Mr. Torrance, explained a Bill to amend the Secondary schools and Boards of Education Act, which has now had it's first reading and will be included as part of the act.

The part states, he said, a provision for such matters as the number of trustees required for each division, their distribution among the municipalities, the manner and mode of their election including the elimination of appointment of trustees, the arbitration of assets and liabilities of existing boards, the sharing of costs of the divisional board among the component municipalities, the issuing of debentures by the board, and for a clear dilineation on the tax bill between municipal and educational costs.

"Larger administrative organizations in the new school system, will not guarantee better education, but it will make improvement possible," Mr. P. H. Torrance told a meeting of Home and School members at North Marysburgh Central School last night. "Quality," he said, "still comes from school boards, teachers, etc. Principals and staff will still be in the schools, you as members of home and school will still have a report with the system and the care, of the student will still be there." The new Bill will not mean the elimination of the school itself. "We don't wish it to lose its identity," he said. "Local people," Mr. Torrance continued, "are of the opinion when they have larger organizations they will have reduced costs. This is not necessarily true. Costs may not be reduced but with so many new services costs do not really go down. It may cost a little but the student will get a better education.

Mr. Torrance went on to cover the advantages of the larger units, that they will open new vistas, new spans for guidance. He stressed new sound planning and development, more efficiency in transport systems, and more flexible programs. Mr. Torrance outlined the equalization of costs, the guiding principles behind the current proposed legislation and the aid will provide in the equality of educational opportunity.

Referring to Prince Edward County Mr. Torrance said the new board would be called the Board of Education for the County of Prince Edward. That the new board would accept all assets and liabilities from the old boards. Pupils, he stressed, have the right to attend schools in another division with mutual agreement by both boards concerned. Mr. Torrance was introduced to the meeting by Mrs. John Hand and thanked by Mrs. Roy Wight.

Belleville Driver Injured

PICTON (Staff) — A 22-year-old Belleville man, Cecil Crawford of 158 Front St. was hospitalized in Prince Edward Memorial Hospital Saturday night suffering a mild concussion, facial lacerations and bruises.

The accident occurred about 9.50 p.m. at Pozzatti's Creek, the scene of a similar accident in which Laird Adams, Deputy Mayor of Ameliasburgh was involved a week or so ago.

OPP of the Picton detachment said that the Crawford car left the road at the start of the curve, ran up the shoulder behind the guard rails and crashed into a tree. There was no one else in the car with Crawford at the time of the accident and the 1966 convertible he was driving was considered a write-off yesterday, the conditions according to police who investigated were poor, with icy roads and snowflurries fanned by a high wind.

Crippled Children At Rotary

The Ontario Society for Crippled Children, through the sale of Easter Seals by 231 participating service clubs, hopes to raise $1,400,000 for its work on behalf of some 18,000 handicapped children on its books.

However, as John Butler, supervisor of Easter Seal Service Club Relations, told Belleville Rotarians yesterday, the society will be operating on a deficit.

This year it will spend $2,250,000.

Despite the cost of treatment and research Mr. Butler said there was no thought of cutting back on the quality of assistance given, or on staff. Provincial government grants will still be available even when Medicare comes into effect.

Of the thalidomide children who were born without limbs due few years ago, Mr. Butler said the society actually had been treating this form of dysplasia since 1950. However, the rash of cases resulting from use of the drug thalidomide by expectant mothers, had spurred research into more efficient artificial limbs.

This had led to the development of electronically operated limbs and wheelchairs costing much more than conventional equipment. One little girl injured in a farm accident now has two of the new-type artificial arms and is able to go to school and feed and dress herself with their aid.

Miss Hilda Lane of the Ontario Society for Crippled Children in Belleville and some of the young people in her charge were guests at the Rotary lunch.

In Or on Ice

Either way, this Volkswagen stranded out in the middle of East Lake in Prince Edward County has fooled a lot of people who thought some unfortunate person almost got drenched, and at any rate are fast losing a car. The truth is that car is merely a shell without engine or wheels and that it made an excellent fishing hut.

Ice Breaker Simcoe Opens Picton Channel

PICTON (Staff) — Picton may soon see the harbor open and the first ships of the season arriving. A lane through the ice was provided last Thursday when the ice breaker Simcoe entered local waters after opening a channel for the Amherst Island Ferry. The government motorship broke the ice to the docks of Marmoraton Mining Co. and Lake Ontario Cement Co. just east of Picton.

It is expected the first ship in this year will be the Cement carrier "Metis" due around the 3rd or 4th of April. The first vessel last year entered the Picton harbor about the same time. Capt. James Haylock in charge of operations of Glenora Ferries said that icing conditions have not been too bad in the slips at Ferry docks at both Glenora and Adolphustown. "It all depends on the winds, he said, if we're favored with good winds we may have no trouble at all this year."

Troops Experience Bad Weather

PICTON (Staff) — Though balloons were much in evidence on Point Petre this weekend it was far from a birthday party for some 250 troops who were on the ranges there.

Troops of the combined forces of Princess of Wales Regiment from Kingston, The Queen's Own Rifles from Toronto and the famous Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment were participating in a joint exercise in some of the worst weather the area has experienced this winter. Driving winds whipped snow, like hail, across the point, while numb fingers and unsteady rifles as well as targets were the main obstacles the troops encountered.

This was the first of a number of exercises in the field for Ontario elements of the Mobile Command Reserve Force. Further courses of a more complex nature are to follow.

The balloons were used by the troops for the first time on this exercise and firing of small arms was carried out from ranges of 100 yds. and 500 yds. The moving balloons presented a weird and elusive enemy for the troops fire practice.

Balloons were shaped roughly in the form of a man's torso and from 100 yds looked quite realistic. Night firing exercises were to be carried out Saturday night but weather conditions would not permit this to be continued.

Troops on the exercise were under the direction of Lt./Col. M. C. "Bud" Taylor and second in command was Major Phil Hagerman, both from Petawawa, Ont. Troops of the 1st Battalion the Canadian Guards stood by to supervise and score the operation.

If you own 1959 Canada Savings Bonds

Here's a special offer just for you.

The Government of Canada has created a special new high-yielding security for the advance refunding of 1959 Canada Savings Bonds. These Special Replacement Bonds will be dated May 1, 1968, and will mature in 10 years 5 months on October 1, 1978. They will be available only in exchange for an equal amount of 1959 Canada Savings Bonds, and not for cash. Their average annual yield to maturity will be 6.88%. They will retain all the standard features which have made Canada Savings Bonds the most popular investment in Canada's history. This includes the right to cash them any time at any bank for full face value plus earned interest.

In addition, Special Replacement Bonds offer the opportunity to double your money. If you choose not to cash your regular interest coupons during the life of the bond, 3 Compound Interest Certificates then become payable for a total of $280.00 extra (on each $1,000.00 bond). This amount plus your regular interest coupons doubles your money.

You can take advantage of this compound interest feature in various ways.

And that's not all. There will be two Prepayment Coupons, cashable May 1, 1968, attached to each Special Replacement Bond. They represent the 6 months' interest already earned by your old bond and the prepayment of the 3% non-taxable premium originally due November 1, 1968. On a $1,000.00 bond, these two Prepayment Coupons will be worth a total of $55.00.

The exchange procedure is simple. Take your 1959 Canada Savings Bonds to your bank, authorized investment dealer, trust or loan company. They will make all arrangements for you. Ask them about the other features of Special Replacement Bonds including the convenient denominations, and the availability of both coupon and fully registered forms.

Exchange your 1959 Canada Savings Bonds for the new high-yielding Special Replacement Bonds. Don't delay. This offer expires on May 15, 1968.

How to recognize your 1959 Canada Savings Bonds

There are two simple identifications to note. First, the serial number in red in the upper corner of each bond is preceded by "B14" in black. Second, the name of the issue, "Canada Savings Bond" "1959 Series" is shown immediately below the serial number.

Fickle Fame

When a man gets into the public eye, by some curious fate peculiar to the Canadian scene his fame is often associated with reference to his full name.

The federal justice minister for instance is no longer plain Pierre Trudeau but rather Pierre Elliott Trudeau. Ever since Mr. Trudeau became a leading light in the Liberal party leadership race he has been getting the full-name treatment.

It is like those painstaking background talks CBC announcers present before a concert performance. Thus, instead of referring to the celebrated 17th century composed Bach as just plain "Bach" announcers speak of Johann Sebastian Bach. Similarly, someone like the great conductor Toscanini, easily identified by that name alone, becomes Arturo Toscanini.

And yet if fame comes quickly in politics, obscurity can descend with equal certainty with the passage of time and circumstances. Ask anyone today to name Mr. Trudeau's predecessor and they might have difficulty.

His name: Lucien Cardin, whose name was constantly before the public as the Government's main spokesman during the Munsinger spy scandal about 18 months ago.

During that prolonged debate Mr. Cardin's long-standing political feud with John Diefenbaker, then leader of the Opposition, broke out again. When it was all over Mr. Cardin retired, evidently weary of the slings and arrows of political life.

It may be there are others like him, who long for escape from the heat of political battle, yet know in their hearts that to step down would be no solution but rather a form of dying.

Some retire anyway — as the prime minister is planning to do. And speaking of names, Mr. Pearson of course is known universally as Lester Pearson. But how many know him by his full name of Lester Bowles Pearson? Or name the country's first prime minister . . . the legendary Sir John A Macdonald of course. Not just plain "John," but "John A," and of course a knighthood to boot. Yes names makes news, and some more than others.

Nuclear Power

Britain, while appearing to muddle along in permanently straitened circumstances, still has its sights on a better future.

Sir Winston Churchill said something to the effect that Britons had not come so far down the centuries "because we are made of sugar candy." The country still makes its way in the world, its people cheerful and inventive as ever.

A short news item the other day was typical of this characteristic. It was from London and it said simply that Britain, deeply committed to nuclear power, plans a fresh search for uranium within its own borders.

The report did not say of course is that Britain leads the world in the peaceful use of nuclear energy, and that the need of more uranium is likely to further progress in this field.

Currently Britain gets most of its uranium from Canada, Australia and South Africa. In a world in which war and rumors of war remain one of the facts of life, further progress in the peaceful uses of this awesome power is something that should not go unnoticed.

Airline Fashions

Airlines do big business — and when it comes to stealing a march over a competitor style and appearance can make quite a difference.

Most of the world's leading airlines use the same type of aircraft, with U.S., British and French makes predominating. Thus, when it comes to "one-upmanship" the quality of inflight service and the appearance and manners of the cabin crew are important factors.

Stewardesses for instance are presenting a new look in uniforms. Girls from one United States airline recently modelled the latest in airline fashions in New York.

These included a gold paper mini dress without sleeves and a ruffled standup collar; a long black "penthouse pajama" outfit with speckles of silver lame and sash to match, a white paper Roman toga in red and green, and a fourth outfit was a beruffled paper mini jumper.

That's how it is on the airline fashion scene at the moment. The mini outfits should find favor with the girls, but how would they carry trays of food and drink along the aisle wearing that penthouse dress?

Separatist Executives Have an "in" to Privy Council

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — "What, Ottawa worry?

About Quebec separatism? Don't be silly!

The rest of the country may be more or less concerned about the drive in Quebec for separation, which, was increasing numbers of French-Canadians daily gains momentum.

But not the national capital.

To fret over separatism would lose to do something about it, just would not be permissive.

And unless you are permissive, you are not sophisticated, perhaps not even politically clever.

How permissive must you be to meet the standards of toleration required, apparently, for membership in the "in crowd?"

Permissive enough, it turns out now, to go understandingly along with the employment of executives of the separatist movement in, of all surprising places, special divisions of the privy council office, which just happens to come under the authority of the prime minister.

In the privy council science secretariat, to be specific, one of the precise 2 hands set up by the prime minister himself . . . and by personally-appointed royal commission on bilingualism and biculturalism.

But the prime minister's own department, it turns out, is only haven in official Ottawa for separatist officers.

There is a unit at Ottawa city hall.

He is Frederic Cote, assistant city solicitor, to name names.

He was suspended for a week when it was discovered he had been using city of Ottawa letter head and office equipment to pump out publicity for Quebec separatist Rent Levesque's Le Movement Souverainiste - Association on behalf of half time.

His separatist publicity handouts listed the name of Richard Leday as one of Rene Levesque's "chief co-ordinators" who could be reached at federal government telephone number 996-1610.

That number was one of several listed for the privy council science secretariat and Richard Leday turned out to be under a research contract there.

He has since left the prime minister's department, but the privy council office was at pains to announce there had been "no pressure" on Richard Leday to resign his research contract with its science secretariat.

In fact, added privy council officials, this departure took nothing to do with either his separatist activities, or the secretariat.

There was a second name on Mr. Cote's list, that of Francois Dorlot, one of Rene Levesque's separatist "policy co - ordinators" who could be reached at federal government phone number 995-0075.

That number was one of several at the royal commission on bilingualism and biculturalism where Francois Dorlot was employed — and perhaps still is — as an editorial assistant.

Officially designated spokesmen at the "in and ki commission" reported that he "has not been asked to resign," although he has "discussed the matter with his superiors."

To have fired or even politely requested the resignation of either Dorlot or Leday, the privy council office let it be known, would have been to "restrict their political activities."

It is still a free country.

Even for separatist executives on the public payroll as employes of the prime minister's privy council office special agencies.

Mustn't be mean to separatists, even if they are being paid by the country they are trying to divide.

It simply would not be permissive.

Or decently tolerant.

Not in the privy council's view of things, anyway.

But don't despair entirely of Ottawa, this strange "land of the afternoon," as it is often called.

For Parliament is digging into this separatist can of worms, even if the privy council won't.

Conservative MP Richard Bell for Carleton has asked 12 pointed questions of the prime minister's privy council office, listing them officially on the Commons order paper.

They include such pertinent points as:

Had these (separatists) permission to use government phones. . .if so, under what conditions. . . if not, what action is being taken regarding their past and future use for purposes of Quebec independence.

Were federal services and facilities other than phones used to promote the separatist movement . . . if so, what . . . and was permission requested or granted.

Has any disciplinary action been taken . . . if so, what and when?

The anyer to all three, it turns out, is no.

Freedom of the Press
The Public's Right to Know

Kingston Whig-Standard

Action of a magistrate in a Guelph court who ordered a newspaper not to print the name of a man convicted of an offence strikes at the very root of freedom of the press. Such freedom of course, is the freedom of the public to know what is going on in the field of public affairs.

Newspapers are the eyes and ears of the public: in fact, newspapers are the public. The press has access to the court in order to the public how the administration of justice is being discharged. It is safeguard for the public the right of all to fair trial in open court.

Fortunately, the Crown Attorney at Guelph personally released the man's name for publication later.

The magistrate's order that the name of this particular person was not to be published because it would hurt the feelings of the man's family is ridiculous. This man had been found guilty for the second time of driving while impaired. His concern for feelings of his family apparently developed only after he had been caught in a breach of the law.

However, that is really rather beside the point which is, simply, the public must never be denied its right to know merely at the whim of a magistrate or any other public servant.

Today In History

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

March 26, 1968 . . .

Louis Riel proclaimed independence of his Metis republic and led a second rebellion, 79 years ago—in 1885. In 1869, Riel became president of Comite national des Metis and set up his own government at Fort Garry, Man. The Red River Rising, as it was called, was suppressed and Riel fled. When the second revolt at Batoche, Sask., failed, Riel gave himself up for trial on charges of treason and was hanged Nov. 16, 1885, in Regina.

1823—Sarah Bernhardt died.

1945—David Lloyd George died.

First World War

Fifty years ago today—in 1918—Gen. Ferdinand Foch took over supreme command of Allied forces on the Western Front; German troops were checked west of Roye and Noyon, but made gains south of Peronne; British rounded Turkish forces in Mesopotamia and took 3,000 prisoners.

Second World War

Twenty-five years ago—in 1943—RAF and RCAF bombers raided Duisburg and other targets in the Ruhr Valley, losing four bombers, two of which were Canadian; the Canadian Army overseas adopted a new style battle helmet similar to that worn by U.S. forces' tanks on the railway station annexation of Danzig.

Abortion
The Law Is Not Being Observed

Ottawa Journal

Whatever the final decision on proposed changes in the law covering abortion, Justice Minister Trudeau has made plain the present situation cannot continue.

The law is not being observed. The minister noted in a statement that it was reported last year that on a number of Toronto hospitals abortions were being performed "upon considerations relating to the health of expectant mothers." He adds that "it is a fact such abortions are performed in hospitals in other parts of Canada as well."

The law, as laid down in Section 237 of the Criminal Code states:

"Every one who, with intent to procure the miscarriage of a female person, whether or not she is pregnant, uses any means for the purpose of carrying out his intention is guilty of an indictable offence and is liable to imprisonment for life."

A proposed amendment to the code, contained in a bill introduced by Trudeau, would limit the scope of the offence so that a qualified doctor who procured a miscarriage for a patient would not be guilty of an offence if the therapeutic abortion committee of a hospital said that continuation of the pregnancy would be likely to endanger the life of the woman.

Vigorous opinions for and against changes in abortion law have been heard by the Commons Health and Welfare committee and much more will be heard before final action is taken by Parliament. The two principles are (1) that a woman should have the absolute right to decide whether she wishes to bear a child and (2) that abortion at any point after conception is a form of murder.

The MPs, and Canadians at large, should want to hear the evidence of clergymen, doctors, lawyers and others concerned before final decisions on a change in the law are made.

The Key Is Co-operation

Vancouver Province

To most Canadians, the spectacle becomes one of both Ottawa and Quebec slicing off their noses to spite the other's face. Canada has the diplomatic and financial resources to benefit a French commonwealth, and Quebec has the cultural resources. Surely it must be obvious to both sides that this is one area where co-operation means mutual benefit.

Liberal Leadership Candidates Assess Their Support

By DENNIS ORCHARD

OTTAWA CP — Five of the eight cabinet ministers seeking the Liberal leadership have at least some declaration of support from other ministers.

They regard this backing as important to their status as candidates and to their campaign organizations. They are preparing gaestly for new allies.

A commitment is a risky matter for a cabinet non-candidate. All 26 ministers are expected as a matter of courtesy and tradition to tender their resignations to the new leader and prime minister after he is chosen April 6.

To back a loser may be to increase chances of being banished to the back benches. To stay silent is to suggest timidity, which might be equally suspect.

Justice Minister Trudeau has captured three ardent supporters from the cabinet and at the moment leads the pack.

Transport Minister Hellyer has two ministers publicly on his side and two others with declarations.

No one from the cabinet has announced support for Health Minister MacEachen, Agriculture Minister Greene or Consumer Affairs Minister Turner, and it is regarded as likely that no one will.

The count:

Mr. Trudeau: Manpower Minister Marchand and Treasury Board President Benson are co-chairmen of his campaign. Bryce Mackasey, minister without portfolio, is working actively for him.

Mr. Hellyer: Both Defence Minister Cadieux and State Secretary Le Marsh have announced support.

Finance Minister Sharp: Revenue Minister Chretien is his only cabinet supporter at the moment. Mines Minister Pepin is reported torn between Mr. Sharp and Mr. Trudeau. Mr. Pepin is a former parliamentary secretary to the finance minister and one of his own prominent organizers is working for Mr. Sharp.

External Affairs Minister Martin: Forestry Minister Sauve announced Thursday he will work for Mr. Martin. Mr. Sauve has been saying for months that the Liberals should pick an English-speaking leader at a time of difficult constitutional negotiations.

But veteran observers had predicted Mr. Sauve would wait until he could pick a winner. They regard his announcement as a studied conclusion that Mr. Martin will be the next prime minister.

Trade Minister Winters: Postmaster-general Cote is for him. Mr. Winters hopes for support from Works Minister McIlraith, but Mr. McIlraith is uncommitted so far and Mr. Sharp and Mr. Hellyer also hope to win him over.

Little is known about the leanings of other cabinet members. Solicitor-General Pennell may be appointed to the bench by Prime Minister Pearson before the convention.

Senator John Connolly, government leader in the Senate, and a cabinet member, may turn up in Mr. Sharp s camp.

Industry Minister Drury is friendly to both Mr. Sharp and Mr. Turner, and Veterans Affairs Minister Mcllraith is a possible Hellyer supporter.

It is uncertain whether declarations in anyone's favor will come from Fisheries Minister Robichaud or Minister Without Portfolio Charles Granger, named to the cabinet just before his Newfoundland byelection victory last fall.

Belleville Charitable Organizations Agree to Review Board

Belleville's charitable donations structure has taken a significant step forward with the formation this week of a financial appeals review board. The board, whose function will be to review requests from local organizations who seek donations at various times of the year from the public, is believed to be the first of its kind in Eastern Ontario and among the first in the entire province.

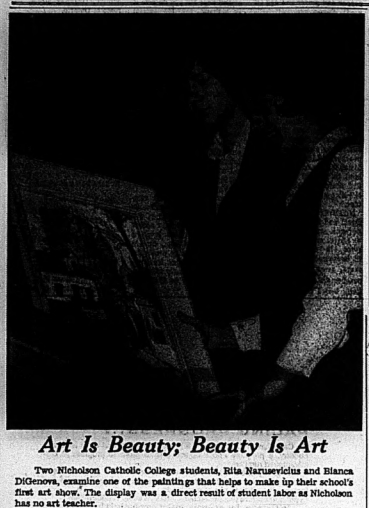
Establishment of the new board comes some three years following a community-wide study of the financial requirements of local health, welfare and recreational volunteer agencies. The study pointed out the need for the formation of a social planning council, the reorganization of the annual United Appeal within the framework of the planning council, and the eventual establishment of a board designed to review all community-wide financial appeals.

"The formation of the Belleville Financial Appeals Review Board is the next logical step in improving our whole system of financial giving", Gerald A. Wishart, chairman of the board pointed out in announcing the establishment of the new body. "Much of the work proposed in the study of the community's needs has now been accomplished".

Sparked by former Mayor Jack Ellis, the original Belleville Social Planning Council was formed and eventually was suspended by the formation of United Community Services. The United Appeal campaign has been reorganized with considerable success within the framework of United Community Services.

"This new board should be able to accomplish what other bodies have been unable to do: that is, to overcome the multiplicity of campaigns and recommendations as to the spacing and timing of fund-raising campaigns," said Mr. Wishart.

While the new board will review requests for big days and other forms of money-raising within the city, financial appeals conducted by religious or fraternal organizations, clubs or other societies within their own membership are specifically excluded from the scope of the Board's function.



The seven-man board has drawn its membership from the trades and labor council, the chamber of commerce, United Community Services and city council. Members are Mrs. Kenneth G. Loucks, R.G. Cook, R.T. Turley, V.L. Lewis, G.A. Wishart, Mayor J.R. Scott and Ald. Paul Russell.

A number of community organizations which make annual appeals for funds have expressed delight on learning of the board's establishment.

"The approval of the board which we shall seek for our autumn campaign for funds will be invaluable in reassuring the public of the current necessity of the services for which we solicit monies," said Mrs. Arthur H. McFarlane, chairman of the united community fund of Belleville and district. "Further, it will assist us to have an outside group examine our administrative activities and comment upon their effectiveness".

Colin Robbins, president of The Belleville Theatre Guild, was also pleased to learn of the development of the board. "This Board is long overdue," he said, "and we are pleased that it is now functioning. We plan to hold a drive for funds late in the spring, and we have already submitted our application to them."

In summary, Mr. Wishart described the Board's function as one primarily of factfinding. "The public has a right to these facts when they are approached for contributions," he said, "and it is the function of the board that their summaries of information will assist contributors to give wisely".

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP) — Golds rallied as other sections of the Toronto Stock Exchange were mixed in light mid-morning trading today.

The gold index bounced up 5.19 points or about 2.5 per cent to 218.24 as the price of gold bullion in the Paris free gold market jumped $2.50 an ounce.

Dome paced the advance, gaining 1¼ to 45¼. Kerr Addison and Campbell Red Lake were up ½ each to 16¼ and 21 and Dickenson 20 cents to 4.85.

In the Industrial list, Power Corp., which Monday proposed a takeover of Trans-Canada Corp. Fund, bumped ¼ to 7¼ on sales of about 2,000 shares. Trans-Canada rose 2 to 10 after 200 shares changed hands.

A formal offer, to be made in the middle of next month would involve the exchange of a new five-per-cent convertible preferred $12 share of Power for each Trans-Canada common.

Crows Nest Industries gained 1 to 36.

Royalite Oil fell ¼ to 23 after the federal government announced Monday it will not grant the required letters patent for its proposed takeover by British American Oil Holdings Ltd.

Trans Mountain Oil Pipe Line dropped 1¼ to 13½ and CAE Industries 1 to 7¼.

Pine Point Mines, down 3 points Monday, rallied 14 to 29. Scurry-Rainbow Oil was off ¼ to 29¼.

On index, industrials slipped .13 to 144.59 and oils .48 to 167.45. Base metals rose .13 to 97.34.

Volume by 11 a.m. was 550,000 shares compared with 437,000 at the same time Monday.

Monday prices continued at last week's sluggish pace, slipping in extremely light trading.

Total declines outnumbered advances 366 to 171 as only oils showed some modest strength.

Dome Pete paced the rally, gaining 2¼ to 46¾. Bloomsbury's Bay Oil was up 2 to 34. Scurry-Rainbow fell 1¼ to 30 and Canadian Grisdal 45 cents to 7.75.

Gold mines, which appear to be settling down after several weeks of violent fluctuations, were mixed and fractionally off.

Kerr Addison and Campbell Red Lake slipped ¼ each to 15¾ and 20¾. Dome rose ¼ to 45¾.

Quinte Steer Show and Sale To Be Held at Belleville Fair

PICTON — Rules and preliminary prize lists have now been announced for the 1968 Quinte Steer Show and Sale. This event will again be sponsored by the Hastings and Prince Edward Beef Improvement Association and the Belleville Fair Board. After the initial sale held in 1967 several changes have been made in the classes. Provision has been made for steers to be shown in three categories: Junior exhibitors, ages 13 to 20 have an open weight class. Senior exhibitors will show their steers in two classes, those 900 lbs. and under and those over 900 lbs.

All entries must be in by April 15th. Steers will be identified on or about May 1st. This will allow for a 100-day feeding period prior to the event. The steer show will be held the first day of Belleville Fair starting at 10.00 a.m. The sale will be held immediately after the show at approximately 11.30 a.m. This date is Tuesday, August 13, 1968.

Regular prize money amounts to over $300. In addition Ben Bleecker will award a $10.00 cash special to the champion senior exhibitor; Don Spencer will award $10 for the champion steer shown by a junior exhibitor and $5 to the reserve champion steer shown by a junior exhibitor. Also, the Northumberland Beef Improvement Association will increase the prize money for Northumberland County exhibitors by ¼ of what they actually win. The Grand Champion steer of the show will receive a suitable prize or trophy to be announced.

Entry fee is $1 per animal, payable at the time of entry. Closing date is April 15, 1968. Entries will be subject to inspection by the Health of Animals Branch, Canada Department of Agriculture two weeks prior to the show. A 1% sales commission will be charged. All entries will be weighed prior to the sale and a 3% shrink allowance will be made. Entry forms are in the hands of the Quinte Beef Improvement Association members. They should be made to the Secretary-Treasurer, Hastings and Prince Edward Beef Improvement Association, Box 146, Stirling, Ontario. Full details regarding regulations are on the entry form.

Belleville PUC Awaits Word on Water Proposal

A special meeting of the Belleville Public Utilities Commission slated for this afternoon has been cancelled, manager E. L. Burnham of the PUC said this morning.

The meeting had been set to allow the commissioners an opportunity to examine alternative solutions to the water shortage looming in the future in the lake. Recent to the bay or the lake is the issue and it doesn't look as if a decision will be made for another month.

Mr. Burnham said the meeting was cancelled as a result of rumors as to the plans of the Ontario Water Resources Commission.

Although nothing definite has come from the OWRC, Mr. Burnham stated the commission has learned that the water management commission might be supplying raw water from Lake Ontario to the Quinte Area only.

It is also thought that the OWRC would undertake the responsibility of obtaining an alternate water supply from Lake Ontario for the OWRC.

Mr. Burnham pointed out that these rumors reduce the cost of the project by two to three million dollars. The new report presents still another solution for the commissioners to consider.

The problem, however, is that considerations must come — time that is running out as quickly as Belleville's water.

A decision must be made, according to the PUC's consulting firm in Toronto, no later than July 1, if Belleville is to avoid running into a water shortage in the future.

Regardless of which alternative the PUC takes, all possibilities take time to institute.

Another aspect of the new alternative is that it would allow Belleville to maintain its treatment and pumping plant which otherwise would have been useless.

"It would be a safeguard for us," said Mr. Burnham. "In case anything ever happened to the lake supply, we would still be equipped to go back to the bay's water."

The planning the PUC commissioners have to choose from now are:

- expanding the present facilities to obtain more water from the bay,
- obtaining treated water from Lake Ontario through the OWRC,
- obtaining raw water from Lake Ontario through the OWRC.

All solutions are going to entail an increase in cost to the user. Which cost is going to be less over the long run is being demand still further examination by the PUC.

Fire Destroys Rawdon Home, $14,000 Loss

Fire destroyed the house of John Powell, first concession of Rawdon early this morning.

Mr. and Mrs. Powell and their four children were awakened at 3 a.m. by the sound of an explosion in a downstairs oil stove.

Loss was estimated at $6,000 to the two-storey home and $8,000 for its contents.

The Powell family escaped unharmed.

Ann Landers
Outlet for Anger Remedy Is Questioned

DEAR ANN LANDERS: If you don't have egg on your face it's not because you don't deserve it. I'll bet you hear plenty from your readers about your prescribed outlet for anger. You advocated trying to break an egg by squeezing it in the palm of the hand.

If the egg is held vertically in the palm, your scheme is O.K., but if the egg is held sideways — watch out. Exactly why this egg defends itself when held vertically, I do not know. It has to do with some structural reason which I've never been able to understand.

One bright note: Anyone who tries Ann Landers' remedy for anger will surely succeed, in that he will stop being mad at the original object and he'll be mad at you instead. — P.S. OF WASHINGTON, D.C.

ANN LANDERS

DEAR P.S.: I have already received enough letters on this subject to write a sequel to "The Egg And I." One reader sent me the spattered egg — in an envelope. A million apologies, folks. The yolk's on me.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: After 19 years of what I thought was a good marriage my wife suddenly became bored and found herself a lover. I remained patient thinking she would get over it, but I was wrong. She wants a divorce.

My lover and I are in her 20 years of devotion is that she will take my children and use my hard-earned money to pay her lawyer for cutting my throat. While the divorce is going through she and the children will move into an apartment and I must pay for that, too.

Everyone has the impression that it is always the husband who gives the wife a bad time. I would like you to know I felt that I got what I deserved, but it just isn't so.

The divorce laws in this country are shamelessly slanted in favor of the wife. It is criminal that there isn't something done to make these laws more equitable? It is too late to help me but it would help other defenseless husbands from conniving wives want to give them the works. — DISILLORIED.

DEAR PILLORIED: You must have a lawyer. What does he say? It is difficult for me to believe that you are as blameless as your letter suggests. I agree that the divorce laws in many states strongly favor the wife, particularly if there are children, but this is ridiculous.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I was shocked at the letter from the man who had the nerve to sign himself "Honest Abe." He practically went into orbit because the postman didn't put stamps on Christmas cards and gifts — just left them in the mailboxes.

Hasn't that idiot got anything better to complain about? And you — are you trying to tell me that when our paper boy and the neighborhood children leave cards in the mailbox they are breaking the law?

People who are considerate and thoughtful should be praised, not threatened. Shame on you. — GIRLS OF DEPARTMENT 22.

DEAR GIRLS: I'm not trying to tell you anything. All I'm trying to do is give correct advice. I didn't write the law. I am merely informing the public that such a law exists. I agree, it sounds loony, but nevertheless there is indeed a 3,500 fine for leaving cards and gifts in the mailbox without stamps. There is no fine, however, for ringing the bell and handing the card or gift to the occupant.

Successful Living
Tipping at Hairdresser's Bothers Customer

Dear Doris: I have been tipping my hairdresser a quarter each time, but now the prices have gone up and I feel I don't want to tip any longer.

Is there any graceful way of getting out of paying this tip now that I have gone so far, or do I have to continue or change my hairdresser? I find even though I tip (and I don't know what I'm tipping for, really) the service isn't any better and I've noticed she has even become haphazard with me, which irritates me no end.

What is the matter with a person when they feel actually guilty about not giving a tip after a haircut, or a hairdo, and that's me. It's my feelings I seem to have to contend with. — Guilty or Not Guilty?

Dear Guilty: Your guilt feelings are made up of: (1) begrudging the money; (2) wanting to be thought fair; (3) uncertainty about what is expected of you. Better clear up your thinking.

You can just stop tipping. This tip, is not nearly so expected of you as the tips you leave for a waitress or taxi driver or bell hop; but you do give it as a thank you for special services given.

Dear Doris: Another poem you might like to pass on to readers is called "Meeting." It is about a deer who comes to drink at the brook. Last verse goes:

"Something I shall always remember,
Something still, and shy,
and wise;
In the dimness of the forest
From a pair of gold-flecked eyes." — C. D. G.

Dear C. D. G.: All four verses are lovely. I will send them to anyone writing in for them. Would like very much to have name of author.

Kitchen Tested Recipes
Sweet and Sour Pork Balls

By MARY MOORE

The popularity of Chinese food is growing daily and we are trying to keep up with the demand.

The women's editor of one of our large newspapers mailed a recommended recipe for Sweet and Sour Pork Balls to us and Shirley promptly took it and tried it.

Shirley telephoned to say it was a beauty and she had to be firm to rescue my tasting sample from her hungry crowd. As you know she is a working gal and has to start preparing their evening meal the instant she walks through the door. She had prepared the meat balls and sauce when the electrician arrived to connect her new dryer. They waited until his departure. Conclusion: this may be prepared in advance, then combined and reheated at the last minute.

SWEET AND SOUR PORK BALLS (serves 4 or 5)

Meat Mixture:
1½ lbs. minced lean pork
½ cup finely chopped onion
1 teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
⅛ teaspoon ginger
2 tablespoons cooking oil
1 egg (actually 'not necessary')

Sauce:
1 cup finely chopped celery
2 tablespoons corn starch
2 tablespoons sugar
¼ teaspoon ginger
1 tablespoon soy sauce
2 cup boiling water
1 chicken ox cube
one 14-oz. can peaches
¼ cup lemon juice

To make Meat Balls mix well together in an ample bowl the pork, onion, salt, pepper and ginger and egg (if used). Shape into 1¼" balls and place on plate. In large frying pan heat oil and brown meat balls lightly all sides — this takes about 10 minutes. Remove meat balls from pan and drain on absorbent paper.

To make Sauce tip all but 1 tablespoon oil from frying pan and add celery and gently saute 3 or 4 minutes. In a saucepan dissolve chicken ox cube in boiling water. Mix together in a bowl the corn starch, sugar, ginger and then stir in soy sauce, syrup from peaches and lemon juice. Add to ox liquid and cook, stirring until thick. Add meat balls and drained peaches cut into ½" dice and simmer 10 minutes.

NOTE: If you want to make Sweet and Sour Pork Balls in advance saute the meat balls as above, make the sauce and store in refrigerator until mealtime. Then combine sauce, meat balls and diced peaches and reheat. Serve on fluffy boiled rice.

Nurses Resent Time Clock

OTTAWA (CP) — For two years a time clock has caused discontent among some nurses at the Ottawa General Hospital.

"We're supposed to be professionals; professional people shouldn't have to clock in," complained one in a newspaper survey.

Another with five children said the installation of the clock has changed her whole attitude toward her job.

"Sometimes I'm a little late leaving home because of the kids and I'm docked pay for arriving at the hospital a few minutes late.

"In the old days I often worked overtime and didn't bother to claim for it. Now if I work even 15 minutes extra I make sure I get paid."

The nurses agreed they would achieve nothing by appealing to the Registered Nurses' Association of Ontario.

Andre Lacroix, hospital public relations officer, said he was not aware of the discontent. He said the time clock has increased efficiency in the hospital's payroll department.

All 1,800 staff members — one third of them nurses — punch in. "The hospital might reconsider the issue if it is proved that there is general dissatisfaction with it," said Mr. Lacroix.

Points for Parents

By MARY REYSON

Mother: "Larry, wash your hands. Dinner is almost ready."

(Later) "Look at your dirty hands. I told you to wash them before dinner. Why can't you ever mind!"

It's not always enough to remind a small child of a routine. Sometimes you have to take him calmly by the hand and see that he carries out your request.

Mother: "Has everyone washed up for dinner? Anyway, your hands are still dirty. Come along, let's wash them so you won't get dirt on your food."

"Swan Lake" Finalist In Emmy Competition

CBC-TV's 90-minute color production of the ballet Swan Lake, telecast on the Festival series last December to wide acclaim by viewers and critics, is one of the finalists in the International category of the annual Emmy Awards competition.

Swan Lake was performed for this TV production by the National Ballet of Canada, in the version created for the company by the great Danish Bruhn. Bruhn himself was guest star, in the role of the Prince, with Lois Smith starring in the dual roles of Swan Queen and Black Swan.

The ballet was produced and directed for Festival by Norman Campbell.

News of the CBC-TV nomination for this year's International Emmy (winner to be announced at the Emmy ceremonies in New York and Los Angeles on May 19) was received by CBC's overseas and foreign relations officer A. H. Partridge.

The International Emmy competition has two divisions, entertainment and news-documentary, with a total of 11 nominees narrowed down from 47 entries. Five of the nominees are competing in the entertainment division, six in the news-documentary division.

As one of the entertainment finalists, Swan Lake is competing against drama and variety programs from ABC-TV and Rediffusion in England, and from networks in Sweden and West Germany.

Emmy in 1955 for a French network production of the Rossini opera, The Barber of Seville. Producer Pierre Morin attended the ceremonies that year to receive the award.

ballet production, Romeo and Juliet, performed by the National Ballet of Canada, won the Rene Barthelemy prize at Festival of Monte Carlo in directed by Norman Campbell.

The Emmy Wards are presented annually by the Academy of Television Arts and Sciences in the United States.

ARDA
PACING PROGRESS...

No Canadian should remain indifferent to the fact that there is, in this country, a program whose objective is to promote progress in disadvantaged rural areas.

ARDA is a Joint Federal-Provincial program and its goals are to increase income and employment opportunities of rural people and increase the efficient use of rural lands.

In order to achieve these objectives, ARDA is using various means:

— In Ontario, for example, major emphasis is being directed to the farm enlargement program and to the consulting, training and mobility programs which are applicable to the entire rural population.

— The problem in Ontario resolves itself into the improved utilization of both human and natural resources. Our changing technology almost dictates that society will be increasingly urbanized. ARDA in Ontario can and is assisting in the many facets of relocating rural people in urban centers, while at the same time and wherever possible the land resources of the rural areas are being developed and brought into improved productivity to better serve the rural population.

In brief, social and economic development for rural people and optimum utilization of natural resources are the two concepts inspiring ARDA.

University Women Advised On the Investment Field

R. H. J. Iles, manager of the securities department of the Ontario division of the Bank of Montreal, was guest speaker at the March meeting of the University Women's Club of Belleville and district. He spoke on personal finances, with emphasis on the bond market, which is his specialty.

The speaker said mutual funds, while a lazy way of investing, is the most popular with the small investor. He told his audience an investor should be introduced to a stockbroker through a bank manager.

Mr. Iles said an investor must be happy with the stock he purchases and should have a reason for purchasing one type over another, in the same way he prefers one make in cars.

Bonds, he said, are IOWs. The investor lends money to an institution, be it the government of Canada, provincial governments, corporate companies, municipalities, trust companies or banks. In lending money to these institutions, the investor is guaranteed a certain interest rate for a fixed period of time. Corperate bonds are not as sound as government bonds because corporations cannot levy taxes. At present, there is not more than one per cent difference in interest rates among government, corporate and municipal bonds.

The bank will investigate, free of charge, the feasibility of investing in certain stocks. This service is open to anyone who wishes to avail himself of it.

In closing, Mr. Iles said the market is so nervous that no one knows where things are going.

The speaker was introduced by Mrs. D. G. Ross and thanked by Mrs. J. Boyd.

MR. AND MRS. DAVID HARDY

Hardy – Piatti

Dianne Helen Piatti became the bride of David Mi- chael Hardy, recently, in Holy Cross Church, Oshawa. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack E. Piatti, Oshawa and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer J. Hardy, all of Belleville.

Rev. M. J. Darby officiated at the ceremony and Gilbert Hallett the soloist was accompanied by Mrs. R. G. Booth.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a full-length gown of French silk velvet with a high beaded neckline. The dress was fashioned with lily point sleeves, an Empire waist and a cathedral train also of velvet. Her headdress, a cluster of petals adorned with pearls, held an elbow-length veil and she carried a bouquet of white roses and chrysanthemums.

Mrs. Stewart Cannon of Toronto was matron of honor. The other attendants were Miss Barbara MacDonald, Mrs. John Piatti and Mrs. Edward Youngdale.

John Piper was the best man and the ushers were Ted Roberts, David Irwin and David Piatti.

The reception was held at the Oshawa Shrine Club. The couple left for Florida with the bride wearing a coral wool suit with a black mink collar and black accessories.

Mr. and Mrs. Hardy will reside on Surrey Drive, Oshawa.

Dairy foods go with good living

If your young folks welcome spring with a burst of party plans, these "mod" milk drinks will add new zing at food time. For the lively goodness of milk is an instant refresher at the gayest spree.

We're forecasting delectable combinations in colors as gay as Carnaby Street itself. Combine your favorite flavors and that most popular dairy food, milk, becomes a party-pleaser.

The electric blender makes short work of fruit fantasies. For a banana-orange combination blend 2 ripe bananas with 4 scoops of orange sherbet and 2 teaspoons sugar. Gradually add 3 cups milk. Pour into tall glasses and decorate with a fresh orange twist.

Chocolate's a natural—our winner with many kinds of shake devotees. Give it fresh new sparkle by adding frozen pineapple juice. Try it on hot days, too. The proportions are: 2 C creamy shake: 2 scoops ice milk, ½ cup chocolate syrup, ½ (6-ounce) can frozen pineapple juice and 1 cup vanilla ice cream. (Makes 6 servings)

To serve from a party punch bowl, try this shot this morning.

1 (6-ounce) can frozen pineapple juice
1 (6-ounce) can frozen orange juice
2 cups water
1 quart milk
¼ teaspoon salt
¼ cup sugar
1 quart lime sherbet

Thaw frozen juice; do not dilute. Stir in water, milk, salt and sugar. Add half the sherbet; beat. Float scoops of remaining sherbet on top. (Serves 12)

MR. AND MRS. ERIC JOHN DEACON

Deacon – Swan

June Anne Louise, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ross McGladdan Swan, Belleville, and Eric John Deacon, son of Mrs. Deacon and the late Fred Hicks Deacon, were married by Archdeacon A. S. McConnell in St. Thomas Anglican Church, Belleville, March 16, 1968, at 12 noon. Donald W. Davenport was organist and Robert, R.C.O. soloist.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a white delustered silk gown in A-line style with matching coat falling into a full train at the back. Her shoulder length veil was held by a crown of seed pearls and she carried a cascade bouquet of mauve and white orchids, stephanotis and ivy.

Miss Carol Gray was maid of honor and the bridesmaids were Miss Jane Thompson and Mrs. Marsha Fordham. They were gowned alike in lilac chiffon, trimmed at the sleeves and necklines with lilac, green and blue wreath-like lace. They carried colonial bouquets of pink sweetheart roses, blue listed 'mums and blue hyacinth bells.

Donald Deacon attended his brother and the ushers were Fred Deacon, Murray Swan, Gar. Swan and Ted Casson.

At the reception at the officers' mess, CFB, Trenton, the bride's mother received the guests, wearing a street-length dress of French turquoise antique silk accented at the neckline and cuffs with matching bead trim. She wore matching accessories and a corsage of white orchids.

To assist, the bridegroom's mother wore an Italian costume of ocean white and charcoal with shocking pink hat and orchid corsage.

For her wedding trip to Jamaica, the bride chose a turquoise coat and dress ensemble accented with a white orchid corsage.

On their return the couple will live at 127 Foster Ave., Belleville.

St. Columba Marks 5th Anniversary

A family fellowship dinner was held on Sunday, March 24th, to celebrate the fifth anniversary of the sod turning of St. Columba Presbyterian Church.

Gold spades on small patches of green and large number fives decorated the dinner tables.

After the meal, A. Dunsmore, chairman for the evening, read an anniversary acrostic while 12 young children each held a large gold letter of the word Saint Columba. All joined in a song written for the occasion by Mrs. M. Stotesbury.

Dr. R. Brain, clerk of sessions, introduced members of the kirk session and their wives who were hosts and hostesses for the evening.

To answer questions of new members, Mr. R. Blatchford told of many interesting happenings during the building of the sanctuary and described the architecture of the church.

Highlight of the evening was an hilarious Easter "Hat Parade." From the millitary look to a gently mannered bonnet; from a jaunty travelling hat to a single swirl of froth spilling with every rainbow hue imaginable in a bride's crowning veil, all were magnificent ingenious creations.

Models for the evening were members of the kirk session.

Mrs. D. Taylor led the congregation in hymn singing and the benediction was given by the teaching elder, Rev. S. W. Gentle.

Walter Gordon Says He Will Support Trudeau for Leadership

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Justice Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau learned Monday that he will have the backing of a former cabinet minister in Ottawa April 4-6 when Liberals gather to select a man to replace Prime Minister Pearson.

Walter Gordon, member of Parliament for Toronto Davenport who quit the cabinet two weeks ago, said that he would support Mr. Trudeau, when he was questioned on the CBC-TV show Front Page Challenge.

But Mr. Gordon, former finance minister and Privy Council president, said it was "highly speculative" that he would rejoin the cabinet if Mr. Trudeau assumes leadership of the Liberals.

Mr. Gordon declined to name his second choice if Mr. Trudeau does not survive the first two or three ballots at the convention.

* * *

"I think he will," Mr. Gordon said.

Finance Minister Mitchell Sharp learned that he had picked up two more cabinet colleague supporters in his bid for the leadership.

His new supporters are Energy Minister Jean-Luc Pepin and Industry Minister C. M. Drury, who joined Revenue Minister Jean Chretien in backing Mr. Sharp.

Health Minister MacEachen, speaking to delegates in Hamilton, was assured that at least 20 of the 30 delegates in the five ridings there were behind him.

John Munro, Liberal member of Parliament for Hamilton East and chairman of Mr. MacEachen's Ontario campaign, gave the news to the health minister.

In Quebec City, Postmaster General Jean-Pierre Cote announced that Trade Minister Robert Winters has the support of at least 100 Quebec delegates.

* * *

Mr. Cote, chairman of Mr. Winter's Quebec campaign, said that Mr. Winters' organization is aiming for 150 of Quebec's 601 votes.

Mr. Winters, who met with delegates at Trois-Rivieres and Quebec City, said national unity and advance in social welfare must be built on a "strong base of economic development."

Ex-Finance Minister Paul Martin said in Kamloops that he would reorganize the party "from bottom up," if he was chosen party leader.

"The Liberal party needs an infusion of some political blood and some political orientation," he said. "We need to recover our position in Western Canada, particularly the Prairies."

NDP Lifts Blockade

OTTAWA (CP) — The way was opened Monday for an early parliamentary recess as the NDP voluntarily lifted its blockade against money bills in the Commons.

Faced by a split within party ranks, the New Democrats called a halt to their near-filibuster of bills to tidy up the government's 1967-68 spending and to give it money to meet day-to-day bills during April and May.

The NDP staged the blockade in an attempt to get the government to act now on its bill to lower drug prices.

The party lifted it Monday without the solid assurance it had demanded that the drug bill would not be allowed to die on the vine.

Barring last-minute hitches, most observers figured adjournment could come today or Wednesday.

TV Time Freeze-out

OTTAWA (CP) — The Liberals are trying to put the chill on so-called non-serious candidates who may attempt to grab prime television time at the leadership convention here April 4-6.

A candidate first must have 50 signatures of convention delegates before his nomination is official.

As a further measure to weed out unknowns, the convention's organization committee decided Monday to allot specific speaking times to only nine candidates: The eight in the federal cabinet and Eric Kierans, former Quebec revenue and health minister.

Any other candidates officially nominated may speak only before or after the nine. For all practical purposes, this freezes them out of the live television coverage of the convention.

Man Found Guilty Of Murder

TIJUANA, Mexico (CP-AP) — After spending more than a year behind Mexican bars, waiting to learn whether he would return home to Toronto or remain imprisoned, Stephenino d'Ninio was told Monday that he had been convicted of murder ing his Canadian bride more than a year ago.

Judge Ernesto Hernandez Avila found him guilty of slaying the former Margaret Currie of Collingwood, Ont., and throwing her body off a 90-foot cliff south of here.

Judge Hernandez sentenced him to 12 years in La Mesa state penitentiary.

D'Ninio had married his wife, who had operated a cleaning business in Kingston, Ont., for several years previously, in Dec. 16, 1966. Her body was found Jan. 15, 1967.

Tax Refunds Tardy

OTTAWA (CP) — The revenue department said Monday that processing of income tax returns is about three weeks behind the 1967 rate "due to conversion of systems to a new and faster computer."

However, the first income tax refund cheques are beginning to move through the mail and the trickle should become a flood once the computer bits its stride, the department said.

A backlog of more than 3,500,000 returns has piled up but the new computer should be able to process 625,000 a week.

A total of 8,000,000 returns are expected before the April 30 deadline and refunds will be made on 70 per cent, or 5,600,000.

Refund returns get priority handling on a "first come, first served" basis, the department said in a statement.

The three-week delay this year was attributed to "bugs," or problems, with the new computer.

Belleville Harbor: Do Boaters Bypass City?

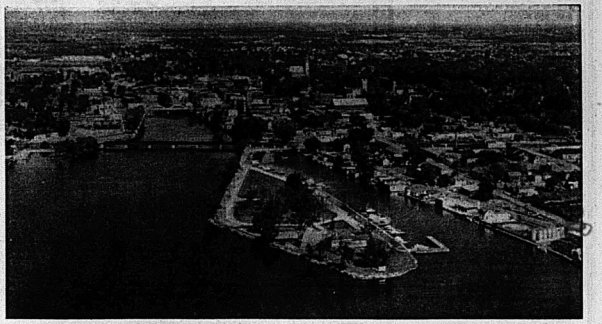
Communities along the north shore of Lake Ontario are awakening to the recreational and financial potential of their harbors.

Pleasure boating is big business. But before a community can garner its share of the revenue it must attract waterborne tourists and keep local yachtsmen contentedly moored at home ports.

Dockage facilities for both visiting and local boats are at a premium in the eastern Lake Ontario area.

Trenton, with space for only 15 boats to moor at the mouth of the Trent Waterway, last week turned down the chance to rent a further 40 spaces at $3,000 annually. Eben James, president of Trenton Cold Storage Ltd. made the offer to build the finger docks on his property on the west side of the Trent River facing the Bay of Quinte.

Kingston lost the chance to cash in on the Expo-bound boating traffic last year, but has dock construction under way for this year. The city, with a big assist from the federal government, is extending an existing dock in L-shape fashion to link with the harbor Martello tower.



Belleville, with one of the finest harbors on the lake system, turned away visitors last year for lack of space, and has reached the limit of its facilities for local yachtsmen.

No definite plans are under way to remedy the situation.

The government claims provision of pleasure boat dockage is the concern or responsibility of private business interests.

In the meantime, visiting yachtsmen dropoak $25,000 a year in Belleville. The estimate, made by Chamber of Commerce secretary O. F. Bradley, is based on an expenditure on $50 a day by each of the 500 boats tied up in the harbor during the summer season.

There's still money to be made from Bay of Quinte waters, given the proper lures and a community ready to provide them.

The Harbor Is a Delight ... Until You Try to Tie Up

BQYC Commodore John McFarlane

Facilities Inadequate

City Loses Tourist Dollars Every Summer Says Commodore

The federal government's refusal to provide additional visitors' docks in Belleville harbor is resulting in the loss of American tourist currency, claims John McFarlane, commodore of Bay of Quinte Yacht Club.

"Last year 500 visiting boats tied up in the harbor and used the facilities our club offers. About 200 were turned away because of unavailable dockage. Thirty per cent of these visiting yachts are American," Mr. McFarlane estimates.

"The government should take action. It is supposed to be after tourist money and this is a good way to get it. Our harbor is one of Ontario's greatest assets and our club one of the most popular on Lake Ontario. Yet boats are by-passing us because they can't get in."

Belleville Harbor Commission owns the L-shaped visitors' dock at the southern end of Victoria Park. But catering to water-borne tourists is not the commission's responsibility, says harbor master Don Barrett.

"The inner harbor is becoming obsolete for visiting yachtsmen," he says. "Another visitors' dock should be built south of the existing one on Victoria Park, but the Bay of Quinte Yacht Club's 99-year lease on the tip of the park prevents that. Government policy permits us to build tourist docks only on publicly-owned property."

"This policy is nonsense," counters Mr. McFarlane. "Especially when you consider that the present visitors' dock abuts club-leared property."

"I think the government has an unfounded fear we might make money on a visitors' dock. At our rate of $1 a yacht a day for use of the club's toilets, showers and power line the club is out-of-pocket on visitors."

Local boat owners also feel the pinch of the dockage shortage.

To help handle the post-war boom in pleasure boating, the harbor commission built finger docks accommodating about 45 boats in the inner harbor. All are now rented.

"We have more large power launches and sailboats—those over 30 feet—than ever before," says Mr. Barrett. "Small craft, both power and sail, have also increased in number."

"Belleville has a crying need for private marina development along its waterfront," he continues. "The commission is in the docking business only because of insufficient commercial accommodation in the area."

Some relief is in sight. The city plans a municipal marina at Zwicky's Island and the Harbor Commission's future plans call for construction of two finger docks and a tourists' shopping dock at the northern end of the harbor.

Harbor Commission and Yacht Club officials agree Belleville is in an ideal position to cash in on the boating boom.

Their only questions are: Who will put up the money for waterfront development? And when?

Dock Rental Minor Part Of Harbor Master's Job

A harbor master's lot is not a happy one.

"People often look at the strip of pleasure boat dockage along the east side of Victoria Park and snort: "A tough job he has, looking after that speck of land," says Don J. Barrett, Belleville's harbor master.

Recreational boating is the least of Mr. Barrett's worries, although most people encounter him only in his capacity as arbiter of Victoria Park dock rentals.

His job as manager of the harbor commission's interests has greater scope than this.

The area administered by the commission extends from Sidney St. in the west to Gt. Point in the east and includes the bed of the Bay of Quinte for a distance of 3,000 feet out from both the Belleville and Prince Edward County shorelines.

"Purpose of the commission is to administer the waterway, ensure its safety and maintenance and run a financially sound and self - supporting port," explains Mr. Barrett.

The three man harbor commission operates under the supervision of the department of transport. Members are the mayor of Belleville and two federal government appointees, John Goyer and Douglas Burley.

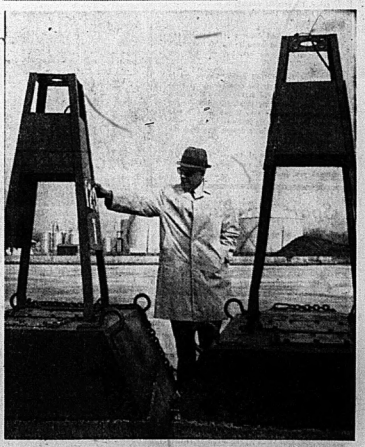
Besides the bed of the waterway, the commission owns most of the water lots extending along the north shore of the bay from Highway 14 to Nevberry St. Exceptions are Victoria Park, owned by the city, and the water lots on the east side of the inner harbor.

The commission leases its bay front properties. The city rents the bay bed east of Highway 14 for the sanitary land fill project; the Ontario Water Resources Commission leases the sewage disposal plant site and oil companies rent the property northeast of the government dock for their storage tanks.

Beautification experts have suggested we get rid of "those unsightly tanks" by moving them to the tank farm north of the city," Mr. Barrett says. "They forget the big revenue from assessment the city would lose if the oil companies moved outside city limits."

Permission must be obtained from the harbor commission to construct docks, pipelines, breakwaters or any other structure extending over the bed of the waterway.

"If we permitted random development of this kind, the obstructions in the water would soon cause silting up along the shoreline and eventual filling in of the entire bay. To control this hazard and keep the waterway open is our job," Mr. Barrett explains.



Money for the commission's operation comes from leases and from wharfage and cargo fee collected from the oil tankers that unload at the government dock.

The yearly budget, based on estimated revenue, must be approved by the minister of transport, as must all capital improvements.

Commercial shipping in the harbor has decreased dramatically. At one time gas, oil, salt, molasses and coal were unloaded at the government dock. Now, only oil tankers tie up.

The once - important commercial fishing industry on the bay has dwindled to almost nothing. Pollution has ruined the Bay of Quinte's one - time reputation as the world's largest fresh - water spawning ground.

"The character of traffic on the bay has changed during my lifetime," Mr. Barrett says. "Now the harbor is used chiefly for recreation.

Attention, hockey parents: don't raise your boy to be a Gordie Howe or you'll find him chasing pucks when he's drawing the old age pension.

Of course you'll be proud of the fact that Junior has emulated the greatest hockey player — or one of them — in the world and you can throw in "gentleman and sportsman" with it.

Gordie will be forty years of age on March 31st and the way he's going now he can give any turkey aces and spades for improving with age.

Or at least keeping pace. At his present rate he's headed for the scoring championship of the NHL and that's not a mean feat for a guy forty in any man's league.

Some years ago I sat in the Eggert cottage in Rossmere with Gordie, Red Kelly and Marty Pavelich. Gordie munched lemon farts (he gobbled a whole dozen) and recalled the day he pulled on his first pair of skates. "I was seven years old and they sent me home. I wasn't properly dressed."

"That big lug" whispered Kelly "has more kid love-worshippers in the hockey world than well — you name him. And that goes for your Bobby Hull."

Marty gobbled a half-chicken, roasted; Kelly nibbled on the other half, but modest Mr. Howe sat, listened and reduced the lemon tart population.

As was noted Howe will be 40 on March 31st and he'll celebrate in the customary natal day fashion, playing right wing for the Detroit Red Wings...His heart perhaps will be not after Wednesday because he will be in an unaccustomed position when the NHL playoffs get under way — on the sidelines.

But that's not the fault of the man known as "Mr. Hockey" in Detroit, the man who has scored more goals than any player in the history of the National Hockey League.

He has come a long way since those shiney games on the Floral, Saskatchewan ponds — and he's done it the hard way.

He's had his share of fights and won nearly all. He has received more than 300 stitches in his face and has also suffered damaged knees, broken ribs, a broken wrist, broken toes, a shoulder dislocation, scalp wounds and other cuts.

But he's got more than that to show for 22 years of playing hockey with the Detroit Red Wings. When Jolly Jawn Adams signed him to a pro contract, he told him, "You've got a God-given hockey talent — use it — don't abuse it."

Gordie never forgot that advice. He holds records for most games played, most goals, most assists, most playoffs assists, most playoffs penalties and most playoffs total points.

He is the first man to score 700 goals, playoffs and regular season, has been an all-star selection 18 times, won six MVP awards, six point-scoring championships, five goal-scoring titles and has scored 20 goals a season for 18 seasons.

Jack Adams tribute: "He's great because he's big, because he's the cleverest stickhandler in the league, shoots with either hand, aggressive so nobody rides him off on a play, and because he's one of the surest skaters in the league."

Wing's coach and general manager Sid Abel says Gordie is the undisputed leader of the team. "They look to him to start things going. He gets us moving. If he has a night that's not too good we play one of our lullaby games."

"He's slowed down a step but he can still beat most of them. He has his flat games like everyone else has, but he's still the greatest."

And Bobby Hull says: "You've got to say Gordie's likely the greatest hockey player that ever played or likely will ever play. He does everything right. He's not the demon some people say. If you want to play hockey and he appreciates anyone who feels the same way."

As for Gordie at 40: — "Forty? Well that's very old, you know. I feel fine thank you, just fine."

Penguins On Spot — Kings Need Win

Anyone For 3rd?, Habs Not Fussy!

By GRAHAM COX
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Nobody wants to finish third in the National Hockey League's Eastern Division this year and Montreal Canadiens are the main reason.

There are other reasons, of course—money not being the least.

But if the coaches of either New York Rangers, Boston Bruins or Chicago Black Hawks had their druthers, they probably would not choose the Canadiens as their semi-final divisional sparring mates.

There's no mystery surrounding why they should feel this way. It's simple because the odds on survival are immeasurably longer if they meet one of the two other playoff survivors.

Toronto Maple Leafs, Stanley Cup winners last season, and Detroit Red Wings are long gone from the playoff picture as are Oakland Seals in the Western Division.

A game tonight in Los Angeles could decide the fate of Pittsburgh Penguins, one loss away from joining the Seals on the sidelines, as they go against the Kings. Los Angeles and Philadelphia Flyers are tied for the Western lead with Minnesota North Stars and St. Louis Blues bunched behind them.

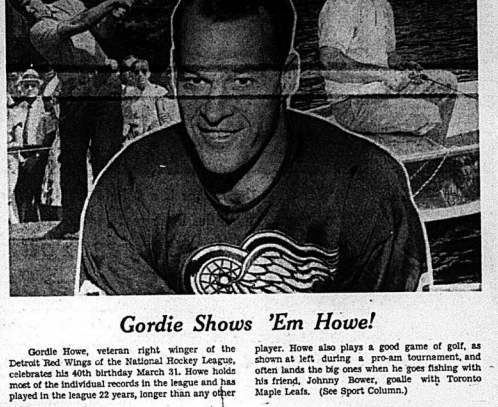
But while the battle continues for first place in the West, the Canadiens Saturday wrapped up their 17th championship since 1917 Saturday and their ninth under coach Toe Blake.

There's been little question for weeks that the Canadiens would win the East although it has taken a phenomenal second half of the 74-game schedule for them to turn the trick.

Montreal, last in the senior division at Christmas, completed their 47 games against Eastern Division rivals with 26 victories and seven ties. The Bruins, while second to New York in the standings, fared more successful against their Eastern rivals.

Boston won 22 and tied nine while the Rangers notched 19 victories and nine ties. Chicago Black Hawks, their play tailing off in the late season slump, had 17 wins and 10 ties.

With money a factor for the individual players, Emile Francis, manager-coach of New York, recently pointed out in an interview another solid reason for finishing as high as possible in the standings, preferably first or second.



Second place is worth $1,250 to each player while third is worth $750 and fourth $250. The Canadiens picked up $2,250 each for winning the division.

More important to Francis, and any other coach, is the home-ice advantage to a first- or second-place finish with teams in either of those positions opening the playoffs at home and playing the fifth and seventh games of an extended series at home.

"When you finish third or fourth," he said "you've got to win at least one playoff game in the other guy's building. When you finish first or second, all you have to do is win all your home games to win the series."

The Rangers have a two-point edge on Boston with a head-on clash between the clubs coming Thursday and New York wrapping on three victories in their last four games.

The Bruins have split their last four games, the losses to Toronto and Detroit.

Gordie Shows 'Em Howe!

Gordie Howe, veteran right winger of the Detroit Red Wings of the National Hockey League, celebrates his 40th birthday March 31. Howe holds most of the individual records in the league and has played in the league 22 years, longer than any other player. Howe also plays a good game of golf, as shown at left during a pro-am tournament, and often lands the big ones when he goes fishing with his friend, Johnny Bower, goalie with Toronto Maple Leafs. (See Sport Column.)

That Scoring Title
A Birthday Gift For Gordie?

MONTREAL (CP) — About the only things that appear certain in today's National Hockey League statistics are that Montreal Canadiens have won first place in the East Division, while their netminders—Lorne (Gump) Worsley and Rogatien Vachon—have a stranglehold on the Vezina Trophy.

In both the East and West Divisions jockeying is still going on for the other orders of finish.

New York Rangers are currently second to Montreal in the East, with Boston Bruins and Chicago Black Hawks giving the New Yorkers a battle. Only five points separate the three teams.

All have three games left to play.

In the West Division, Los Angeles Kings and Philadelphia Flyers are tied for first place with 71 points, although the Flyers have a game in hand. Minnesota North Stars and St. Louis Blues are in third and fourth place respectively four and seven points behind the leaders.

The individual scoring race also appears likely to go right down to the wire.

Stan Mikita of Chicago Black Hawks is holding the top spot with 83 points on the strength of 39 goals and 44 assists.

However, with three games each to play, Gordie Howe, who will celebrate his 40th birthday March 31, is only three points behind Mikita. The season closes on that date, and if Howe could overtake the Chicago centre it would mark the seventh time in his 22-year career he has won the scoring title.

Howe's 39 goals are the most he has scored in 11 seasons. He scored 44 in the 1956-57 season.

Jean Ratelle is fourth with 78, followed by Chicago's Bobby Hull—who leads in goals with 44 and Rod Gilbert of New York, each with 75 points.

Norm Ullman of Toronto Maple Leafs is seventh with 70 points. John Bucyk of Boston and Detroit's Alex Delvecchio are next with 68, one more than Canadiens' Jean Beliveau and Chicago's Ken Wharram.

OHA Sends $1,000

An announcement was made yesterday by OHA President Jack Devine that the Ontario Hockey Association Emergency Fund for injured players has forwarded a cheque for $1,000 to Hillary "Minnie" Menard.

The OHA emergency fund consists of monies received from All-Star games held annually in each of the OHA divisions, including the senior "A" division in which Menard played.

Here in the city, Lionel Bolly, who headed the Minnie Menard Benefit Fund Committee, was elated with the $1,000 received from the OHA.

"It will be some time before we can give a definite dollars-and-cents total for the Menard fund," Bolly said yesterday, "due to a few outstanding bills such as for player insurance for last Friday's game, etc., but with the $1,000 from the OHA fund included, we hope Minnie will receive around $7,000 in all.

"We will give figures to the cent as soon as possible," he concluded.

Anyone Have A Spare Rink?

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — wanted: One amply - furnished hockey rink. Must be near metropolitan area. Seating capacity of 14,000 would be nice. Most important, roof must be sturdy.

Anyone interested, please contact the Philadelphia Flyers of the National Hockey League.

The roof of their Spectrum Sports Arena is under repair, and they're looking for a place in which to play the Stanley Cup playoffs. The playoffs start April 4.

While workmen touch up the roof, damaged by high winds, the question is: Where will they play?

"I wish I knew," said Joe Kadlec, public relations representative of the Flyers. "But we should know on Wednesday."

Kadlec was referring to the deadline set by the NHL for the Flyers to choose a site for the playoffs.

The Flyers, in a scrap with Los Angeles for first place in the West Division, are considering either Montreal or Toronto for their home ice if the Spectrum is not available.

Kadlec believes Toronto would be best, since the Maple Leafs are not involved in the playoffs. Montreal leads the East Division.

The Flyers were to have notified the NHL Monday whether or not they would be able to use the Spectrum for the opener. The deadline was extended through Wednesday by the NHL on the chance that the six-month-old arena will be available at all.

Harold Freeman, Spectrum president, has said he doubts the roof will be ready for the championship games.

After high winds ripped holes in the roof last month, teams of red tape and charges of politics tied up repairs. Now it appears too late for workmen it reconstruct the damage in time.

In the meantime, the Flyers have been a top-draw road club since they took to foreign ice on March 1, a day after the Spectrum was shut down. The games scheduled for Philadelphia have been played in Quebec, New York and Toronto.

As an expansion team, the Flyers have done comparatively well in their first year. In 20 dates at the Spectrum, prior to the roof trouble, they averaged almost 10,000 fans a game.

EGG PRODUCERS

We speak of needing Provincial and Federal assistance to succeed. THE BRITISH EGG BOARD has a NATIONAL plan, supported by national government, a government SUBSIDY of 7.7 CENTS per dozen in 1968, spent $12 million in advertising which has RESULTS . . . a general trend away from, now 40 to 45% non-egg board marketing . . . a general lowering of quality . . . an increase in Northern Ireland egg production of 30% after introduction of Contract Plan to restrict production in England — general overproduction.

Did you know their REORGANIZATION COMMITTEE just visited CANADA for new ideas from OUR PRESENT free egg industry to help correct the chaos caused by their national scheme. It would appear that the costs sometimes exceed the benefits — speaking of costs, the fine response to these ads is byond our expectation and allows us to continue daily. Keep your letters and donations coming.

Archer Targets A Closing 63, Banks $16,000

PENSACOLA, Fla. (AP) — George Archer, who would like to cut down on his golfing trips. But he admits he hates to stay home and miss out on all that money offered on the pro tour.

"I should take a week off after every four or five tournaments," the new champion of the Pensacola Open said after his closing 63 gave him a $16,000 payoff Monday. "But when I sit around home for a couple of weeks I get to thinking about the money I'm not making."

Archer finished one up the Pensacola tournament, but his wife, Donna, talked him into attending.

"I had a premonition that he might win," said Mrs. Archer.

"Beside, we had flown to Florida and I didn't want us to fly back after just one tournament."

Archer almost dropped out in the first round when he became sick to his stomach while playing, but he shot a 68 and decided to keep going. He added rounds of 70 and 69 before his closing burst gave him the title with a 72-hole total of 269, 19 strokes under par and the lowest total on the tour this year.

The 6-foot-4 cowboy from Quincy, Calif., won the championship with a blazing finish which he needed to edge veteran Dave Marr and young Tony Jacklin of Britain by a shot.

Al Balding of Toronto closed with a 68 and a 284 total, good for $218. Will Homenuik of Winnipeg was a stroke back at 285 but finished out of the money.

Marr finished with a 65 to tie Jacklin, who turned in a 66. They won $7,800 each for their 280 totals. Jacklin, making his best showing ever, is believed to be the first English golfer to finish as high as second on the American tour.

The 23-year-old Britisher missed a chance to tie for the title when he overshot the 17th green.

Now 28-year-old Archer is hoping that the Pensacola champion continues to do well in the Masters Tournament at Augusta, Ga.

Gay Brewer, who won the 1958 and 1967 Pensacola crowns, lost a playoff for the Masters title in 1966 and won the prestigious event in 1967, Jack Nicklaus won here and at the Masters in 1965 and 1966.

Arnold Palmer took both titles in 1960, and Gary Player won both in 1961.

Player, little South African, who hasn't won an American title since 1965, closed with a 63 to claim fourth at 71 in the Pensacola showdown.

Ray Floyd, third-round leader, slipped to a 70 and finished at 272. Tommy Shaw, the leader of the first two rounds, closed with a 69 for 273. Brewer's 70 left him back in the pack at 279.

Win Four In Row

Oriole Hurlers Hot On The Wing

By MIKE RECHT
Associated Press Sports Writer

It's only baseball spring training, but Baltimore pitchers are bringing back 1965 memories, erasing 1967 nightmares and raising 1968 hopes.

Orioles hurlers extended their shutout string to 23 innings Monday before Chicago White Sox scored once, not enough as Baltimore beat the Sox 3-1 for its fourth straight victory.

Two errors by Chicago pitcher Gary Peters on a sacrifice bunt set up Mark Belanger's winning sacrifice fly in the seventh.

During last year's disappointing sixth-place finish, when sore arms and injuries hampered the hurlers, the Orioles came up with many new faces. They include rookie Roger Nelson, Brad Dillman, Jim Hardin, Gene Brabender, John O'Donoghue and Pete Richert, the other weekend shutout pitchers.

At the same time Detroit Tigers' pennant hopes suffered a blow when slugging Willie Horton bruised a shoulder tendon in a 5-1 loss to Atlanta Braves as Tito Francona homered and later scored the winning run.

Horton, injured while making a tumbling catch in left field, is expected to be out a week.

California lost pitcher Jim McGlothlin in the second inning with a muscle spasm in his back, but Chuck Hinton's bat powered the Angels to a 5-3 victory over San Francisco Giants.

Houston Astros had their sighting-in winning streak snapped when Philadelphia Phillies broke a 3-3 tie with eight runs in the last three innings for an 8-3 triumph as Grant Jackson and rookie Larry Colton combined on a three-hitter.

Rich Nye held Cleveland Indians to six hits and no walks in eight innings in a 7-3 Chicago Cub victory.

"Nice Going, Kid!"

Ron Fuller, selected Rookie of the Year on the Belleville Junior "B" hockey club, is presented with the Bucky Ethier Memorial Trophy by Mr. Gerald Ethier. The presentation took place at the Minnie Menard benefit game in Memorial Arena.

Senior Curling

Two Rinks Unbeaten

EDMONTON (CP) — Rinks from Quebec and Saskatchewan were early favorites going into the third round today at the Canadian senior curling championships. Both were undefeated after two opening rounds.

Ron Wright's rink of Hudson, Que., grabbed a pair of 12-4 wins over Northern Ontario's Don MacLean of Sudbury, then dropped Norman Rockwell's foursome of St. John's, Nfld., 10-5.

Saskatchewan's entry, skipped by Don Wilson of Saskatoon, embarrassed Newfoundland 25-1 then edged Jim Harold Mabey rink of Moncton, N.B., 6-5 in the second. The loss put Mabey, with the first-round bye, into fourth place.

There was a five-way race for second place, shared among Prince Edward Island, Northern Ontario, Manitoba, Ontario, and Alberta. Each had one win and a loss going into today.

Today's third round at 9:30 a.m. MST had Wright meeting New Brunswick, Andy Grant's Ontario rink from Unionville taking on Manitoba, Manitoba's Jim Duncan of Virden meeting double-loser Lawrence Carter of Amherst, N.S., Alberta's Bev Snyder of Calgary taking on Harold Jordan of Kimberley, B.C., and Rockwell meeting Dr. Wendell MacDonald's rink from Charlottetown, Saskatchewan gets the bye.

Pros Will Speed Up Lacrosse

TORONTO (CP) — The National Lacrosse Association, an eight-team professional league that makes its debut May 5, has rewritten parts of the rulebook to speed up the game and win fans.

"We've got a 45-second rule," explained Morley Kells, coach and manager of Toronto Maple Leafs. "It means hiring an offensive timekeeper, but a club must shoot at goal within 45 seconds of getting the ball. If it doesn't, a horn blows and the other team will be given the ball."

Kells also said there will be no tie games. A 10-minute overtime period will be held and then sudden-death if needed.

"We've eliminated the face-off after a ball goes out of bounds—we give it to the team that didn't send it out," he said. "We've replaced the free throw with a penalty shot and we've eliminated some face-offs—except when a team is shorthanded."

The Eastern Division of the new league will be represented by Toronto, Montreal, Peterborough and Detroit, Vancouver, Victoria, New Westminster and Portland round out the western group.

Tweed Meets Bobcaygeon In Semi-Finals

Bobcaygeon will supply the opposition for Tweed in the Ontario Minor Hockey Association's Midget "D" semi-finals. It was announced yesterday.

First game in the two-of-three series will be played in Tweed tomorrow (Wednesday) at 8.30 p.m. A date for the second game, in Bobcaygeon has not been established.

Ski Queen Will Retire!

ROSSLAND, B.C. (CP) — Nancy Greene, Canada's ski queen, said Monday she will retire from international competition after the remaining two World Cup meets.

Miss Greene, 24, who won gold and silver medals in the 1968 Winter Olympics at Grenoble, France, will ski before her hometown fans at a World Cup international meet that begins Thursday on Red Mountain here.

"It was a tough decision to make," said Miss Greene, who began skiing on Red Mountain when she was only 2½ years old.

"When I was at Aspen the weekend before last, the thought that I might be skiing my last downhill race . . . well it almost made me cry."

The Rossland meet will be the first World Cup race for the Canadian girl since the Aspen, Colo., meet and she won't have the opportunity to ski any more downhill races. The remaining two meets consist of slalom and giant slalom only.

Miss Greene, who arrived here Monday from Sun Valley, Idaho, said she has been considering retirement for the past two weeks.

"I know I have to stop skiing sometime—but it's really going to be hard," she said in an interview.

Miss Greene, the defending World Cup champion, said that after the final cup race at Heavenly Valley, Calif., she will return to Notre Dame University at Nelson and write examinations. She is in her freshman year and is taking history.

Women's Bowling

Tournament A Success

The Belleville Women's Bowling Association conducted its seventh annual tournament, naming champions in all events, over the past two weekends.

In the team event, International Hardware Number One captured first place and the Belleville Bowl Trophy. Members of the team, which scored 2,906, were captain Fran Collessio, Marg McGuire, Betty Mundorff, Doreen Weese and Marlene Nell.

Misses and Mrs., with 2,884, came second, captained by Pat McMullen and consisting of Liz Penny, Millie Brast, Donna Williams and Lynda Caddick.

Lucky Strikers were third with 2,846. Members were captain Selma Wodzak, Ada Bush, Florence White, Doris Waddell and Loris Conn. In fourth place came Belle Villans, with 2,840, with captain Madeline James, Val Tucker, Dot Anderson, Helen Walz and Peg Ronsky.

Trudy Sands and Gail Long won the doubles crown and Dixie Lee Young a score of 1,181, followed by Val Tucker and Peg Ronsky with 1,178, Diane Brennan and Donna Thompson of Deseronto with 1,172 and Jill and Jacky Thompson with 1,158.

The singles championship, for the Darcel and Milady Trophy, went to Donna Thompson of Deseronto with a top score of 632. Following in order were Betty Ling 611, Linda Johnstone of Deseronto 610, Ruth Pfefferle 603, Maxine Messer 584, Dot Anderson 580, Dawn Cassidy of Deseronto 588 and Muriel Kimmett 580.

Linda Johnstone won the all-events handicap title and the Paul Kelly Drugs Trophy with a score of 1,790, followed by Emma Empson 1,760, Jill Thompson 1,754 and Dawn Ford 1,742.

The all-events scratch title went to Donna Thompson with 1,437, followed by Madeline James 1,446, Val Tucker and Grace Poste with 1,441 each.

Champion Retains Ring Title

SARNIA (CP) — Gary Summerhayes of Brantford, Canadian amateur middleweight champion, scored a unanimous decision Monday over John Lindsay of Port Huron, Ont., in the feature bout of an amateur boxing card.

Summerhayes, outweighing Lindsay 158-156, used the 12-pound difference to good advantage to win the rubber match in their best-of-three series.

Ward Heads For CPL Score Title

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Ron Ward of Tulsa Oilers holds down first place in the Central Professional Hockey League scoring race heading into the final week of the regular schedule with 85 points.

Ward, a native of Cornwall, Ont., has 31 goals and 54 assists in 66 games.

Jim Lorentz of Oklahoma City Blazers holds the runner-up spot with 33 goals and 50 assists for 83 points. Lorentz, who graduated last spring from Niagara Falls Flyers in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A ranks, is the circuit's top goal-getter.

Ward's 54 assists mark rim as the loop's top playmaker.

Ken Campbell holds third spot with 32 goals and 46 assists for 80 points, two more than yesteran team-mate Len Haley, who has 32 goals and 46 assists.

Russ Gillow of Oklahoma City tops the goaltenders with a 2.21 goals-against average and leads in shutouts with eight.

IS A SUCCESSFUL FUTURE YOUR GOAL?

There is no short cut to success but we can offer a successful future to a man who can be trained for management responsibilities.

The man we want will be between the ages of 23 and 33 and will have an aptitude for sales and administrative work.

Junior Matriculation and some experience in banking, sales, accounting or credit is desireable but not essential. Good starting salary, training program and full employee benefits.

We are interested in discussing YOUR future.

Call us today and arrange an appointment.

Forum Held For United Church Elders

DESERONTO — Stewards and elders of the Bellefille Presbytery of the United church have had three opportunities recently to meet together, the first time such joint meetings have been held in this Presbytery.

Meetings were held in Stirling and Bloomfield, and the third and last meeting was in Deseronto. In each case, Rev. Fred Love of Trenton North led the sessions with the theme being underway, Rev. William Hendry of Deseronto was the speaker.

Mr. Hendry dealt with the prescribed topic, The Widest Work of the Church. Mr. Hendry is convener of the M and M program for the Presbytery and so was competent to deal with the topic.

The speaker pointed out that no church should confine its work to its own four walls. Each church has a mission, and that mission does not lie only in foreign lands, but may lie across the street where someone is lonely or in trouble. "Each church has commitments not only within its walls, but outside thos walls, and too often a church neglects those wider commitments," the speaker said.

Two questions were presented for consideration. "What do you regard as the mission of the church?" and "How can you as stewards and elders accomplish this work?" Group discussions were followed by a panel discussion, with Mr. Hendry, Rev. Guy Case of Napanee and Mr. Taylor Franklin of Bellville as panellists.

A dedication service for stewards and elders followed, conducted by Mr. Hendry, with the assistance of Mrs. Rockwell (Evelyn) Case, a newly elected elder, and Mr. Harold Piercy, who is both a steward and an elder.

At the close of the service, the scene changed to the Sunday School auditorium, where the UCW served refreshments.

Friends Honor Nonagenarian

DESERONTO — Mrs. Calvin Emmons was 90 years old on Sunday. Her only child, Mrs. Merton Cummings had planned a reception for all her mother's friends, but she herself underwent emergency surgery last week. However, friends, neighbors and relatives rallied round and everything was ready for the many callers, complete with birthday cake.

Mrs. Emmons is truly a remarkable woman, very tiny, but active in both mind and body. She lives alone, does all her own housework, including such things as some painting; and has her own garden.

All her life she has been active and useful. While a resident of Deseronto for many years, she had earned a name for herself in her own home in the Odessa area and quickly built up a similar reputation in Deseronto. She is a graduate nurse, but was the kind who became housekeeper as well as nurse when necessary. In her early days, it was unusual for people to be in hospital when illness was called on to nurse patients in their homes who were graveby ill. At the same time, she kept the home running.

Fire Causes $10,000 Damage

NAPANEE — Napanee had its first fire in the business section of the town in two years on Sunday night. Fire damage was confined to the roof and the two third-storey apartments in the business block on John St. Water damaged apartments on the second floor and the George Grant Insurance office and the Simpsons-Sears order office on the ground floor.

Cause of the fire has not yet been determined, but Fire Chief F. W. Patten estimated the damage at upwards of $10,000.

For a time the adjoining Paisley house was threatened, but the firemen managed to contain the fire in the one building block.

Mrs. Bonnie Denison, a young widow, was visiting her parents, Mrs. L. A. (Pat) Paquin of RR 3, Napanee, when the fire was discovered. Her small son was with her. Mrs. Douglas (Mildred) Evans in the second floor apartment was also away. The only occupant was Mrs. T. K. Mallaby, an aged lady who is owner of half the building, who occupied a second floor apartment. She was taken to the home of neighbors. Owner of the other half is Mr. Paquin. Mrs. Denison and her son are now with her parents.

The fire was reported at 7:00 p.m. by George Hawley, one of the volunteer firemen who lives on the same street and who saw the smoke when he left his own home. He passed bystanders across the street watching, but none had turned in an alarm.

The building faces the Market Square, and the fire hall is close. Firemen were fighting the blaze within minutes and were aiding in removing files from the insurance office. Those not removed were assembled in the middle of the room and were covered with a tarpaulin and so were undamaged by water.

The stock in the Simpsons-Sears order office was removed to the back of the building, and excessive water damage was averted. Most of the fire was at the front of the building.

The Ontario Hydro has been asked to aid in determining the cause and an official is expected from Toronto Tuesday.

Firemen thought their work was completed when they returned to the hall at 9:15, but were called back at 1:20 and remained until 3:30. Although part of the ceiling had been removed to get at the fire in the roof, it had broken out the second time.

Canadian Badminton

Upsets In Offing?

VICTORIA (CP) — Canadians may not win any open titles at the triple Canadian badminton championships this week, but they are expected to provide their share of the excitement.

The national close tournament, which begins today along with the junior, promises upsets and new champions in both men's and women's divisions.

High seeds in the open, which begins Friday in this British Columbia capital, are the foreign entries, from Thailand, Japan and the U.S.

The national open, close and junior were scheduled for the Victoria Raquet Club, but the large entry of Canadian players forced tournament officials to move the juniors to a community hall.

The Asian entries threaten to sweep top awards in the open.

'Kiss Me Kate' Eye-filling With Stunning Sets, Costumes

NEW YORK (AP)—Transition of Kiss Me, Kate from stage to television did not harm the plot much, but Cole Porter's witty lyrics and catchy tunes have stood up well over the years.

The 90-minute adaptation was presented Monday night on ABC, and was an eye-filling treat, with stunning sets and gay, colorful costumes.

The problem for television was the play-within-a-play device, moving back and forth between musical comedy and Shakespeare.

Robert Goulet, former CBC television star, in hose and doublet and wearing crepe mustachios and Van Dyke beard, swashbuckled around in his character of suitor and in one out-of-place flashback made a valiant effort at some broad comedy. As usual, he seemed most comfortable when he was singing.

Carol Lawrence, in her dual role of divorced wife of the star and Kate of the play-within, nicely and danced beautifully. While she played out the shrew scenes enthusiastically, she was not particularly convincing.

Michael Callan, co-star of last season's Occasional Wife series, revealed some impressive song-and-dance talents when he was teamed with Jessica Walter as the second pair of starcrossed lovers. One of the disappointments of the show was the scarcity of dance numbers when there were dancers of the stature of Miss Lawrence and Callan around.

Miss Walter, as the funny nine goldigger, had the most distinct vocal part in the show and two of the most amusing songs. She gave it an innocent, girl-next-door reading and failed to make the most of it.

Marty Ingels and Jules Munshin were cast as a pair of fumbling comedy gangsters, an old device, and not particularly amusing.

Contemporary touches were injected in the 20-year-old book. Russell Nype was cast as an actor turned politician, and Goulet occasionally dropped some modern slang—he advised someone to keep his cool. None of these helped speed up the story's progress.

The Tony awards show, on NBC April 21, will honor the 1967-68 season's outstanding Broadway shows and performers and will present samples from four hits.

Pearl Bailey and the chorus of her Hello, Dolly will do a production number. Steve Lawrence and Eydie Gorme will sing a number from their Golden Rainbow. Robert Goulet and David Wayne will act out a scene from Happy Hunting. And the ensemble of How Now, Dow Jones? will also perform.

Postal Curling

CALGARY (CP) — Stan Elke of Edmonton tied a perfect ribbon around the Canadian postal employees curling championship Monday with a 14-6 win over Jim Kiernan's southern Saskatchewan rink from Moose Jaw in the ninth and final round.

Elke finished the 10-rink round-robin competition with an unblemished 9-0 record.

Northern Manitoba's Brian Taylor of Winnipeg and Ev Ellison of Prince Albert shared second place.

Detroit's Mayor Voices Alarm At Way Residents Arm Selves

DETROIT (AP)-Mayor Jerome P. Cavanagh says whites and Negroes in Detroit and its suburbs are in an arms race that must be stopped. He pleads for a "return to sanity."

What does the arms race involve?

—A 46-per-cent increase in the rate of pistol registrations in the city since last July's riot.

—Booming sales of shotguns and rifles, which are exempt from gun registration laws.

—Smuggling gun-running to Detroit from Toledo, Ohio, where pistols can be bought without registration.

—More gun thefts in the Detroit area since the riot than during the entire preceding year.

—Clinics teaching hundreds of citizens how to load, aim and fire handguns.

—Unsigned posters, publicly displayed, which say: "Warning: Black Power, this area protected by white citizens militia."

Individual residents have been flocking to gun stores.

Norman Wessel, owner of Neuman's Gun Shop, says: "We're getting business from people who want to protect their families and their homes. TV say sales are up about 30 per cent over last February."

The shop is located just south of what was the main area of trouble in last July's violence.

A salesman at a major chain outlet says: "We just began selling pistols this year because of the increased demand. I would say about 20 per cent of the people who buy guns from me say it's for home protection."

Some gun buyers desiring training in the use of their new weapons found their way to gun clinics, two of which were in operation before the riot. One, in Detroit, was conducted for grocers, many of whom had been hit frequently by holdup men.

Detroit police earlier had criticized the gun clinic, warning that "rule by gun" could not be allowed.

But police in Highland Park, a city of 38,000 person surrounded by Detroit, started a gun clinic for Highland Park citizens. Highland Park Police Chief William E. Stephens backed the idea.

Another gun clinic was formed in Dearborn, which is into Detroit's southwest side, following the Detroit riot.

The clinic has trained 200 persons so far—all of them white women—and has a waiting list of many more. One-third of the trainees in Highland Park are Negroes, the rest white. The Detroit clinic aimed at grocers drew some whites, some Negroes.

In some homes, a telephone ringing Detroit, basement rifle ranges have been built for target practice. Some homes have stocked extra food in the event trouble isolates them for long.

The "Black Power warnings" have appeared in suburbs to the northeast of Detroit. Police say they don't know who is putting them. Officers rip down the signs wherever they find them.

In the wealthy Grosse Pointe section, 199 men and one woman recently volunteered for duty as auxiliary policemen in case trouble erupts.

Rev. Albert Cleagt, a militant black nationalist, through the city's major Negro weekly, the Michigan Chronicle, has urged Negroes to store one month's food against the possibility of trouble.

He says he is pessimistic about the coming summer. He says his main fear is that "hysterical whites will provoke some kind of violence."

The Inner City Voice, a militant Negro periodical which claims a circulation of 15,000 in Detroit and bills itself as the Voice of the Revolution, tells its readers that revolutionaries must be willing to die, if necessary, for their cause. The paper prints a recipe for a Molotov cocktail.

"What we have is a 'public hysteria,'" declares Capt. Raymond McConnel, the top detective in the Michigan State Police.

"A lot of people are going out and buying guns and that's the worst thing they could do."

Sydney Omarr's Astrological Forecasts

For March 27th

ARIES (March 21—April 19): Plans may be upset. Be willing to change, to rebuild. Concentrate on future rather than brooding about past. Be independent. Confidence is key to greater success.

TAURUS (April 20—May 20): Friendships appears excellent; may be troubled by personal dilemmas. Be a good listener. No day to quarrel over trifles. Stress understanding, sympathy and good will.

GEMINI (May 21—June 20): Highlight versatility. Those in authority are concerned with your ability to adapt to changing conditions. Demonstrate that ability. Sense of humor helps today.

CANCER (June 21—July 22): Feeling of restriction is but temporary. Know this. Act accordingly. Avoid unnecessary journeys. You will not find answers by running away. Use clear of argument with relative.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Don't fight city hall. Means you gain more through diplomacy than by utilizing rash methods. Money question is resolved if communication lines are open. Applies to mate, partner.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Plans are discussed which relate to you in legal or partnership sense. Family, fieldence are affected. Base decisions on careful analysis, not impulse.

LIBRA (Sept. 23—Oct. 22): Get the most from efforts. Wasted motions can be eliminated. Takes extra effort—but you can achieve goal. Give special attention to diet, work methods.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Your ability to persuade members of opposite sex is emphasized. You can get what you want today. Use tact, salesmanship. What you sell is prospect of pleasure. Know this. Act accordingly.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Shake off lethargy. Family responsibility and other pressures can be handled. Key is to hold your ground. Don't panic at first sign of rebellion. Hold reins in tight grip.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Some close to you, including neighbors and relatives, appear to work at cross purposes. Don't feel you must make explanations. Do your best—let others fight their own battles.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 19): Your possessions could be in danger. Take no unnecessary risks. Conditions subject to abrupt change. Consult financial expert before making large expenditures. Take it easy.

PISCES (Feb. 20—Mar. 20): Cycle high, but mate or partner displays definite sign of restlessness. Status quo is shaken—you may have to consider new approach. Avoid legal entanglements.

If today is your birthday you are an individual who thrives at time of trouble, crisis. You often are better at helping others than at aiding yourself. Year favors completing rather than initiating major projects.

General tendencies: Lunar position is favorable for fishing. News features reorganization of major groups, including political.

Stilbesterol Hormone Substitute

By Dr. Joseph G. Molner

Dear Dr. Molner: Does the drug stillbestrol stimulate production of hormones or is it a hormone itself? Is it considered a "fertility pill?" What unfavorable side effects might result from prolonged use? How does it differ from diethylstilbesterol or are they the same? — Mrs. R., L. L.

Stilbesterol is an abbreviation for diethylstilbesterol.

We can't safely say that it is a hormone; it is a synthetic chemical which, however, has the properties of estrogen, or the female hormone. There fore it is commonly used in treatment of menopause and other conditions where female hormones are used.

It has the advantage of being inexpensive as compared to actual hormones.

It is potent, hence used in small doses, but often is used for periods of several years and has been in use for a considerable time now, so physicians have a familiarity with the proper way to employ it.

Principal side effects from over-dosage would be similar to those of too much estrogen — spotting or bleeding, and soreness of the breasts.

It is not exactly a "fertility pill" but has proved very useful in correcting irregularities of menstrual cycles, in certain circumstances, and in that way it does play a part in encouraging fertility in such patients.

• • •

Dear Dr. Molner: I am a woman, 39, and through X-rays discovered I have a hiatus hernia. My doctor does not recommend surgery but says to watch my weight. Is this the best way to treat it? — F. G.

If you won't follow your doctor's guidance (which is what I would do) I'd at least give it a thorough tryout. There are cases in which nothing short of surgery will solve the problem of hiatus (or hiatal) hernia, but the majority of cases respond very well to more conservative treatment.

There is no assurance that you will have to diet "the rest of your life," and there are other methods of meeting the trouble, too. They certainly should be tried before insisting on surgery.

Before making up your mind, why not send for my booklet, Hiatal Hernia and Eight Ways to Combat It, after which you'll have a better basis for decision. Send 25 cents in coin and a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Dr. Molner in care of the Chicago Sun — Times Syndicate P. O. Box 158, Dundee, Ill., for a copy. For one thing, you haven't told me how much distress you are having or that would be an important factor which also doubtless your doctor is weighing.

• • •

Dear Dr. Molner: I have rare pessimisms and think I want a child with never any bad effects. Now some people are saying they are poison and will kill a person. I do not believe a word of it but please let me know real soon as I can eat them or if you say they are dangerous I will destroy them. —Mrs. W., A. C.

Madam, you are living proof that your friends do not know what they are talking about. Eat your persimmons in peace but make sure they are ripe, as apparently you have been doing. The "poison" that your friends refer to is a substance in the unripe fruit that is very astringent and would make your lips pretty puckery.

Partisans or Guerrillas?

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Antics With Semantics:

I am making a "total commitment," but you are "putting all your eggs in one basket."

When I am for mingling, I declare that "it takes all sorts to make a world," but when I am against your kind of mingling, I remind you that "oil and water don't mix."

My exaggeration was merely "a figure of speech," but your exaggeration was "a false analogy."

I "adapt to circumstances," but you "are all things to all men."

It is true that I was found "in flagrante delicto," but you were "caught redhanded."

Independent sharpshooters who favor our side are "partisans"; Independent sharpshooters who favor their side are "guerillas."

I "slipped away quietly" but you "took French leave."

Nobody who prefaces a judgment with the phrase, "in my humble opinion," is ever humble enough to refrain from expressing it.

Likewise, anyone who prefaces a statement with the phrase, "I don't want to sound like bragging, but . . ." always sounds like the worst sort of braggart.

I "withdrew discreetly"; you "took to your heels"; he "ran away like a stuck pig."

Most people actually believe there is some subtle, settled "the unwritten law" which they can invoke when they commit the unbreakable crime.

It is always others who have "vested interests"; what I have are "rights."

The summation "when all is said and done . . ." usually indicates that not much has been said and too little done.

"Moral victory" is a philosophic term meaning "defeat."

Only ignorant persons imagine that the poet said "Ignorance is bliss"; what he said was: "Where ignorance is bliss, 'tis folly to be wise."

Our side is making "defensive preparations"; their side is "armed to the teeth."

Giving the matter "due consideration" means hoping the problem will go away in time if a decision is indefinitely postponed.

It's depressingly ironic how the Biblical phrase, "an eye for an eye and a tooth for a tooth," which originally was a demand for strict justice and no more, has been turned into a justification of revenge by everyone who appeals to the saying.

Longshoremen Agree to Sign

MONTREAL (CP) — Labor peace and the full operation for at least a year of the St. Lawrence Rivers' three main ports appeared assured Monday with the signing of an "agreement to agree" between the Shipping Federation of Canada and the International Longshoremen's Association.

The agreement dispersed months of gloom in shipping circles. It had been predicted the two parties would be unable to reach a settlement of their contract dispute in time to avoid a complete closedown of the ports of Montreal, Quebec and Trois-Rivieres before the opening of the summer shipping season.

The two parties went before a federal conciliation board and agreed to both binding arbitration of contentious issues and to a moratorium on strikes and lockouts until March 31, 1969.

Judge Alan B. Gold of Quebec provincial court, chairman of the conciliation board, said later that by their gesture the federation and the ILA had demonstrated "a mature approach which bodes well for the future."

Terms of the agreement were worked out at the end of last week between representatives of the shipping federation and the ILA. Terms were ratified by the membership of the 40-company federation and the six locals of the ILA, representing 4,500 workers, at Monday meetings.

Ontario Budget Is Assailed As Harsh and Short-sighted

TORONTO (CP) — Opposition parties attacked the Ontario government's 1968-69 budget Monday as the Liberals introduced a non-confidence motion and the New Democratic Party criticized the Conservative government's refusal to participate in the federal medical care plan.

Robert Nixon, Liberal party leader, said during the budget debate that the budget imposed "harsh new burdens on lower- and middle-income citizens and employees."

His non-confidence motion said the budget depends on regressive tax and revenue increases, "particularly in the financing of health services," and termed the proposed spending on housing "paltry."

Donald MacDonald, NDP leader, said the government's refusal to participate in the federal medical care program "is a monument to its short-sightedness and twisted priorities."

He said Ontario families which subscribe to the Ontario government's hospital and medical services plan will have to pay premiums totalling $309 a year as a result of increases announced March 12 by Provincial Treasurer Charles MacNaughton.

"We are getting further and further away from a hospital plan based on ability to pay," he said.

Mr. MacDonald said that if the government had agreed to join the federal medical plan it would have qualified for federal aid totalling $100,000,000 a year.

"A public medicare plan is bound to be cheaper," he said.

During the speech he also called on the government to insist that Texas Gulf Sulphur Co. build a smelter for its mining operations in the Porcupine area and proposed that the government acquire an equity interest in the firm.

He suggested that instead of making forgiveable loans to new industries locating in slow-growth areas the government invest the money in the firms.

"There is no reason why the Ontario Development Corp. can't be developed into an instrument to give Ontario people a piece of the action in the development of our natural resources and new industries," he said.

In other legislature business:

—Attorney - General Arthur Wishart said the government is not prepared to compensate persons who suffer monetary loss or loss of time through the administration of justice in the province. He made the statement in reply to Opposition Leader Nixon who asked whether the government was considering compensation for John Riddle, 34, who was held in Toronto's Don jail for six weeks before charges against him were dropped.

Premier Robarts said a government promise six years ago to spend $2,000,000,000 on land acquisition for parks over a 20-year period has been wrongly interpreted as a commitment to spend $10,000,000 a year for the purpose.

He was replying to Opposition Leader Nixon who asked why the government had only spent $12,000,000 under the program.

Mr. Robarts said the government actually has spent $15,600,000 on purchasing potential parklands and is negotiating for other properties.

Fear CF-5 Won't Get Tankers

OTTAWA (CP) — Mobile Command faces the embarrassing possibility of having to ship the CF-5 strike-reconnaisance plane by sea if it ever has to deploy it overseas, defence officials say.

Alternatively, the command might have to take the wings and tail off the short-range plane and ship it abroad in a Hercules transport aircraft.

Authorities say they are worried about the prospect of buying aerial refuelling tankers from the U.S.

When the $300,000,000 CF-5 program was started nearly four years ago, it was known that the plane would have to be refuelled the air to deploy it overseas.

The defence department tried to convert Canadian air force transport planes for this role but the scheme did not work.

By the time it placed a $41,000,000 order with Lockheed-Georgia Corp. last year for four C-141 air tankers, the company's production line for this plane closed to make way for the huge C-5A transport.

Canada has tried to buy some C-141s from the U.S. Air Force but the Americans need them all for the Vietnam war.

Officials say all possibilities of obtaining C-141s have not yet been exhausted but that the picture is bleak at the moment.

Meanwhile, the first of 115 CF-5s have come off the assembly line at Canadair Ltd., Montreal. Four squadrons of CF-5s will eventually be formed.

The plane is intended mainly for reconnaissance by camera and infra-red sensor for any ground forces which Canada now has or might in future dispatch overseas.

The defence department is studying the feasibility of using some surplus navy Tracker planes for ground reconnaissance.

Meat Sales Fraud Charged

Seven Discount Stores Raided

TORONTO (CP)—Seventeen persons, the majority of them United States citizens, Tuesday were charged with fraud or conspiracy to defraud the public following simultaneous raids on seven Ontario discount meat stores.

Police and provincial and federal government officials made the raids following months of investigation, prompted by complaints from people who had answered advertisements for bargain beef. Some housewives said they did not get the meat they had ordered and that other cuts were substituted.

Others said they got low weight when the fat was trimmed. Quality of the meat was another complaint.

The raids were made on three Toronto stores and others at London, St. Catharines, Bridgeport and Cyrville, in the Ottawa Valley.

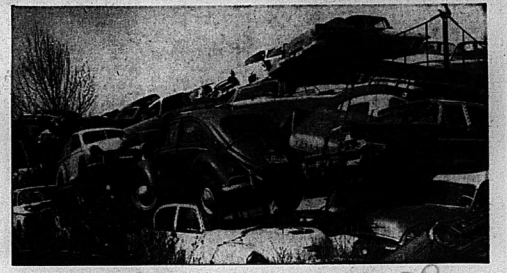
Those arrested in Toronto each face four charges of attempting to defraud the public. Those arrested outside of Toronto were charged with conspiracy to defraud the public.

Raided were Beef City Meats, St. Catharines; Twin City Meats, Bridgeport, near Waterloo; and Beef City Meats, London, all owned and operated by Gettle Enterprises, Wichita, Kans., and Beef Town Freezer Ltd., Cyrville, near Ottawa, owned and operated by Beef Town Enterprises Inc., of Arlington, Tenn.

The three Toronto stores were Meat Packers Outlet, which police said was operated by Aaron Enterprises of Pendale, Mich., Western Quality Meats of North York Ltd., operated, police said, by Cattle King Meats Ltd., of Calgary, and Baldy's Beef Freezer Meats.

Arrested at St. Catharines were: Kenneth Bradley of Beaumont, Tex., and Jack Bronner of Beverley Hills, Calif.

Russell Kersey, 29, of Wichita, Kans., Duane McOsker, 33, of Alva, Okla., and Gerald Dinsmore of Miami, Okla., were arrested in London.



In Bridgeport, arrested were John Layfield, 33, of Cleveland, Tenn., and John Barrable, 30, of Kitchener. Claude J. Mainier of South Carolina and Remald Chapot, of no fixed address, were charged at Cyrville.

Arrested at Meat Packers Outlet, Toronto, were Gunter Esser, 32, of Toronto, his wife Marion, 28, of Detroit Mich., and John Kingston, 21, of Toronto.

Dieter Luehmann, 34, of Toronto, was arrested after a raid on Baldy's Meats.

The four arrested at Western Quality Meats were Stephen Boks, 23, of Lockport, N.Y., Lewis Allerton, 25, of Omaha, Neb., Charles Cornelius, 27, of Detroit, Mich., and Jonathon Turner, 23, of Toronto.

Police said warrants are out for the arrest of the owners of Meat Packers Outlet. A warrant is also out for one major operator, a U.S. citizen said to have a stake in three stores.

Woman, Two Boys Slain

EDMONTON (CP) — The bodies of a woman in her 30s and two boys found in a southwest Edmonton home were identified today as Anna Ardouin and her sons, Nigel, 5, and Nicky, 2.

The three were found Tuesday night in second-floor bedrooms, the woman and Nicky shot in the back of the head and Nigel in the chest. Police said there was no sign of a struggle.

Alberta chief coroner M. M. Canter said the shootings could have occurred as early as Saturday morning.

Police said they were looking for a man for questioning.

The bodies were found by a neighbor after she wondered why the parents of a three-year-old girl, with whom her daughter had been playing, had not sought their daughter by 8 p.m. Tuesday.

The victims were the wife and two sons of Dr. Graham Ardouin, formerly of Red Deer and Bentley, Alta.

Essay on Aging Proves Poignant

NEW YORK (AP)—Lord Snowden, in his first work for television, has produced an essay on aging that is haunting and enlightening.

The essay, Don't Count the Candles, shown on CBS Tuesday night, visits the landmarks of old age—the retirement ceremony, the beach, the park, the old folks home, the attempts to recapture youthful vigor and, of course, the funeral parlor.

Many of the visits are depressing—and a few are humorous—but they are presented with freshness and insight and some of the most marvelous camera work seen on the home screen in a long time.

Seal Hunt Defended

PORT HOPE (CP) — There is no evidence of cruelty in the killing of seals in the Gulf of St. Lawrence, says author-naturalist Farley Mowat.

Any attempt to halt the annual harvest of pups would be unrealistic, he said on return Tuesday from the Magdalen Islands, base of operations for the hunt, where he was an independent observer.

News Briefs

PRAGUE (AP) — Alexander Dubcek, Czechoslovak Communist party chief, said today fellow Communist leaders he met with at Dresden, East Germany, last weekend expressed "a certain concern" over the Czech liberalization drive. Critical statements against the most liberal Czech elements came from party ideologists in East Berlin and Hungary.

WASHINGTON (AP)—The only known flock of whooping cranes is leaving its winter home in Texas for a 2,500-mile migration to its summer nesting area in Canada near the Arctic Circle. Four of the rare birds left Monday.

* * *

LONDON (CP)—Trend-watchers look to four by-elections Thursday for any signs that Prime Minister Wilson's Labor government is climbing back from prolonged decline in popular appeal. Straw polls point to Labor losing more ground.

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Multi-millionaire industrialist Cyrus S. Eaton has sold most of his vast interests in iron ore, steel and shipping to the American Export Industries, Inc., of New York for almost $20,000,000.

TORONTO (CP) — Ralph Cowan, Liberal member of Parliament for York-Humber, says he is frightened Liberal leadership candidates are selling out Ontario to Quebec to win Quebec delegates' votes.

60 Cars Involved In Mishaps

TORONTO (CP) — Five persons were injured during the morning rush hour in heavy fog today when at least 60 cars and trucks were involved in three accidents in northwest Toronto, near the junction of Highway 400 and the Macdonald-Cartier Freeway.

Provincial police said the accidents took place within two miles of each other.

The most serious pileup involved 17 vehicles, including four large trucks.

Traffic in all lanes of Highway 400 was delayed for more than 90 minutes.

Thirty-five vehicles collided at the Jane Street interchange of the freeway, tying up traffic in all directions for almost an hour.

Cobourg Resident Wins Sweeps Prize

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Four Canadians won prizes of about $130,000 each with Irish Sweepstakes tickets on Frankincense, winner of the Lincolnshire Handicap run at Doncaster, England today.

Nine Canadians won about $52,000 each with tickets on Waterloo Place, who placed second, and 18 Canadians won about $26,000 each with tickets on third-placed Norton Priory.

It was learned unofficially that the four big-money winners were Mario Gimaiey, Montreal, Vic Dixon, Wellington, B.C., Arthur Bates, Montreal and A. Connell, Cobourg, Ont.

Holders of the second-place tickets in Ontario were identified as Gladys Duffy, 88 Elliott St., Brampton; Syd Beaton, Windsor; Gerald Fromstein, Toronto; Mrs. G. Sieffler, 48 Columbia St., Waterloo, and A. George, Rexdale.

The third-prize winners in Ontario were identified as C. Van Hacker, 38 Churchill, Chatham; Muriel McConnell, Toronto; David Elliott, Weston; Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Cole, 1772 Hutton Ave., Ottawa, and Kam Jim Chow, Toronto.

GM of Canada Settles Strike, Granting Wage Parity in 1970

TORONTO (CP) — Settlement was reached early today in the strike by the United Auto Workers against General Motors of Canada.

The strike, 47 days long, affected GM and GM subsidiary plants in Oshawa, Toronto, London, Ont., Windsor, Ont., St. Catharines and St. Therese, Que.

GM says the strike affected 23,000 workers; the UAW says the figure is 25,000.

A UAW spokesman said membership meetings will be held Thursday to ratify the agreement.

The contract expires Sept. 14, 1970.

The new agreement calls for immediate wage increases of 20 cents an hour for all employees, retroactive to Nov. 6, 1967. An additional wage increase of 33 cents an hour is provided for skilled employees, also retroactive to Nov. 6, 1967.

Wage parity with United States auto workers will be achieved in five steps, the first of which will be in June, 1968. Complete parity will be accomplished by June, 1970.

Cost-of-living allowance increases will be made on an annual basis, once in November, 1968 and again in November, 1969.

Provision is made for a minimum and maximum increase. The minimum rate is three cents an hour in each of the first two years of the contract. The maximum is eight cents an hour.

By diverting two cents from the cost-of-living allowance increases the new agreement will provide wage parity for 1,000 employees not covered by the Canada-U.S. automotive trade agreement and an improved drug prescription plan for all employees.

A. G. Stapleton, chairman of the GM bargaining committee, said in a statement: "Our plants will re-open just as quickly as possible following ratification. Notification of return-to-work schedules will be handled at each plant location."

In a statement, GM said the major break in the bargaining came when the company withdrew its demands for immediate changes in the existing rest and wash-up periods and the union agreed to continuing discussions on the subject during the term of the new agreement at each plant.

Negotiations were slowed by union insistence that the practice of shutting down production lines for half an hour each shift for rest and wash-up periods be retained.

George Burt, Canadian director of the UAW, said in a statement settlement of the GM strike should lead to an early agreement at Ford Motor Co. of Canada, without a strike.

The effective date of the contract will be the Monday following receipt of notice of ratification.

Other provisions of the agreement:

—An improvement factor wage increase for all employees in both the second and third years of the agreement, which would range from nine to 13 cents;

—Twenty-six cents of the 31 cents cost-of-living allowance has been transferred to base wage rates. The remaining five cents will be continued as the cost-of-living for the first year of the agreement.

—The new formula for computing the cost-of-living allowance assures at least four cents of new money during the life of the new agreement and could add as much as 14 cents to the cost-of-lifing allowance;

—One additional paid holiday;

—Increased pension benefits;

—Improved disability and survivor benefits;

—A revised drug prescription plan:

—Increased amounts and longer periods for Supplemental Unemployment Benefits;

—Revised representation provisions;

—Time for in-plant handling of union business almost doubled.

Battle for Hamlet in Fourth Day

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. infantrymen supported by tanks, artillery and planes battled the Viet Cong today for control of a tiny hamlet northwest of Saigon in the fourth straight day of heavy fighting in the area.
